GROUP PROFILE

The forensic history and analysis experts at FTI Consulting provide a comprehensive suite of specialty services. Operating on a national scale, our experts provide tailored historical research, private investigation, litigation support, risk management, dispute resolution, cost recovery, and information management services. Our services are directed toward the resolution of complex product, pollution, tort, and insurance liability issues, as well as assist with mergers, acquisitions, and divestiture activities. In pollution liability, the group's historical research and investigations capabilities are complemented by nationally recognized expertise in identifying potential sources of contribution to the recovery of environmental response costs from private parties, federal entities, and insurance proceeds.

FTI Consulting personnel have specialized expertise in information technology, electronic discovery, and information management which allows our experts to provide a full suite of litigation and discovery support services aimed at maximizing the identification, location, harvesting, and analysis of relevant information while managing transactional costs. We provide law firms, corporations, and public sector clients with multidisciplinary resources and fact-finding expertise that is useful in addressing legal and regulatory issues and risks.
