CASE STUDY

SITUATION

Receivers of UDP Holdings Pty Ltd engaged us to provide an independent expert opinion in arbitration and litigation proceedings concerning allegations of overcharging of customers, causing breaches of warranties made in a share sale agreement and consequential material adverse change, resulting in a warranty and indemnity insurance claim.

OUR ROLE

Our opinion, which was largely uncontested, involved building a model to analyse a large volume of transaction data based on complex pricing arrangements to calculate the overcharging, which was used to assess the ‘true value’ of the business. We compared accounts with the Australian Accounting Standards; assessed Material Adverse Change; applied accounting and auditing principles (including materiality of errors); participated in multiple expert conclaves producing joint expert reports; and gave concurrent evidence in arbitration and litigation hearings.

OUR IMPACT

The Court found in our client’s favour, awarding the full limit of liability under the AU$25 million insurance policy (plus interest and costs). Our clients also succeeded in the arbitration.

Corporate risk & investigations

Our expert investigation teams are adept at responding immediately to events requiring sensitive yet robust investigations, and providing practical and actionable advice to establish the truth of a matter. We work collaboratively with internal and external legal counsel and adopt a methodical, rigorous approach to safeguarding a client's assets and reputation, and resolving matters with minimum disruption to their business. We also help prevent recurrences of instances by assessing risks and implementing effective control environments.

ARRAY OF INVESTIGATIVE CAPABILITIES

With a combination of diverse skillsets, we identify, collect, analyse, reconstruct and interpret critical financial and other information (maintaining chain of custody), interview witnesses and/or suspects, manage key stakeholders and, where relevant, support litigation, and deal with law enforcement agencies and regulators in incidents involving:

- Bribery and corruption

We help organisations understand fraud and corruption risks that they face. With a risk-based approach, we then help clients prevent, detect and respond to instances of fraud and corruption by assessing, benchmarking and implementing compliance frameworks comprising robust and risk-based policies, procedures and controls. Where remediation measures are required by the enforcement of legal obligations (i.e. Enforceable Undertakings or Deferred Prosecution Agreements), we act as Independent Monitors to ensure compliance with obligations.

CASE STUDY

SITUATION

Our client received an anonymous written allegation that a senior staff member had bribed a supplier during a contested tender process.

OUR ROLE

FTI Consulting investigated these allegations by forensically analysing personal computer and server data, telephone records and emails as well as interviewing witnesses and suspects.

OUR IMPACT

Our investigation established the allegations were false, concocted by two other staff members, with assistance from a third party. The senior staff member was exonerated, the true perpetrators identified, and the client's tender process had not been corrupted.

Providing legal teams with innovative and flexible e-discovery solutions, we focus on the technical tools, review strategies, and policies and procedures that support the entire process. We ensure consistent quality throughout all engagements with regular communication and reporting, standardised and repeatable processes, and strategic monitoring for consistency across projects. CASE STUDY

SITUATION

Our client had approximately 177,000 documents to review in a short timeframe. Due to limited budget constraints, only a small review team was allocated for the review.

OUR ROLE

To provide a defensible strategy, which enabled the small team of reviewers to assess the potentially relevant documents in a timely manner and within budget.

Using analytical tools and strategies and a Technology Assisted Review (TAR) process known as Continuous Active Learning (CAL), we created a defensible workflow strategy that enabled the review team to focus on the most likely relevant documents first, and ultimately reduce the overall review document population.

OUR IMPACT

By employing the e-discovery tools and strategies, we defensibly trimmed down the reviewable universe to 28,000 documents, a volume of documents the team of 3 reviewers could easily review, and we produced these within given deadlines and budget. Using traditional review methods, it would have taken a review team of 3 people 30 weeks to review the original document population. Using state of the art tools and strategies, we reduced the burden of document review both in terms of time and cost.

Data privacy & information governance

Helping manage data risk by assessing your client's data landscape. We offer solutions that improve compliance and reduce corporate risk, cut storage costs, secure data, improve e-discovery processes, increase data value and enable faster, deeper insights and more trusted customer relationships.

CASE STUDY

SITUATION

An Australian-based research and training firm was conducting a research project with participants based in multiple locations and engaged us to conduct a multi-jurisdictional privacy impact assessment.

OUR ROLE

We conducted a deep dive on the project, assessed compliance with the Australian Privacy Act 1988 (Cth), EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) and select US state privacy laws, mapped data flows throughout the project, and identified risk points and proposed mitigations. We also provided practical privacy-by-design advice on the project data collection, storage, access, and retention practices, and drafted various strategic communications to ensure best practice in the privacy messaging given to research subjects.

OUR IMPACT

Our assessment and advice enabled the client to achieve privacy best practice in the delivery of what was a highly sensitive piece of corporate social research.

With a combination of diverse skills, we identify, collect, analyse, reconstruct and interpret information relevant to incidents.

CASE STUDY

SITUATION

We were engaged by the external legal advisors of an aged care provider to undertake a payroll compliance assessment.

OUR ROLE

We worked closely with the legal team, the HR team, and reported to the Board. We were engaged to recalculate payroll for more than 80% of employees over a 6-year period, under 8 different complex EBAs. We combined disparate data sets taking into account rosters, timesheets, and payslip data. We built a model to take into account the contractual obligations and EBA rules, and recalculated wages per employee per fortnight. We used data visualisation tools to communicate findings to the HR team and the Board.

OUR IMPACT

We used our detailed analysis to assist the client through a complex remediation process. Our strategic communications experts advised on the communications plan, and our business transformation experts assisted with the implementation of our recommendations.

CASE STUDY

SITUATION

Queensland Nickel is one of Australia's largest corporate collapses, with almost 800 jobs lost and AU$300 million debt left owing to over 1,500 creditors, including the Australian Federal Government.

OUR ROLE

As Voluntary Administrators, we took over operations and began to restructure a business that was losing AU$1 million per week. We forensically investigated allegations of fraud and analysed financial data, litigated the recovery of assets, testified in court and managed internal and external stakeholders throughout.

OUR IMPACT

We detailed our findings in a report to creditors recommending liquidation, who overwhelmingly approved the wind up. We've reduced the claims of more than 1,500 creditors by AU$200 million including the fast-tracked assessment and distribution of payments of AU$70 million to nearly all 787 Queensland Nickel employees. We continue to litigate to recover the remaining debt.

CASE STUDY

SITUATION

We were appointed to Gascoyne Resources Limited and its subsidiaries ("Gascoyne") in June 2019 to run the business after it failed to deliver planned production. Gascoyne operates the Dalgara Gold Mine, located 70km from Mount Magnet, Western Australia.

OUR ROLE

We stabilised operations, updated the Life-of-Mine-Plan, and oversaw significant capital investment to underpin a successful turnaround strategy, resulting in an AU$125 million recapitalisation. Mining and processing continued uninterrupted, preserving underlying asset value for the benefit of all stakeholders.

OUR IMPACT

The business was saved with creditors, and shareholders kept whole via the use of a Deed of Company Arrangement, effectuated October 2020, enabling Gascoyne to resume trading on the ASX following 16 months operating in administration. Gascoyne transitioned to a profitable WA gold miner with consistent operational performance generating positive cash flow.
