About FTI Consulting Antitrust Forensic and Economic Services

Companies involved in cartel enforcement and related civil action matters face numerous challenges when developing appropriate defense strategies, preparing responses to governmental authorities, ensuring continuity with their customers, and responding to the demands of litigation. In recent years, both domestic and global enforcement agencies have sought increased and substantial fines, and litigation settlements have followed the same path. The trend of increased cooperation amongst global enforcement agencies continues and has resulted in additional scrutiny or action in all jurisdictions across the globe.

For companies and counsel faced with addressing such allegations, the challenges can be daunting. They must identify, gather, analyze, and understand vast amounts of financial data and information, pivotal to responding to and defending against antitrust allegations. They must also continually reassess their investigative and defense strategy as the information is gathered and analyzed, in order to respond to potential assertions of price fixing, market allocation, or bid rigging. All of this, while the company continues to manage the typical rigors of their business.

FTI Consulting's dedicated antitrust practice can help address these concerns and work alongside counsel and the company. We provide reactive services solutions and compliance consulting across multiple industries and continents. Our leading professionals deliver end-to-end antitrust cartel consulting and expert services to multinational and domestic companies involved in cartel enforcement and civil action matters.

🔍 CASE STUDY

Electronics Manufacturer

A global electronics component manufacturer was facing multiple antitrust enforcement investigations by global regulators. An effective response would require rapid review and analysis of 15 years of data residing in various current and legacy accounting systems across several subsidiaries.

FTI Consulting was able to quickly identify, collect, reconcile and analyze the company's transaction and manufacturing data. At the same time, we conducted on-site interviews to gain an understanding of the company's sales, pricing, and manufacturing processes and systems.

As a result, company's counsel quickly produced accurate and complete financial and manufacturing data to regulators, including the U.S. Department of Justice. Counsel utilized our analysis to shape the investigation and the proffers provided to the DOJ. Our work was instrumental in providing information for the proffer on the company's pricing and transfer price trends, both of which led to the reduction of the time periods on which the DOJ focused. With the assistance of our direct, import and export analyses, counsel was able to successfully argue for the removal of several categories of sales resulting in a substantial reduction to the volume of commerce.

CUSTOMER NEGOTIATIONS FINANCIAL AND ECONOMIC ANALYSIS SUPPORT

In response to enforcement actions, FTI Consulting regularly helps clients evaluate their exposure on collusive allegations and attain resolution with customers. We provide consultative economic analysis on potential exposure, evaluation of alternative analyses, and participation in settlement meetings with the customer.

KEY SERVICES

- Development of volume of commerce scenarios to aid in negotiation discussions
- Economic analysis, assessment and calculation of possible overcharge scenarios
- Preparation of reports and presentations to aid in customer negotiations
- Review and rebuttal of alternative analyses
- Expert economic support in settlement discussions

Auto Parts Manufacturer

When a global auto parts manufacturer accused of anticompetitive collusion sought to reach a reasonable settlement with its customers, they called on FTI Consulting to provide the expertise and economic analysis needed to assist the company and counsel negotiate.

FTI Consulting collected, analyzed and reconciled over 15 years of financial accounting data, sales contracts and related negotiation documents. We interviewed key business leaders to identify benchmark comparators to quantify any overcharges related to the alleged collusion.

Our team quantified the possible relevant volume of commerce and developed alternative scenarios in anticipation of customer claims. We developed several overcharge scenarios tied to the company's contract negotiation and pricing processes and presented these options to the company and counsel for consideration. FTI Consulting prepared rebuttal economic analyses to customers' claims on volume of commerce and overcharge positions which substantially lowered the potential exposure to the company. We also provided expert economic support to assist in the final settlement negotiations.

DIRECT AND INDIRECT PURCHASER CLASS ACTION LITIGATION

FTI Consulting professionals combine antitrust cartel expertise with class action litigation experience to assist clients with the intense demands of U.S. civil proceedings. We aid our clients in responding to financial accounting data discovery requests and interrogatories while also preparing analyses that support the company's positions to limit the scope and minimize the impact of potential exposure.

KEY SERVICES

- Responses to requests for production of financial and manufacturing data
- Structured data analysis to aid in the preparation of interrogatory responses
- Financial and economic analysis to support FTAIA and class certification positions
- Complex import and export commerce calculations
- Economic analysis to assess impact on price of alleged anticompetitive behavior

Auto Parts Manufacturer

An auto parts manufacturer faced civil litigation in the U.S. stemming from alleged bid-rigging. Because they did not sell directly to customers in the U.S., FTI Consulting prepared a complex analysis which quantified the U.S. impact of the company's product sales through imported vehicles over a ten-year period.

Through collection and analysis of the company's financial data, FTI Consulting developed a model to estimate the impact of the company's sales that went into vehicles sold in the U.S. Utilizing the company's financial data, contractual information, external data and third party databases, we performed a precise calculation of the relevant impact on U.S. commerce. The results of our calculation served as the basis for negotiation discussions and a favorable settlement for the company.

COMPLIANCE PROGRAM DEVELOPMENT, ASSESSMENT AND MONITORING

FTI Consulting's technical capabilities complement our investigative and compliance expertise to help companies develop and monitor effective antitrust compliance, detection, and risk management programs which consider qualitative and quantitative measures.

As enforcement agencies continue to emphasize the development and monitoring of antitrust compliance programs, companies turn to FTI Consulting for objective analysis of market risks and sales transaction data analysis to screen for collusive markers.

KEY SERVICES

- Conduct market risk assessment to narrow products, regions, and segments for review
- Develop objective analyses of financial sales data to screen for possible collusive markers
- Perform a risk assessment of program to identify issues and provide recommendations
- Assist company's internal audit and compliance teams perform on-site reviews
