By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is imposing sanctions upon Whitley Penn LLP ("WP" or the "Firm"), Susan Lunn Powell, CPA ("Powell"), Jeffry Shannon Lawlis, CPA ("Lawlis") and John Griffin Babb, CPA ("Babb") (collectively, "Respondents"). The Board is:

(1) requiring WP to undertake certain remedial actions, as described in Section IV of this Order, and imposing a $200,000 civil money penalty on WP;

(2) barring Powell from being associated with a registered public accounting firm,[1] limiting Powell's activities in connection with any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), for an additional period of one year following the termination of the bar, requiring that Powell complete forty additional hours of continuing professional education ("CPE"), and imposing a $25,000 civil money penalty on Powell;

(3) suspending Lawlis from being associated with a registered public accounting firm for a period of one year, limiting Lawlis's activities in connection with any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act for an additional period of one year following his suspension, requiring that Lawlis complete twenty additional hours of CPE, and imposing a $15,000 civil money penalty on Lawlis; and

[1] Powell may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order.

(4) limiting Babb's activities in connection with any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act for a period of two years, requiring that Babb complete ten additional hours of CPE, and imposing a $10,000 civil money penalty on Babb.

The Board is imposing these sanctions based on its findings that: (1) Powell and Babb violated PCAOB rules and standards[2] in connection with the audits of the 2012-2014 financial statements of United Development Funding III, L.P., and the review of that issuer's Q3 2015 interim financial statements; (2) Lawlis violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the audits of the 2013-2014 financial statements of United Development Funding IV and the review of that issuer's Q3 2015 interim financial statements; and (3) WP violated PCAOB rules and standards by failing to design, implement, and maintain appropriate quality control policies and procedures.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act") and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have submitted Offers of Settlement ("Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted,

[2] All references to PCAOB rules and standards in this Order are to the versions of those rules and standards, and to their organization and numbering, in effect at the time of audits discussed herein. As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. See Reorganization of PCAOB Auditing Standards and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards and Rules, PCAOB Release No. 2015-002 (Mar. 31, 2015).

Respondents consent to the entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), as set forth below.[3]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[4]

[3] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[4] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

B. Issuers

5. United Development Funding III, L.P. ("UDF III"), was an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). UDF III's public filings disclosed that it originated, acquired, serviced, and managed mortgage loans secured by real property or equity interests that held real property already subject to other mortgages.

6. United Development Funding IV ("UDF IV") was, at all relevant times, a Maryland real estate investment trust, and an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). UDF IV's public filings disclosed that it originated, purchased, participated in, and held for investment secured loans to persons and entities relating to real estate development.

7. UDF III and UDF IV were affiliates of one another and were under common management, along with several other affiliates (collectively, the "UDF Entities").

C. Summary

8. WP was the UDF Entities' external auditor, including for the year ended December 31, 2012 and continuing through the third quarter of 2015. Powell was the engagement partner for the audits and reviews of UDF III's 2012 through Q3 2015 financial statements. Babb was the engagement quality review ("EQR") partner for those same UDF III audits and reviews. Lawlis was the engagement partner for the audits and reviews of UDF IV's 2013 through Q3 2015 financial statements.

9. This matter concerns, among other things, (a) Powell's, Lawlis's, and Babb's failures to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, in connection with procedures they performed concerning loans made by UDF III and UDF IV to a key borrower, which accounted for a significant portion of each issuer's assets; (b) Powell's and Lawlis's failures to appropriately respond to evidence of possible undisclosed related party transactions between UDF III and UDF IV during the 2013 and 2014 audits; and (c) Whitley Penn's failure to maintain an adequate system of quality control ("QC system") both during and after those audit failures.

10. Specifically, Powell repeatedly failed to gather sufficient appropriate evidence to determine whether a significant loan was properly valued, and failed to adequately consider evidence indicating UDF III needed to record a substantial reserve for that loan. By Q3 2015, that loan accounted for $104 million (26%) of UDF III's assets. Evidence gathered by Powell indicated that it could be impaired by as much as $73 million at Q3 2015, which was approximately three times UDF III's total allowance for loan losses. Powell also failed to adequately respond to (a) evidence from confirmation procedures of a possible dispute between UDF III and the borrower for that loan and (b) the fact that UDF IV was repeatedly transferring cash to UDF III without either fund disclosing the transfers as related party transactions.

11. Lawlis failed to adequately respond to evidence from confirmation procedures of a possible dispute between UDF IV and that same key borrower, whose loans accounted for approximately 10% of UDF IV's assets. Lawlis also failed to adequately respond to the transfers from UDF IV to UDF III that were not disclosed as related party transactions.

12. Babb, in connection with his EQRs for the UDF III audits, repeatedly failed to properly evaluate, with due professional care, the significant judgments that Powell made concerning the UDF III loan to the key borrower described above.

13. The above violations resulted, at least in part, from WP's insufficient QC system. During the period of the violations, WP's QC system failed to provide reasonable assurance that WP and its personnel performed audit work in accordance with professional standards or appropriately consulted with persons outside of the engagement team when necessary.

D. Background

Notes Receivable and Key Customer

14. The vast majority of UDF III's and UDF IV's assets were comprised of the notes receivable and accrued interest receivable balances from the loans they made. WP understood that the loans funded long-term development projects, with typical interest of 15% and above for UDF III, and 13% and above for UDF IV. WP also understood that UDF III and UDF IV typically set maturity dates on the loans for dates that were prior to the expected completion dates for the development projects. WP expected that UDF III and UDF IV would renew loans for ongoing projects if UDF III and UDF IV believed that the loan was adequately performing and collectable.

15. UDF III and UDF IV each reported their notes receivable both on a gross basis and net of an allowance for loan losses ("ALL"). The ALL was comprised of two components: (1) provisions for expected losses on loans individually evaluated for impairment ("specific reserves"), and (2) an accrual for losses on non-impaired loans.

16. UDF III and UDF IV recognized interest income from their loans on an accrual basis. Both funds disclosed that they suspend recognition of interest income on a loan when full recovery of principal and income was no longer probable. Accordingly, a loan that was impaired and not fully recoverable would also generally require suspension of interest revenue recognition.

17. One of the key borrowers for both UDF III and UDF IV was a group of related land development entities based in Austin, Texas (the "Austin Developer"). At all relevant times, UDF IV had several outstanding loans to the Austin Developer, which accounted for approximately 10% of UDF IV's assets and revenues. UDF III had just one outstanding loan to the Austin Developer, a line of credit (the "LOC"), which accounted for more than 20% of UDF III's assets and revenues. The LOC bore interest at 15%, and was subordinate to both the UDF IV loans and other senior debt.

18. In December 2016, the UDF Entities entered into a settlement with the Austin Developer, which resulted in UDF III forgiving more than $122 million of the Austin Developer's indebtedness to UDF III associated with the LOC.[5] Although UDF III disclosed that the settlement may have a material adverse impact on its financial statements, UDF III has not publicly filed any financial statements after the Q3 2015 financial statements that WP reviewed. WP completed its Q3 2015 review for UDF III in November 2015, and then declined to stand for reappointment as the UDF Entities' auditors three days later.

Settlement with the Commission

19. On July 3, 2018, UDF III and UDF IV, along with several members of their management, entered into a settlement with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission").[6] The settlement stemmed from a Commission investigation that WP first learned about during the 2014 audits. The settlement concerned allegations by the Commission that UDF III had failed to recognize a specific impairment on the LOC and put the LOC on non-accrual status. It also concerned allegations that the UDF Entities did not disclose the true nature of the transactions involving cash transfers from UDF IV to UDF III for distribution to UDF III investors.

E. Powell Failed to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Evidence Concerning the ALL During the 2012-2014 UDF III Audits

20. PCAOB rules require that registered public accounting firms and their associated persons comply with applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.[7] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements only when the auditor has formed such an opinion on the basis of an audit performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[8] PCAOB standards require, among other things, that an auditor plan and perform the audit with due professional care[9] and to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the auditor's opinion.[10]

21. The auditor must design and implement audit responses that address the risks of material misstatement that are identified and assessed during the audit.[11] In designing the audit procedures to be performed, the auditor should obtain more persuasive audit evidence the higher the auditor's assessment of risk.[12] To be appropriate, audit evidence must be both relevant and reliable in providing support for the conclusions on which the auditor's opinion is based.[13]

22. Powell identified notes receivable as a significant account for each of the UDF III audits, and assessed that there were significant risks, including fraud risks, associated with that account. Powell designated the ALL as a "critical issue" and identified it as a significant estimate giving rise to high inherent risk for valuation of the net notes receivable balance. Powell also identified that management could perpetrate and conceal fraudulent financial reporting in connection with its notes receivable, including through understatement of the ALL.

23. Despite identifying those significant risks relating to UDF III's notes receivable, including the ALL, Powell failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism when performing audit procedures over that account. In violation of PCAOB rules and standards, Powell failed to gather sufficient appropriate audit evidence about the value of the LOC, which was a significant loan. She also improperly relied on management estimates, data, and assumptions about that loan, without sufficiently evaluating their reasonableness.[14]

2012 Evaluation of the LOC

24. At year-end 2012, the LOC accounted for approximately 22% ($80 million) of UDF III's assets. UDF III's records indicated that the LOC collateral was also securing $49 million in additional debt at year-end 2012, including $26 million in senior debt. Powell knew that the LOC was past due as of year-end 2012 and UDF III management designated the LOC as impaired, but did not record any specific reserve for it in UDF III's ALL. During the audit, management asserted to Powell that it believed the loan was collectable. Management also provided Powell with documentation showing UDF III renewed the LOC in late March 2013.

25. In her initial analysis of the LOC for the 2012 audit, Powell noted that, if all of the land currently listed as collateral for the LOC was fully developed and sold, the lot sales would not generate sufficient proceeds to repay the LOC and other senior debt secured by the same collateral.

26. Nevertheless, Powell ultimately agreed with management that UDF III likely could collect the full amount of principal and interest, and that no specific reserve or suspension of revenue recognition was necessary. Powell based her conclusion on a revised projection that the Austin Developer's total future cash receipts from the development and sale of all lots would be approximately $152 million, exceeding the outstanding total debt and accrued interest by approximately $23 million. That calculation was based on management-provided data about the number of lots available for sale to repay the loan, the projected sale prices of those lots, and the amounts the Austin Developer would receive in development incentives.

27. Powell, however, failed to perform her analysis with due professional care and, as a result, failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support her conclusions about the LOC.[15] For example, in performing that analysis, Powell did not adequately:

- Test the accuracy and completeness of management-provided data that was critical to her calculation,[16] including the number of lots that remained for sale, despite receiving a schedule from management indicating that some of the lots identified as collateral might have been sold already;

[16] See AS 15 ¶ 10.

- Evaluate the reasonableness of key factors and assumptions that were significant to the analysis, including the projected costs that would affect the collectability of the loan (e.g., future development costs being funded through senior debt);[17] and

- Discount the future cash receipts to present value in her analysis, despite knowing that the interest rate on the LOC was 15% and the developments would take several more years to complete.[18]

28. Powell also considered that management had informed her that the Austin Developer had "pledged" additional collateral to support the repayment of the LOC, which it claimed would increase the number of lots available for sale. However, Powell did not take adequate steps during the 2012 audit to analyze that pledge and determine whether it, in fact, added valuable collateral to the LOC. Powell also did not consider whether that pledged collateral was, itself, subject to senior liens that affected the collateral's value.

29. As a result of these deficiencies, Powell failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether UDF III's reported 2012 notes receivable was properly valued and whether revenue recognition should have been suspended for the LOC.

30. For the 2013 audit, Powell again failed to appropriately evaluate management's conclusions concerning the impairment and specific reserves of the LOC.

31. During the 2013 audit, Powell identified that available appraisals or other initial WP testing did not support the valuation of the LOC, which then accounted for approximately 23% ($84 million) of UDF III's assets. The engagement team asked management for additional support for the value of the LOC and, in response, received a cash flow analysis reflecting management's conclusions concerning the collectability and value of the LOC. Management's analysis for the LOC calculated that there would be $173 million of cash flows that could be used to satisfy that loan.

[18] Cf. ASC 310-10-35-25 ("If a creditor bases its measure of loan impairment on a present value amount, the creditor shall calculate that present value amount based on an estimate of the expected future cash flows of the impaired loan, discounted at the loan's effective interest rate.").

32. Powell, however, failed to adequately evaluate whether the information contained within the cash flow projection was sufficient and appropriate for purposes of the audit, as required by PCAOB standards.[19] She failed to adequately test the accuracy and completeness of the information in the cash flow projections, or to test the controls over the accuracy and completeness of that information.[20] She also failed to adequately evaluate whether the information was sufficiently precise and detailed for purposes of the audit.[21]

33. Specifically, while Powell performed testing procedures over certain data in the management cash-flow analysis, such as lot pricing data, she failed to plan or perform procedures to evaluate or test certain other critical data and assumptions. For example, she failed to test the accuracy, completeness and reasonableness of:

- Data in the cash flow model about the number of lots that would be developed and were available for sale in the future, including whether the underlying projects existed;

- Data and assumptions in the cash flow model relating to the amount of future development costs that would be incurred as senior debt; and

- Data and assumptions in the cash flow model about the timing of the estimated cash advances and repayments, which were important to the analysis because of the LOC's 15% interest rate.

34. As a result of these deficiencies with the LOC testing, Powell failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether UDF III's reported 2013 notes receivable was properly valued and whether revenue recognition should have been suspended for the LOC.

2014 Evaluation of the LOC

35. For the 2014 audit, Powell again failed to appropriately evaluate management's conclusions concerning the impairment and specific reserves of the LOC. By that time, the LOC accounted for approximately 24% ($94 million) of UDF III's assets.

[21] See id.

Management's 2014 analysis for the LOC calculated that there would be $176 million of cash flows that could be used to satisfy the LOC.

36. By the time of the 2014 audit, Powell was aware that the Commission had commenced an investigation of the UDF Entities that included questions about UDF III's monitoring of the LOC, the valuation of the LOC's collateral, and management's decision to renew the LOC in 2013. This information should have caused her to exercise heightened professional skepticism when testing the value and impairment of the LOC, but she failed to do so.[22]

37. Powell also failed to adequately consider additional information which should have caused her to review the analyses with heightened professional skepticism. For example, during the 2014 audit, UDF III told Powell that the principal of the Austin Developer had informed the UDF Entities of his desire to retire, and was negotiating a settlement with the UDF Entities. Management indicated that the settlement negotiations were ongoing, and that management anticipated a settlement involving another developer taking over the projects reflected in the LOC cash flow analysis, which consisted of both existing projects and "future projects."

38. Powell also failed to adequately consider that:

- There had not been any cash payments of principal on the LOC during 2014, despite management's 2013 cash flow analysis projecting a substantial pay-down of the LOC in 2014;

- The cash flow analysis for the LOC included proceeds from "future projects," for which the WP engagement team had no evidence to support that they existed; and

- The ongoing settlement negotiations with the Austin Developer could indicate a dispute with the Austin Developer, and the Austin Developer did not respond to confirmation requests about its 2014 loan balance, despite responding to similar requests in prior audits.[23]

39. Powell again relied on management's cash flow analysis in testing the LOC for potential impairment, but she again failed to adequately test the accuracy and completeness of the information in the cash flow projections, despite all of the foregoing information. Powell reviewed a summary cash flow for the LOC, as well as a selection of five cash flow analyses for individual development projects that she understood were generating repayments reflected in the summary cash flow. Powell also discussed the cash flow analysis with management, and reviewed management's support for the lot pricing management used in the cash flow model. Based on those steps, and inquiry to management about the LOC's status, Powell concluded that the LOC was fully collectable.

40. However, Powell again failed to adequately evaluate whether the information contained within the cash flow projection was sufficient and appropriate for purposes of the audit.[24] While she performed testing procedures over certain data in the cash flow projection, she again failed to test the completeness and accuracy of other critical data and assumptions, including the number of lots that would repay the loans, the timing of estimated cash advances and repayments, or the projected amounts of future development costs.[25] Powell also failed to take adequate steps during the 2014 audit to understand the nature of the "future projects" management included in its cash flow projection, and their qualitative and quantitative impact on the cash flow analysis. As a result, Powell failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether UDF III's reported 2014 notes receivable was properly valued and whether revenue recognition should have been suspended for the LOC. [26]

F. Powell and Lawlis Failed to Properly Evaluate the Results of the Confirmation Procedures Concerning the Austin Developer during the 2014 UDF III and UDF IV Audits

41. Both Powell and Lawlis violated PCAOB rules and standards in their respective UDF III and UDF IV 2014 audits by failing to follow-up on (a) loan confirmation requests to the Austin Developer and (b) information that management provided to explain the Austin Developer's failure to respond to a confirmation request.[27]

42. At year-end 2014, the Austin Developer's debt to UDF III was comprised entirely of the LOC. The Austin Developer's debt to UDF IV was comprised of multiple loans, accounting for approximately 10% of UDF IV's assets. Roughly half of the Austin Developer's debt to UDF IV was overdue at the time of the audit and designated as impaired by management.

43. Both engagement teams considered it appropriate to send confirmation requests to the Austin Developer. After receiving confirmation requests from the engagement teams, the Austin Developer did not respond, despite having responded to such requests in the past, including for the 2013 audits. Management for the UDF Entities then informed both Powell and Lawlis that the Austin Developer would not respond to confirmation requests due to its principal's intent to retire and ongoing negotiations between the UDF Entities and the Austin Developer. The UDF Entities also informed Powell and Lawlis that it would not further extend the due dates on any of the Austin Developer's loans.[28] Both Powell and Lawlis should have understood from those statements that there was a potential dispute between the Austin Developer and the UDF Entities, including UDF III and UDF IV. Nevertheless, they both failed to follow up with a second confirmation request.[29]

44. Having not received a response to their loan confirmation request, both engagement teams performed alternative procedures. The alternative procedures consisted of tying a selection of loan draws and paydowns to management provided documentation, including third party bank statements and draw requests signed by the borrowers, to roll forward the prior year's audited balance. However, the alternative procedures failed to provide sufficient evidence about the potential dispute concerning the Austin Developer and whether that dispute affected the loans' valuation. As a result, Powell and Lawlis failed to obtain sufficient audit evidence to determine whether the notes receivable were, among other things, properly valued for 2014.[30] additional confirmations or extend other tests, such as tests of details or analytical procedures.").

[28] Because management classified all overdue loans as impaired, Powell and Lawlis knew or should have known that such loans were likely to be classified as impaired by management as they came due, and therefore that they would need to be assessed for a potential specific reserve.

G. Powell and Lawlis Failed To Perform Sufficient Related Parties Procedures During the 2013 and 2014 UDF III and UDF IV Audits

45. PCAOB standards recognize that, "[d]uring the course of the audit, the auditor may become aware of significant transactions that are outside the normal course of business for the entity, or that otherwise appear to be unusual given the auditor's understanding of the entity and its environment."[31] The standards further provide that "[t]he auditor should gain an understanding of the business rationale for such transactions and whether that rationale (or the lack thereof) suggests that the transactions may have been entered into to engage in fraudulent financial reporting or conceal misappropriation of assets."[32]

46. PCAOB standards also provide that, when examining related party transactions, "the auditor should be aware that the substance of a particular transaction could be significantly different from its form and that financial statements should recognize the substance of particular transactions rather than merely their legal form."[33] After identifying related party transactions, "the auditor should apply the procedures he considers necessary to obtain satisfaction concerning the purpose, nature, and extent of these transactions and their effect on the financial statements."[34] For each material related party transaction (or aggregation of similar transactions), "the auditor should evaluate all the information available to him and satisfy himself that it is adequately disclosed in the financial statements."[35]

47. During their respective 2013 and 2014 UDF III and UDF IV audits, Powell and Lawlis designated related party transactions as a significant audit issue, but failed to properly respond to evidence of unusual transfers from UDF IV to UDF III that were not disclosed as related party transactions.

Evaluation of Transfers During the 2013 Audits

48. During the 2013 audits, the WP engagement teams brought to the attention of both Powell and Lawlis certain unusual transfers from UDF IV to UDF III that management did not present or disclose as related party transactions. During the 2013 audits, the engagement teams learned that UDF IV transferred $1.2 million to UDF III in January 2014 so that UDF III, which otherwise lacked sufficient cash, could make distributions to its investors that same day. The engagement teams also understood that the transfer had been recorded as loans by UDF IV to third-party borrowers and pay-downs of loans by those same borrowers to UDF III, even though: (a) UDF IV and UDF III's joint management had initiated the transfer, without the prior request or approval of any third-party borrower; (b) the transfer flowed directly from UDF IV to UDF III without notice to any third-party borrower; and (c) UDF IV and UDF III's joint management had unilaterally selected which third-party borrower and loans it would use to record the transfer, and did not finalize that selection until after the transfer had already been completed. The engagement teams communicated that understanding to Powell and Lawlis, sent them supporting documentation, and also advised them that there might be additional similar transactions.

49. Both Powell and Lawlis initially agreed that the transaction flagged by the engagement team was "strange" and questioned why the initial transfer was not recorded as a payable/receivable between UDF III and UDF IV, which they knew were related parties. Powell and Lawlis also agreed that they should determine how many similar transactions took place in 2013. Nevertheless, Powell and Lawlis failed to perform sufficient procedures to obtain satisfaction concerning the extent of those transactions and their effect on the financial statements in 2013, including whether the transactions had been properly presented and disclosed.[36]

50. Instead, Powell and Lawlis improperly concluded that no further analysis of the accounting for the transfers was required after management pointed to language in its loan agreements that it claimed allowed UDF IV to make discretionary advances on a borrower's behalf, in certain limited circumstances, without advance consent from the borrower. Powell and Lawlis accepted management's assertion that the loan agreement provision allowed the UDF Entities to characterize the transfers as third-party loan activity, even though management had initiated the transfers on its own, without any borrower request, and for the express purpose of enabling cash distributions to UDF III's investors.

[36] See AU §§ 334.02, .09, .11; see also Rule 4-08(k) of Regulation S-X.

Although Powell and Lawlis read the loan provision that management identified, they did not determine whether the transfers fit into the limited circumstances described in the loan provision or obtain any other evidence to support management's interpretation. They also failed to consider whether the substance of the transaction, regardless of its form, required disclosure as a related party transaction.[37]

Evaluation of Transfers During the 2014 Audits

51. During the 2014 UDF IV audit and reviews, Lawlis became aware that UDF IV made additional transfers to UDF III similar to the January 2014 transfer, but he failed to adequately address them. Lawlis again knew that UDF IV recorded those transfers as third-party loan advances even though there was no evidence of the borrower's request or approval for the transfer. UDF IV also confirmed to Lawlis that it had initiated some transfers to its affiliates without the third-party borrowers' prior consent and obtained approval afterward. Nevertheless, Lawlis again failed to perform sufficient procedures to obtain satisfaction concerning the extent of the transactions and their effect on the financial statements, including whether the transactions had been properly presented and disclosed.[38] For the additional transfers that came to the engagement team's attention, the team either verified that the relevant borrower eventually approved the transaction, or that the loan agreements included the provision for discretionary advances. However, Lawlis again failed to consider whether the substance of the transactions, regardless of their form, required disclosure as a related party transactions.[39]

52. For the 2014 UDF III audit, Powell failed to perform any procedures over the transfers to UDF III from UDF IV.

H. Powell and Lawlis Failed to Act with Due Professional Care During the Q3 2015 UDF III and UDF IV Reviews

53. In an interim review, an accountant may become aware of information that leads him or her to believe that the interim financial information under review may not be in conformity with GAAP in all material respects. In such circumstances, PCAOB standards provide that the accountant should make additional inquiries or perform other procedures to provide a basis for communicating whether he or she is aware of any material modifications that should be made to the interim financial information.[40]

54. If the accountant becomes aware of information which relates to a prior audit report and is of such a nature and from such a source that he would have investigated it had it come to his attention during the course of his audit, PCAOB standards also require that he take certain steps concerning his prior report.[41] First, he should determine whether the information is reliable and whether the facts existed at the date of his report.[42] If those conditions are satisfied, the auditor should then consider if the nature and effect of the matter are such that (a) his report would have been affected if the information had been known to him at the date of his report and had not been reflected in the financial statements and (b) he believes there are persons currently relying or likely to rely on the financial statements who would attach importance to the information.[43] The auditor is then required to consider whether to take action to prevent future reliance on his report.[44]

55. As discussed below, during their respective Q3 2015 reviews, Powell and Lawlis became aware of facts indicating material modifications may have been necessary in UDF III's and UDF IV's Q3 2015 financial statements, specifically to the notes receivable balances. That information also cast doubt on UDF III's previously audited annual financial statements. Although Powell and Lawlis performed procedures to respond to those facts for purposes of the Q3 2015 financial statements, they failed to perform those procedures with due professional care.[45] Powell also failed to appropriately consider the possible implications for WP's previously issued audit reports on UDF III's financial statements.[46]

56. Before the start of the Q3 2015 reviews, Powell was interviewed by the Commission staff, in connection with its investigation. During the interview, Powell was shown documents and asked questions by the Commission staff that called into question the veracity and accuracy of information that UDF III provided to the WP engagement team in connection with the FY 2013 and 2014 audits concerning the expected cash flows for the LOC. Specifically, Powell was shown documents that, at minimum, raised questions about whether the UDF Entities misstated their cash flow projections for the LOC to conceal its impairment by unilaterally including potential "future projects" in addition to current projects.

57. During the Q3 2015 review, Powell performed procedures to follow-up on the information she learned from the Commission staff, which included inquiries of management and reviewing additional documentation relating to the Commission's investigation and the LOC. Through these procedures, Powell verified that, in March 2014, the Austin Developer had provided its own cash flow projection to the UDF Entities, indicating that it would be unable to repay a substantial portion of its LOC balance. Powell also corroborated that UDF III had modified the version of the projection that it provided to WP for both 2013 and 2014, adding cash flows from "future projects" that the Austin Developer did not own and did not plan to develop.

58. During the review, Powell and the engagement team also quantified the amounts in management's LOC cash flow projections for 2013, 2014, and Q3 2015 that were attributable to existing projects, excluding the amounts attributable to future projects. That analysis showed that, in each of those periods, the cash flows from the existing projects were expected to leave a substantial portion of the LOC unpaid. By Q3 2015, the analysis projected a shortfall of approximately $73 million,[47] suggesting that material modifications to the interim financial information might be necessary.

59. Despite this information, Powell did not adequately consider whether to withdraw WP's earlier audit reports.[48] Powell also failed to propose that UDF III record any specific reserve for the LOC at Q3 2015 or suspend revenue recognition on the LOC. Instead, Powell concluded that UDF III could file Q3 2015 interim financial statements [47] At year-end 2013 and year-end 2014, the projected shortfall indicated by WP's calculation was $27 million and $60 million, respectively. The 2013 and 2014 financial statements did not include any specific reserve for the LOC.

[48] See AU §§ 561.04-.05.

that continued interest revenue recognition from the LOC, contained no specific reserve for the LOC, and included a total ALL for all loans of just $24.5 million.[49] However, as discussed below, she failed to perform sufficient other procedures to provide a basis for that conclusion.[50]

Powell Inappropriately Relied on Non-Binding Letters of Intent at Q3 2015

60. Powell's conclusion that no specific reserve was required at Q3 2015 was based on three management-provided non-binding letters of intent. One of those letters, dated October 21, 2015, was between the Austin Developer and the UDF Entities and described that the Austin Developer would surrender its collateral in full satisfaction of its debts. The other letters, dated November 12, 2015, were between the UDF Entities and two new developers and described a proposal for new developers to take possession of the LOC collateral, pledge additional collateral, and assume the LOC debt as part of two larger transactions with UDF III.

61. Powell reviewed the letters and discussed them with management. From those discussions, Powell understood that management expected that the transactions described in the letters of intent would occur in late November or early December 2015.

62. After discussing the letters of intent with management, Powell concluded that she would rely upon them for the purpose of evaluating the LOC's impairment for the quarterly review. However, Powell failed to consider with due professional care whether they provided a basis to determine whether a material modification should be made to the interim financial statements to record an impairment for the LOC.[51] For example, Powell did not adequately consider that:

- The letters did not reliably indicate whether the transactions described in the letters would occur, because the letters each stated they were "intended as a non-binding expression of intent" and "subject to the preparation, negotiation and full execution of the agreement"; and

[49] UDF III management had initially calculated that its Q3 2015 ALL should be $23.9 million. During the review, Powell performed a calculation of the general reserve portion of UDF III's ALL with different reserve ratios for certain loans, which she based on her discussions with management. Powell's calculation resulted in a total ALL that was approximately $600,000 higher, and UDF III adjusted its total ALL accordingly.

[51] See AU § 722.22.

- The letters did not support that the LOC was properly valued, because they indicated that the UDF Entities would provide as yet unquantified fees and concessions to the new developers for them to take over the LOC and its related development projects.

Powell and Lawlis Failed to Appropriately Respond to New Evidence of a Dispute between the Austin Developer and the UDF Entities at Q3 2015

63. Based on documents they reviewed concerning the Commission's investigation, Powell and Lawlis both understood, among other things, that the Commission staff was examining whether UDF Entities, or persons associated with them, may have made false statements or material omissions about the credit quality of loan portfolios and the use of cash proceeds relating to certain loans.

64. As a result, Powell and Lawlis concluded that it was appropriate to send confirmation requests for all of the Austin Developer's loans as part of their respective Q3 2015 reviews for UDF III and UDF IV. In response to each request, the Austin Developer wrote that it could not confirm its loan balances or loan collateral because "the lender has failed to properly apply or adjust certain payments made on the loan or related loans. In addition, lender and its affiliates have, from time to time, transferred or collaterally assigned their rights with respect to the collateral under various loans to affiliates or third parties."

65. To follow up on the confirmation response, Lawlis emailed the Austin Developer, asking whether it could provide additional information. The response of the Austin Developer, however, provided no additional detail. Powell and Lawlis, in turn, relied on management inquiry to understand the nature of the potential dispute and once again rolled forward the prior year's audited balance by tying a selection of draws and payments to management-provided documents including third-party bank statements and draw requests signed by the borrowers. However, the alternative procedures failed to provide sufficient appropriate evidence about the potential dispute concerning the Austin Developer and whether that dispute affected the loans' valuation. As a result, Powell and Lawlis failed to adequately extend the review procedures to resolve the questions raised by the Austin Developer's confirmation response.[52]

I. Babb Failed to Perform His Engagement Quality Reviews for the 2012-2014 UDF III Audits and Q3 2015 UDF III Review with Due Professional Care

66. The EQR partner is responsible for evaluating the significant judgments made by the engagement team and the related conclusions reached in forming the overall conclusion on the engagement and in preparing the engagement report, if a report is to be issued.[53] In an audit, the EQR partner is responsible for evaluating the engagement team's responses to significant risks identified by the team and the EQR partner.[54] In both audits and reviews, the EQR partner should evaluate whether the documentation that he or she reviewed supports the conclusions reached by the engagement team with respect to the matters reviewed.[55] The EQR partner is also responsible for evaluating whether appropriate consultations took place on difficult or contentious matters during the audits and reviews.[56] The EQR partner must perform his or her responsibilities with due professional care and skepticism.[57]

67. In each of the engagements discussed above, Babb reviewed the critical work papers relating to the UDF III engagement teams' response to the significant risks, including fraud risks, identified concerning notes receivable and ALL. However, Babb violated PCAOB rules and standards in those engagements by failing to properly evaluate, with due professional care, whether that documentation indicated that the engagement team responded appropriately to the significant risks and/or supported the conclusions reached by the engagement team.[58]

68. During the 2012 audit, Babb knew that the LOC was significant to the notes receivable balance and that UDF III management had classified the LOC as impaired without recording any specific reserve. Although Babb reviewed the documentation of the engagement team's testing of the LOC for impairment, there is no evidence he discussed it with the engagement team. Furthermore, he failed to evaluate with due professional care whether that testing adequately supported the conclusion that no specific reserves were required for the LOC.[59] For example, Babb did not consider whether the engagement team had tested the completeness and accuracy of the management-provided data used in that test. He also did not consider, among other things, that the engagement team had not discounted the future cash flows to present value for its impairment analysis.

69. During the 2013 and 2014 audits, Babb was aware that the engagement team changed its audit approach from 2012. Specifically, he knew that the engagement teams for those audits used management-provided cash flow projections to test the valuation of certain notes receivable and the adequacy of the ALL, including for the LOC. Babb reviewed the audit documentation describing the review of the cash flow analyses, but he failed to properly evaluate whether the engagement team's approach provided an appropriate response to the significant risks concerning the ALL.[60] For example, Babb did not properly consider whether the engagement team had adequately tested whether the information contained within the cash flow projections was sufficient and appropriate for purposes of the audit. He also did not consider whether the engagement team had appropriately responded to the inclusion of "future projects" in the cash flow projections, in light of the fraud risk for ALL.

70. During the Q3 2015 review, Babb reviewed the engagement team's Summary Review Memorandum ("SRM") and he discussed with Powell the issues that had arisen concerning the LOC.[61] Babb also reviewed each of the documents that were referenced in the SRM as pertaining to the analysis of the LOC's impairment. Those documents included the engagement team's analysis showing that the existing project cash flows would leave approximately $73 million of the LOC balance unpaid. They also included the non-binding letters of intent, which Babb understood Powell had relied on for her conclusions that the LOC did not need to be specifically reserved at Q3 2015 and that the prior audit reports did not need to be withdrawn. However, Babb failed to properly evaluate whether those letters of intent actually supported Powell's conclusion.[62]

[60] See AS 7 ¶¶ 10(b),11.

[61] The SRM served as the engagement team's engagement completion document for the Q3 2015 review, which Babb was required to review. See AS 3, Audit Documentation, ¶ 13; AS 7 ¶ 15(c).

[62] See AS 7 ¶ 16.

71. Babb also failed to properly evaluate whether appropriate consultations had taken place on the difficult and contentious issues that arose during the UDF III Q3 2015 review.[63] Babb understood that WP's Partner-in-Charge of Technical Resolution ("Technical Partner") had been consulted during the review. However, Babb failed to determine whether the consultation, which was limited to reviewing the clarity of the documentation in two work papers, was appropriate in the circumstances.

72. As a result, Babb violated AS 7 by providing his concurring approval of issuance in each of those engagements without performing his EQR with due professional care.[64]

J. Whitley Penn Failed to Comply with PCAOB Quality Control Standards

73. PCAOB rules and standards require that registered firms establish and maintain an adequate system of quality control.[65] "A firm's system of quality control encompasses the firm's organizational structure and the policies adopted and procedures established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance of complying with professional standards."[66] "The nature, extent, and formality of a firm's quality control policies and procedures should be appropriately comprehensive and suitably designed in relation to the firm's size, the number of its offices, the degree of authority allowed its personnel and its offices, the knowledge and experience of its personnel, the nature and complexity of the firm's practice, and appropriate cost-benefit considerations."[67]

74. A firm's system of quality control should, among other things, include policies and procedures for engagement performance.[68] A firm should establish policies and procedures to provide it with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality.[69] It should also establish policies and procedures to provide it with reasonable assurance that personnel consult, on a timely basis, with individuals within or outside the firm, when appropriate (for example, when dealing with complex, unusual, or unfamiliar issues).[70] A firm should also establish policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its quality control policies and procedures are suitably designed and are being effectively applied.[71]

75. During the period of the violations described above, WP failed to design, implement and maintain appropriately comprehensive and suitably designed quality control policies and procedures in relation to the firm's size [72] and the complexity of its practice. In particular, WP did not have appropriately comprehensive policies and procedures concerning consultations with persons outside of the engagement team.[73] Although WP designated one of its partners as the Technical Partner, it failed to implement specific policies or procedures concerning the Technical Partner's role. Among other things, there were no established procedures to provide reasonable assurance that the Technical Partner was qualified for the consultations he was asked to perform regarding the complex, unusual and unfamiliar issues that arose during the Q3 2015 UDF III review. [74]

76. WP also failed to design, implement and maintain appropriately comprehensive policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that its personnel complied with professional standards and regulatory requirements.[75] Many of the violations described above were repeated across multiple years and, in some cases, across multiple audit teams with different partners. Additionally, Powell's failure to adequately consider whether to withdraw the 2013 and 2014 audit reports during the Q3 2015 review resulted, in part, from WP's failure to have sufficiently comprehensive policies and procedures relating to consideration of subsequently discovered information relating to previously issued audit reports. Multiple partners besides Powell and Babb, including partners in WP's leadership, were aware that WP had learned information during the Q3 2015 review that related to UDF III's 2013 and 2014 financial statements. However, WP's QC system failed to include policies or procedures to provide reasonable assurance that the information was actually evaluated with due professional care and in accordance with AU § 561.[76]

IV.

E. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(C) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(3), for one year following the suspension ordered in paragraph E, Lawlis's role in any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(a)(v), shall be restricted as follows: Lawlis shall not (1) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement partner," as that term is used in the Board's AS 1201, Supervision of the Audit Engagement; (2) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement quality reviewer," as that term is used in the Board's AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review; (3) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, in any role that is equivalent to engagement partner or engagement quality reviewer, but differently denominated (such as "lead partner," "practitioner-in-charge," or "concurring partner"); (4) exercise authority, or supervise the work of another person exercising

F. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(C) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(3), for a period of two years from the date of this Order, Babb's role in any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(a)(v), shall be restricted as follows: Babb shall not (1) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement partner," as that term is used in the Board's AS 1201, Supervision of the Audit Engagement; (2) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement quality reviewer," as that term is used in the Board's AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review; (3) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, in any role that is equivalent to engagement partner or engagement quality reviewer, but differently denominated (such as "lead partner," "practitioner-in-charge," or "concurring partner"); (4) exercise authority, or supervise the work of another person exercising authority, either to sign a registered public accounting firm's name to an audit report, or to consent to the use of a previously issued audit report, for any issuer, broker, or dealer; or (5) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as the "other auditor," or "another auditor," as those terms are used in the Board's AS 1205, Part of the Audit Performed by Other Independent Auditors;

4. John Griffin Babb, $10,000.

All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of these civil money penalties will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Respondents shall pay these civil money penalties within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board,

(b) delivered to the Controller, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the entity or person as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006.

H. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(F) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(6), Powell, Lawlis, and Babb, are required to complete continuing professional education ("CPE") in subjects that are related to the audits of issuer financial statements under PCAOB standards (such hours shall be in addition to, and shall not be counted in, the CPE they are required to obtain in connection with any professional license) as follows:

1. Powell shall complete forty additional hours of CPE before filing any petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm, including CPE related to allowances for loan losses and the auditing of related party transactions under PCAOB standards;

2. Lawlis shall complete twenty additional hours of CPE within one year of this Order, including CPE related to allowances for loan losses and the auditing of related party transactions under PCAOB standards; and

3. Babb shall complete ten additional hours of CPE within one year from the date of this Order, including CPE related to allowances for loan losses and the performance of engagement quality reviews under PCAOB standards.

I. Pursuant to Sections 105(c)(4)(F) and (G) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 5300(a)(6) and (9), the Firm shall carry out the following Undertakings:

1. Within 30 days of the date of this Order, WP shall retain and pay the fees and reasonable expenses for an independent consultant acceptable to the PCAOB staff who has experience with, and is knowledgeable concerning, PCAOB auditing and quality control standards ("Independent Consultant") and promptly notify the PCAOB staff of the identity, qualifications, and proposed terms of retention of the Independent Consultant.

2. To ensure the independence of the Independent Consultant, WP: (i) shall not have the authority to terminate the Independent Consultant or substitute another independent consultant for the initial Independent Consultant, without the prior written approval of the PCAOB staff; and (ii) shall compensate the Independent Consultant and persons engaged to assist the Independent Consultant for services rendered pursuant to this Order at their reasonable and customary rates.

3. WP shall cooperate fully with the Independent Consultant and shall provide reasonable access to its personnel, information, and records as the Independent Consultant may reasonably request for the Independent Consultant's evaluation and certification.

4. Within 90 days of this Order, WP will review, evaluate, and implement any necessary enhancements to, WP's quality control policies and procedures applicable to audits and reviews conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards as they relate to the following areas:

    b. consultations (including but not limited to determining and documenting the scope of consultations, and the evaluation of such consultations by an EQR partner); and

    c. monitoring (including selection of audits for pre-issuance review, root cause analysis, post-issuance review, or other enhanced monitoring based on engagement risk).

5. Independent Consultant Certifications.

    a. Within 90 days of the Independent Consultant being retained, WP will brief the Independent Consultant regarding: (i) WP's review, evaluation and implementation of enhancements to its system of quality control in the areas identified in Paragraph IV.I.4 above, and (ii) how those quality control policies and procedures, and any enhancements to them since the time of the conduct described in this Order, are reasonably designed to ensure that WP system of quality control is appropriately comprehensive and suitably designed in relation to the firm's size, the number of its offices, the degree of authority allowed its personnel and its offices, the knowledge and experience of its personnel, the nature and complexity of the firm's practice, and appropriate cost-benefit considerations.

b. Within 120 days of the Independent Consultant being retained, WP shall require the Independent Consultant to evaluate WP's review, evaluation and implementation of enhancements its system of quality control in the areas identified in Paragraph IV.I.4, above. If, as a result of that evaluation, it appears to the Independent Consultant that any further enhancements to the system of quality control are necessary, it shall recommend such enhancements to WP.

e. For good cause shown, the PCAOB staff may extend any of the procedural dates relating to these undertakings. Deadlines for procedural dates shall be counted in calendar days, except that if the last day falls on a weekend or federal holiday, the next business day shall be considered to be the last day.

f. WP agrees that the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may petition the Board to reopen this matter to determine whether additional sanctions or findings are appropriate if it believes that WP has not satisfied these undertakings.

ISSUED BY THE BOARD.

ORDER MAKING FINDINGS AND IMPOSING SANCTIONS	PCAOB Release No. 105-2020-003
In the Matter of Green & Company CPAs, LLC, and Travis J. Green, CPA,	April 16, 2020
Respondents.

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is revoking the registration of Green & Company CPAs, LLC ("Green & Company" or "Firm"); and barring Travis J. Green, CPA ("Green") from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm. The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that the Firm and Green (collectively, "Respondents") violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the audits of multiple issuer clients.

I.

The Board instituted non-public disciplinary proceedings against Respondents on February 7, 2019.[1] Pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have each submitted Offers of Settlement ("Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over them and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Respondents consent to entry of this Order Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions ("Order").[2]

[1] Section 105(c)(2) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended, 15 U.S.C. § 7215 (c)(5) ("Act"), provides that litigated disciplinary proceedings shall not be public, "unless otherwise ordered by the Board for good cause shown, with the consent of the parties…." Although the Board found good cause for making the proceedings public, Respondents did not consent, as permitted by Section 105(c)(2) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5203.

[2] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

II.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[3]

A. Respondents

1. Green & Company CPAs, LLC is a limited liability company organized under the laws of the State of Florida and headquartered in Tampa, Florida. The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. It is licensed by the State of Florida (License No. AD68626).

2. Travis J. Green, CPA, 37, of Lutz, Florida, is a certified public accountant licensed by the State of Florida (License No. AC46652). Green was, at all relevant times, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Summary

3. Green & Company was the external auditor for 11 issuer audits (Issuer A through Issuer K collectively, "Issuer Audits"). Green was the managing partner and majority owner of the Firm and also served as the partner with final responsibility for each of the Issuer Audits. Green and/or the Firm violated PCAOB rules and standards in conducting the Issuer Audits.

4. First, Respondents violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with four of the Issuer Audits (Issuer A through Issuer D) by failing to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, and failing to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence in connection with those audits. In fact, with respect to two of those audits, Green performed virtually no audit work or testing. Second, the Firm violated Auditing Standard No. 7, Engagement Quality Review ("AS 7"), with respect to each of the Issuer Audits, because it failed to obtain concurring approvals of issuance of engagement reports for any of those audits. Green substantially contributed to the Firm's violations of AS 7, thereby violating PCAOB Rule 3502, Responsibility Not to Knowingly or Recklessly Contribute to Violations. Finally, Respondents failed to assemble a complete and final set of audit documentation for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date with respect to each of the Issuer Audits, as required by Auditing Standard No. 3, Audit Documentation ("AS 3").[4]

[3] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the condition set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (A) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (B) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

C. Respondent Repeatedly Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with Issuer Audits A through D

1. Applicable PCAOB Rules and Standards

6. PCAOB standards also state that, in planning an audit, an auditor should, among other things, establish an overall audit strategy for the engagement and develop an audit plan.[8] The auditor should identify and assess the risks of material misstatement at the financial statement level and the assertion level, and design and perform audit procedures in a manner that addresses the assessed risks of material misstatement for

All references to PCAOB rules and standards are to the versions of those rules and standards in effect at the time of the relevant audits. As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its rules and auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. each relevant assertion of each significant account and disclosure.[9] The auditor should also "establish a materiality level for the financial statements as a whole that is appropriate in light of the particular circumstances."[10]

7. PCAOB standards further require that an auditor evaluate the results of the audit to determine whether the audit evidence obtained is sufficient and appropriate to support the opinion to be expressed in the auditor's report.[11] The auditor "should take into account all relevant audit evidence, regardless of whether it appears to corroborate or to contradict the assertions in the financial statements."[12] PCAOB standards also require that, if an auditor has not obtained sufficient appropriate audit evidence about a relevant assertion, the auditor should perform procedures to obtain further audit evidence to address the matter.[13] Finally, PCAOB standards require that the auditor document the procedures performed, evidence obtained, and conclusions reached with respect to relevant financial statement assertions.[14]

8. Management representations "are part of the evidential matter the independent auditor obtains, but they are not a substitute for the application of those auditing procedures necessary to afford a reasonable basis for an opinion regarding the financial statements under audit."[15] Management representations are "'a complement to other auditing procedures.'"[16]

9. As discussed more fully below, Respondents violated these and other PCAOB standards in performing the audits of Issuer A, Issuer B, Issuer C, and Issuer D.

2. 2014 Issuer A Audit

10. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, a Delaware corporation headquartered in Sarasota, Florida. Issuer A's public filings disclose that, at the time of the audit, it was a development stage company which planned on providing a mix of professional service offerings and proprietary patent-pending software solutions related to managing IT assets.

11. Green & Company issued an audit report dated April 10, 2015, which contained an unqualified audit opinion on Issuer A's financial statements for fiscal year ending ("FYE") December 31, 2014 ("2014 Issuer A Audit"). That report was included in a Form 10-K that Issuer A filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") on April 15, 2015. Green, the engagement partner, authorized the issuance of the report. The report stated, among other things, that the Firm had "audited the accompanying balance sheets of [Issuer A] as of December 31, 2014, and the related statement of operations, stockholders' deficiency, and cash flows for the year ended December 31, 2014." It also stated that the Firm had conducted the audit "in accordance with the standards of the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (United States)."

12. In connection with the 2014 Issuer A Audit, Respondents failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, by failing to plan and perform the audit in accordance with PCAOB standards.[17] Respondents failed to: establish an overall audit strategy for the engagement and to develop an audit plan;[18] establish a materiality level for the financial statements as a whole;[19] determine an amount or amounts of tolerable misstatement;[20] or perform any risk assessment procedures to identify and assess the risks of material misstatement, whether due to error or fraud.[21]

13. Respondents also failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence concerning a significant account in Issuer A's financial statements. Issuer A reported an investment of approximately $4.8 million, which, at year-end, constituted approximately 99% of Issuer A's assets. But other than obtaining representations from management, Respondents failed to perform any procedures relating to the investment.

[21] See AS 12 ¶ 4.

14. Respondents thus failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, and obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the Firm's opinion in connection with the 2014 Issuer A Audit.

3. 2014 Issuer B Audit

15. Issuer B, at all relevant times, was a Delaware corporation headquartered in Englewood, Colorado. Issuer B's public filings disclose that, at the time of the audit, it operated in the juice beverage manufacture and sales industry.

16. Green & Company issued an audit report dated April 15, 2015, which contained an unqualified audit opinion with respect to Issuer B's financial statements for FYE December 31, 2014 ("2014 Issuer B Audit"). That report was included in a Form 10-K that Issuer B filed with the Commission on April 15, 2015. Green, the engagement partner, authorized the issuance of the report. The report stated, among other things, that the Firm had "audited the accompanying balance sheets of [Issuer B] as of December 31, 2014, and the related statement of operations, stockholders' deficiency, and cash flows for the year ended December 31, 2014." It also stated that the Firm had conducted the audit "in accordance with the standards of the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (United States)."

17. In connection with the 2014 Issuer B Audit, Respondents failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, by failing to plan and perform the audit in accordance with PCAOB standards.[22] Respondents failed to establish an overall audit strategy for the engagement and to develop an audit plan.[23] Respondents also failed to establish a materiality level for the financial statements as a whole;[24] determine an amount or amounts of tolerable misstatement; or perform any risk assessment procedures to identify and assess the risks of material misstatement, whether due to error or fraud.[25]

18. Respondents also failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence concerning significant accounts and disclosures in Issuer B's financial statements.[26] Indeed, Respondents failed to perform any procedures relating to Issuer B's reported assets apart from obtaining two bank statements. In addition, other than obtaining representations from management, Respondents failed to perform any procedures relating to Issuer B's reported liabilities, stockholder's equity, revenue, cost of goods sold and expenses.

19. Respondents thus failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, and obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the Firm's opinion in connection with the 2014 Issuer B Audit.

4. 2014 Issuer C Audit

20. Issuer C, at all relevant times, was a Colorado corporation headquartered in Clearwater, Florida. Issuer C's public filings disclosed in its 2014 financial statements that it derived most of its revenues from manufacturing and marketing blast mitigation products, and provided other safety and protective gear for military and police use. Green & Company issued an audit report dated March 27, 2015, on Issuer C's FYE December 31, 2014 financial statements, which expressed an unqualified opinion, with an explanatory going concern paragraph, and was included in Issuer C's Form 10-K filed with the Commission on March 30, 2015 ("2014 Issuer C Audit"). The Firm's audit report stated, among other things, that the audit of Issuer C's 2014 financial statements had been conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards. Green not only served as the engagement partner on the 2014 Issuer C Audit and authorized the issuance of the audit report, but also personally performed all of the audit procedures for the audit.

21. In connection with the 2014 Issuer C Audit, Green failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism,[27] and failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the audit opinion issued by the Firm.[28]

a. Failure to Perform Procedures to Evaluate the Existence of Inventory for the 2014 Issuer C Audit

22. Issuer C's FY 2014 financial statements reported an inventory balance of $1,348,827, which represented 83% of total current assets and 34% of total assets.

23. Under PCAOB standards, the observation of inventories is a generally accepted auditing procedure.[29] PCAOB standards also note that it is "ordinarily necessary for the independent auditor to be present at the time of [inventory] count and, by suitable observation, tests, and inquiries, satisfy himself respecting the effectiveness of the methods of inventory-taking…."[30] The independent auditor who issues an opinion when he or she has not performed an inventory observation bears the burden of justifying the opinion expressed.[31]

24. Respondents failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, and failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence with respect to Issuer C's inventory at the time of the 2014 Issuer C Audit. No inventory observation procedures were performed, nor was evidence obtained or conclusions reached, to determine whether inventory physically existed in salable condition and represented property held for sale during the 2014 Issuer C Audit.[32]

b. Failure to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Evidence to Evaluate the Existence and Valuation of Issuer C's Goodwill in 2014

25. As of FYE December 31, 2014, Issuer C reported that its goodwill balance was $2,061,649, which represented 52% of total assets. Issuer C also reported that it had $16,016,905 in accumulated losses. Issuer C further reported that it had operating income of $2,513,801 in 2014. Goodwill is an asset representing the future economic benefits arising from other assets acquired in a business combination that are required to be tested for impairment on, at least, an annual basis. Respondents identified goodwill as a significant audit area.

26. Respondents failed to perform sufficient procedures regarding the existence and valuation of goodwill during the 2014 Issuer C Audit.[33] Specifically, Respondents failed to perform any procedures other than reviewing a trial balance and a one-page transaction report obtained from management. Respondents also obtained management representations that goodwill was not impaired.

c. Failure to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Evidence to Test Issuer C's Reported Revenue for 2014

27. As of FYE December 31, 2014, Issuer C reported revenue of $5,048,190, which was a 40% increase over revenue reported at FYE December 31, 2013.

Respondents identified revenue as a significant audit area and as a risk of fraud while planning the 2014 Issuer C Audit.

28. During the 2014 Issuer C Audit, Respondents failed to perform sufficient procedures regarding revenue. Despite planning to audit revenue controls in response to the risk of fraud identified during planning, Respondents failed to do so.[34] Respondents also failed to perform any substantive procedures to mitigate the identified fraud risk as required by PCAOB standards,[35] including testing whether revenue throughout the year was properly recorded in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework in the proper period and was properly valued.[36] The only audit procedure performed by Respondents was cut-off testing for the period December 20, 2014 to January 10, 2015, which consisted of using information produced by Issuer C that had not been tested for completeness and accuracy as required by PCAOB standards.[37]

d. Failure to Perform Journal Entry Testing for 2014 Issuer C Audit

29. In performing the 2014 Issuer C Audit, Respondents violated PCAOB standards due to their failure to design or perform any procedures to test the appropriateness of journal entries or other adjustments recorded in the general ledger and adjustments made in the preparation of the financial statements. Specifically, Respondents failed to examine journal entries and other adjustments for evidence of possible material misstatement due to fraud, including but not limited to, selecting from the general ledger journal entries to be tested and examining support for those items.[38]

5. 2015 Issuer C Audit

30. On April 5, 2016, Green authorized the issuance of the Firm's audit report on Issuer C's FYE December 31, 2015 financial statements, which expressed an unqualified opinion, with an explanatory going concern paragraph, and was included in Issuer C's Form 10-K filed with the Commission on April 6, 2016 ("2015 Issuer C Audit"). The Firm's audit report stated, among other things, that the audit of Issuer C's 2015 financial statements had been conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards.

31. Green served as the engagement partner on the 2015 Issuer C Audit and authorized the issuance of the Firm's audit report on the 2015 financial statements of Issuer C.

32. For FYE December 31, 2015, Issuer C reported that its inventory balance was $1,206,222, which represented 52% of total current assets and 26% of total assets. During the 2015 Issuer C Audit, Respondents identified inventory as a significant audit area and significant risk of material misstatement. Yet Respondents failed to perform any procedures to determine whether Issuer C's inventory was properly valued.

33. In connection with the 2015 Issuer C Audit, Green failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, and failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the audit opinion issued by the Firm.

6. 2014 Issuer D Audit

a. Background

34. Issuer D, at all relevant times, was a Nevada corporation headquartered in West Palm Beach, Florida. Issuer D's public filings disclosed that, at the time of the audit, its principal line of business was clinical laboratory blood and urine testing services. It was the Firm's largest issuer client by revenue dollars (approximately $77 million in reported gross revenue) at the time the Firm audited the financial statements of Issuer D for FYE December 31, 2014 ("2014 Issuer D Audit"). On March 6, 2015, Issuer D filed a non-timely Form 10-Q/A for the quarter ending September 30, 2014 with the Commission. Issuer D disclosed in that filing that management had identified a material weakness in internal control over financial reporting, which was reviewed by Issuer D's predecessor auditor. It stated that "[i]nsufficient staffing and accounting processes and procedures [had] led to a lack of contemporaneous documentation supporting the accounting for certain transactions."

35. On March 19, 2015, Issuer D disclosed in a Form 8-K filed with the Commission that its predecessor auditor had resigned as the Company's independent registered public accounting firm effective March 13, 2015. Issuer D also disclosed that its Board of Directors had engaged Green & Company as its independent registered public accounting firm effective March 13, 2015.

36. On April 15, 2015, barely a month later, Green, who served as the engagement partner and supervised the engagement team on the 2014 Issuer D Audit, authorized the issuance of his Firm's audit report, which expressed an unqualified opinion on Issuer D's 2014 financial statements and was included in Issuer D's 2014 Form 10-K, which was filed with the Commission the same day. The Firm's audit report stated, among other things, that the audit of Issuer D's 2014 financial statements had been conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards.

37. As discussed more fully below, in connection with the 2014 Issuer D Audit, Green failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, and failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the audit opinion issued by the Firm.

b. Failure to Perform Sufficient Appropriate Audit Procedures to Test Accounts Receivable During the 2014 Issuer D Audit

38. In its 2014 financial statements, Issuer D reported accounts receivable of $17,463,947 at year-end, which represented 49% of total assets.

39. Respondents identified accounts receivable as a significant risk area, including a risk of material misstatement due to fraud, while planning the 2014 Issuer D Audit. Respondents also indicated during planning for the audit that they would perform cut-off testing and subsequent cash collections testing in response to the identified accounts receivable fraud risk. Despite identifying accounts receivable as a fraud risk, Respondents failed to perform any procedures regarding Issuer D's accounts receivable during the 2014 Issuer D Audit.[39]

c. Failure to Appropriately Evaluate Whether Issuer D Had Omitted Information Essential to the Fair Presentation of its Accounting Policy for Revenue in 2014

40. In its 2014 financial statements, Issuer D reported net revenue of $57,927,820, which was a 38.3% increase over the $41,888,871 in revenue reported at FYE December 31, 2013. Respondents identified revenue as a significant audit area and as a fraud risk while planning the 2014 Issuer D Audit.

41. Issuer D reported in its 2014 financial statements that revenues were recognized at the time testing services were performed and were reported at the estimated net realizable amounts. Green, however, understood at the time of the 2014 Issuer D Audit that Issuer D recognized revenue at the time of billing and not at the time testing services were performed. Despite this understanding, Respondents failed to evaluate whether Issuer D's 2014 financial statements were presented fairly, in all material respects, in accordance with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles.[40]

[39] See AS 15 ¶ 4; AS 13 ¶¶ 12-15.

[40] See AS 14 ¶ 30-31; AS 15 ¶ 11 (see fifth bullet – Presentation and Disclosure).

d. Green Failed to Adequately Supervise Staff on the 2014 Issuer D Audit

42. As the engagement partner, Green was responsible for the 2014 Issuer D engagement and its performance.[41] Green was therefore responsible for proper supervision of the work of engagement team members and for the team's compliance with PCAOB standards.[42] Green was also required to review the work of engagement team members to evaluate whether the work was performed and documented, the objectives of the procedures were achieved, and the results of the work supported the conclusions reached.[43]

43. As discussed above, Respondents failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence in several audit areas. In addition, for each of these areas, Green failed to adequately supervise the staff as required by PCAOB standards. In particular, Green failed to inform the staff about their responsibilities, direct them to bring significant accounting and auditing issues to his attention, or review the work performed by audit staff to evaluate whether work was performed and documented, objectives were achieved, and the results supported the conclusions reached. At least 20 work papers purportedly prepared by members of the engagement team, which Green signed off on as the reviewer or lead partner, actually contained no audit work or were blank templates. For example, the 2014 Issuer D audit work papers indicate that the PCA-AP-14 Audit Program for Income and Expense, Revenue Memo, Audit Program for Property, and 2014 Im[p]airment Test v5, were prepared by members of the engagement team and approved by Green in spite of the fact that those work papers were templates that did not evidence the performance of any audit procedures.

44. Green also failed, when determining the extent of supervision necessary for engagement team members to perform their work as directed and form appropriate conclusions, to take into account the knowledge, skill, and ability of each engagement team member.[44] Green's failure in this regard was particularly egregious because he staffed the 2014 Issuer D Audit principally with contract auditors who were supervised, at times, by the Firm's sole audit staff employee. This audit assistant, who also performed the revenue testing, had less than two years of experience and virtually no training regarding the auditing of public companies under PCAOB standards. Despite being aware of this, Green failed to properly supervise the engagement team members during the 2014 Issuer D Audit.

D. Respondents Violated PCAOB Standards by Granting 11 Issuer Clients Permission to Use the Firm's Audit Reports Without Obtaining Concurring Approvals of Issuance from the Engagement Quality Reviewer for the Issuer Audits

45. PCAOB standards require that an engagement quality review be performed on audit engagements and reviews of interim financial information conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards.[45] PCAOB standards also provide that, in an audit, a firm may grant permission to a client to use an audit report only after an engagement quality reviewer provides concurring approval of issuance.[46]

46. The engagement quality reviewer for 11 Issuer Audits identified in the attached Appendix A, did not provide concurring approval of issuance for any of those reports prior to their issuance. In each instance, the audit was of an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii), and Green was aware that the engagement quality reviewer had not provided concurring approval of issuance when he authorized the release of the Firm's audit report for the Issuer Audits. As a result, for each of the Issuer Audits, the Firm violated PCAOB standards by improperly permitting the issuance of an audit report without obtaining concurring approvals of issuance from the engagement quality reviewer.

47. Green, the majority owner and managing partner of the Firm, was the engagement partner for each of the Issuer Audits at all relevant times and was principally responsible for the audits conducted by the Firm. Accordingly, Green had overall responsibility for ensuring that the Firm complied with PCAOB rules and standards. Green knew, or was reckless in not knowing, that he was directly and substantially contributing to the Firm's violations of AS 7, with respect to the Issuer Audits. As a result, he violated PCAOB Rule 3502.

E. Respondents Violated Audit Documentation Standards For 11 Issuer Audits

48. AS 3 requires that the complete and final set of documentation for an audit be assembled for retention by the "documentation completion date," a date no later than 45 days from the date on which the auditor grants permission to use its report ("report release date").[47] AS 3 also requires that "[p]rior to the report release date, the auditor must have completed all necessary auditing procedures and obtained sufficient evidence to support the representations in the auditor's report."[48] It also requires that the auditor "document the procedures performed, evidence obtained, and conclusions reached with respect to relevant financial assertions. Audit documentation must clearly demonstrate that the work was in fact performed."[49]

[45] See AS 7 ¶ 1; see also ¶¶ 9-13.

49. The Firm's computer records and audit software indicate that the audit work papers for the Issuer Audits were not "archived" or otherwise retained in such a manner that the work papers could not be deleted, or added to, without attribution until January 2017, nearly two years after the report release date for those audits. Respondents thus violated AS 3 by failing to assemble a complete and final set of audit documentation for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date for any of the Issuer Audits.[50]

III.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Travis J. Green is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[51] and

Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act provides that "[i]t shall be unlawful for any person that is suspended or barred from being associated with a registered public accounting firm under this subsection willfully to become or remain associated with any issuer, broker, or dealer in an accountancy or a financial management capacity, and for any issuer, broker, or dealer that knew, or in the exercise

In the Matter of Ahmed & Associates CPA P.C. and Rizwan Ahmed, CPA,	April 21, 2020
Respondents.

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (the "Board" or "PCAOB") is revoking Ahmed & Associates CPA P.C.'s ("Firm") registration,[1] barring Rizwan Ahmed, CPA ("Ahmed") from being an associated person for a registered public accounting firm,[2] and imposing a civil money penalty jointly and severally in the amount of $10,000 upon the Firm and Ahmed (collectively, "Respondents"). The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that: (1) Respondents violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Firm's audits of three issuer audit clients; and (2) Respondents violated PCAOB rules in connection with the Firm's failure to disclose reportable events to the Board on PCAOB Form 3, Special Report.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have each submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings

[1] The Firm may reapply for registration after three (3) years from the date of this Order.

[2] Ahmed may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after three (3) years from the date of this Order.

and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over them and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to the entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[3]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds[4] that:

A. Respondents

1. Ahmed & Associates CPA P.C. is, and at all relevant times was, a professional corporation organized under New York law, and headquartered in New Hyde Park, New York. The Firm is registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules, and is licensed by the New York State Education Department (license no. 096353). At all relevant times, the Firm was the external auditor for the issuers identified below.

2. Rizwan Ahmed, CPA is, and at all relevant times was, a certified public accountant licensed by the New York State Education Department (license no. 099486). At all relevant times, Ahmed was the sole owner of the Firm and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Summary

3. Ahmed and the Firm violated PCAOB rules and standards with respect to the three audit engagements. Specifically, the Firm failed to comply with AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review,[5] with respect to three issuer audit clients

[3] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[4] The Board finds that each Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. §7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (A) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (B) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

by failing to obtain an engagement quality review of each audit. Further, the Firm failed to disclose certain reportable events to the Board on Form 3 as required by PCAOB rules. Ahmed directly and substantially contributed to each of these violations.

C. Respondents Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

4. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[6]

5. AS 1220 requires that an engagement quality review be performed on audits and interim reviews conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards.[7] AS 1220 also provides that a firm may grant permission to a client to use the engagement report only after an engagement quality reviewer provides concurring approval of issuance.[8]

6. In addition, PCAOB rules prohibit an associated person of a registered public accounting firm from "tak[ing] or omit[ting] to take an action knowing, or recklessly not knowing, that the act or omission would directly and substantially contribute to a violation by that registered public accounting firm of the Act, the Rules of the Board, the provisions of the securities laws relating to the preparation and issuance of audit reports and the obligations and liabilities of accountants with respect thereto, including the rules of the [Securities and Exchange] Commission [("Commission")] issued under the Act, or professional standards."[9]

7. As described below, Respondents failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards.

9. The Firm served as the auditor of Issuer A's financial statements for the year ended March 31, 2017. The Firm issued an audit report, dated June 22, 2017, which was included in Issuer A's Form 10-K filed with the Commission on June 27, 2017. The Firm improperly permitted the issuance of that report without obtaining an engagement quality review and concurring approval of issuance. As a result, the Firm violated AS 1220.[10]

Audit of Issuer B's Financial Statements

10. At all relevant times, Issuer B was a New York corporation headquartered in Flushing, New York, and an issuer as defined in Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

The Firm issued an audit report, dated June 30, 2018, which was included in Issuer B's Form 10-K filed with the Commission on June 29, 2018. The Firm improperly permitted the issuance of that report without obtaining an engagement quality review and concurring approval of issuance. As a result, the Firm violated AS 1220.[11]

Audits of Issuer C's Financial Statements

The Firm issued two audit reports, both dated May 24, 2019, which were included in Issuer C's Form 10-Ks filed with the Commission on May 31, 2019 and June 3, 2019, respectively. The Firm improperly permitted the issuance of those reports without obtaining engagement quality reviews and concurring approvals of issuance. As a result, the Firm violated AS 1220.[12]

Ahmed Contributed to the Firm's Violations

14. Ahmed, the sole owner of the Firm, was the engagement partner for each of the audits described above. Accordingly, Ahmed had overall responsibility for ensuring that the Firm complied with PCAOB rules and standards. Ahmed knew, or was reckless in not knowing, that he was directly and substantially contributing to the Firm's violations of AS 1220, as described above. As a result, he violated PCAOB Rule 3502.

The Firm Failed to Disclose Reportable Events to the Board in Violation of PCAOB Rules and Ahmed Contributed to the Firm's Violation

15. PCAOB Rule 2203 provides that a registered public accounting firm must file a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence.[13] One such specified event occurs when a firm "has become aware that a partner, shareholder, principal, owner, member, or audit manager of the Firm who provided at least ten hours of audit services for any issuer, broker, or dealer during the Firm's current fiscal year or its most recently completed fiscal year has become a defendant in a criminal proceeding prosecuted by a governmental criminal law enforcement authority and is charged with fraud, embezzlement, forgery, extortion, bribery, obstruction of justice, perjury, or false statements; or charged with any crime arising out of alleged conduct relating to accounting, auditing, securities, banking, commodities, taxation, consumer protection, or insurance" ("Item 2.6 Proceeding").[14]

17. In violation of Rule 2203, the Firm failed to file a Form 3 with respect to the Item 2.6 Proceeding.

18. Ahmed knew, or was reckless in not knowing, that he was directly and substantially contributing to the Firm's violation of Rule 2203, as described above. As a result, he violated PCAOB Rule 3502.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers.

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Ahmed is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[15]

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(A) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(1), the registration of the Firm is revoked;

D. After three (3) years from the date of this Order, the Firm may reapply for registration by filing an application pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2101; and

[15] As a consequence of the bar, the provisions of Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act will apply with respect to Ahmed. Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act provides that "[i]t shall be unlawful for any person that is suspended or barred from being associated with a registered public accounting firm under this subsection willfully to become or remain associated with any issuer, broker, or dealer in an accountancy or a financial management capacity, and for any issuer, broker, or dealer that knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of such suspension or bar, to permit such an association, without the consent of the Board or the Commission."

E. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000 is imposed jointly and severally upon the Firm and Ahmed. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Respondents shall pay this civil money penalty within 10 days of the issuance of this Order by (a) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (b) United States postal money order, certified check, bank cashier's check or bank money order; (c) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board; (d) delivered to the Controller, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006; and (e) submitted under a cover letter which identifies the Firm and Ahmed as Respondents in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB Release Number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to the Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006. Respondents understand that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may alone be grounds to deny any petition, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm, or any reapplication for registration pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2101.

In the Matter of HLB Mann Judd, Darryl Swindells, and Aidan Smith,	June 29, 2020
Respondents.

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is imposing sanctions upon HLB Mann Judd ("Firm"), Darryl Swindells, and Aidan Smith (collectively, "Respondents"). The Board is:

(1) revoking the registration of HLB Mann Judd[1] and imposing on the Firm a $50,000 civil money penalty;

(2) barring Swindells from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm[2] and imposing on him a $15,000 civil money penalty;

(3) barring Smith from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm[3] and imposing on him a $10,000 civil money penalty; and

(4) requiring Swindells and Smith each to complete 40 hours of continuing professional education ("CPE"), in addition to any CPE required in connection with any professional license, before filing a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered firm.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that: (a) Respondents violated PCAOB rules and auditing standards in connection with the Firm's audits of an issuer client's financial statements for six fiscal years; and (b) the Firm violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards.

[1] The Firm may reapply for registration after three years from the date of this Order.

[2] Swindells may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after three years from the date of this Order.

[3] Smith may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after one year from the date of this Order.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have each submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer," collectively "Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over them and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to the entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[4]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds[5] that:

A. Respondents

1. HLB Mann Judd is a partnership located in Sydney, Australia. The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

2. Darryl Swindells is a registered company auditor registered with the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (registration number 15487) and a chartered accountant licensed by the Institute of Chartered Accountants in Australia and New Zealand. Swindells was a partner of HLB Mann Judd before retiring in December 2019. He served, among other things, on the Firm's Quality Control and Independence Committee, its Risk Management Committee, and its Audit & Corporate Advisory

[5] The Board finds that each Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, which provides that such sanctions may be imposed in the event of (A) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (B) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

Divisional Committee. Swindells was also the Nominated Head of Quality Control for the Firm's audit practice, responsible—among other things—for ensuring the Firm had adequate resources to undertake its audit appointments and for compliance by Firm personnel with the Firm's quality control and independence procedures. Swindells is, and at all relevant times was, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

3. Aidan Smith is a registered company auditor registered with the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (registration number 323195) and a chartered accountant licensed by the Institute of Chartered Accountants in Australia and New Zealand and the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Scotland. Smith is a partner of HLB Mann Judd and serves on the Firm's Audit & Corporate Advisory Divisional Committee. Smith is, and at all relevant times was, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Issuer A

4. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, an Australian corporation headquartered in Sydney, Australia. Issuer A's public filings disclose that, at the time of the relevant audits, Issuer A was in the business of installing and optimizing renewable power generation systems and delivering products and services designed to increase the efficiency of climate control and other systems. At all relevant times, Issuer A was an issuer as defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

5. In February 2015, HLB Mann Judd registered with the Board. It did so in order to take on Issuer A as an audit client. Issuer A was the only issuer the Firm ever audited.

6. HLB Mann Judd issued a total of four audit reports for Issuer A. The Firm's first report concerned three years of financial statements—reaudits of Issuer A's fiscal year ("FY") 2012 and 2013 financial statements,[6] as well as an original audit of Issuer A's FY 2014 financial statements.[7] Thereafter, the Firm successively issued three audit

[6] Reaudits of Issuer A's FY 2012 and FY 2013 financial statements were performed after Issuer A's audit committee, following discussions with its prior outside auditor, determined that its previously issued audited financial statements for those fiscal years should no longer be relied upon.

[7] Issuer A's fiscal year ran from July 1 through June 30. Issuer A prepared its financial statements in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards ("IFRS") as issued by the International Accounting Standards Board.

reports on three years of Issuer A's financial statements: FY 2015, FY 2016, and FY 2017. All four audit reports contained unqualified opinions with going concern paragraphs.

7. Swindells was the engagement partner who authorized the issuance of the Firm's first three audit reports on the Issuer A engagement, and who had final responsibility for the audits of Issuer A's FY 2012 through FY 2016 financial statements. Smith was Swindells' successor on the engagement, served as the engagement partner who authorized the issuance of the Firm's fourth audit report on the Issuer A engagement, and had final responsibility for the audit of Issuer A's FY 2017 financial statements.

8. When HLB Mann Judd accepted Issuer A as an audit client and performed audits of six years of Issuer A's financial statements, the Firm was not in a position to adequately audit issuer clients under PCAOB rules and standards. It failed to (i) train its personnel to perform issuer audits in accordance with PCAOB standards and (ii) staff its audits of Issuer A with auditors qualified and knowledgeable to perform issuer audits in accordance with such standards. The Firm also lacked quality control policies and procedures that addressed the requirements of, or otherwise referenced considerations distinctive to, issuer audits. As a result, the Firm violated PCAOB rules, auditing standards, and quality control standards.

9. Swindells and Smith also violated PCAOB rules and auditing standards in connection with their audits of Issuer A. They did so in connection with three aspects of those audits: client acceptance and continuance; audit planning and performance; and documentation. With respect to audit planning and performance, those deficiencies arose in key areas of the audits: risk assessment for Swindells, and revenue testing and goodwill valuation testing for Swindells and Smith.

D. Respondents Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

10. PCAOB rules require that registered public accounting firms and their associated persons comply with applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.[8] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements only when the auditor has formed such an opinion on the basis of an audit performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[9] PCAOB standards require, among other things, that an auditor plan and perform the audit with due professional care[10] and obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the auditor's opinion.[11]

As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. See Reorganization of PCAOB Auditing Standards and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards and Rules, PCAOB Release No. 2015-002 (March 31, 2015). The reorganization did not impose additional requirements on auditors or change substantively the requirements of PCAOB standards. While Respondents' conduct occurred both before and after the reorganization, the reorganized standards are cited herein for purposes of clarity.

11. As detailed below, Respondents failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards.

1. Client Acceptance and Continuance

12. PCAOB auditing standards state that "before starting an initial audit" an auditor should "[p]erform procedures regarding the acceptance of the client relationship and the specific audit engagement."[12] PCAOB auditing standards also require certain procedures at the beginning of an audit, including any subsequent audit of an existing client: "The auditor should perform the following activities at the beginning of the audit: . . . Perform procedures regarding the continuance of the client relationship and the specific audit engagement . . . ."[13]

13. In January 2015, Swindells accepted Issuer A as an audit client on behalf of HLB Mann Judd. Before doing so, however, Swindells failed to adequately consider whether the Firm was professionally competent to audit Issuer A in accordance with applicable PCAOB rules and standards, including whether it had (i) sufficiently qualified and experienced personnel knowledgeable of them and (ii) quality control policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance of compliance with them.[14] Swindells failed to do so before the Firm's initial audit engagement for Issuer A—the audit of its FY 2014 financial statements ("2014 Audit") and the reaudit of its FY 2012 and FY 2013 financial statements (collectively, the "2012-2014 Audits")—and he also failed to do so before each of the two audits thereafter ("2015 Audit" and "2016 Audit").

14. Swindells undertook to address the question of whether the Firm could audit issuer clients in two work papers completed for the 2012-2014 Audits, each two pages long. The first, titled "Considerations - Audit Report," contained without elaboration the statement: "I know from my work with HLB International's Global Audit Working Group that there are very few differences between US Audit Standards and ASAs [Australian Auditing Standards], therefore we are justified in issuing an audit report under US Standards." The second, titled "Comparison of ISAs [International Standards on Auditing] and PCAOB Standards," referenced versions of PCAOB auditing standards effective before December 15, 2010—not those applicable to the work HLB Mann Judd was performing over four years later as part of the 2012-2014 Audits.

15. Swindells during the 2012 through 2016 Audits used audit programs—work paper templates setting out audit-related procedures and considerations for planning and performing an audit—that referenced Australian Auditing Standards, not PCAOB auditing standards. Swindells did so without adequately considering what, if any, differences relevant to the planning and performance of the audit existed between Australian Auditing Standards and PCAOB standards.

16. Smith similarly failed to perform sufficient client continuance procedures before the Firm's audit of Issuer A's FY 2017 financial statements ("2017 Audit"). Smith failed to consider the Firm's professional competence to audit Issuer A in accordance with applicable requirements before the 2017 Audit. None of the client continuance procedures performed by Smith's engagement team included acknowledgment, let alone evaluation, of auditing standards or quality control policies and procedures that were applicable to issuer audits. As with the previous audits supervised by Swindells, the audit programs used during the 2017 Audit referenced Australian Auditing Standards, not PCAOB auditing standards. Smith failed to consider what, if any, differences relevant to the planning and performance of the audit existed between Australian Auditing Standards and PCAOB auditing standards.

2. Training and Staffing

17. PCAOB auditing standards required the Firm's audits of Issuer A "to be performed by a person or persons having adequate technical training and proficiency as an auditor."[15] The personnel assigned to the Issuer A audits were required to "undergo training adequate to meet the requirements of a professional," which "must be adequate in technical scope."[16] Moreover, auditors "should be assigned to tasks . . . commensurate with their level of knowledge, skill, and ability so that they can evaluate the audit evidence they are examining."[17] Swindells and Smith, as the engagement partners responsible for the Firm's audits of Issuer A, "should know, at a minimum, the relevant professional accounting and auditing standards."[18]

18. Other than a 20-minute session on "Information/discussion for foreign PCAOB registrants" that Smith attended in 2015, none of the members of the engagement teams assigned to the Firm's audits of Issuer A received training in PCAOB auditing standards before or during those engagements. By failing in its audits of Issuer A to assign personnel with adequate technical training and proficiency in issuer audit work, and failing to exercise due professional care in ensuring the engagement teams had knowledge commensurate with their responsibilities in performing issuer audits, the Firm violated AS 1010 and AS 1015.

3. Audit Deficiencies

Inadequate Risk Assessment

19. PCAOB standards require auditors to perform risk assessment procedures that are sufficient to provide a reasonable basis for identifying and assessing the risks of material misstatement, whether due to error or fraud.[19] Auditors "should presume that there is a fraud risk involving improper revenue recognition and evaluate which types of revenue, revenue transactions, or assertions may give rise to such risks."[20] PCAOB standards state that fraud risks are significant risks.[21]

20. During the 2015 Audit and the 2017 Audit, the engagement team identified a fraud risk and significant risk with respect to revenue. During the 2014 Audit and the 2016 Audit, however, Swindells failed to identify improper revenue recognition as a fraud risk—even though the engagement team's work papers acknowledged such a presumption was required—and failed to document any basis to overcome the presumption that improper revenue recognition should have been identified as a fraud risk.[22]

Inadequate Revenue Testing

21. In each of the 2014, 2015, 2016, and 2017 Audits, the engagement team identified revenue as a significant account. PCAOB standards require auditors to perform substantive procedures for each relevant assertion of each significant account and disclosure.[23]

22. However, Swindells failed in each of the 2014, 2015, and 2016 Audits to perform any procedures to test revenue beyond a year-over-year comparison of revenue and inquiry of management. In performing these comparisons, Swindells failed to (1) develop an expectation at a sufficient level of precision to provide the necessary degree of assurance that differences that could be potential material misstatements, individually or when aggregated with other misstatements, would be identified for investigation,[24] or (2) establish a threshold for identifying significant differences and evaluate significant unexpected differences requiring further investigation.[25] As a result, the year-over-year revenue comparisons were not substantive analytical procedures, and Swindells failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence relating to the occurrence and valuation of revenue—that is, whether revenue was recorded in the proper period and in the proper amount—in each of the 2014, 2015, and 2016 Audits. Moreover, because the engagement team in the 2015 Audit identified and assessed a fraud risk relating to revenue, Swindells' failure to perform substantive procedures during the 2015 Audit additionally violated the requirement that an auditor perform substantive procedures, including tests of details, that are specifically responsive to the assessed fraud risk.[26]

23. During the 2017 Audit, Smith and the engagement team identified the occurrence and allocation of revenue as a fraud risk and a significant risk. In FY 2017, Issuer A derived approximately 77 percent of its revenue from one operating segment ("Segment 1"). The majority of Segment 1's revenue (or 66 percent of Issuer A's total revenue) was recognized using the percentage of completion ("POC") method of accounting.[27] To apply the POC method, some basis or standard for measuring the progress to completion for each contract at particular interim dates is necessary. Issuer A disclosed that its basis for measuring the stage of completion of a project was contract costs incurred to date as a percentage of the estimated total costs for the contract. Issuer A recognized gross revenue from projects in Segment 1 throughout a reporting period based on invoices issued to the customer for amounts specified in the contract with that customer (progress billings). Then, at the end of each reporting period, Issuer A recorded for each project an adjustment to the gross revenue amount to reflect management's calculated stage of completion for that project ("POC Adjustment").

24. To test gross POC revenue from projects in Segment 1, the engagement team selected a sample of revenue transactions recorded in the last three months of FY 2017 and compared the recorded amounts to the amounts specified in customer invoices obtained from Issuer A and in the contracts with those customers. The engagement team also obtained a schedule of projects outstanding at year end in which management calculated the POC Adjustment for each incomplete project using actual costs to date and estimated costs to complete. To test the POC Adjustments at year end, the engagement team selected two projects from the issuer's schedule of outstanding projects and (1) compared the costs to date for each selected project to cost information in reports from the issuer's project management system and (2) made inquiry of Issuer A's management and personnel about its process for estimating costs to complete the selected projects.

25. Smith and the engagement team, however, failed to perform adequate procedures to determine whether revenue was recorded in the proper period and properly valued. First, the engagement team limited its selection of revenue transactions for Segment 1 to sales recorded in the last three months of the year. These selections were not representative of the entire population, as all items in the population did not have an opportunity to be selected.[28] In addition, in its testing of the POC Adjustments recorded at year end, the engagement team failed to perform any procedures to test estimated costs of completion beyond inquiry of management and personnel.[29] Furthermore, the engagement team failed to test the accuracy and completeness of (1) the issuer's schedule of projects outstanding at year end and (2) the system-generated reports of costs to date that the engagement team used in testing costs to date for the selected projects.[30]

26. In FY 2017, Issuer A derived approximately 11 percent of its revenue from product sales by its U.S. subsidiary. During the 2017 Audit, Smith failed to perform adequate procedures to test whether revenue relating to this subsidiary was recorded in the proper period and in the proper amount, as the engagement team failed to perform substantive procedures, including tests of details, that were specifically responsive to the assessed fraud risk.[31] The engagement team failed to perform any procedures beyond a year-over-year comparison of product sales revenue and inquiry of management, and that year-over-year comparison—which (like those performed in the previous audits) lacked a sufficiently precise expectation and a threshold for identifying significant differences—was not a substantive analytical procedure.[32]

Inadequate Goodwill Valuation Testing

27. Issuer A reported goodwill relating to one of its operating segments ("Segment 2") in both its FY 2015 and FY 2016 financial statements. As of June 30, 2015 and 2016, Segment 2 goodwill represented approximately 40 percent and 35 percent, respectively, of Issuer A's total assets.

28. Goodwill should be tested for impairment at least annually, and whenever there is an indication that the goodwill may be impaired.[33] Issuer A disclosed that impairment was determined by assessing the recoverable amount, or value-in-use, of Segment 2 as compared to its carrying amount. Issuer A's management prepared an impairment analysis of goodwill allocated to Segment 2 at each fiscal year end that purported to calculate the recoverable amount of Segment 2 using discounted projected cash flows.

29. In both the 2015 and 2016 Audits, Swindells and the engagement teams identified a significant risk relating to the valuation of goodwill. Moreover, Swindells understood that management's calculation of the recoverable amount of Segment 2 was an estimate.

30. In both audits, however, Swindells failed to adequately evaluate the reasonableness of that estimate. Swindells should have used one or a combination of the following approaches in evaluating the reasonableness of Issuer A's recoverable amount estimate for Segment 2:

> "a. Review and test the process used by management to develop the estimate.
>
> b. Develop an independent expectation of the estimate to corroborate the reasonableness of management's estimate.
> c. Review subsequent events or transactions occurring prior to the date of the auditor's report."[34]

31. Swindells and the engagement teams failed to adequately perform any of these approaches. They understood that management used certain projected amounts—such as the projected number of new and renewing customers each year (megawatts installed), the projected average price per megawatt, and the associated projected cost of sales—as key assumptions in formulating the cash flow projections on which it based its impairment analysis. Swindells and the engagement teams, however, failed to perform adequate procedures to evaluate those assumptions or otherwise test the process for generating those projected amounts.[35] Nor did they develop an independent expectation of the estimated recoverable amount or review subsequent events or transactions to evaluate its reasonableness.

32. Swindells failed to perform adequate procedures even though he communicated in a report to Issuer A's audit committee during each of the 2015 and 2016 Audits that it was "highly likely" that impairment of goodwill for Segment 2 would be required absent significantly better performance in the future than had been achieved in recent years. Swindells also communicated to the audit committee during the 2016 Audit, in connection with Issuer A's valuation of Segment 2's goodwill, that Issuer A had a history of not meeting its forecasts. He was aware that, in its goodwill impairment analysis prepared during the 2015 Audit, Issuer A forecasted FY 2016 revenues of A$7.5 million for Segment 2, but reported only A$2.6 million in such revenue in its FY 2016 financial statements.[36] and the engagement team during the 2017 Audit identified a significant risk relating to the valuation of goodwill.

34. Smith and the engagement team obtained an issuer-prepared impairment analysis relating to Segment 2's goodwill. That analysis calculated the recoverable amount of Segment 2 based largely on cash flow projections. Like Swindells in prior audits, however, Smith failed during the 2017 Audit to adequately evaluate the reasonableness of that recoverable amount estimate. Although Smith, like Swindells in previous audits, identified certain key assumptions as part of management's process in formulating those projections, Smith and the engagement team failed to perform adequate procedures to evaluate those assumptions or otherwise test the process for generating those projected amounts.[37] Smith also failed to test the accuracy and completeness of system-generated reports used to test certain other assumptions.[38] Nor did Smith develop an independent expectation of the estimated recoverable amount or review subsequent events or transactions to evaluate its reasonableness.[39]

35. Smith failed to perform adequate procedures even though (1) he knew that during the 2016 Audit Issuer A had forecasted A$11.5 million in FY 2017 revenue for Segment 2 as part of its goodwill impairment analysis but reported only A$4 million in its FY 2017 financial statements, and (2) he communicated in a report to Issuer A's audit committee during the 2017 Audit that the recoverability of goodwill for Segment 2 depended on significantly better performance in the future and that Issuer A had a history of not meeting its forecasts.[40]

4. Documentation

36. PCAOB auditing standards state: "A complete and final set of audit documentation should be assembled for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date (documentation completion date)."[41] Swindells and Smith failed to timely assemble final sets of audit documentation for their respective engagements.

37. Engagement teams at HLB Mann Judd used an archiving (or "lock-down") feature in HLB Mann Judd's audit software to assemble final sets of audit documentation.

Swindells and Smith did the same in their Issuer A audits. However, they both failed to do so by the applicable documentation completion date. Specifically, Swindells assembled a final set of audit documentation for the 2012-2014 Audits over three months late, for the 2015 Audit one week late, and for the 2016 Audit five months late. Similarly, Smith assembled a final set of audit documentation for the 2017 Audit over three weeks late.

5. Quality Control

38. PCAOB rules and quality control standards require that a registered firm have a system of quality control for its auditing practice.[42] A firm should establish policies and procedures to encompass, among other things, personnel management, acceptance and continuance of clients and engagements, engagement performance, and monitoring.[43] As described below, HLB Mann Judd violated PCAOB quality control standards in several respects.

Client Acceptance and Continuance

39. A firm should establish policies and procedures "for deciding whether to accept or continue a client relationship and whether to perform a specific engagement for that client."[44] These policies and procedures should provide reasonable assurance that the firm "[u]ndertakes only those engagements that the firm can reasonably expect to be completed with professional competence" and "[a]ppropriately considers the risks associated with providing professional services in the particular circumstances."[45]

40. Throughout the time period of the Issuer A audits, the Firm failed to establish and implement policies and procedures necessary to decide whether to accept or continue a client relationship with an issuer and whether to perform a specific engagement for that client. The Firm's policies and procedures, for instance, prescribed two different forms of client acceptance documentation for use by engagement team members—one for audits of entities subject to the reporting requirements of Australia's Corporations Act 2001 ("Corporations Act") and the other for entities not subject to the Corporations Act—but neither reflected, nor otherwise directed the attention of engagement team members to, considerations applicable to audits of issuers. Moreover, HLB Mann Judd's policies assigned to engagement partners the responsibilities to ensure appropriate acceptance and continuance procedures, to determine the nature and extent of those procedures, and to determine whether the most recent acceptance or continuance decision remained appropriate for the current audit engagement, but did so without taking steps to ensure that the engagement partners assigned to the Firm's only issuer audit—Swindells and Smith—had sufficient knowledge, experience, training, and proficiency to carry out those responsibilities in connection with an issuer client.

Personnel Management

41. A firm should establish policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that, among other things, (1) "[w]ork is assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances," and (2) "[p]ersonnel participate in general and industry-specific continuing professional education and other professional development activities that enable them to fulfill responsibilities assigned."[46] A firm's policies and procedures should also provide reasonable assurance that "individuals possess the kinds of competencies that are appropriate given the circumstances of individual client engagements,"[47] and that "a practitioner-in-charge of an engagement possesses the competencies necessary to fulfill his or her engagement responsibilities."[48]

42. Throughout the time period of the Issuer A audits, the Firm failed to establish policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that personnel assigned to the Issuer A engagement had the technical training, proficiency, and competencies required to audit an issuer in accordance with PCAOB rules and standards. Moreover, the Firm failed to establish policies and procedures to ensure personnel assigned to Issuer A had proficiency with, and participated in continuing professional education related to, PCAOB standards and relevant regulatory requirements.

Engagement Performance

43. A firm should establish policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance "that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality."[49]

44. Throughout the time period of the Issuer A audits, the Firm failed to implement and maintain a system of quality control that would provide it with reasonable assurance that the work performed by the Issuer A engagement personnel would comply with applicable PCAOB professional standards. As described above, the Firm failed to have in place adequate policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that the Firm and its personnel performed and documented their work in accordance with PCAOB auditing standards. Among other things, HLB Mann Judd's deficient system of quality control failed to prevent the repeated failures (1) to plan and perform procedures in compliance with PCAOB standards during the course of the Issuer A audits and (2) to timely archive audit work papers in accordance with PCAOB standards.

[49] QC § 20.17.

Monitoring

45. A firm should establish policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that its quality control policies and procedures "are suitably designed and are being effectively applied."[50] Monitoring involves an ongoing consideration and evaluation of, among other things, the (1) "[r]elevance and adequacy of the firm's policies and procedures"; (2) "[a]ppropriateness of the firm's guidance materials and any practice aids"; and (3) "[e]ffectiveness of professional development activities."[51] HLB Mann Judd failed, both at the time it accepted Issuer A as an audit client and throughout the time period of the Issuer A audits, to adequately consider and evaluate whether the Firm's policies and procedures, its guidance materials and practice aids (including audit programs), and its professional development activities were being effectively applied to audits of issuers.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in the Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(A) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(1), the registration of HLB Mann Judd is revoked;

B. After three years from the date of this Order, HLB Mann Judd may reapply for registration by filing an application pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2101;

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Darryl Swindells and Aidan Smith are each barred from being an associated

G. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), civil money penalties are imposed in the amounts of $50,000 upon HLB Mann Judd, $15,000 upon Darryl Swindells, and $10,000 upon Aidan Smith. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of these civil money penalties will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. HLB Mann Judd shall pay the civil money penalty imposed within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer pursuant to instructions provided by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Controller, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter that identifies the payer as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of said cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary,

[52] As a consequence of the bars, the provisions of Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act will apply with respect to both Darryl Swindells and Aidan Smith. ORDER INSTITUTING DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDINGS, MAKING FINDINGS, AND IMPOSING SANCTIONS In the Matter of Ryan J. Collins, CPA, Respondent.	PCAOB Release No. 105-2020-009 July 21, 2020

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is barring Ryan J. Collins, CPA ("Collins" or "Respondent") from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm.[1] The Board is imposing this sanction on the basis of its findings that Collins failed to cooperate with a Board inspection in connection with the audit of an issuer.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over him and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[2]

[1] Collins may petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after one year from the date of this Order.

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds[3] that:

A. Respondent

1. Ryan J. Collins is, and at all relevant times was, a certified public accountant licensed by the Indiana Board of Accountancy (license no. CP11300016). Collins was employed by PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP ("PwC") between September 2010 and May 2019. At all relevant times, Collins was an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Summary

2. This matter concerns Respondent's failure to cooperate with a Board inspection. Collins was a senior manager for PwC's integrated audit of the financial statements and internal control over financial reporting of an issuer ("Issuer A") for the fiscal year-ended September 30, 2018 ("Audit").[4] As part of the Board's annual inspection of PwC for 2019, Board staff selected the Audit for review ("Inspection"). During field work for the Inspection, Collins: (a) made a misleading statement to the Board's inspectors; and (b) prepared a misleading document that he understood would be presented to the inspectors in response to a specific request from the inspectors. Through his actions and omissions Collins violated his obligation to cooperate with the Board's Inspection.

[2] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[3] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (A) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (B) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

[4] At all relevant times, Issuer A was an "issuer" as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Respondent Violated a PCAOB Rule

Applicable PCAOB Rule

3. PCAOB Rule 4006 provides that "[e]very registered public accounting firm, and every associated person of a registered public accounting firm, shall cooperate with the Board in the performance of any Board inspection." Cooperation includes complying with requests for "any record in the possession, custody, or control of such firm or person" as well as complying with requests to "provide information by oral interviews, written responses, or otherwise." Id. "Implicit in this cooperation requirement is that auditors provide accurate and truthful information" to the Board's inspectors.[5]

Background Related to the Inspection

4. Collins began working on PwC's audit of Issuer A in 2010. Collins worked on each audit of Issuer A for fiscal years 2010 through 2018. Also, Collins participated in two Board inspections of PwC's audits of Issuer A prior to the Inspection.

5. In early-March 2019, Collins learned that the Board would inspect the Audit as part of its annual inspection of PwC. Prior to the beginning of inspection field work, Collins understood that taxes would be one of the focus areas for the Inspection.

Collins Made a Misleading Statement and Provided a Misleading Document to the Board's Inspectors During the Inspection.

6. Inspection field work commenced on April 1, 2019. During field work, the Board's inspectors asked the engagement team questions related to the tax focus area and, specifically, related to transfer pricing.

7. During his preparations for the Inspection, Collins opened the archived work papers for the 2009 audit of Issuer A and found a memo that related to transfer pricing ("2009 Memo").

8. During the evening of April 3, 2019, in an attempt to respond to open questions from the inspectors related to transfer pricing, Collins met with the other members of the engagement team. As part of addressing questions from the Board's inspectors related to transfer pricing, he downloaded the 2009 Memo from the archived 2009 work papers. After downloading the 2009 Memo, Mr. Collins edited the 2009 Memo, which included deleting both the date on the memo and information that was not relevant to the questions of the inspectors. Collins made additional changes to the 2009 Memo the following morning (as modified, the "2019 Memo").

9. Collins and other members of the engagement team for the Audit met with the Board's inspectors during the morning of April 4, 2019. During that meeting, another member of the engagement team used the 2019 Memo to answer questions from the inspectors related to transfer pricing. At some point during that meeting, the other engagement team member provided the 2019 Memo to the inspectors.

10. The inspectors asked what the document was and why it was not dated. Collins responded that the document was from the "2010 audit." Collins did not inform the inspectors that the 2019 Memo was, in fact, prepared the previous day and finalized earlier that same morning, April 4, 2019. Likewise, he did not explain to the inspectors that the 2019 Memo was based on a 2009 work paper, not a 2010 work paper.

11. His decision to tell the inspectors that the document was from 2010, and not from 2009, was intentional. Collins knew that information PwC sent to the Board's inspectors in advance of Inspection field work stated that Collins started working on the Issuer A audit in 2010, and Collins thought it would raise questions if he identified the document as predating his work on the Audit.

12. After the meeting at which Collins provided the inspectors the misleading information about the 2019 Memo, the inspectors asked the Audit engagement partner to provide the original memo from the archived 2010 work papers. The engagement partner asked Collins to send a copy of the original work paper to the engagement partner.

13. Collins understood that the engagement partner would provide that document to the inspectors. Collins went back into the archived 2009 work papers, downloaded a copy of the 2009 Memo, and changed the date on the memo from 2009 to 2010, i.e., to a date that was consistent with his misrepresentation to the Board's inspectors earlier that morning. Collins then sent that document ("Purported 2010 Memo") to the engagement partner. And the engagement partner provided the Purported 2010 Memo to the Board's inspectors.

14. At no time did Collins advise the inspectors that the Purported 2010 Memo was really from the 2009 work papers and that Collins had changed the date on that document on April 4, 2019.

15. By his statements, actions, and omissions, Collins violated his duty to cooperate with the Board's Inspection of the Audit.[6]

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Collins is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[7] and

B. After one year from the date of this Order, Collins may file a petition, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm.

ORDER INSTITUTING DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDINGS, MAKING FINDINGS, AND IMPOSING SANCTIONS In the Matter of Liggett & Webb, P.A., James Howard Liggett, CPA, and Derek Martin Webb, CPA, Respondents.	PCAOB Release No. 105-2020-010 August 25, 2020

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is imposing sanctions upon Liggett & Webb, P.A. ("L&W" or "Firm"), James Howard Liggett, CPA ("Liggett"), and Derek Martin Webb, CPA ("Webb") (collectively, "Respondents"). The Board is:

(1) censuring L&W and imposing a $20,000 civil money penalty on the Firm;

(2) barring Liggett from being associated with a registered public accounting firm,[1] limiting Liggett's activities in connection with any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), for an additional period of one year following the termination of the bar, and imposing a $20,000 civil money penalty on Liggett; and

(3) limiting Webb's activities in connection with any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act, for a period of one year and imposing a $10,000 civil money penalty on Webb.

The Board is imposing these sanctions based on its findings that Respondents violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the audits of the financial statements of Issuer A for the years ended March 31, 2016 and March 31, 2017 (the "Audits").

[1] Liggett may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act") and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have submitted Offers of Settlement ("Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to the entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), as set forth below.[2]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[3]

A. Respondents

1. Liggett & Webb, P.A. is a professional association organized under the laws of the State of Florida, and headquartered in Boynton Beach, Florida. The Firm is licensed in Florida (License No. AD63352), Georgia (License No. ACF006411), and New York (License No. 101655). The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

2. James Howard Liggett is a certified public accountant licensed by the New Jersey State Board of Accountancy (License No. 20CC02486800) and the New York

[2] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[3] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

State Board of Accountancy (License No. 081585). At all relevant times, Liggett was an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

3. Derek Martin Webb is a certified public accountant licensed by the Florida State Board of Accountancy (License No. AC0030565). At all relevant times, Webb was an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Summary

4. This matter concerns Liggett's violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Audits. Liggett failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, and failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence concerning, among other things, transactions between Issuer A and an undisclosed related party ("Distributor").

5. This matter also concerns Webb's violations of AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review, while serving as the engagement quality review ("EQR") partner for the Audits.[4] During his EQR, Webb failed to properly evaluate, with due professional care, significant judgments made by Liggett and the engagement team concerning the transactions with Distributor.

6. This matter also concerns the Firm's violations of PCAOB rules and quality control standards by failing to establish quality control policies and procedures sufficient to provide it with reasonable assurance that its personnel would comply with applicable professional standards and the Firm's standards of quality.

[4] As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. See Reorganization of PCAOB Auditing Standards and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards and Rules, PCAOB Release No. 2015-002 (Mar. 31, 2015); see also PCAOB Auditing Standards Reorganized and Pre-Reorganized Numbering (January 2017). While Respondents' conduct occurred both before and after the reorganization, the reorganized standards are cited herein for purposes of clarity. With the exception of references to the reorganized numbering, all references to PCAOB rules and standards in this Order are to the versions of those rules and standards in effect at the time of audits discussed herein.

C. Respondents Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the Audits

7. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[5] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on the financial statements of a company only when the auditor has formed such an opinion on the basis of an audit performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[6]

8. PCAOB standards require that an auditor exercise due professional care in planning and performing an audit.[7] Due professional care requires that the auditor exercise professional skepticism, which is an attitude that includes a questioning mind and a critical assessment of audit evidence.[8]

9. Auditors are required to plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the opinion expressed in the auditor's report, including obtaining reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement, whether caused by error or fraud.[9] Auditors must design and implement audit responses that address the identified and assessed risks of material misstatement.[10] In designing the audit procedures to be performed, the auditor should obtain more persuasive audit evidence the higher the auditor's assessment of risk.[11] Auditors are required to evaluate the results of the audit to determine whether the audit evidence obtained is sufficient and appropriate to support the opinion to be expressed in the auditor's report.[12]

10. PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's quality control standards.[13] PCAOB standards require a registered public accounting firm to establish policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements and the firm's standards of quality.[14]

11. As detailed below, Respondents failed to comply with the aforementioned rules and standards, among others, in connection with the Audits.

1. Background

12. Issuer A's public filings disclosed that it operated an India-based mobile electronic wallet service used to pay for goods and services from a mobile phone. During the 2016 and 2017 fiscal years, Issuer A's business included purchasing mobile phone minutes at wholesale rates and reselling the minutes to distributors. Issuer A required the majority of its distributors to pay an advance from which Issuer A would draw down as the distributor purchased phone minutes. For a small minority of distributors, Issuer A sold mobile phone minutes on credit.

13. L&W served as the external auditor of Issuer A for the Audits. Liggett was the engagement partner for the Audits and Webb was the EQR partner. Liggett authorized the Firm's issuance of audit reports dated August 19, 2016 and July 6, 2017, expressing unqualified audit opinions. The reports were included with Issuer A's Forms 10-K filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission on August 19, 2016 and July 6, 2017, respectively.

14. Just prior to Issuer A's March 31, 2016 fiscal year-end, Issuer A purportedly sold approximately $4.6 million of mobile phone minutes to Distributor on credit, resulting in a $4.6 million receivable at year-end (the "Distributor Receivable"). As of March 31, 2016, the Distributor Receivable made up ninety-three percent of Issuer A's accounts receivable, fifty-four percent of its total current assets, and fifteen percent of the company's total assets. The Distributor Receivable also drove a 622 percent increase in Issuer A's receivable balance from year-end 2015.

15. Two months after Issuer A's fiscal 2016 year-end, during L&W's audit of Issuer A's 2016 financial statements, and while the Distributor Receivable was still outstanding, Issuer A management emailed Liggett and another member of the engagement team to inform them of Issuer A's intent to acquire Distributor "in the next two weeks." Attached to the email was a draft memorandum concerning the accounting for the proposed acquisition. Embedded in the draft memorandum attachment was a draft acquisition agreement between Issuer A and Distributor, as well as other supporting documents. The draft acquisition agreement identified the owners of Distributor as family members of, and businesses controlled by, managers and directors of Issuer A's Indian operations. Liggett did not review the draft acquisition agreement.

16. Issuer A's acquisition of Distributor closed on July 20, 2016 (the "Acquisition"). Under the terms of the Acquisition, Issuer A, among other things, was to receive more than five percent of Issuer A stock purportedly owned by Distributor in exchange for forgiveness of the outstanding Distributor Receivable.

17. In November 2016, as part of L&W's review of Issuer A's second quarter financial statements, Issuer A management provided Liggett and other members of the L&W engagement team with a revised memorandum describing the company's accounting for the Acquisition. Embedded in the updated memorandum was a copy of the executed acquisition agreement. Liggett failed to review the executed acquisition agreement either during the second quarter review or the 2017 fiscal year-end audit.

2. Liggett Failed to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Evidence Concerning the Distributor Receivable During the 2016 Audit

18. During the 2016 audit, Liggett identified a fraud risk related to management recording fictitious receivables and also identified a significant risk of "overstatement" for Issuer A's accounts receivable balance, but failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, when performing audit procedures over that account.[15] He failed to gather sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether the Distributor Receivable was properly valued.[16] Although Liggett understood while conducting the 2016 audit that the Distributor Receivable remained unpaid months after the fiscal 2016 year-end and that Issuer A planned to acquire Distributor in order to settle the Distributor Receivable, Liggett failed to read the draft acquisition agreement or inquire as to the status of the acquisition at any point during the 2016 audit.

19. In addition, although the Distributor Receivable was a significant unusual transaction due to its size and nature, Liggett failed to perform sufficient procedures in evaluating the receivable.[17] For example, Liggett failed to review the documentation underlying the 2016 sales to Distributor and he failed to evaluate Distributor's financial capability with respect to its obligations to repay the Distributor Receivable. He also failed to evaluate whether Issuer A's proffered business purpose for the sales to Distributor indicated that Issuer A might be engaged in fraudulent financial reporting or concealing the misappropriation of assets.[18]

20. Finally, Liggett failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether related parties and relationships and transactions with related parties, including the Distributor Receivable, were properly identified, accounted for, and disclosed in the financial statements.[19] Specifically, Liggett identified that Distributor shared a similar company name with another company disclosed by Issuer A in its public filings as wholly owned by, and holding Issuer A shares on behalf of, a beneficial owner of greater than 5 percent of Issuer A stock. Liggett also understood, based on management representations during the 2016 audit, that Distributor purportedly owned more than 5 percent of Issuer A's stock. Despite this information, Liggett failed to perform procedures, beyond inquiry of management, to determine whether the Distributor Receivable was properly presented and disclosed in the financial statements for the period ended March 31, 2016 as a related party transaction.[20]

3. Liggett Failed to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Evidence Concerning the Acquisition During the 2017 Audit

21. During the 2017 audit, Liggett failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, and failed to gather sufficient appropriate audit evidence concerning the Acquisition.[21] Although Liggett received a memorandum from Issuer A management detailing the company's accounting for the Acquisition, in which a copy of the executed acquisition agreement was embedded, Liggett neither retained the memorandum in the audit work papers nor reviewed the executed agreement. He failed to perform any other procedures to test the Acquisition.

22. Although the Acquisition was a significant transaction outside the normal course of Issuer A's business, Liggett failed to perform the required procedures for significant unusual transactions.[22] He failed to review the documentation underlying the Acquisition and he failed to evaluate Distributor's financial capability with respect to its obligations under the acquisition agreement. For instance, Liggett and the engagement team failed to verify that Distributor actually held the shares of Issuer A stock that it was supposed to return to Issuer A in exchange for forgiveness of the Distributor Receivable. He also failed to evaluate whether Issuer A's proffered business purpose for the Acquisition indicated that Issuer A might be engaged in fraudulent financial reporting or concealing the misappropriation of assets.

23. Finally, Liggett failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether related parties and relationships and transactions with related parties, including the Acquisition, were properly identified, accounted for, and disclosed in the financial statements.[23] Similar to the 2016 audit, Liggett was aware of the same information indicating Distributor might be a related party. Yet Liggett again failed to perform procedures, beyond management inquiry, to determine whether the Acquisition was, in fact, a related party transaction.[24]

4. Webb Failed to Perform His Engagement Quality Reviews for the Audits with Due Professional Care

24. An EQR is required for all audits conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards.[25] The standards provide that a firm may grant permission to an audit client to use the firm's audit report only after the EQR partner provides concurring approval of issuance of the report.[26]

[26] See id. at .13.

25. The EQR partner is responsible for evaluating the significant judgments made by the engagement team and the related conclusions reached in forming the overall conclusion on the engagement and in preparing the engagement report, if a report is to be issued.[27] In an audit, the EQR partner is responsible for evaluating the engagement team's responses to significant risks identified by the team and the EQR partner.[28] The EQR partner should also evaluate whether the documentation that he or she reviewed when performing such procedures supports the conclusions reached by the engagement team with respect to the matters reviewed.[29] The EQR partner must perform his or her responsibilities with due professional care, including professional skepticism.[30] The documentation of an EQR should contain sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement, to understand the procedures performed by the EQR partner, including the documents reviewed by the EQR partner.[31]

26. During the 2016 audit, the engagement team identified a fraud risk related to management recording fictitious receivables and also identified a significant risk of "overstatement" for Issuer A's accounts receivable.[32] The team's planned audit response to these significant risks was to test subsequent receipts, send out confirmations, and ascertain the adequacy of the allowance for bad debts.

27. While serving as the EQR partner for the 2016 audit, Webb failed to adequately evaluate the engagement team's response to the significant risks identified by the engagement team related to Issuer A's accounts receivable. Specifically, Webb failed to obtain an understanding of what, if any, procedures had been performed by the engagement team to evaluate the adequacy of the allowance for bad debts with respect to the Distributor Receivable.

[32] See AS 2110.71b, Identifying and Assessing Risks of Material Misstatement ("fraud risk is a significant risk").

28. In addition, the work papers did not include any documentation of the engagement team's consideration of whether an allowance for bad debt was necessary. Webb failed to adequately evaluate whether the engagement documentation he reviewed indicated that the engagement team responded appropriately to the significant risks they had identified relating to Issuer A's accounts receivable and supported the conclusions reached by the engagement team with respect to those risks.[33]

29. During the 2017 audit, the engagement team identified a significant risk concerning the equity account. The Acquisition materially affected Issuer A's equity account by purportedly requiring Distributor to transfer more than five percent of Issuer A stock back to Issuer A.

30. While serving as the EQR partner for the 2017 audit, Webb failed to adequately evaluate the engagement team's response to the significant risk related to the equity account. Specifically, he failed to obtain an understanding of what procedures were performed by the engagement team to test the Acquisition, including whether the engagement team had obtained an understanding of the business purpose of the transaction.

31. In addition, the work papers did not contain adequate documentation of audit procedures performed by the engagement team regarding the Acquisition. Webb therefore failed to adequately evaluate whether the engagement documentation he reviewed indicated that the engagement team responded appropriately to the significant risk they had identified relating to Issuer A's equity account and supported the conclusions reached by the engagement team with respect to that risk.[34]

32. During both of the Audits, Webb also failed to properly document his EQR because he did not identify any of the specific documents he reviewed.[35] As such, Webb's documentation failed to comply with the requirements of AS 1220.[36]

5. The Firm Violated PCAOB Standards Related to Quality Control

33. Throughout the relevant time period, the Firm violated PCAOB quality control standards because it failed to maintain an adequate system of quality control. As described above, the Firm failed to have in place adequate policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by its engagement personnel met applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the Firm's standards of quality.[37] Among other things, the Firm's deficient system of quality control resulted in Firm personnel repeatedly failing to perform procedures necessary to comply with PCAOB standards during the Audits such as failing to: (i) exercise due professional care; (ii) perform the required procedures for significant unusual transactions; and (iii) obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether related parties and relationships and transactions with related parties, including the Acquisition, were properly identified, accounted for, and disclosed in the financial statements.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Liggett & Webb, P.A. is hereby censured.

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), James Howard Liggett is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).[38]

C. Pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), James Howard Liggett may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order.

D. If James Howard Liggett is permitted to associate once again with a registered public accounting firm, pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(C) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(3), for one year following the termination of the bar ordered in paragraph B, his role in any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(a)(v), shall be restricted as follows: James Howard Liggett shall not (1) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement partner," as that term is used in the Board's AS 1201, Supervision of the Audit Engagement; (2) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement quality reviewer," as that term is used in the Board's AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review; (3) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, in any role that is equivalent to engagement partner or engagement quality reviewer, but differently denominated (such as "lead partner," "practitioner-in-charge," or "concurring partner"); (4) exercise authority, or supervise the work of another person exercising authority, either to sign a registered public accounting firm's name to an audit report, or to consent to the use of a previously issued audit report, for any issuer, broker, or dealer; or (5) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as the "other auditor," or "another auditor," as those terms are used in the Board's AS 1205, Part of the Audit Performed by Other Independent Auditors;

E. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(C) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(3), for a period of one year from the date of this Order, Derek Martin Webb's role in any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(a)(v), shall be restricted as follows: Derek Martin Webb shall not (1) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement partner," as that term is used in the Board's AS 1201, Supervision of the Audit Engagement; (2) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement quality reviewer," as that term is used in the Board's AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review; (3) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, in any role that is equivalent to engagement partner or engagement quality reviewer, but differently denominated (such as "lead partner," "practitioner-in-charge," or "concurring partner"); (4) exercise authority, or supervise the work of another person exercising authority, either to sign a registered public accounting firm's name to an audit report, or to consent to the use of a previously issued audit report, for any issuer, broker, or dealer; or (5) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as the "other auditor," or "another auditor," as those terms are used in the Board's AS 1205, Part of the Audit Performed by Other Independent Auditors;

F. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), the Board imposes the following civil money penalties:

1. Liggett & Webb, P.A., $20,000;

3. Derek Martin Webb, $10,000.

All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of these civil money penalties will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Respondents shall pay these civil money penalties within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Controller, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the entity or person as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006. By consenting to this Order, James Howard Liggett acknowledges that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may alone be grounds to deny any petition, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm.

ORDER INSTITUTING DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDINGS, MAKING FINDINGS, AND IMPOSING SANCTIONS

In the Matter of Jones Simkins LLC, Michael C. Kidman, CPA, and Mark E. Low, CPA,

Respondents.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2020-011

September 15, 2020

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is imposing sanctions upon Jones Simkins LLC ("JS" or the "Firm"), Michael C. Kidman ("Kidman"), and Mark E. Low ("Low") (collectively, "Respondents"). The Board is:

(1) revoking the registration of JS,[1] a registered public accounting firm, and, in the event that the Board grants any future registration application by the Firm, requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial measures, as described in Section IV of this Order, and imposing a $10,000 civil money penalty on JS;

(2) barring Kidman from being associated with a registered public accounting firm,[2] imposing a $10,000 civil money penalty on Kidman, and requiring Kidman to complete forty (40) additional hours of continuing professional education ("CPE") before filing any petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm; and

(3) barring Low from being associated with a registered public accounting firm,[3] imposing a $10,000 civil money penalty on Low, and requiring Low to complete forty (40) additional hours of CPE before filing any petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm.

[2] Kidman may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order.

[3] Low may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that: (a) the Firm violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards; (b) Kidman violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the integrated audits of an issuer, and (c) Low violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the integrated audits of an issuer.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have submitted Offers of Settlement ("Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to the entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[4]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds[5] that:

[4] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[5] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

A. Respondents

1. Jones Simkins LLC is a limited liability company organized under the laws of the State of Utah, and headquartered in Logan, Utah. The Firm is licensed by the Utah Board of Accountancy (Lic. No. 112668-2603). On April 2, 2013, the Firm succeeded to the registration status of its predecessor firm, Jones Simkins, P.C., which registered with the Board on October 16, 2003, pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

2. Michael C. Kidman is a certified public accountant licensed by the Utah Board of Accountancy (Lic. No. 148725-2601). At all relevant times, Mr. Kidman was an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

3. Mark E. Low is a certified public accountant licensed by the Utah Board of Accountancy (Lic. No. 272099-2601). At all relevant times, Mr. Low was an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Issuer

4. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, a Utah corporation. Issuer A's public filings disclosed that, at all relevant times, it was in the business of providing medical devices that were predominantly proprietary, disposable and for hospital use. Its common stock was registered, at all relevant times under Section 12(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act"). It was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

5. This matter concerns Respondents' violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the integrated audits of Issuer A, for the years ending December 31, 2015 through December 31, 2017. Specifically, Kidman and Low, while serving as engagement partners, repeatedly violated PCAOB rules and standards by failing: (a) in the 2015 through 2017 internal control over financial reporting ("ICFR") audits, to adequately evaluate whether Issuer A's ICFR was effective; and (b) in the 2015 and 2016 financial statement audits, to perform sufficient procedures regarding inventory.

6. In the audit reports for each of the three integrated audits of Issuer A, the Firm expressed an unqualified audit opinion on Issuer A's financial statements and Issuer A's ICFR. These audit reports stated that the Firm's integrated audit was conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards, that the company's financial statements were fairly presented in all material respects in conformity with U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles ("GAAP"), and that the company maintained effective ICFR based on criteria established in Internal Control – Integrated Framework (1992) issued by the Committee of Sponsoring Organizations of the Treadway Commission (COSO). As detailed below, Kidman and Low failed to perform sufficient audit procedures in connection with the issuance of these audit reports in violation of PCAOB rules and auditing standards.

7. Additionally, this matter concerns Kidman and Low's violations of AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review,[6] while serving as the engagement quality review ("EQR") partner for the Firm's audits of Issuer A. Kidman was the EQR partner for Issuer A's FY 2015 integrated audit, and Low was the EQR partner for Issuer A's FY 2016 and 2017 integrated audits. In performing these EQRs, Kidman and Low provided their concurring approvals of issuance despite being aware of significant engagement deficiencies. As a consequence, Kidman and Low failed to perform their reviews of the Firm's audits of Issuer A with due professional care.

8. This matter also concerns the Firm's violations of PCAOB rules and quality control standards in connection with the Firm's 2015 through 2017 audits, including after the PCAOB staff brought ICFR and other auditing concerns to the Firm's attention during two inspections. In connection with these audits, the Firm failed to: (a) maintain a system of quality control sufficient to give the Firm reasonable assurance that engagement teams performed issuer audits and reviews in accordance with applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and PCAOB auditing standards related to ICFR, and (b) establish policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its quality control policies and procedures were suitably designed and were being effectively applied.

D. Background

9. JS was Issuer A's external auditor for multiple years, including for the years ending December 31, 2015 through December 31, 2017. Low was the engagement partner for the integrated audit of Issuer A for the year ending December 31, 2015 and the EQR partner for the integrated audits for the years ending December 31, 2016 through 2017. Kidman was the engagement partner for the integrated audits of Issuer A for the years ending December 31, 2016 through 2017 and the EQR partner for the integrated audit of Issuer A for the year ending December 31, 2015.

[6] All references to PCAOB rules and standards are to the versions of those rules and standards in effect at the time of the relevant audits. As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. See Reorganization of PCAOB Auditing Standards and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards and Rules, PCAOB Release No. 2015-002 (Mar. 31, 2015); see also PCAOB Auditing Standards Reorganized and Pre-Reorganized Numbering (January 2017). The reorganization did not impose additional requirements on auditors or change substantively the requirements of PCAOB standards. While Respondents' conduct occurred both before and after the reorganization, the reorganized standards are cited herein for purposes of clarity.

10. In each of Issuer A's Forms 10-K filed with the Commission for the 2015 through 2017 audits, management included its annual ICFR report pursuant to Section 404(a) of the Act and represented that it had assessed the effectiveness of the company's ICFR under the criteria set forth by the 1992 COSO framework.

11. As Kidman and Low were aware during the 2015 through 2017 audits, Issuer A's internal control was highly dependent on the company's enterprise resource planning ("ERP") system. The ERP system included a general ledger module, which collected, stored, and processed all accounting data used to prepare Issuer A's financial statements. The ERP system was also used for operational processes, including inventory management. Indeed, virtually all of Issuer A's key controls were either reliant on data and reports generated by the ERP system or directly performed by the ERP system as automated controls.

12. Kidman and Low knew the ERP system presented an additional risk to Issuer A's ICFR because management had the ability to modify the application source code. Specifically, they knew that management had the ability to change the underlying rules and specifications that controlled how the ERP system functioned. A modification of the source code could impact the effectiveness of automated controls or the accuracy and completeness of system-generated data and reports.

13. In each of the 2015 through 2017 integrated audits, the engagement team tested the effectiveness of information technology general controls ("ITGCs") for the ERP system. ITGCs apply to a company's IT environment and help ensure the integrity of programs, data files, and IT operations. Even though the engagement team considered the ERP system to be highly important to Issuer A's ICFR, they determined that it was not necessary for a person with specialized IT skill or knowledge to participate in the ITGC testing or any other area of the audit.

i. Prior to the 2015 Audit, Respondents Received Notice from PCAOB Inspection of Potential Issues Specific to the Audit of Issuer A

14. In connection with an October 2015 inspection of the Firm, the PCAOB inspection staff brought to the Firm's attention apparent failures by the engagement team concerning the audit of Issuer A's 2014 financial statements and ICFR. Specifically, the inspection staff informed the Firm that it had failed to comply with PCAOB standards because its audit procedures to evaluate certain ITGCs for the ERP system were limited to inquiry only. Inspection staff also informed the Firm that it had failed to comply with PCAOB standards because it had not sufficiently evaluated the reliability of Issuer A's inventory cycle count process.[7]

15. During the 2015 inspection, the PCAOB inspection staff concluded that, because the Firm had not sufficiently evaluated the effectiveness of ITGCs in the ERP system, the Firm had no basis to conclude that cycle counts produced results substantially the same as a full inventory count. In October 2015, Low agreed with the inspection staff's finding that the engagement team relied on inquiry alone to test the ITGCs of the ERP system.

16. Despite being on notice that the Firm's 2014 ICFR audit failed to comply with PCAOB standards, the Firm did not modify its planned procedures for the 2015 integrated audit of Issuer A, which commenced in December 2015, approximately two months after the inspection.

17. As described below, the Firm failed to comply with PCAOB standards in connection with subsequent audits of Issuer A.

E. Kidman and Low Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the 2015 Through 2017 Audits of Issuer A

18. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[8] An auditor is in a position to express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements when the auditor has

[7] In contrast to a full physical inventory count, where a company counts all inventory items simultaneously, a cycle count process involves counting a small subset of inventory on a continuous basis so that each item of inventory is subjected to a count over a certain period. To conduct reliable cycle counts, a company must have reliable controls. Issuer A's cycle count process relied heavily on the ERP system, which managed the company's perpetual inventory records and tracked the results of each cycle count.

conducted an audit in accordance with PCAOB standards and concludes that the financial statements, taken as a whole, are presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework.[9] Among other things, PCAOB standards require an auditor to exercise due professional care, exercise professional skepticism, and plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the auditor's opinion.[10]

19. Section 404 of the Act requires company management to assess and report on the effectiveness of internal control. The Act also requires a company's independent auditor to attest, in certain circumstances, to management's disclosures regarding the effectiveness of internal control. Effective internal control provides reasonable assurance regarding the reliability of financial reporting and the preparation of the financial statements for external purposes.[11] However, a company's internal control cannot be considered effective if one or more material weaknesses in internal controls exist.[12]

20. PCAOB standards provide that, after forming an opinion on the effectiveness of the company's ICFR, the auditor should evaluate the presentation of the elements that management is required, under the SEC's rules, to present in its annual report on ICFR.[13] If the auditor determines that any required elements of management's annual report on ICFR are incomplete or improperly presented, the auditor should modify his or her report to include an explanatory paragraph describing the reasons for this determination.[14]

21. When using information produced by the company as audit evidence, the auditor should evaluate whether the information is sufficient and appropriate for purposes of the audit by both: (a) "[t]est[ing] the accuracy and completeness of the information, or test[ing] the controls over the accuracy and completeness of that information"; and (b) "[e]valuat[ing] whether the information is sufficiently precise and detailed for purposes of the audit."[15]

22. Further, while management representations are part of the evidential matter the auditor obtains, they are not a substitute for the application of those auditing procedures necessary to afford a reasonable basis for an opinion regarding the financial statements under audit.[16] If management representations are contradicted by other audit evidence, the auditor should investigate the circumstances and consider the reliability of the representation made and, based on the circumstances, consider whether his reliance on management's representations relating to other aspects of the financial statements is appropriate and justified.[17]

23. PCAOB standards also provide that, if an auditor is unable to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to have a reasonable basis to conclude about whether the financial statements as a whole are free of material misstatement, the auditor should express a qualified opinion or a disclaimer of opinion.[18]

24. PCAOB standards require that in circumstances when an issuer develops inventory controls or methods of determining inventories that make an annual physical count of each item unnecessary, the auditor must satisfy himself that the client's procedures or methods are sufficiently reliable to produce results substantially the same as those which would be obtained by a count of all items each year.[19]

25. As described below, Kidman and Low failed to comply with these PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the integrated audits of Issuer A.

i. Integrated Audit of Issuer A's 2015 Financial Statements

26. The Firm issued separate audit reports dated March 3, 2016, containing unqualified audit opinions on the 2015 financial statements and ICFR of Issuer A. Low, as the engagement partner, authorized the Firm's issuance of the audit reports, and Kidman, as the EQR partner, provided concurring approval of issuance of the audit reports. The audit reports were included in Issuer A's Form 10-K filed with the Commission on March 10, 2016.

27. As part of the integrated audit, Low identified 36 relevant ITGCs for the ERP system. In testing 33 of these ITGCs for effectiveness, Low failed to perform any procedures other than inquiries of management.[20] Given the critical importance of the ERP system, Low thereby failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for his opinion on the effectiveness of Issuer A's ICFR.[21]

28. Issuer A's 2015 financial statements reported inventories of $4.2 million at year-end, approximately 7% of total assets, and income before taxes of $15.5 million. Low performed procedures regarding these inventories by observing Issuer A perform four inventory cycle counts near year-end. In total, these cycle counts comprised approximately $100,000 of inventory, or 3% of the account balance subject to audit. These procedures were inadequate, however, because Low failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support reliance on controls. [22]

29. First, Low failed to reasonably satisfy himself that Issuer A's cycle counts produced results substantially the same as a full count of all inventory items. Indeed, he relied on the effectiveness of ITGCs within the ERP system to produce accurate and complete cycle count information during the entire year, but failed to sufficiently test these controls by only performing inquiries of management.[23]

30. Second, Low and the engagement team failed to select a sample of inventory items that was representative of the entire inventory population.[24] Their audit sample consisted only of a small subset of items pre-selected by the company for the cycle counts they observed. This approach excluded the majority of Issuer A's inventory from an opportunity to be selected for testing and did not provide a basis for extrapolation of the results to the remaining inventory items. Moreover, Low failed to adequately consider whether the audit sample was appropriate in these circumstances, such as by testing the logic of the queries or the parameters within the ERP system used to make the cycle count selections.[25]

31. Low also failed to adequately evaluate the presentation of management's annual ICFR report filed in Issuer A's Form 10-K, which stated that the company had maintained effective ICFR as of December 31, 2015 under the 1992 COSO framework.[26] Other than obtaining management representations, Low failed to obtain any evidence that management had, in fact, performed an evaluation of the effectiveness of the company's ICFR as of December 31, 2015 under the 1992 COSO framework.[27] Indeed, the audit evidence obtained by Low suggested that management had not evaluated Issuer A's ICFR based on any established control framework.[28]

ii. Integrated Audit of Issuer A's 2016 Financial Statements

32. The Firm issued separate audit reports dated March 6, 2017, containing unqualified audit opinions on the 2016 financial statements and ICFR of Issuer A. Kidman, as the engagement partner, authorized the Firm's issuance of the audit reports. Low, as the EQR partner, provided concurring approval of issuance of the audit reports. The audit reports were included in Issuer A's Form 10-K filed with the Commission on March 8, 2017.

33. Kidman failed to perform the 2016 integrated audit in accordance with PCAOB standards. Indeed, at the time he authorized the issuance of the Firm's audit reports, Kidman knew that he and the Firm had not yet fully remediated the audit violations identified by the PCAOB more than a year earlier. Further, although Kidman had taken steps in response to the PCAOB inspection to alter the nature, timing, and extent of the Firm's audit procedures, these procedures still failed to comply with PCAOB auditing standards.

34. Kidman failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for their opinion on the effectiveness of Issuer A's ICFR.[29] Specifically, he failed to adequately evaluate the effectiveness of the ERP system's ITGC over change management.[30] Kidman evaluated a control that the CEO reviewed a log of all changes to the ERP system's source code on a weekly basis. Kidman and the engagement team obtained oral representations from Issuer A's CEO and IT Programmer that (a) the CEO performed his reviews as designed, and (b) no changes were made to the source code in 2016 that affected the general ledger. Although not retained in the audit documentation, Kidman and the engagement team also obtained a handwritten "change log" that purportedly listed all modifications made to the ERP system source code during 2016, but as they were aware, this did not provide reliable audit evidence. Indeed, other than obtaining oral representations from the IT Programmer, Kidman failed to perform any procedures, such as directly inspecting the ERP system's source code, to test the accuracy or completeness of the change log, or the controls over the accuracy and completeness of the change log.[31]

35. Issuer A's financial statements reported inventories of $4.5 million at year-end, approximately 6% of total assets, and income before taxes of $16.4 million. Kidman and the engagement team tested these inventories by observing Issuer A perform four inventory cycle counts around year-end. In total, these cycle counts comprised approximately $150,000 of inventory in total, or 4% of the account balance subject to audit. These procedures were inadequate, however, because Kidman failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support reliance on controls.

36. First, Kidman failed to reasonably satisfy himself that Issuer A's cycle counts produced results substantially the same as a full count of all inventory items. Similar to the Firm's prior audits of Issuer A, he relied on the effectiveness of the ERP system's change management control to produce accurate and complete cycle count information during the entire year, but failed to sufficiently test this control by only performing inquiries of management. [32]

37. Second, Kidman failed to select a sample of inventory items that was representative of the entire inventory population.[33] His audit sample once again consisted only of a small subset of items pre-selected by the company for the cycle counts they observed. Moreover, Kidman failed to adequately consider whether this sample was appropriate, such as by testing the logic of the queries or the parameters used within the ERP system to make the cycle count selections.[34]

38. Kidman also failed to adequately evaluate the presentation of management's annual ICFR report filed in Issuer A's Form 10-K, which stated that the company had maintained effective ICFR as of December 31, 2016 under the 1992 COSO framework.[35] Other than obtaining management representations, Kidman failed to obtain any evidence that management had, in fact, performed an evaluation of the effectiveness of the company's ICFR under the 1992 COSO framework.[36] Indeed, the audit evidence obtained by Kidman suggested that management had not evaluated Issuer A's ICFR based on any established control framework.[37]

iii. Prior to the 2017 Audit, Respondents Received a Second Notice from PCAOB Inspection of Potential Issues Specific to the Audit of Issuer A

39. In connection with a July 2017 inspection of the Firm, the PCAOB inspection staff brought to the Firm's attention apparent failures by the engagement team for the 2016 audit of Issuer A. These apparent failures were substantially identical to those identified during the 2015 PCAOB inspection.

40. Kidman represented to the inspection staff that he and the Firm would consider the inspection findings to improve their audit work and related documentation in the Firm's 2017 audit of Issuer A. Further, during the 2017 audit, Kidman represented that the Firm planned to fully implement the corrective action plan that he and the Firm had formulated in response to the 2015 inspection of the Firm's audit of Issuer A.

41. Notwithstanding these representations, Kidman failed to comply with the auditing standards in connection with the 2017 audit of Issuer A.

iv. Integrated Audit of Issuer A's 2017 Financial Statements

42. The Firm issued separate audit reports dated March 5, 2018, containing unqualified audit opinions on the 2017 financial statements and ICFR of Issuer A. Kidman authorized the Firm's issuance of the audit report, which stated that the Firm's audit was conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards. Low, as the EQR partner, provided concurring approval of issuance of the audit. The audit report was included in Issuer A's Form 10-K filed with the Commission on March 6, 2018.

43. Kidman failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for their opinion on the effectiveness of Issuer A's ICFR.[38] Specifically, he failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to evaluate the effectiveness of the ERP system's ITGC over change management.[39] Indeed, he performed substantially the same audit procedures as he did in connection with the 2016 audit, knowing they were deficient. Similar to the 2016 audit, Kidman evaluated the CEO's weekly review of the handwritten change log, which purportedly contained the IT Programmer's notes of all changes made to the ERP system's source code in 2017.[40] Although Kidman again obtained oral representations from management and obtained the change log, he was aware that the change log did not provide reliable audit evidence. Other than obtaining an oral representation from the IT programmer, Kidman once again failed to perform any procedures to test the accuracy or completeness of the change log, or the controls over the accuracy and completeness of the change log.[41]

[39] AS 2201.50, note.

[40] During the 2017 audit, Kidman evaluated the ERP system's inability to produce a report of application changes as a significant deficiency in Issuer A's ICFR. Notwithstanding his conclusion that this significant deficiency had a pervasive impact on the financial statements and that there were no compensating controls, Kidman concluded that it did not constitute a material weakness.

[41] See AS 1105.10; AS 2805.02.

44. Kidman also failed to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence to support their unqualified audit opinion on the effectiveness of Issuer A's ICFR.[42] Specifically, Kidman authorized the Firm to express an unqualified opinion even though he knew Issuer A did not maintain sufficient ICFR documentation to support an assessment under the 1992 COSO framework.[43] Not only did this appear to contradict management's annual report on ICFR in the 2017 Form 10-K, which stated that Issuer A maintained effective ICFR under the 1992 COSO framework, but Kidman also failed to evaluate whether the Firm should have modified its audit report as a result.

F. Kidman and Low Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with Their EQRs for the 2015 Through 2017 Audits of Issuer A

45. AS 1220 requires that an EQR be performed on all audits conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards.[44] AS 1220 also provides that a firm may grant permission to an audit client to use the firm's audit report only after an EQR partner provides concurring approval of issuance of the report.[45]

46. The EQR partner may provide concurring approval of issuance for an audit report only if, after performing with due professional care the review required by AS 1220, he or she is not aware of a significant engagement deficiency.[46] A significant engagement deficiency in an audit exists when: (1) the engagement team failed to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence in accordance with the standards of the PCAOB; (2) the engagement team reached an inappropriate overall conclusion on the subject matter of the engagement; (3) the engagement report is not appropriate in the circumstances; or (4) the firm is not independent of its client.[47]

[43] During the 2017 audit, Kidman identified a significant deficiency relating to Issuer A's "lack of COSO documentation," particularly for the risk assessment component under the 1992 COSO framework.

47. As detailed below, Kidman and Low violated AS 1220 by providing their concurring approval of issuance without performing an EQR for Issuer A's 2015 through 2017 audits with due professional care.

i. Kidman's Engagement Quality Review

48. During the 2015 audit, Kidman was aware that management override of controls was assessed as a fraud risk. At the time of performing his 2015 EQR, Kidman was also aware that the PCAOB inspectors had criticized the Firm's 2014 ICFR audit because the Firm had relied solely on management inquiry in performing parts of the ICFR audit, including the testing of certain ITGCs.

49. In addition, while performing the EQR, Kidman reviewed the 2015 ICFR audit work papers and learned that the 2015 engagement team had again relied solely on management inquiry in testing certain ITGCs and performed no other procedures. Kidman also was aware that, in light of the insufficient testing of ITGCs, the engagement team had improperly relied on the effectiveness of ITGCs as audit evidence in its substantive procedures over inventory.

50. As a result, Kidman was aware of significant engagement deficiencies regarding the testing of ITGCs and inventory during the 2015 audit.[48] Nevertheless, Kidman provided his concurring approval of issuance of the audit report without performing his review with due professional care in violation of AS 1220.

ii. Low's Engagement Quality Reviews

51. During the 2016 audit, Low was aware that management override of controls was assessed as a significant risk. While performing the 2016 EQR, Low reviewed audit work papers demonstrating that the engagement team had relied exclusively on management inquiries to evaluate the effectiveness of the ERP system's IT change management control. Low also evaluated the engagement team's judgment that Issuer A's lack of appropriate documentation for this control constituted a control deficiency, but did not rise to the level of a significant deficiency or material weakness. In addition, Low knew that the ERP system affected every account on Issuer A's financial statements, including inventory, and that the engagement team had not tested any compensating controls to mitigate the financial statement impact of the identified control deficiency.

52. As a result, Low was aware of significant engagement deficiencies regarding the testing of ITGCs and inventory during the 2016 audit.[49] Nevertheless, Low provided his concurring approval of issuance of the audit report without performing his review with due professional care in violation of AS 1220.

53. During the 2017 audit, Low was aware that management override of controls was assessed as a significant risk. At the time of performing his 2017 EQR, Low was aware that the PCAOB inspectors had criticized the Firm's 2016 ICFR audit because, similar to the 2015 inspection comments, the Firm had relied exclusively on management inquiries to evaluate the effectiveness of the ERP system's IT change management control. When Low reviewed the 2017 ICFR audit work papers, he became aware that the 2017 engagement team's procedures for evaluating the IT change management control had consisted exclusively of obtaining the change log and management inquiries.

54. During the 2017 audit, Low also reviewed the engagement team's evaluation of the severity of each identified control deficiency. The engagement team identified a significant deficiency due to the ERP system's inability to generate a report of changes made to the application source code. The engagement team's work papers concluded that the severity of this deficiency was mitigated by Issuer A's maintenance of the handwritten IT change log, but conceded that there was no way to ensure the completeness of that handwritten change log.

55. Thus, Low was aware of significant engagement deficiencies regarding the testing of ITGCs on the 2017 audit. Nevertheless, Low provided his concurring approval of issuance of the audit report without performing his review with due professional care in violation of AS 1220.

G. The Firm Violated PCAOB Quality Control Standards

56. PCAOB rules and standards require that a registered firm establish and maintain a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice.[50] "A firm's system of quality control encompasses the firm's organizational structure and the policies adopted and procedures established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance of complying with professional standards."[51] A firm's system of quality control should, among other things, include policies and procedures for engagement performance and monitoring.[52] A firm should establish policies and procedures to provide it with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality.[53] A firm should also establish policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its quality control policies and procedures are suitably designed and are being effectively applied.[54]

57. The PCAOB inspected the Firm's 2014 audit of Issuer A during its October 2015 inspection of the Firm. The PCAOB also inspected the Firm's 2016 audit of Issuer A during its July 2017 inspection of the Firm. During those inspections, the Board identified deficiencies related to the engagement team's testing of the design and operating effectiveness of controls over revenue, accounts receivable, and inventory, and the testing of the existence of inventory.

58. Despite knowing of significant engagement deficiencies regarding ICFR testing through the PCAOB inspections, the Firm failed to implement timely and necessary corrective action to address these problems in subsequent audits. As a result, from 2015 through 2017, the Firm violated PCAOB quality control rules and standards by failing to: (a) effectively implement policies and procedures to provide it with reasonable assurance that its engagement personnel would meet applicable professional standards; and (b) establish policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its quality control policies and procedures were suitably designed and were being effectively applied.[55]

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Marcum LLP,

Respondent.

September 24, 2020

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is: (1) censuring Marcum LLP ("Marcum," "Firm," or "Respondent"); (2) imposing a civil money penalty of $250,000 on Marcum; (3) prohibiting Marcum, for a period of three years from the date of this Order, from issuing an audit report for an issuer client with substantially all of its operations in the People's Republic of China; and (4) requiring Marcum to undertake a review of its quality control policies and procedures regarding initial acceptance of, and audits performed for, certain issuer clients.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Marcum violated PCAOB rules and auditing standards in connection with the audits of the financial statements of an issuer ("Issuer") for the years ended December 31, 2013 and 2014 ("Audits").

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Marcum pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Marcum has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over it and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Marcum consents to the entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[2]

A. Respondent

1. Marcum LLP is a New York limited liability partnership headquartered in Melville, New York. Marcum is licensed by the New York State Education Department (License No. 067839) and several other states. Marcum is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. Marcum served as the Issuer's independent auditor from April 2015 to November 2016.[3]

B. Other Relevant Entity

2. Marcum Bernstein & Pinchuk LLP ("MarcumBP") is a New York limited liability partnership headquartered in New York, New York. It was formed as a joint venture between Marcum and another registered firm. MarcumBP is licensed by the New York State Education Department (License No. 093038), the Texas State Board of Accountancy (License No. P05632), and the Nevada State Board of Accountancy (License No. PART-0888). MarcumBP is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. During the Audits, Marcum supervised MarcumBP personnel, who performed auditing procedures regarding the Issuer's China-based operations and transactions.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other persons or entities in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (A) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (B) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

[3] Marcum concurrently audited the Issuer's 2013 and 2014 financial statements, and later audited the 2015 financial statements. Marcum issued a single audit report addressing all three years, which was included in the Issuer's Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2015, filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission in November 2016.

C. Issuer

3. The Issuer was, at all relevant times, a Delaware corporation whose public filings disclosed that it developed and manufactured energy storage systems and related products. At all times relevant to this Order, (1) the Issuer's common stock was registered under Section 12(g) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, and (2) the Issuer was an "issuer" within the meaning of Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

4. In 2011, the Issuer became majority owned by a company organized under the laws of Hong Kong ("Controlling Shareholder"). The Issuer later announced plans to manufacture its products in mainland China, and began moving its manufacturing operations from the United States to China in 2012. By the end of 2013, the Issuer was operating primarily from China.

D. Summary

5. Marcum violated PCAOB rules and standards[4] during the Audits when it failed to perform appropriate procedures regarding significant unusual transactions engaged in by the Issuer. The transactions—between one of the Issuer's wholly-owned Chinese subsidiaries ("Subsidiary") and a Chinese purchasing agent ("Agent")—involved the Subsidiary's transfers of loan proceeds to the Agent as prepayments to buy equipment and materials that the Agent never delivered. The loans were obtained from Chinese lenders for the purpose of making these purchases. While the Agent returned a portion of the prepayments—some in unusual same-day, round-trip transfers—it did not return most of them.

6. There were fraud risks associated with these significant unusual transactions, particularly the risks that the Subsidiary may have defrauded its lenders by transferring loan proceeds to the Agent and that the Agent may have been an undisclosed related party. But Marcum's engagement team failed to respond appropriately to these fraud risks. First, the team improperly acquiesced to management's deletion of important language from confirmation requests designed to test the Subsidiary's compliance with loan agreements. Second, Issuer management further interfered in the confirmation process by directing a junior member of the engagement team to particular persons at each lender from whom he obtained the lenders' confirmation responses. Finally, the team failed to perform the audit procedures

[4] There have been changes to the numbering, organization, and, in some cases, content of PCAOB rules and standards since the 2013 and 2014 Issuer audits and the events described in this Order. This Order cites only those rules and standards that were in effect for the 2013 and 2014 audits. Current and archived versions of PCAOB standards are available at www.pcaobus.org/standards.

7. By failing to adequately respond to the known fraud risks, Marcum's engagement team breached its duty to perform the Audits with the due professional care and professional skepticism required by PCAOB standards. The team also failed to adequately understand the business rationale (or the lack thereof) for the significant unusual transactions and failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support Marcum's opinion on the Issuer's financial statements.

8. The Firm shares responsibility for the violations of PCAOB standards that occurred during the Audits.[5] As described below, during the client acceptance process, Marcum became aware of serious risks associated with this audit engagement, particularly relating to the Issuer's operations in China. The Firm assigned a new partner with no experience auditing companies with substantial operations in China, but failed to adequately oversee the performance of the Audits to obtain reasonable assurance that engagement personnel had appropriately responded to the fraud risks and complied with PCAOB standards.

E. The Predecessor Auditor Resigned

9. Marcum accepted the Issuer as a new audit client in April 2015. At that time, the Issuer was seriously delinquent in making its required filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission; its last periodic filing was a Form 10-Q for the 2013 third quarter.

10. When it approved client acceptance, Marcum knew that the Issuer's predecessor auditor had resigned in August 2014. In its resignation letter, the predecessor auditor advised the Issuer that it could not complete the 2013 audit, in part because it had been unable to perform sufficient procedures to determine the completeness of subsequent event transactions that may have occurred in China.

11. As disclosed in a September 2014 Form 8-K filing, the predecessor auditor also advised the Issuer that it had identified several material weaknesses in the Issuer's internal controls over financial reporting, including:

- A failure to implement adequate procedures and controls to ensure accurate and timely communication between the Issuer's subsidiaries in China and its

[5] See also John E. Klenner, PCAOB Release No. 105-2020-013 (Sept. 24, 2020); Helen R. Liao, PCAOB Release No. 105-2020-014 (Sept. 24, 2020).

U.S.-based accounting team, which had led to material misstatements identified by the predecessor auditor during the audit process;

- A significant turnover in executive management (four CEOs and three CFOs since 2012) and accounting personnel, which had led to a lack of segregation of duties throughout the company and resulted in a lack of controls to perform a timely review of transactions at an appropriate level of precision; and

- A failure to implement adequate procedures and controls to appropriately evaluate routine and non-routine transactions, which had led to a failure to detect material misstatements identified by the predecessor auditor during the audit process.

12. In March 2015, the Issuer filed a Form 8-K reporting that management had analyzed the internal control issues and material weaknesses identified by its predecessor auditor, and concluded that there was "factual support that such issues and weaknesses existed in 2013." As a result, the Issuer disclosed that investors should no longer rely on the financial statements in its Form 10-Q for the period ended September 30, 2013.

F. Background of the Significant Unusual Transactions in China

13. As Marcum knew, the Issuer's predecessor auditor had resigned due, in part, to its concerns about certain transactions that had occurred between the Subsidiary and its Agent in 2013 and 2014. During the Audits, Marcum's engagement team identified these and certain other transactions—described in the work papers as "significant cash disbursements to [the Agent]"—as significant unusual transactions.[6]

14. These transactions stemmed from an August 2013 cooperation agreement in which the Agent agreed to act as the Subsidiary's agent for purchasing equipment and raw materials.[7] The equipment and raw materials were needed to fulfill commitments made by another Chinese subsidiary of the Issuer in a 2012 agreement with two Chinese municipal governments. Under that agreement, the other subsidiary agreed to construct a production plant on land to which it had been granted use rights by one municipal government. Both municipal governments agreed to purchase electric-powered buses from that subsidiary, which was not in the business of manufacturing or selling electric buses.

[7] According to a client-prepared memo in Marcum's audit documentation, "[The Agent]'s business is that of being a purchasing agent for inventory, equipment, or anything else a company needs to purchase . . . . [The Agent] requires an upfront prepayment from clients to place orders for them . . . . [The Agent] then makes an arbitrage profit on the timing difference between when prepayment is received and when the money is actually paid out to vendors."

15. The significant unusual transactions involved the Subsidiary's transfers to the Agent of the proceeds of loans obtained purportedly to help finance the equipment and raw material purchases. The transactions took two forms: (a) prepayments to the Agent for goods that were never delivered; and (b) round-trip cash transfers. Details of these transactions were set forth in a client-prepared memo included in the audit documentation. Those details—which were known to the engagement team during the Audits—are summarized below.

i. Prepayments to the Agent for Goods Never Delivered

16. In 2013 and 2014, the Subsidiary issued purchase orders ("POs") to the Agent to procure production-line equipment and raw materials for the total purchase price of approximately $63 million.[8] To help finance those purchases, the Subsidiary borrowed $17.2 million from a Chinese rural credit cooperative ("Credit Co-op") in 2013 and $20.9 million from a local Chinese bank ("Bank") in 2014. The loan agreements with the Credit Co-op and the Bank (collectively, "Lenders") restricted the Subsidiary's use of the proceeds to equipment and raw material purchases, as well as construction costs. The Subsidiary submitted the POs to the Lenders to show that the proceeds were being used in accordance with the loan agreements.

17. When the Lenders released the borrowed funds, the Subsidiary transferred all of the loan proceeds to the Agent, purportedly as prepayments for the equipment and raw material purchases. In one instance, the prepayment was almost double what the Subsidiary then owed the Agent under the PO terms. The Agent, which never delivered any goods, eventually returned portions of the prepayments to the Subsidiary.

18. In the fall of 2014, the Subsidiary and the Agent cancelled their cooperation agreement and the POs. Although the Agent agreed to refund $27.5 million of prepayments (representing the balance of the loan proceeds purportedly still held by the Agent),[9] the Agent did not return any of that money. Instead, a Chinese company affiliated with the Issuer ("Affiliate")[10] agreed to settle the Agent's obligation to return the $27.5 million by delivering electric buses of equivalent value to the Subsidiary. Later, the Affiliate (an electric bus manufacturer) and the Controlling Shareholder delivered buses to the Subsidiary. The buses were then purchased by the two Chinese municipal governments under their agreement with the Issuer's other Chinese subsidiary.

ii. Same-Day, Round-Trip Cash Transfers

19. As described in Marcum's audit documentation, even after the cooperation agreement and the POs were cancelled, the Subsidiary continued to send loan proceeds to the Agent. In these transactions, however, the Agent did not retain the proceeds. Instead, it immediately returned them to the Subsidiary.

20. In September 2014, the Subsidiary secured a $7.3 million draw from its then existing line of credit with the Credit Co-op. The Subsidiary sent the borrowed funds from its Credit Co-op account to the Agent in two transfers ($6.6 million and $0.7 million). In each transaction, the Agent returned all of the money the same day, but not to the Subsidiary's account at the Credit Co-op. The Agent instead sent the money to the Subsidiary's account at a different financial institution.

21. Later that fall, the Subsidiary executed a new loan agreement with the Credit Co-op in the principal amount of $17.1 million. After the money was released and deposited into its Credit Co-op account, the Subsidiary sent the entire amount to the Agent, and the Agent returned the funds the same day to a Subsidiary account elsewhere.

iii. Management Representations about the Significant Unusual Transactions

22. During the Audits, management of the Issuer and the Controlling Shareholder made certain representations to Marcum's engagement team about the purported business rationale for the significant unusual transactions. Management represented that the POs had been submitted to the Lenders in order to secure release of the borrowed funds, and that the funds (including those round-tripped back to the Subsidiary) were transferred to the Agent to show the Lenders that the proceeds were being used in accordance with the loan agreements.

[10] The Issuer and the Affiliate were under common control of the Controlling Shareholder, which held a majority of the Issuer's shares and wholly owned the Affiliate. The Issuer disclosed the Affiliate and the Controlling Shareholder as related parties in its Form 10-K. See FASB Accounting Standards Codification ("ASC") 850-10-20, Related Party Disclosures (glossary definitions of "affiliate," "control," and "related parties").

23. However, management also represented that the transfers of borrowed funds to the Agent were mere formalities. According to management, the Lenders did not care whether the Subsidiary procured from the Agent or some other party, as long as the loan proceeds were used to purchase the equipment and raw materials specified in the POs and the loan agreements (management represented that the goods were eventually purchased from other sources for a better price). In addition, management represented that the Agent was not a related party and that the transactions with the Agent did not have to be disclosed as related party transactions in the Issuer's financial statements.

G. Marcum Violated PCAOB Standards in Connection with the Audits

i. Relevant Provisions of PCAOB Standards

24. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[11] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements only when the auditor has formed such an opinion on the basis of an audit performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[12] Among other things, PCAOB standards require the auditor to plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for his or her opinion on the financial statements.[13]

25. PCAOB standards also require the auditor to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, in planning and performing the audit.[14] Because of the characteristics of fraud, the auditor's exercise of professional skepticism is important when considering fraud risks,[15] including fraud risks associated with significant unusual transactions.

26. Under PCAOB standards, Marcum was required to gain an understanding of the business rationale for the significant unusual transactions between the Subsidiary and the Agent.[16] In gaining that understanding, the standards set forth several factors requiring consideration, including whether the form of the transactions was overly complex and whether the transactions involved previously unidentified related parties.[17]

27. PCAOB standards also required Marcum to evaluate whether the business rationale (or the lack thereof) for the significant unusual transactions suggested that they may have been entered into to engage in, among other things, fraudulent financial reporting.[18] Misstatements arising from fraudulent financial reporting involve intentional misstatements or omissions of amounts or disclosures in financial statements.[19] The engagement partner knew that material misstatements due to fraud could have arisen from the significant unusual transactions if, among other things, (1) the Subsidiary had defrauded its Lenders through those transactions, or (2) the Agent was a previously unidentified related party.

28. As described below, Marcum violated these and other PCAOB standards in performing the Audits.

ii. Marcum Knew that Management had Interfered in Audit Procedures Designed to Test Compliance with Loan Agreements

29. To assess whether the Subsidiary's transfers of loan proceeds to the Agent violated the agreements with its Lenders, Marcum's engagement team decided to send customized confirmation requests to the Lenders.[20] The customized requests included specific factual details of the Subsidiary's dealings with the Agent. Among other things, the requests detailed that: (a) the Subsidiary used POs issued to the Agent to secure release of borrowed funds; (b) the Subsidiary disbursed the loan proceeds to the Agent; (c) the Agent returned certain of the funds to the Subsidiary; (d) the POs were cancelled; and (e) the Subsidiary never purchased any goods from the Agent. The requests asked the Lenders to confirm in writing that they were aware of these facts and that the Subsidiary had nonetheless complied with the loan agreements.

20 See AU § 330.08, The Confirmation Process, which addresses confirming the terms of unusual or complex transactions that are associated with high levels of inherent and control risk; see also AU § 330.25 ("auditor should consider requesting confirmation of the terms of unusual agreements or transactions").

30. An audit director at MarcumBP in China was instructed to obtain in-person, written responses to the customized confirmation requests from the Lenders. But before he had an opportunity to obtain the Lenders' confirmation responses, the MarcumBP director informed the engagement partner and the engagement quality review ("EQR") partner that Issuer management had unilaterally approached the Lenders about the requests, and that, according to management, the Lenders would not confirm the requests as written. Management then revised the confirmation requests by deleting all details about the Agent transactions. The MarcumBP director forwarded the client-revised requests to the engagement partner and the EQR partner, telling them that management believed the Lenders were willing to confirm the requests as revised. In an emailed response to the director, the engagement partner wrote that "[i]t appears that we are removing all of the information that is critical to the confirmation process . . . ."

31. Despite the engagement partner's objections to the client-revised confirmation requests and without his authorization, the MarcumBP director dispatched a junior staff member to the Lenders with the revised requests. An Issuer employee accompanied the junior staff member and directed him to a particular respondent at each Lender from whom he obtained written confirmations on the client-revised requests.[21] When meeting with the Lender respondents, the junior staff member also orally reviewed with them the specific details about the Agent transactions that had been deleted from the original confirmation requests. Although the Lenders purportedly were unwilling to confirm knowledge of those specific details in writing, the Lenders' respondents orally acknowledged the details and stated that they did not present a loan compliance issue. The MarcumBP junior staff member contemporaneously documented the oral acknowledgements, which were then summarized in the work papers.

32. After he received the responses to the client-revised confirmations, the engagement partner again objected, informing the MarcumBP director that those "confirmations were not approved by Marcum." Because "all of the [Agent] transaction information was removed from the confirmations," the engagement partner said the revised requests did not "satisfy the requirement for which we were requesting the original

[21] Under PCAOB standards governing the confirmation process, the auditor should direct a confirmation request to "a third party who the auditor believes is knowledgeable about the information to be confirmed." confirmations."[22] Nevertheless, after conferring with Issuer's management, the engagement partner ultimately accepted the Lender respondents' confirmations on the client-revised requests, together with the oral acknowledgments documented by the junior staff member. The engagement partner failed to exercise due professional care and professional skepticism when he relied on the Lender respondents' written confirmation responses and oral acknowledgments as evidence of the Subsidiary's compliance with its loan agreements.[23]

33. Management's interference raised serious questions about whether the confirmation responses obtained by the junior staff member were reliable evidence of the Subsidiary's compliance with its lending agreements. Management's deletion of information about the Agent transactions from the written requests was particularly suspect in light of the round-trip cash transfers, whose structure suggested a possible motive to conceal from the Credit Co-op the Agent's returns of loan proceeds. In each round-trip transfer, the Subsidiary sent the loan proceeds from its account at the Credit Co-op to the Agent, who returned them the same day to a Subsidiary account at a different financial institution. The engagement team never obtained audit evidence to support a legitimate business rationale for the round-trip transfers.

34. In addition, management's direction of the MarcumBP junior staff member to particular individuals at each Lender raised serious questions about whether the confirmation requests had been directed to respondents with the appropriate competence, knowledge, motivation, objectivity, and freedom from bias as to the Issuer.[24] In such cases, "the auditor should consider whether there is sufficient basis for concluding that the confirmation request is being sent to a respondent from whom the auditor can expect the response will provide meaningful and appropriate evidence."[25] But Marcum's engagement team failed to adequately evaluate whether the respondents were capable of providing meaningful and appropriate evidence of the Subsidiary's compliance with its loan agreements.

[22] As a result of management unilaterally approaching the Lenders and changing the confirmation requests, the engagement team had failed to maintain control over the confirmation requests and responses as required by PCAOB standards. See AU § 330.28.

[23] See AU § 330.15 ("Professional skepticism is important in designing the confirmation request, performing the confirmation procedures, and evaluating the results of the confirmation procedures."); see also AU § 230.07 and .09; AU § 316.13.

[25] Id.

35. By relying on the Lender respondents' confirmation responses and oral acknowledgments as evidence of the Subsidiary's compliance with the loan agreements, Marcum failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence of the Subsidiary's compliance with the loan agreements and failed to adequately evaluate the business rationale (or the lack thereof) for the significant unusual transactions with the Agent.[26]

iii. Marcum Failed to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Evidence to Determine Whether the Transactions with the Agent Involved a Previously Unidentified Related Party

36. During the Audits, Marcum identified and assessed related party transactions as a risk of material misstatement due to fraud. In identifying the risk, the team noted that "management might have [the] intention to omit or conceal significant and unusual related party transactions." They also assessed the risk of material misstatement as high for "related party transactions without proper approval or business rationale[,] and not properly or adequately disclosed."

37. Although management represented that the Agent was not a related party, the engagement partner was aware of contradictory audit evidence. For example, he reviewed audit evidence that caused him to question whether the Issuer's Controlling Shareholder had the ability to control or significantly influence the Agent's management or operating policies, which, if true, would render the Agent a related party of the Issuer.[27] He also knew that the Agent and the Controlling Shareholder had engaged in transactions as "longtime business partners."

38. To evaluate whether the Agent and the Controlling Shareholder were related parties, Marcum's engagement team requested, among other things, details of the transactions between the two parties. In lieu of the transaction details, management provided excerpts of the Controlling Shareholder's audited financial statements, which did not disclose the Agent as a related party.[28] But reading excerpts of the Controlling Shareholder's audited financial statements was not an adequate response to this fraud risk,[29] particularly in light of inconsistent evidence suggesting that the Agent was a possible related party. By failing to perform the audit procedures necessary to resolve the inconsistent audit evidence,[30] the engagement partner again failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, in performing the Audits. Consequently, Marcum failed to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence to determine whether the significant unusual transactions with the Agent were related party transactions and, if so, to satisfy itself concerning the adequacy of the Issuer's disclosures in its financial statements.[31]

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Marcum LLP is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $250,000 is imposed upon Marcum LLP. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Marcum LLP shall pay this civil money penalty within 10 days of the issuance of this Order by (a) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (b) United States postal money order, certified check, bank cashier's check or bank money order; (c) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board; (d) delivered to the Controller, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006; and (e) submitted under a cover letter which identifies Marcum LLP as a Respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB Release Number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to the Office of the

In the Matter of John E. Klenner, CPA,

Respondent.

September 24, 2020

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is: (1) censuring John E. Klenner, CPA ("Klenner" or "Respondent"); (2) barring Klenner from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, but allowing Klenner, after two years, to petition the Board for consent to associate with a registered firm; (3) in the event Klenner seeks and the Board grants consent for him to associate with a registered firm, prohibits him from serving as an engagement partner or engagement quality reviewer on issuer audits for a one year period after the Board grants consent for him to associate with a registered firm; (4) imposing a civil money penalty of $25,000; and (5) requiring Klenner to complete forty hours of continuing professional education ("CPE"), in addition to any CPE required in connection with any professional license, before filing a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered firm.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Klenner violated PCAOB rules and auditing standards as the engagement partner on the audits of the financial statements of an issuer ("Issuer") for the years ended December 31, 2013 and 2014 ("Audits").

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Klenner pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Klenner has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over him and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Klenner consents to the entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[2]

A. Respondent

1. John E. Klenner, CPA is a certified public accountant licensed by the New York State Education Department (License No. 088642). He is a partner of Marcum LLP ("Marcum") and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). Klenner served as the engagement partner for Marcum's audits of the Issuer's 2013, 2014, and 2015 financial statements. He authorized Marcum to issue an audit report containing an unqualified opinion on all three years' financial statements in November 2016.[3]

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other persons or entities in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (A) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (B) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

[3] Marcum concurrently audited the Issuer's 2013 and 2014 financial statements, and later audited the 2015 financial statements. Marcum issued a single audit report addressing all three years, which was included in the Issuer's Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2015, filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission in November 2016.

B. Relevant Entities

2. Marcum LLP is a New York limited liability partnership headquartered in Melville, New York. Marcum is licensed by the New York State Education Department (License No. 067839) and several other states. Marcum is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. Marcum served as the Issuer's independent auditor from April 2015 to November 2016.

3. Marcum Bernstein & Pinchuk LLP ("MarcumBP") is a New York limited liability partnership headquartered in New York, New York. It was formed as a joint venture between Marcum and another registered firm. MarcumBP is licensed by the New York State Education Department (License No. 093038), the Texas State Board of Accountancy (License No. P05632), and the Nevada State Board of Accountancy (License No. PART-0888). MarcumBP is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. During the Audits, Marcum supervised MarcumBP personnel, who performed auditing procedures regarding the Issuer's China-based operations and transactions.

C. Issuer

4. The Issuer was, at all relevant times, a Delaware corporation whose public filings disclosed that it developed and manufactured energy storage systems and related products. At all times relevant to this Order, (1) the Issuer's common stock was registered under Section 12(g) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, and (2) the Issuer was an "issuer" within the meaning of Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

5. In 2011, the Issuer became majority owned by a company organized under the laws of Hong Kong ("Controlling Shareholder"). The Issuer later announced plans to manufacture its products in mainland China, and began moving its manufacturing operations from the United States to China in 2012. By the end of 2013, the Issuer was operating primarily from China.

6. The Issuer's predecessor auditor, which resigned in August 2014, advised the Issuer that it could not complete the 2013 audit, in part because it had been unable to perform sufficient procedures to determine the completeness of subsequent events that may have occurred in China. The predecessor auditor also advised that it had identified material weaknesses in the Issuer's internal controls and procedures, including a failure to implement adequate procedures and controls to ensure accurate and timely communication with its Chinese subsidiaries.

7. In March 2015, the Issuer filed a Form 8-K reporting that management had analyzed the internal control issues and material weaknesses identified by its predecessor auditor, and concluded that there was "factual support that such issues and weaknesses existed in 2013." As a result, the Issuer disclosed that investors should no longer rely on the financial statements in its Form 10-Q for the period ended September 30, 2013.

D. Summary

8. This matter involves Klenner's violations of PCAOB rules and standards[4] in performing the Audits.[5] In auditing the Issuer's financial statements, Klenner encountered what he identified as significant unusual transactions between one of the Issuer's wholly-owned Chinese subsidiaries ("Subsidiary") and a Chinese purchasing agent ("Agent"). The transactions, which occurred in 2013 and 2014, involved the Subsidiary's transfers of loan proceeds to the Agent as prepayments to purchase specified materials that the Agent never delivered. The loans were obtained from Chinese lenders for the purpose of making these purchases. While the Agent returned a portion of the prepayments—some in unusual same-day, round-trip transfers—it did not return most of them.

9. Klenner failed to perform appropriate procedures regarding these transactions. First, he improperly acquiesced to management's deletion of important language from confirmation requests designed to test the Subsidiary's compliance with loan agreements. Second, he knew that management directed a junior member of the audit team to particular persons at each lender from whom he obtained the lenders' confirmation responses. Finally, Klenner failed to perform the audit procedures necessary to resolve inconsistent audit evidence concerning whether the Agent was a related party.

10. Klenner knew that the significant unusual transactions with the Agent presented a risk of material misstatement due to fraud. And he had identified intentional omission or concealment of significant unusual related-party transactions as a specific fraud risk. By failing to adequately respond to these known fraud risks, Klenner breached his duty to perform the Audits with the due professional care and professional skepticism required by PCAOB standards. He also failed to adequately understand the business rationale (or the lack thereof) for the significant unusual transactions and failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support his opinion on the Issuer's financial statements. In addition, Klenner violated audit documentation requirements in connection with audit committee communications.

This Order cites only those rules and standards that were in effect for the 2013 and 2014 audits. Current and archived versions of PCAOB standards are available at www.pcaobus.org/standards.

E. Background of the Significant Unusual Transactions in China

11. From the outset of the engagement, Klenner knew that the Issuer's predecessor auditor had resigned due, in part, to its concerns about certain transactions that had occurred between the Subsidiary and its Agent in 2013 and 2014. During the Audits, Klenner and his engagement team identified these and certain other transactions—described in the work papers as "significant cash disbursements to [the Agent]"—as significant unusual transactions.[6]

12. These transactions stemmed from an August 2013 cooperation agreement in which the Agent agreed to act as the Subsidiary's agent for purchasing equipment and raw materials.[7] The equipment and raw materials were needed to fulfill commitments made by another Chinese subsidiary of the Issuer in a 2012 agreement with two Chinese municipal governments. Under that agreement, the other subsidiary agreed to construct a production plant on land to which it had been granted use rights by one municipal government. Both municipal governments agreed to purchase electric-powered buses from that subsidiary, which was not in the business of manufacturing or selling electric buses.

13. The significant unusual transactions involved the Subsidiary's transfers to the Agent of the proceeds of loans obtained purportedly to help finance the equipment and raw material purchases. The transactions took two forms: (a) prepayments to the Agent for goods that were never delivered; and (b) round-trip cash transfers. Details of these transactions were set forth in a client-prepared memo included in the audit documentation. Those details—which were known to Klenner during the Audits—are summarized below.

i. Prepayments to the Agent for Goods Never Delivered

14. In 2013 and 2014, the Subsidiary issued purchase orders ("POs") to the Agent to procure production-line equipment and raw materials for the total purchase price of approximately $63 million.[8] To help finance those purchases, the Subsidiary borrowed $17.2 million from a Chinese rural credit cooperative ("Credit Co-op") in 2013 and $20.9 million from a local Chinese bank ("Bank") in 2014. The loan agreements with the Credit Co-op and the Bank (collectively, "Lenders") restricted the Subsidiary's use of the proceeds to equipment and raw material purchases, as well as construction costs. The Subsidiary submitted the POs to the Lenders to show that the proceeds were being used in accordance with the loan agreements.

[7] According to a client-prepared memo in Marcum's audit documentation, "[The Agent]'s business is that of being a purchasing agent for inventory, equipment, or anything else a company needs to purchase . . . . [The Agent] requires an upfront prepayment from clients to place orders for them . . . . [The Agent] then makes an arbitrage profit on the timing difference between when prepayment is received and when the money is actually paid out to vendors."

15. When the Lenders released the borrowed funds, the Subsidiary transferred all of the loan proceeds to the Agent, purportedly as prepayments for the equipment and raw material purchases. In one instance, the prepayment was almost double what the Subsidiary then owed the Agent under the PO terms. The Agent, which never delivered any goods, eventually returned portions of the prepayments to the Subsidiary.

16. In the fall of 2014, the Subsidiary and the Agent cancelled their cooperation agreement and the POs. Although the Agent agreed to refund $27.5 million of prepayments (representing the balance of the loan proceeds purportedly still held by the Agent),[9] the Agent did not return any of that money. Instead, a Chinese company affiliated with the Issuer ("Affiliate")[10] agreed to settle the Agent's obligation to return the $27.5 million by delivering electric buses of equivalent value to the Subsidiary. Later, the Affiliate (an electric bus manufacturer) and the Controlling Shareholder delivered buses to the Subsidiary. The buses were then purchased by the two Chinese municipal governments under their agreement with the Issuer's other Chinese subsidiary.

ii. Same-Day, Round-Trip Cash Transfers

17. As described in Marcum's audit documentation, even after the cooperation agreement and the POs were cancelled, the Subsidiary continued to send loan proceeds to the

[8] For purposes of this Order, all transactions originally denominated in Chinese Yuan have been converted into U.S. Dollars, which have been approximated using the then-current Chinese Yuan to U.S. Dollar exchange rate.

[9] The Subsidiary had prepaid the Agent a total of $38.1 million from funds it borrowed from the Lenders. By the time the POs were cancelled, the Agent had returned a net amount of $10.6 million to the Subsidiary.

[10] The Issuer and the Affiliate were under common control of the Controlling Shareholder, which held a majority of the Issuer's shares and wholly owned the Affiliate. The Issuer disclosed the Affiliate and the Controlling Shareholder as related parties in its Form 10-K. See FASB Accounting Standards Codification ("ASC") 850-10-20, Related Party Disclosures (glossary definitions of "affiliate," "control," and "related parties").

Agent. In these transactions, however, the Agent did not retain the proceeds. Instead, it immediately returned them to the Subsidiary.

18. In September 2014, the Subsidiary secured a $7.3 million draw from its then existing line of credit with the Credit Co-op. The Subsidiary sent the borrowed funds from its Credit Co-op account to the Agent in two transfers ($6.6 million and $0.7 million). In each transaction, the Agent returned all of the money the same day, but not to the Subsidiary's account at the Credit Co-op. The Agent instead sent the money to the Subsidiary's account at a different financial institution.

19. Later that fall, the Subsidiary executed a new loan agreement with the Credit Co-op in the principal amount of $17.1 million. After the money was released and deposited into its Credit Co-op account, the Subsidiary sent the entire amount to the Agent, and the Agent returned the funds the same day to a Subsidiary account elsewhere.

iii. Management Representations about the Significant Unusual Transactions

20. During the Audits, management of the Issuer and the Controlling Shareholder made certain representations to Klenner and the engagement team about the purported business rationale for the significant unusual transactions. Management represented that the POs had been submitted to the Lenders in order to secure release of the borrowed funds, and that the funds (including those round-tripped back to the Subsidiary) were transferred to the Agent to show the Lenders that the proceeds were being used in accordance with the loan agreements.

21. However, management also represented that the transfers of borrowed funds to the Agent were mere formalities. According to management, the Lenders did not care whether the Subsidiary procured from the Agent or some other party, as long as the loan proceeds were used to purchase the equipment and raw materials specified in the POs and the loan agreements (management represented that the goods were eventually purchased from other sources for a better price). In addition, management represented that the Agent was not a related party and that the transactions with the Agent did not have to be disclosed as related party transactions in the Issuer's financial statements.

F. Klenner Violated PCAOB Standards in Connection with the Audits

i. Relevant Provisions of PCAOB Standards

Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[11] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements only when the auditor has formed such an opinion on the basis of an audit performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[12] Among other things, PCAOB standards require the auditor to plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for his or her opinion on the financial statements.[13]

23. PCAOB standards also require the auditor to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, in planning and performing the audit.[14] Because of the characteristics of fraud, the auditor's exercise of professional skepticism is important when considering fraud risks,[15] including fraud risks associated with significant unusual transactions.

24. Under PCAOB standards, Klenner and the engagement team were required to gain an understanding of the business rationale for the significant unusual transactions between the Subsidiary and the Agent.[16] In gaining that understanding, the standards set forth several factors requiring consideration, including whether the form of the transactions was overly complex and whether the transactions involved previously unidentified related parties.[17]

25. PCAOB standards also required Klenner and the engagement team to evaluate whether the business rationale (or the lack thereof) for the significant unusual transactions suggested that they may have been entered into to engage in, among other things, fraudulent financial reporting.[18] Misstatements arising from fraudulent financial reporting involve intentional misstatements or omissions of amounts or disclosures in financial statements.[19] Klenner knew that material misstatements due to fraud could have arisen from the significant unusual transactions if, among other things, (1) the Subsidiary had defrauded its Lenders through those transactions, or (2) the Agent was a previously unidentified related party.

26. As described below, Klenner violated these and other PCAOB standards in performing the Audits.

ii. Klenner Knew that Management had Interfered in Audit Procedures Designed to Test Compliance with Loan Agreements

27. To assess whether the Subsidiary's transfers of loan proceeds to the Agent violated the agreements with its Lenders, Klenner and the engagement team decided to send customized confirmation requests to the Lenders.[20] The customized requests included specific factual details of the Subsidiary's dealings with the Agent. Among other things, the requests detailed that: (a) the Subsidiary used POs issued to the Agent to secure release of borrowed funds; (b) the Subsidiary disbursed the loan proceeds to the Agent; (c) the Agent returned certain of the funds to the Subsidiary; (d) the POs were cancelled; and (e) the Subsidiary never purchased any goods from the Agent. The requests asked the Lenders to confirm in writing that they were aware of these facts and that the Subsidiary had nonetheless complied with the loan agreements.

28. With Klenner's knowledge, an audit director at MarcumBP in China was instructed to obtain in-person, written responses to the customized confirmation requests from the Lenders. But before he had an opportunity to obtain the Lenders' confirmation responses, the MarcumBP director informed Klenner and the engagement quality review ("EQR") partner that Issuer management had unilaterally approached the Lenders about the requests, and that, according to management, the Lenders would not confirm the requests as written. Management then revised the confirmation requests by deleting all details about the Agent transactions. The MarcumBP director forwarded the client-revised requests to Klenner and the EQR partner, telling them that management believed the Lenders were willing to confirm the requests as revised. In an emailed response to the director, Klenner wrote that "[i]t appears that we are removing all of the information that is critical to the confirmation process . . . ."

29. Despite Klenner's objections to the client-revised confirmation requests and without his authorization, the MarcumBP director dispatched a junior staff member to the

Lenders with the revised requests. An Issuer employee accompanied the junior staff member and directed him to a particular respondent at each Lender from whom he obtained written confirmations on the client-revised requests.[21] When meeting with the Lender respondents, the junior staff member also orally reviewed with them the specific details about the Agent transactions that had been deleted from the original confirmation requests. Although the Lenders purportedly were unwilling to confirm knowledge of those specific details in writing, the Lenders' respondents orally acknowledged the details and stated that they did not present a loan compliance issue. The MarcumBP junior staff member contemporaneously documented the oral acknowledgements, which were then summarized in the work papers.

30. After he received the responses to the client-revised confirmations, Klenner again objected, informing the MarcumBP director that those "confirmations were not approved by Marcum." Because "all of the [Agent] transaction information was removed from the confirmations," Klenner said the revised requests did not "satisfy the requirement for which we were requesting the original confirmations."[22] Nevertheless, after conferring with Issuer's management, Klenner ultimately accepted the Lender respondents' confirmations on the client-revised requests, together with the oral acknowledgments documented by the junior staff member. Klenner failed to exercise due professional care and professional skepticism when he relied on the Lender respondents' written confirmation responses and oral acknowledgments as evidence of the Subsidiary's compliance with its loan agreements.[23]

31. Management's interference raised serious questions about whether the confirmation responses obtained by the junior staff member were reliable evidence of the Subsidiary's compliance with its lending agreements. Management's deletion of information about the Agent transactions from the written requests was particularly suspect in light of the round-trip cash transfers, whose structure suggested a possible motive to conceal from the Credit Co-op the Agent's returns of loan proceeds. In each round-trip transfer, the Subsidiary

[21] Under PCAOB standards governing the confirmation process, the auditor should direct a confirmation request to "a third party who the auditor believes is knowledgeable about the information to be confirmed." AU § 330.26. The standards use the term "respondent" to refer to the third-party recipient of a confirmation request. See AU § 330.27.

[22] As a result of management unilaterally approaching the Lenders and changing the confirmation requests, Klenner understood that, contrary to PCAOB standards, the engagement team had failed to maintain control over the confirmation requests and responses. See AU § 330.28.

sent the loan proceeds from its account at the Credit Co-op to the Agent, who returned them the same day to a Subsidiary account at a different financial institution. The engagement team never obtained audit evidence to support a legitimate business rationale for the round-trip transfers.

32. In addition, management's direction of the MarcumBP junior staff member to particular individuals at each Lender raised serious questions about whether the confirmation requests had been directed to respondents with the appropriate competence, knowledge, motivation, objectivity, and freedom from bias as to the Issuer.[24] In such cases, "the auditor should consider whether there is sufficient basis for concluding that the confirmation request is being sent to a respondent from whom the auditor can expect the response will provide meaningful and appropriate evidence."[25] But Klenner and the engagement team failed to adequately evaluate whether the respondents were capable of providing meaningful and appropriate evidence of the Subsidiary's compliance with its loan agreements.

33. By relying on the Lender respondents' confirmation responses and oral acknowledgments as evidence of the Subsidiary's compliance with the loan agreements, Klenner failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence of the Subsidiary's compliance with the loan agreements and failed to adequately evaluate the business rationale (or the lack thereof) for the significant unusual transactions with the Agent.[26]

iii. Klenner Failed to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Evidence to Determine Whether the Transactions with the Agent Involved a Previously Unidentified Related Party

34. During the Audits, Klenner and the engagement team identified and assessed related party transactions as a risk of material misstatement due to fraud. In identifying the risk, Klenner and the team noted that "management might have [the] intention to omit or conceal significant and unusual related party transactions." They also assessed the risk of material misstatement as high for "related party transactions without proper approval or business rationale[,] and not properly or adequately disclosed."

35. Although management represented that the Agent was not a related party, Klenner was aware of contradictory audit evidence. For example, he reviewed audit evidence that caused him to question whether the Issuer's Controlling Shareholder had the ability to control or significantly influence the Agent's management or operating policies, which, if true, would render the Agent a related party of the Issuer.[27] He also knew that the Agent and the Controlling Shareholder had engaged in transactions as "longtime business partners."

36. To evaluate whether the Agent and the Controlling Shareholder were related parties, Klenner and his engagement team requested, among other things, details of the transactions between the two parties. In lieu of the transaction details, management provided excerpts of the Controlling Shareholder's audited financial statements, which did not disclose the Agent as a related party.[28] But reading excerpts of the Controlling Shareholder's audited financial statements was not an adequate response to this fraud risk,[29] particularly in light of inconsistent evidence suggesting that the Agent was a possible related party. By failing to perform the audit procedures necessary to resolve the inconsistent audit evidence,[30] Klenner again failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, in performing the Audits. Consequently, Klenner failed to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence to determine whether the significant unusual transactions with the Agent were related party transactions and, if so, to satisfy himself concerning the adequacy of the Issuer's disclosures in its financial statements.[31]

iv. Klenner Violated Audit Documentation Requirements

37. PCAOB standards require the auditor to timely communicate with the company's audit committee about certain audit-related matters before the audit report is issued.[32] The auditor must document the audit committee communications in the work papers, even if they

[27] If the Controlling Shareholder also controlled the Agent, the Agent would be an affiliate, and therefore a related party, of the Issuer. See ASC 850-10-20 (glossary definitions of "affiliate," "control," and "related parties"). In that case, U.S. GAAP would have required the Issuer to disclose the Subsidiary's transactions with the Agent, which were material to the Issuer's financial statements. See ASC 850-10-50.

[29] Among other things, the engagement team had no basis for knowing what procedures may have been performed by the Controlling Shareholder's auditor to identify related parties and related party transactions.

[30] See AS No. 15 ¶ 29.

take place orally.[33] The audit documentation should be in sufficient detail to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement, to understand the audit committee communications made to comply with the provisions of AS No. 16.[34] The audit documentation should also demonstrate that the engagement complied with PCAOB standards, and must clearly demonstrate that the work was in fact performed and when the work was performed.[35]

38. After the audit report was issued, but before the documentation completion date,[36] Klenner instructed a staff member to complete three letters on Marcum letterhead addressed to the Issuer's audit committee chair. The letters documented required communications to the audit committee, certain of which Klenner had orally communicated shortly before the audit report was issued. All of the letters were dated prior to the audit report, in one case by more than a year. Klenner signed the letters and they were added to the audit documentation with no explanation. Klenner violated AS No. 3 because the backdated letters suggested that they had been sent to the audit committee on the dates indicated on the letters, when, in fact, they had not.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), John E. Klenner is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), John E. Klenner is barred from being "an associated person of a registered public

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Helen R. Liao, CPA,

Respondent.

September 24, 2020

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("PCAOB" or "Board") is: (1) censuring Helen R. Liao, CPA ("Liao" or "Respondent"); (2) barring Liao from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, but allowing Liao, after one year, to petition the Board for consent to associate with a registered firm; (3) imposing a civil money penalty of $15,000; and (4) requiring Liao to complete twenty hours of continuing professional education ("CPE") (in addition to any CPE required for any professional license) concerning PCAOB auditing standards, including standards relating to performing engagement quality reviews.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Liao violated PCAOB rules and auditing standards as the engagement quality reviewer on the audits of the financial statements of an issuer ("Issuer") for the years ended December 31, 2013 and 2014 ("Audits").

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Liao pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Liao has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over her and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Liao consents to the entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[2]

A. Respondent

1. Helen R. Liao, CPA is a certified public accountant licensed by the New York State Education Department (License No. 074974), the New Jersey Division of Consumer Affairs (License No. 20CC03171100), and the District of Columbia Board of Accountancy (License No. CPA900205). She is a partner of Marcum LLP ("Marcum") and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). Liao served as the engagement quality review ("EQR") reviewer for Marcum's audits of the Issuer's 2013, 2014, and 2015 financial statements. Liao provided her concurring approval of Marcum's issuance of an audit report containing an unqualified opinion on all three years' financial statements in November 2016.[3]

B. Relevant Entities

2. Marcum LLP is a New York limited liability partnership headquartered in Melville, New York. Marcum is licensed by the New York State Education Department (License No. 067839) and several other states. Marcum is, and at all relevant times was, registered with

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other persons or entities in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (A) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (B) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

[3] Marcum concurrently audited the Issuer's 2013 and 2014 financial statements, and later audited the 2015 financial statements. Marcum issued a single audit report addressing all three years, which was included in the Issuer's Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2015, filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission in November 2016.

the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. Marcum served as the Issuer's independent auditor from April 2015 to November 2016.

3. Marcum Bernstein & Pinchuk LLP ("MarcumBP") is a New York limited liability partnership headquartered in New York, New York. It was formed as a joint venture between Marcum and another registered firm. MarcumBP is licensed by the New York State Education Department (License No. 093038), the Texas State Board of Accountancy (License No. P05632), and the Nevada State Board of Accountancy (License No. PART-0888). MarcumBP is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. During the Audits, Marcum supervised MarcumBP personnel, who performed auditing procedures regarding the Issuer's China-based operations and transactions.

C. Issuer

4. The Issuer was, at all relevant times, a Delaware corporation whose public filings disclosed that it developed and manufactured energy storage systems and related products. At all times relevant to this Order, (1) the Issuer's common stock was registered under Section 12(g) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, and (2) the Issuer was an "issuer" within the meaning of Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

5. In 2011, the Issuer became majority owned by a company organized under the laws of Hong Kong ("Controlling Shareholder"). The Issuer later announced plans to manufacture its products in mainland China, and began moving its manufacturing operations from the United States to China in 2012. By the end of 2013, the Issuer was operating primarily from China.

6. The Issuer's predecessor auditor, which resigned in August 2014, advised the Issuer that it could not complete the 2013 audit, in part because it had been unable to perform sufficient procedures to determine the completeness of subsequent events that may have occurred in China. The predecessor auditor also advised that it had identified material weaknesses in the Issuer's internal controls and procedures, including a failure to implement adequate procedures and controls to ensure accurate and timely communication with its Chinese subsidiaries.

7. In March 2015, the Issuer filed a Form 8-K reporting that management had analyzed the internal control issues and material weaknesses identified by its predecessor auditor, and concluded that there was "factual support that such issues and weaknesses existed in 2013." As a result, the Issuer disclosed that investors should no longer rely on the financial statements in its Form 10-Q for the period ended September 30, 2013.

D. Summary

8. This matter concerns Liao's failure to perform an EQR of the Audits in compliance with PCAOB standards.[4] As detailed below, Liao violated Auditing Standard ("AS") No. 7, Engagement Quality Reviews,[5] by providing her concurring approval to issue Marcum's audit report when she was aware of significant engagement deficiencies in the Audits. She also failed to maintain objectivity in performing her EQR and failed to perform the review with due professional care.

9. Liao's violations arose from her participation in, and review of, audit procedures concerning significant unusual transactions between one of the Issuer's wholly-owned Chinese subsidiaries ("Subsidiary") and a Chinese entity that purportedly acted as the Subsidiary's purchasing agent ("Agent"). The transactions involved the Subsidiary's transfers of loan proceeds to the Agent as prepayments to purchase specified equipment and materials that the Agent never delivered. The loans were obtained from Chinese lenders for the purpose of making these purchases. While the Agent returned a portion of the prepayments—some in unusual same-day, round-trip transfers—it did not return most of them.

10. While performing the EQR, Liao was aware of the fraud risks associated with the significant unusual transactions, particularly the risks that the Subsidiary may have defrauded its lenders by transferring loan proceeds to the Agent and that the Agent may have been an undisclosed related party. Liao was involved in designing audit procedures to address one of the fraud risks. Specifically, to get evidence of whether the Subsidiary had complied with its lending agreements when it transferred loan proceeds to the Agent, she provided detailed comments on the content of confirmation requests to be directed to the Subsidiary's lenders and how the confirmations should be obtained. By assuming these engagement team responsibilities, Liao failed to maintain objectivity in performing her EQR, thus violating AS No. 7.

11. Before the Audits were concluded, Liao learned, among other things, that management had deleted important language from the confirmation requests that she had helped the engagement team design. She also learned that, at management's suggestion, the engagement team had performed related party procedures that were significantly more limited than had been planned. As a result, Liao was aware that the engagement team had failed to adequately respond to the fraud risks associated with the significant unusual transactions, which resulted in significant engagement deficiencies. Liao provided concurring approval to issue the audit report despite these significant deficiencies. As a result, she violated AS No. 7.

E. Background of the Significant Unusual Transactions in China

i. Liao Understood the Details and Fraud Risks of the Significant Unusual Transactions

12. Liao knew the engagement team had identified significant unusual transactions between the Subsidiary and the Agent in 2013 and 2014.[6] Details of those transactions were set forth in a client-prepared memo included in the audit documentation. Those details—which were known to Liao during the Audits—are summarized below.

13. The transactions involved the Subsidiary's transfers of loan proceeds to the Agent. The Subsidiary had obtained loans (totaling $38.1 million)[7] from two Chinese lending institutions (collectively, "Lenders"), to help finance the purchases of equipment and raw materials specified in purchase orders ("POs") issued to the Agent. The Subsidiary submitted the POs to the Lenders as evidence that the borrowed funds were being used in accordance with the loan agreements.

14. When the Lenders' released the borrowed funds, the Subsidiary transferred all of the loan proceeds to the Agent purportedly as prepayments for the specified equipment and raw materials. But the Agent returned portions of the prepayments to the Subsidiary and never delivered any of the goods.

15. In the fall of 2014, the Subsidiary and the Agent cancelled the POs and the Agent agreed to refund $27.5 million of prepayments, representing the balance of the loan proceeds

[6] PCAOB standards describe significant unusual transactions as "significant transactions that are outside the normal course of business for the entity, or that otherwise appear to be unusual given the auditor's understanding of the entity and its environment." AU § 316.66.

[7] For purposes of this Order, all transactions originally denominated in Chinese Yuan have been converted into U.S. Dollars, which have been approximated using the then-current Chinese Yuan to U.S. Dollar exchange rate.

purportedly still held by the Agent.[8] The Agent, however, did not return the money. Instead, a Chinese company affiliated with the Issuer ("Affiliate")[9] agreed to settle the Agent's obligation to return the $27.5 million by delivering electric buses of equivalent value to the Subsidiary.[10]

16. The Subsidiary and the Agent later engaged in three unusual, round-trip cash transfers, also involving loan proceeds. After the POs were cancelled, the Subsidiary received an additional $24.4 million from one of the Lenders in two loan transactions. Soon after receiving the proceeds, the Subsidiary sent them all to the Agent in three cash transfers from its account at the Lender. In each instance, the Agent returned the money to the Subsidiary the same day, but not to the Subsidiary's account at the Lender. Instead, the Agent directed the money to the Subsidiary's account at a different financial institution.

17. Both the engagement team and Liao understood that there was a risk that management may have entered into these significant unusual transactions to engage in fraudulent financial reporting.[11] In particular, Liao understood that material misstatements due to fraud could have arisen from these transactions if, among other things, (1) the Subsidiary had defrauded its Lenders through its transactions with the Agent, or (2) the Agent were an undisclosed related party.

[8] The Subsidiary had prepaid the Agent a total of $38.1 million from funds it borrowed from the Lenders. But by the time the POs were cancelled, the Agent had returned a net amount of $10.6 million to the Subsidiary.

[9] The Issuer and the Affiliate were under common control of the Controlling Shareholder, which held a majority of the Issuer's shares and wholly owned the Affiliate. The Issuer disclosed the Affiliate and the Controlling Shareholder as related parties in its Form 10-K. See FASB Accounting Standards Codification ("ASC") 850-10-20, Related Party Disclosures (glossary definitions of "affiliate," "control," and "related parties").

[11] To address fraud risks related to significant unusual transactions, PCAOB standards provided that the auditor "should gain an understanding of the business rationale for such transactions and whether that rationale (or the lack thereof) suggests that the transactions may have been entered into to engage in fraudulent financial reporting or conceal misappropriation of assets." AU § 316.66. In understanding the business rationale for the transactions, the auditor should consider a number of factors, including whether the form of the transactions is overly complex and whether the transactions involve previously unidentified related parties. AU § 316.67.

ii. Liao Was Aware of Management's Representations about the Significant Unusual Transactions

18. During the Audits, Liao was aware of management's representations to the engagement team about the purported business rationale for the significant unusual transactions between the Subsidiary and the Agent. Management of the Issuer and the Controlling Shareholder told the engagement team that the POs had been submitted to the Lenders in order to secure release of the borrowed funds, and that the funds (including those round-tripped back to the Subsidiary) were transferred to the Agent to show the Lenders that the proceeds were being used in accordance with the loan agreements.

19. However, management also represented that the transfers of borrowed funds to the Agent were mere formalities. According to management, the Lenders did not care whether the Subsidiary procured from the Agent or some other party, as long as the loan proceeds were used to purchase the equipment and raw materials specified in the POs and the loan agreements (management represented that the goods were eventually purchased from other sources for a better price). In addition, management represented that the Agent was not a related party and that the transactions with the Agent did not have to be disclosed as related party transactions in the Issuer's financial statements.

F. Liao Violated the Board's Engagement Quality Review Standard in Connection with the Audits

i. Relevant Provisions of PCAOB Standards

20. PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[12] An EQR is required for all audits and reviews under PCAOB standards.[13] The EQR is intended to "serve as a meaningful check on the work performed by the engagement team."[14] To achieve that objective, AS No. 7 imposes a number of requirements on the EQR reviewer, including that the reviewer maintain objectivity in performing the review.[15] To maintain objectivity, the reviewer should not make decisions on behalf of the engagement team or assume any of the team's responsibilities.[16]

21. In an audit engagement, the EQR reviewer should evaluate the significant judgments made by the engagement team and the related conclusions reached in forming the overall conclusion on the engagement and in preparing the audit report. To evaluate those judgments and conclusions, the EQR reviewer should, to the extent necessary, hold discussions with the engagement partner and other members of the engagement team and review audit documentation. The EQR reviewer should also evaluate the team's assessment of, and audit responses to, significant risks (including fraud risks) of material misstatement.[17]

22. The EQR reviewer, after performing a review with due professional care,[18] may provide concurring approval of issuance of an audit report only if the reviewer is not aware of any significant engagement deficiencies.[19] Significant engagement deficiencies include the engagement team's failure to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence in accordance with PCAOB standards.[20]

23. As described below, Liao violated AS No. 7 in performing an EQR of the Audits.

ii. Liao Improperly Assumed Engagement Team Responsibilities for, and Was Aware of a Significant Engagement Deficiency Resulting From, the Design and Execution of Audit Procedures to Test Compliance with Loan Agreements

24. To assess whether the Subsidiary's transfers of loan proceeds to the Agent violated the agreements with its Lenders, the engagement team decided to send customized confirmation requests to the Lenders.[21] Liao actively participated in this process, providing detailed input on the design of the confirmation requests and how the responses should be obtained. Liao thus assumed engagement team responsibilities and violated AS No. 7 by failing to maintain objectivity in performing the EQR.[22]

25. The written confirmation requests, prepared by the team with the engagement partner and Liao's guidance, included specific factual details of the Subsidiary's dealings with the Agent. Among other things, the customized requests detailed that: (a) the Subsidiary used POs issued to the Agent to secure release of borrowed funds; (b) the Subsidiary disbursed the loan proceeds to the Agent; (c) the Agent returned certain of the funds to the Subsidiary; (d) the POs were cancelled; and (e) the Subsidiary never purchased any goods from the Agent. The requests asked the Lenders to confirm in writing that they were aware of these facts and that the Subsidiary had nonetheless complied with the loan agreements.

26. Liao then told an audit director at MarcumBP in China to obtain in-person, written responses to the customized confirmation requests from the Lenders. But before he had an opportunity to obtain the Lenders' confirmation responses, the MarcumBP director informed Liao and the engagement partner that Issuer management had unilaterally approached the Lenders about the requests, and that, according to management, the Lenders would not confirm the requests as written. Management revised the confirmation requests to delete all details about the Agent transactions. The MarcumBP director then forwarded the client-revised requests to Liao and the engagement partner, telling them that management believed the Lenders were willing to confirm the revised requests in writing.

27. Although Liao and the engagement partner objected to the client-revised confirmation requests, the MarcumBP director dispatched a junior staff member to the Lenders with the revised requests. An Issuer employee accompanied the junior staff member and directed him to a particular respondent at each Lender from whom he obtained written confirmations on the client-revised requests.[23] When meeting with the Lender respondents, the junior staff member also orally reviewed with them the specific details about the Agent transactions that had been deleted from the original confirmation requests. Although the Lenders purportedly were unwilling to confirm their knowledge of those specific details in writing, the Lenders' respondents orally acknowledged the details and stated that they did not present a loan compliance issue. The MarcumBP junior staff member contemporaneously documented the oral acknowledgements, which were then summarized in the work papers.

28. Management's interference, which Liao knew about, raised serious questions about whether the confirmation responses obtained by the junior staff member were reliable evidence of the Subsidiary's compliance with its lending agreements. Management's deletion of information about the Agent transactions from the written requests was particularly suspect in light of the round-trip cash transfers, whose structure suggested a possible motive to conceal from the Lender the Agent's returns of loan proceeds.[24] In each round-trip transfer, the Subsidiary sent loan proceeds to the Agent from its account at the Lender, and the Agent returned them the same day to a Subsidiary account at a different financial institution. The engagement team never obtained, and did not provide Liao with, audit evidence to support a legitimate business rationale for the round-trip transfers.

29. In addition, management's direction of the MarcumBP junior staff member to particular individuals at each Lender raised serious questions about whether the confirmation requests had been directed to respondents with the appropriate competence, knowledge, motivation, objectivity, and freedom from bias as to the Issuer.[25] In such cases, "the auditor should consider whether there is sufficient basis for concluding that the confirmation request is being sent to a respondent from whom the auditor can expect the response will provide meaningful and appropriate evidence."[26] But as Liao knew, the engagement team failed to adequately evaluate whether the respondents were capable of providing meaningful and appropriate evidence of the Subsidiary's compliance with its loan agreements.

30. Liao also was aware that the engagement partner, after conferring with the Issuer's management, accepted and relied on the Lender respondents' confirmations on the client-revised requests, together with their oral acknowledgments documented by the junior staff member, as evidence of the Subsidiary's compliance with its loan agreements. As a result, she was aware of a significant engagement deficiency because the engagement team had failed to obtain appropriate evidence of the Subsidiary's compliance with the loan agreements and failed to adequately evaluate the business rationale (or the lack thereof) for the significant unusual transactions with the Agent.[27] Failing to perform her EQR with due professional care, Liao violated AS No.7 when she provided concurring approval to issue Marcum's audit report despite this significant engagement deficiency.[28]

iii. Liao Was Aware of a Significant Engagement Deficiency Resulting From the Related Party Audit Procedures

31. Liao knew that the engagement team had identified and assessed related party transactions as a risk of material misstatement due to fraud. In identifying the risk, the team noted that "management might have [the] intention to omit or conceal significant and unusual related party transactions." The team also assessed the risk of material misstatement as high for "related party transactions without proper approval or business rationale[,] and not properly or adequately disclosed."

32. Although management represented that the Agent was not a related party, Liao and the engagement team were aware of contradictory audit evidence. For example, Liao reviewed audit evidence that caused her to question whether the Issuer's Controlling Shareholder had the ability to control or significantly influence the Agent's management or operating policies, which, if true, would render the Agent a related party of the Issuer.[29] She also was aware that the Agent and the Controlling Shareholder had engaged in transactions as "longtime business partners."

33. During the Audits, Liao knew that the engagement team had requested evidence of the details of the transactions between the Controlling Shareholder and the Agent in order to evaluate whether those transactions were indicative of a related party relationship. Liao also knew that, in response, management had provided the engagement team with excerpts of the Controlling Shareholder's audited financial statements, which did not disclose the Agent as a related party.[30] And she knew that the engagement partner had accepted the audited financial statements of the Controlling Shareholder as evidence that the Agent was not a related party.

[29] If the Controlling Shareholder also controlled the Agent, the Agent would be an affiliate, and therefore a related party, of the Issuer. See ASC 850-10-20 (glossary definitions of "affiliate," "control," and "related parties"). In that case, U.S. GAAP would have required the Issuer to disclose the Subsidiary's transactions with the Agent, which were material to the Issuer's financial statements. See ASC 850-10-50.

34. But reading excerpts of the Controlling Shareholder's audited financial statements was not an adequate response to this fraud risk,[31] particularly in light of inconsistent evidence suggesting that the Agent was a possible related party. As Liao understood, the engagement team failed to perform the audit procedures necessary to resolve the inconsistent audit evidence.[32] As a result, Liao was aware of another significant engagement deficiency because the engagement team had failed to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence to determine whether the significant unusual transactions with the Agent were related party transactions and, if so, to satisfy themselves concerning the adequacy of the Issuer's disclosures in its financial statements.[33] Liao thus violated AS No. 7 by providing concurring approval for issuance of Marcum's audit report while being aware of this significant engagement deficiency, and by failing to perform her EQR with due professional care.[34]

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Helen R. Liao is hereby censured;

[30] The Controlling Shareholder's financial statements were audited by a firm unaffiliated with Marcum or MarcumBP.

E. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(F) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(6), Helen R. Liao is required to complete, before filing a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered firm, twenty hours of professional education and training directly related to the audits of issuer financial statements under PCAOB

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Da Hua CPAs (Special General Partnership),

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2020-015

September 29, 2020

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is censuring Da Hua CPAs (Special General Partnership) (the "Firm" or "Respondent"), a registered public accounting firm, imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000 upon the Firm, and requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial measures, including measures to establish policies and procedures directed toward ensuring compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements. The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that the Firm failed to disclose certain reportable events to the Board on PCAOB Form 3, Special Report, in violation of PCAOB rules.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order Instituting

Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. Da Hua CPAs (Special General Partnership) is, and at all relevant times was, a partnership organized under Chinese law, and headquartered in Beijing, China. At all relevant times, the Firm has been registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. The Firm is licensed in China by the Chinese Ministry of Finance.

B. Summary

2. This matter concerns the Firm's failures to disclose two reportable events, concerning one disciplinary proceeding, to the Board on Form 3 as required by PCAOB rules. PCAOB rules require the Firm to complete and file a PCAOB special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within 30 days of the event's occurrence. Among the events that the Firm is required to report on Form 3 are its becoming a respondent in certain disciplinary proceedings and the conclusion of such proceedings.

3. No later than July 31, 2018, the Firm and three of its associated persons became respondents in a disciplinary proceeding initiated by the China Securities Regulatory Commission ("CSRC"). The initiation of this proceeding against the Firm was a reportable event under Form 3. With respect to the proceeding, the Firm failed to file a Form 3 reporting that it had become a respondent in the proceeding.

4. In addition, the conclusion of the proceeding was a reportable event under Form 3. The Firm also failed to file a report of the conclusion of the matter on Form 3.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

C. Respondent Failed to Disclose Certain Reportable Events to the Board, in Violation of PCAOB Rules

5. PCAOB Rule 2203 provides that a registered public accounting firm must file a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence.[2] One such specified event occurs when a firm "has become aware that, in a matter arising out of the Firm's conduct in the course of providing professional services for a client, the Firm has become a defendant or respondent in a civil or alternative dispute resolution proceeding initiated by a governmental entity or in an administrative or disciplinary proceeding other than a Board disciplinary proceeding."[3] Another such specified event occurs when a firm has become aware that a reportable proceeding (i.e., a reportable event under Items 2.4 – 2.9 of Form 3) has been concluded as to the firm or certain of its associated persons.[4]

6. With respect to two such reportable events occurring in 2018, the Firm failed to file a Form 3 with the Board.

7. No later than July 31, 2018, the Firm became aware that the CSRC had initiated a disciplinary proceeding against it and three of its associated persons. The proceeding related to the provision of professional services by the Firm to a company that was not an issuer.[5] The Firm first learned of the conclusion of the proceeding on or around July 31, 2018.

8. In violation of Rule 2203, the Firm failed to file a Form 3 with respect to the initiation and conclusion of this proceeding.

[2] See PCAOB Rule 2203, Special Reports. As the Board noted when adopting its rules on special reporting, "[R]eportable events will sometimes occur, and the public interest, as well as the ability to consider whether prompt action is warranted by the Board's inspection staff or enforcement staff, will be served by contemporaneous reporting of the event." PCAOB Rel. No. 2008-004, at 17 (June 10, 2008).

[3] PCAOB Form 3, at Item 2.7 (italics in the original removed). To be reportable under Item 2.7, the proceeding only has to relate to professional services for a client, and does not necessarily have to involve an audit of an issuer, broker, or dealer, as those terms are defined under PCAOB rules.

[4] PCAOB Form 3, at Item 2.10.

[5] The term "issuer" means an issuer (as defined in Section 3 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act")), the securities of which are registered under Section 12 of the Exchange Act, or that is required to file reports under Section 15(d) of the Exchange Act, or that files or has filed a registration statement that has not yet become effective under the Securities Act of 1933, and that it has not withdrawn. See PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

9. The Firm's internal compliance and reporting systems failed to identify the initiation of the proceeding described above, and its conclusion, as being reportable to the PCAOB. As a result, the Firm inappropriately failed to notify the PCAOB of the initiation and conclusion of the disciplinary proceeding.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), the Firm is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000 is imposed upon the Firm. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. The Firm shall pay this civil money penalty within ten (10) days of the issuance of this Order by: (1) wire transfer pursuant to instructions provided by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Controller, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the Firm as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006; and

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), the Firm is required:

1. within ninety (90) days from the date of this Order, to establish policies and procedures, or revise and/or supplement existing policies and procedures, for the purpose of providing the Firm with reasonable assurance of compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements, including policies and procedures providing reasonable assurance that reportable events are identified by Firm personnel who participate in the Firm's PCAOB reporting process and that those events are reported on the applicable PCAOB form in a timely and complete manner;

2. within ninety (90) days from the date of this Order, to establish policies to ensure training concerning PCAOB reporting requirements, at least annually, of any Firm personnel who participate in the Firm's PCAOB reporting process;

3. within ninety (90) days from the date of this Order, to assign the role of compliance with PCAOB reporting matters to an individual within the Firm who possesses adequate knowledge and experience with PCAOB reporting requirements and sufficient authority within the Firm to fulfill those requirements on behalf of the Firm; and

4. within one hundred twenty (120) days from the date of this Order, to have the individual referenced in paragraph C.3 above certify in writing to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, the Firm's compliance with paragraphs C.1 through C.3 above.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of East Asia Sentinel Limited,

Respondent.

September 29, 2020

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is censuring East Asia Sentinel Limited (the "Firm" or "Respondent"), a registered public accounting firm, imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000 upon the Firm, and requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial measures, including measures to establish policies and procedures directed toward ensuring compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements. The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that the Firm failed to disclose certain reportable events to the Board on PCAOB Form 3, Special Report, in violation of PCAOB rules.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order Instituting

Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. East Asia Sentinel Limited is, and at all relevant times was, a limited liability corporation organized under Hong Kong law, and headquartered in Hong Kong. It is part of the East Asia Sentinel Group and is associated with the BKR International network. At all relevant times, the Firm has been registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. The Firm is licensed in Hong Kong by the Hong Kong Institute of Certified Public Accountants ("HKICPA").

B. Summary

2. This matter concerns the Firm's failures to disclose two reportable events, concerning one disciplinary proceeding, to the Board on Form 3 as required by PCAOB rules. PCAOB rules required the Firm to complete and file a PCAOB special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within 30 days of the event's occurrence. Among the events that the Firm was required to report on Form 3 were its becoming a respondent in certain disciplinary proceedings and the conclusion of such proceedings.

3. In 2018, the Firm and two of its associated persons became respondents in a disciplinary proceeding initiated by the HKICPA. The initiation of this proceeding against the Firm and its associated persons was a reportable event under Form 3. With respect to the proceeding, the Firm failed to file a Form 3 reporting that it and two associated persons had become respondents in the proceeding.

4. In addition, the conclusion of each proceeding was a reportable event under Form 3. The Firm also failed to file a report of the conclusion of the proceeding on Form 3.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

C. Respondent Failed to Disclose Certain Reportable Events to the Board, in Violation of PCAOB Rules

5. PCAOB Rule 2203 provides that a registered public accounting firm must file a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence.[2] One such specified event occurs when a firm "has become aware that, in a matter arising out of the Firm's conduct in the course of providing professional services for a client, the Firm has become a defendant or respondent in a civil or alternative dispute resolution proceeding initiated by a governmental entity or in an administrative or disciplinary proceeding other than a Board disciplinary proceeding."[3] Another such specified event occurs when a firm has become aware that a reportable proceeding (i.e., a reportable event under Items 2.4 – 2.9 of Form 3) has been concluded as to the firm or certain of its associated persons.[4]

6. With respect to two such reportable events occurring in 2018, the Firm failed to file a Form 3 with the Board.

7. No later than May 17, 2018, the Firm became aware that the HKICPA had initiated a disciplinary proceeding against it and two of its associated persons. The proceeding related to the provision of professional services by the Firm to a company that was not an issuer.[5]

8. In violation of Rule 2203, the Firm failed to file a Form 3 with respect to the initiation of this proceeding.

[2] See PCAOB Rule 2203, Special Reports. As the Board noted when adopting its rules on special reporting, "[R]eportable events will sometimes occur, and the public interest, as well as the ability to consider whether prompt action is warranted by the Board's inspection staff or enforcement staff, will be served by contemporaneous reporting of the event." PCAOB Rel. No. 2008-004, at 17 (June 10, 2008).

[3] PCAOB Form 3, at Item 2.7 (italics in the original removed). To be reportable under Item 2.7, the proceeding only has to relate to professional services for a client, and does not necessarily have to involve an audit of an issuer, broker, or dealer, as those terms are defined under PCAOB rules.

[4] PCAOB Form 3, at Item 2.10.

[5] The term "issuer" means an issuer (as defined in Section 3 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act")), the securities of which are registered under Section 12 of the Exchange Act, or that is required to file reports under Section 15(d) of the Exchange Act, or that files or has filed a registration statement that has not yet become effective under the Securities Act of 1933, and that it has not withdrawn. See PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

9. The proceeding against the Firm concluded on or around November 5, 2018.

10. In violation of Rule 2203, the Firm failed to file a Form 3 with respect to the conclusion of this proceeding.

11. The Firm's internal compliance and reporting systems failed to identify the initiation of the proceeding described above, and their conclusion, as being reportable to the PCAOB. As a result, the Firm inappropriately failed to notify the PCAOB of the initiation and conclusion of the disciplinary proceeding.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), the Firm is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000 is imposed upon the Firm. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. The Firm shall pay this civil money penalty within ten (10) days of the issuance of this Order by: (1) wire transfer pursuant to instructions provided by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Controller, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the Firm as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006; and

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), the Firm is required:

1. within ninety (90) days from the date of this Order, to establish policies and procedures, or revise and/or supplement existing policies and procedures, for the purpose of providing the Firm with reasonable assurance of compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements, including policies and procedures providing reasonable assurance that reportable events are identified by Firm personnel who participate in the Firm's PCAOB reporting process and that those events are reported on the applicable PCAOB form in a timely and complete manner;

2. within ninety (90) days from the date of this Order, to establish policies to ensure training concerning PCAOB reporting requirements, at least annually, of any Firm personnel who participate in the Firm's PCAOB reporting process;

3. within ninety (90) days from the date of this Order, to assign the role of compliance with PCAOB reporting matters to an individual within the Firm who possesses adequate knowledge and experience with PCAOB reporting requirements and sufficient authority within the Firm to fulfill those requirements on behalf of the Firm; and

4. within one hundred twenty (120) days from the date of this Order, to have the individual referenced in paragraph C.3 above certify in writing to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, the Firm's compliance with paragraphs C.1 through C.3 above.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Ruihua Certified Public Accountants,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2020-017

September 29, 2020

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is censuring Ruihua Certified Public Accountants (the "Firm" or "Respondent"), a registered public accounting firm, and imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000 upon the Firm. The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that the Firm failed to timely disclose certain reportable events to the Board on PCAOB Form 3, Special Report, in violation of PCAOB rules.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order Instituting

Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. Ruihua Certified Public Accountants is, and at all relevant times was, a partnership organized under Chinese law, and headquartered in Beijing, China. The Firm is a member of the Crowe Global network. At all relevant times, the Firm has been registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. The Firm is licensed in China by the Chinese Ministry of Finance.

B. Summary

2. This matter concerns the Firm's failures to timely disclose seven reportable events, concerning five disciplinary proceedings, to the Board on Form 3 as required by PCAOB rules. PCAOB rules required the Firm to complete and file a PCAOB special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within 30 days of the event's occurrence. Among the events that the Firm was required to report on Form 3 were its becoming a respondent in certain administrative or disciplinary proceedings and the conclusion of such proceedings.

3. Between November 2015 and January 2020, the Firm became a respondent in five separate disciplinary proceedings initiated by the China Securities Regulatory Commission ("CSRC"). The initiation of each of these proceedings against the Firm was a reportable event under Form 3. The Firm failed to file a Form 3 reporting one of the proceedings for over a year after learning of the initiation of that proceeding and failed to file a Form 3 reporting the initiation of the other proceedings until over four years after the initiation of one proceeding and well past the 30-day reporting deadline for the remaining proceedings.

4. Additionally, the Firm learned that two disciplinary proceedings against it by the CSRC had been concluded in December 2018 and August 2019. The conclusion of those proceedings against the Firm also constituted reportable events under Form 3. The Firm failed to report any of the events until June 16, 2020, well after the 30-day reporting deadline.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

C. Respondent Failed to Disclose Certain Reportable Events to the Board, in Violation of PCAOB Rules

5. PCAOB Rule 2203 provides that a registered public accounting firm must file a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence.[2] One such specified event occurs when a firm "has become aware that, in a matter arising out of the Firm's conduct in the course of providing professional services for a client, the Firm has become a defendant or respondent in a civil or alternative dispute resolution proceeding initiated by a governmental entity or in an administrative or disciplinary proceeding other than a Board disciplinary proceeding."[3] Another such specified event occurs when a firm has become aware that a reportable proceeding (i.e., a reportable event under Items 2.4 – 2.9 of Form 3) has been concluded as to the firm or certain of its associated persons.[4]

6. Between 2015 and 2020, the CSRC initiated disciplinary proceedings against the Firm and certain of its associated persons. Each of the proceedings related to the Firm's provision of professional services to companies that were not issuers.[5] The Firm first learned of the initiation of the proceedings no later than the following dates:

- Proceeding 1: November 20, 2015
- Proceeding 2: May 31, 2016
- Proceeding 3: January 31, 2019

[2] See PCAOB Rule 2203, Special Reports. As the Board noted when adopting its rules on special reporting, "[R]eportable events will sometimes occur, and the public interest, as well as the ability to consider whether prompt action is warranted by the Board's inspection staff or enforcement staff, will be served by contemporaneous reporting of the event." PCAOB Rel. No. 2008-004, at 17 (June 10, 2008).

[3] PCAOB Form 3, at Item 2.7 (italics in the original removed). To be reportable under Item 2.7, the proceeding only has to relate to professional services for a client, and does not necessarily have to involve an audit of an issuer, broker, or dealer, as those terms are defined under PCAOB rules.

[4] PCAOB Form 3, at Item 2.10.

[5] The term "issuer" means an issuer (as defined in Section 3 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act")), the securities of which are registered under Section 12 of the Exchange Act, or that is required to file reports under Section 15(d) of the Exchange Act, or that files or has filed a registration statement that has not yet become effective under the Securities Act of 1933, and that it has not withdrawn. See PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

- Proceeding 4: July 31, 2019

- Proceeding 5: January 31, 2020

7. In violation of Rule 2203, the Firm failed to file a Form 3 with respect to the initiation of Proceeding 1 until June 29, 2017, over a year after the initiation of that proceeding. In addition, in violation of Rule 2203, the Firm failed to file a Form 3 for the four other proceedings until June 16, 2020, over four years after the initiation of Proceeding 2 and well past the 30-day reporting deadline for the remaining three proceedings.

8. Additionally, the CSRC concluded Proceeding 2 on December 29, 2018, and Proceeding 1 on August 27, 2019.

9. In violation of Rule 2203, the Firm failed to file a Form 3 with respect to the conclusion of these two proceedings until June 16, 2020.

IV.

All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. The Firm shall pay this civil money penalty within ten (10) days of the issuance of this Order by: (1) wire transfer pursuant to instructions provided by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Controller, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the Firm as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Zhonghua Certified Public Accountants LLP,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2020-018

September 29, 2020

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is censuring Zhonghua Certified Public Accountants LLP (the "Firm" or "Respondent"), a registered public accounting firm, imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000 upon the Firm, and requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial measures, including measures to establish policies and procedures directed toward ensuring compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements. The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that the Firm failed to disclose certain reportable events to the Board on PCAOB Form 3, Special Report, in violation of PCAOB rules.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order Instituting

Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. Zhonghua Certified Public Accountants LLP is, and at all relevant times was, a partnership organized under Chinese law, and headquartered in Shanghai, China. At all relevant times, the Firm has been registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. The Firm is licensed in China by the Chinese Ministry of Finance.

B. Summary

2. This matter concerns the Firm's failures to disclose four reportable events, concerning two disciplinary proceedings, to the Board on Form 3 as required by PCAOB rules. PCAOB rules required the Firm to complete and file a PCAOB special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within 30 days of the event's occurrence. Among the events that the Firm was required to report on Form 3 were its becoming a respondent in certain disciplinary proceedings and the conclusion of such proceedings.

3. In 2019, the Firm and certain of its associated persons became respondents in two disciplinary proceedings initiated by the China Securities Regulatory Commission ("CSRC"). The initiation of each of those proceedings against the Firm was a reportable event under Form 3. With respect to each of the proceedings, the Firm failed to file a Form 3 reporting that it had become a respondent in the proceeding.

4. In addition, the conclusion of these proceedings constituted reportable events under Form 3. The Firm also failed to file a report of the conclusion of each matter on Form 3.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

C. Respondent Failed to Disclose Certain Reportable Events to the Board, in Violation of PCAOB Rules

5. PCAOB Rule 2203 provides that a registered public accounting firm must file a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence.[2] One such specified event occurs when a firm "has become aware that, in a matter arising out of the Firm's conduct in the course of providing professional services for a client, the Firm has become a defendant or respondent in a civil or alternative dispute resolution proceeding initiated by a governmental entity or in an administrative or disciplinary proceeding other than a Board disciplinary proceeding."[3] Another such specified event occurs when a firm has become aware that a reportable proceeding (i.e., a reportable event under Items 2.4 – 2.9 of Form 3) has been concluded as to the firm or certain of its associated persons.[4]

6. No later than May 24, 2019, the Firm became aware that the CSRC had initiated disciplinary proceedings against it and two of its associated persons. The proceeding related to the provision of professional services by the Firm to a company that was not an issuer.[5]

7. No later than October 28, 2019, the Firm became aware that the CSRC had initiated disciplinary proceedings against it and two of its associated persons. The proceeding related to the provision of professional services by the Firm to a company that was not an issuer.

[2] See PCAOB Rule 2203, Special Reports. As the Board noted when adopting its rules on special reporting, "[R]eportable events will sometimes occur, and the public interest, as well as the ability to consider whether prompt action is warranted by the Board's inspection staff or enforcement staff, will be served by contemporaneous reporting of the event." PCAOB Rel. No. 2008-004, at 17 (June 10, 2008).

[3] PCAOB Form 3, at Item 2.7 (italics in the original removed). To be reportable under Item 2.7, the proceeding only has to relate to professional services for a client, and does not necessarily have to involve an audit of an issuer, broker, or dealer, as those terms are defined under PCAOB rules.

[4] PCAOB Form 3, at Item 2.10.

[5] The term "issuer" means an issuer (as defined in Section 3 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act")), the securities of which are registered under Section 12 of the Exchange Act, or that is required to file reports under Section 15(d) of the Exchange Act, or that files or has filed a registration statement that has not yet become effective under the Securities Act of 1933, and that it has not withdrawn. See PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

8. In violation of Rule 2203, the Firm failed to file a Form 3 with the Board with respect to either the initiation or conclusion of these proceedings.

9. The Firm's internal compliance and reporting systems failed to identify the initiation of the proceedings described above, and their conclusion, as being reportable to the PCAOB. As a result, the Firm inappropriately failed to notify the PCAOB of the initiation and conclusion of relevant disciplinary proceedings.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), the Firm is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000 is imposed upon the Firm. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. The Firm shall pay this civil money penalty within ten (10) days of the issuance of this Order by: (1) wire transfer pursuant to instructions provided by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Controller, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the Firm as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006; and

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), the Firm is required:

   1. within ninety (90) days from the date of this Order, to establish policies and procedures, or revise and/or supplement existing policies and procedures, for the purpose of providing the Firm with reasonable assurance of compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements, including policies and procedures providing reasonable assurance that reportable events are identified by Firm personnel who participate in the Firm's PCAOB reporting process and that those events are reported on the applicable PCAOB form in a timely and complete manner;

2. within ninety (90) days from the date of this Order, to establish policies to ensure training concerning PCAOB reporting requirements, at least annually, of any Firm personnel who participate in the Firm's PCAOB reporting process;

3. within ninety (90) days from the date of this Order, to assign the role of compliance with PCAOB reporting matters to an individual within the Firm who possesses adequate knowledge and experience with PCAOB reporting requirements and sufficient authority within the Firm to fulfill those requirements on behalf of the Firm; and

(1) imposing a $750,000 civil money penalty on the Firm;

(2) barring Homsley from being associated with a registered public accounting firm,[1] if Homsley is permitted to associate once again with any registered public accounting firm, limiting his activities in connection with any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), until three years from the date of this Order by prohibiting Homsley from serving in certain capacities in any audit, as described in Section IV hereto, and imposing a $15,000 civil money penalty on Homsley; and

(3) limiting Leslie's activities in connection with any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act, for a period of two years.

The Board is imposing these sanctions based on its findings that: (1) Homsley and the Firm violated PCAOB rules and standards[2] in connection with the Firm's audits of the financial

A. Respondents

1. Grant Thornton LLP is a limited liability partnership organized under the laws of the state of Illinois and headquartered in Chicago, Illinois. The Firm has offices in multiple locations, including Portland, Oregon, and Seattle, Washington. The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. Grant Thornton LLP was Erickson's external auditor, including for the Audits. The Firm issued unqualified audit opinions on Erickson's consolidated financial statements for FYs 2013, 2014, and 2015.

2. Gary C. Homsley is a certified public accountant licensed by the Oregon Board of Accountancy (License No. 6311). At all relevant times, Homsley was an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). Until July 31, 2019, Homsley was a Partner of the Firm, resident in its Portland, Oregon, office. Homsley was the engagement partner on the Audits.

3. Larry Dana Leslie is a certified public accountant licensed by the Washington State Board of Accountancy (License No. 20946). At all relevant times, Leslie was an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). Until October 31, 2018, Leslie was a Partner of the Firm, resident in its Seattle, Washington, office. From 2009 through August 1, 2016, Leslie served as the Pacific Northwest Audit Practice Leader, or equivalent position. Leslie conducted the engagement quality reviews ("EQRs") of the Audits.

B. Issuer

4. Erickson, Inc., was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). Erickson provided aviation services, mainly in the logging, firefighting, construction, and defense sectors. Erickson filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code on November 8, 2016. Erickson emerged from bankruptcy in April 2017 and is now under private ownership.

C. Summary

5. This matter concerns, among other things, the Firm's and Homsley's violations of PCAOB rules and standards in auditing Erickson's liabilities resulting from aircraft lease agreements and Erickson's ability to continue as a going concern. Specifically, the Firm and negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

Homsley failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, and failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence in connection with certain Erickson lease-related liabilities. These lease-related liabilities concerned Erickson's contractual obligations to maintain or return aircraft to conditions specified under the relevant aircraft lease agreements. The Firm and Homsley failed to evaluate sufficiently whether Erickson's financial statements correctly reported its lease-related liabilities. The Firm and Homsley also failed, in the FY2015 Audit, to evaluate adequately Erickson's ability to continue as a going concern. As a result of these failures, the Firm lacked an appropriate basis to issue an unqualified opinion in each Audit.[5]

6. This matter also concerns Leslie's failure to perform his role as EQR partner with due professional care. Specifically, Leslie violated Auditing Standard ("AS") No. 7, Engagement Quality Review ("AS 7") by, among other things, failing to evaluate appropriately the engagement teams' significant judgments with respect to planning, including consideration of the risk of certain Erickson lease-related liabilities and consideration of Erickson's ability to continue functioning as a going concern.[6] As a result of the inadequacy of his engagement quality review, Leslie lacked an appropriate basis for his concurring approval of the issuance of GT's unqualified opinion in the FY2014 Audit and FY2015 Audit.[7]

7. Finally, the Firm and Homsley violated the auditing standards on documentation by failing to ensure that portions of each Audit's working papers in connection with audit remediation bore correct dates. As a result, certain hard copy remediation work papers for the Audits (the "Remediation Work Papers"), when archived, reflected that those work papers had been completed earlier than they actually had been.[8]

8. The documentation violations involving the Remediation Work Papers resulted, at least in part, from the Firm's insufficient QC system related to audit documentation, which failed to provide reasonable assurance that the engagement teams would document their audit work in accordance with professional standards.[9]

i. Erickson's Aircraft Leases

9. Erickson had 21 aircraft in its fleet as of December 31, 2012. On May 2, 2013, Erickson acquired Evergreen Helicopters, Inc. ("EHI") for a total purchase price of approximately $298 million (the "EHI Acquisition"), including 35 leased aircraft.

10. Erickson's aircraft leases contained provisions requiring Erickson to maintain the leased aircraft in a specified condition during the term of the lease, i.e., a Return to Service Obligation ("RTS Obligation"), and/or to return the aircraft to the lessor in a specified condition at the end of the lease, i.e., a Lease Return Obligation. These obligations could give rise to corresponding liabilities for Erickson. For example, should an aircraft be in a non-airworthy condition at the end of or during its lease, Erickson could be liable for the cost of returning the aircraft to an airworthy condition.[10]

11. Following the EHI Acquisition, Erickson recorded a liability relating to some of its newly acquired leases. This post-acquisition liability was initially $20.4 million and related to nine specific EHI aircraft (the "2013 EHI Liability"). Erickson subsequently amortized the 2013 EHI Liability. As of December 31, 2013, the remaining 2013 EHI Liability, included in Erickson's accrued and other current liabilities, totaled around $9.7 million. By the end of FY2014, Erickson had reduced the 2013 EHI Liability to zero. From the time of the EHI Acquisition through December 31, 2015, Erickson did not record any liabilities for RTS Obligations or Lease Return Obligations other than the 2013 EHI Liability. As of December 31, 2014 and 2015, Erickson had zero recorded liabilities for RTS Obligations and Lease Return Obligations.

12. On November 9, 2016, Erickson filed a Form 8-K reporting, among other things, that it had: (1) filed for bankruptcy under Chapter 11; (2) failed to make its November 2016 interest payments on its 2020 Senior Notes; and (3) concluded that its previously issued consolidated financial statements for the years ended December 31, 2015 and 2014 and for each of the quarterly and year-to-date periods ended in 2014 and 2015 and through June 30, 2016 should no longer be relied upon because of certain errors in the financial statements. Erickson reported that the errors resulted from not accruing an expense when various leased aircraft fell into non-airworthy condition, despite certain of the Company's aircraft lease agreements requiring that it maintain its leased aircraft in an airworthy condition at all times.

[10] Alternatively, Erickson could negotiate with the lessor to buy out the aircraft from its lease, which may have been economically beneficial for Erickson if the purchase price was lower than the repair-related cost.

Erickson reported that it had "discovered an estimated $13.8 million understatement of current liabilities and return-to-service expense as the net cumulative effect of these errors through June 30, 2016."[11] Erickson has now emerged from bankruptcy and is privately owned.

ii. The Engagement Teams

13. Prior to joining the Erickson engagement for the FY2012 Audit, Homsley had no experience auditing companies that operated aircraft or with the applicable GAAP for the aviation industry, i.e., ASC Topic 908, Airlines. The engagement teams' members also lacked aviation industry audit experience outside the Erickson engagement. GT offered no aviation industry training to the engagement teams working on the Audits.

14. The Firm had audit quality concerns about Homsley before retaining him as engagement partner for the FY2015 Audit. Indeed, the Firm placed Homsley on a Partner Support Plan in September 2015, due to issues with Homsley's FY2013 and FY2014 Audits. The Firm and Homsley discussed reducing Homsley's client workload in connection with his transition to a different role at the Firm, but the Firm did not notify Homsley that it had placed him on the Partner Support Plan.

15. The Firm considered removing Homsley from all issuer audits before the FY2015 Audit, but, among other things, determined that doing so "could also negatively impact the workload of the partner the work was transferred to." The Firm decided to retain Homsley as the engagement partner for Erickson's FY2015 Audit, despite being aware of Homsley's audit quality issues. Likewise, the Firm chose to retain Leslie as EQR partner on the FY2015 Audit despite its awareness of audit quality issues relating to the FY2013 Audit and FY2014 Audit, on which Leslie had been the EQR partner.

E. The Firm and Homsley Violated PCAOB Standards in Auditing Erickson's Liabilities Relating to its Lease Agreements

i. Failure To Adequately Assess Risks

16. In connection with the preparation or issuance of any audit report, PCAOB rules require that registered public accounting firms and their associated persons comply with applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.[12] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements only when the auditor has formed such an opinion on the basis of an audit performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[13]

17. PCAOB standards require auditors to perform risk assessment procedures that are sufficient to provide a reasonable basis for identifying and assessing the risks of material misstatement, whether due to error or fraud, and designing further audit procedures.[14] Auditors are required to obtain an understanding of the company and its environment to understand the events, conditions, and company activities that might reasonably be expected to have a significant impact on the risk of material misstatement.[15] Under those standards, auditors should obtain an understanding of the nature of the company, the selection and application of accounting principles, business risks, and company performance measures.[16]

18. The Firm and Homsley failed to ensure that the engagement teams obtained an adequate understanding of certain Erickson lease-related liabilities, as was required under AS 12.[17] AS 12 specifically provides that obtaining an understanding of a company includes understanding a company's industry, along with the company's objectives and strategies and those related business risks that might reasonably be expected to result in risks of material misstatement.[18] However, with the exception of the 2013 EHI Liability, the engagement teams failed to obtain an understanding of any of Erickson's individual lease terms that may have given rise to RTS Obligations or Lease Return Obligations.

19. During the FY2014 and FY2015 audits, the Firm and Homsley did not consider management's estimate of any aircraft lease liabilities in connection with RTS Obligations or Lease Return Obligations to be significant. Despite knowing that Erickson's fleet had expanded to include leased aircraft, GT's engagement teams did not identify a risk during the FY2014 and FY2015 audits that Erickson's liabilities for RTS Obligations or Lease Return Obligations could be materially understated,[19] whether caused by error or fraud.

20. The Firm and Homsley failed to evaluate appropriately, whether, and how, Erickson's aircraft leases affected the risks of material misstatement. The Firm and Homsley also failed to obtain a sufficient understanding of Erickson's selection and application of accounting principles about its leased aircraft. The Firm and Homsley failed to evaluate whether Erickson's selection and application of accounting principles was appropriate for its business and consistent with GAAP.

21. The Firm and Homsley never obtained an adequate understanding of how Erickson management accounted for RTS Obligations or Lease Return Obligations after the EHI Acquisition. Despite knowing that Erickson's aircraft leases might contain terms that could cause these types of material liabilities, the Firm and Homsley failed to take sufficient steps, including adequately reviewing the aircraft lease agreements, to understand Erickson's contractual obligations related to potential RTS Obligations and Lease Return Obligations. Further, Homsley did not instruct the engagement teams to document these potential liabilities included in the aircraft leases that they reviewed. Other than for the 2013 EHI Liability, the engagement teams failed to obtain an understanding of any individual lease terms that may have given rise to RTS Obligations or Lease Return Obligations.

ii. Failure To Obtain Sufficient Audit Evidence To Support The Lack Of Liabilities

22. PCAOB standards require, among other things, that an auditor plan and perform the audit with due professional care and to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the auditor's opinion.[20]

23. The Firm and Homsley failed to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence to support Erickson's determinations concerning certain lease-related liabilities. GT's engagement teams did not plan or perform procedures in the FY2014 or FY2015 Audits designed to identify unrecorded liabilities related to RTS Obligations or Lease Return Obligations. During the FY2014 and FY2015 Audits, the Firm and Homsley failed to test whether Erickson's conclusions in this area were correct, despite knowing that at least nine of Erickson's leased aircraft had previously been subject to RTS Obligations and/or Lease Return Obligations.

24. First, the Firm and Homsley failed to evaluate sufficiently, during the FY2014 or FY2015 audits, when the last major maintenance period was for any leased aircraft or when any of the aircraft leases terminated and the potential relevance of such information for Lease Return Obligations. They failed to evaluate adequately any leases for purposes of considering the timing of any potential Lease Return Obligations despite that the FY2014 and FY2015 work papers documented the scheduled termination of various aircraft leases in March 2015, March 2016, and December 2016. Nor did the work papers adequately demonstrate the interaction between last major maintenance periods or lease terminations and potential liabilities related to Lease Return Obligations. The Firm and Homsley lacked a basis on which to determine whether Erickson's failure to accrue costs to satisfy certain obligations was appropriate or not.

25. Second, the Firm and Homsley knew, or should have known, that Erickson needed to consider accruing a liability when an event occurred that damaged or otherwise caused a leased aircraft to enter into a state of disrepair which grounded the aircraft, rendering it non-airworthy. The Firm and Homsley knew that as of December 31, 2014, Erickson had fifteen non-airworthy aircraft. Despite this knowledge, the Firm and Homsley took no steps to determine whether any of those fifteen non-airworthy aircraft were leased for purposes of evaluating potential RTS Obligations. The Firm and Homsley knew, or should have known, that Erickson also had non-airworthy aircraft in 2015. However, the Firm and Homsley failed to test Erickson's determination that it had no liabilities related to RTS Obligations. Although the relevant aircraft leases revealed the potential for RTS Obligations on the face of the agreements, neither the Firm nor Homsley instructed anyone on the engagement teams to review the leases and perform procedures to identify and assess the impact of potential RTS Obligations included in the aircraft leases. As a result, Homsley and the engagement teams lacked a sufficient basis on which to assess whether Erickson's failure to record certain lease-related liabilities was appropriate.

26. As a result of these deficiencies, the Firm and Homsley failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether all of Erickson's lease-related liabilities were fairly stated, in all material respects, in the FY2014 Audit and FY2015 Audit.[21]

[21] See AS 15 ¶ 4; see also AU §§ 230.01-.02, .07.

F. The Firm and Homsley Failed to Adequately Evaluate Erickson's Ability to Continue as a Going Concern

27. PCAOB standards required the Firm and Homsley to evaluate, based on their knowledge of relevant conditions and events that existed at or occurred before the date of the Firm's audit report, whether there was substantial doubt about Erickson's ability to continue as a going concern for a reasonable period of time, not to exceed one year, beyond the date of the financial statements being audited.[22] Ordinarily, information that significantly contradicts a going concern assumption relates to the entity's inability to continue to meet its obligations as they become due without substantial disposition of assets outside the ordinary course of business, restructuring of debt, externally forced revisions of its operations, or similar actions.[23] An auditor may identify information about certain conditions or events that, when considered in the aggregate, indicate there could be substantial doubt about the entity's ability to continue as a going concern for a reasonable period of time.[24] Examples of such conditions or events include: negative trends; other indications of possible financial difficulties; internal matters (e.g., labor difficulties, substantial dependence on the success of a particular project, etc.); and certain external matters (e.g., loss of a principal customer or supplier, matters which might jeopardize an entity's ability to operate, etc.).[25]

28. The FY2015 Erickson audit report, issued on March 10, 2016, did not include a going concern explanatory paragraph concerning Erickson's ability to continue operating as a going concern throughout FY2016, i.e., until December 31, 2016.

29. The Firm and Homsley violated PCAOB standards by failing to consider sufficiently conditions and events of which they were aware, or should have been aware, that, when considered in the aggregate, should have caused the engagement team to evaluate further whether there was substantial doubt about Erickson's ability to continue operating as a going concern.[26]

30. The Firm and Homsley failed to consider appropriately numerous red flags that ought to have caused them to evaluate more closely Erickson's ability to continue functioning as a going concern. For example, the Firm and Homsley failed to evaluate adequately Erickson's predicted cash flow in FY2016 and ability to meet its FY2016 debt payment obligations. Based on information available to the Firm and Homsley, Erickson lacked sufficient predicted cash flow in FY2016 to meet its debt payment obligations for its long-term debt, including payments required to be made in connection with its credit facility ("Line of Credit"). While Erickson's forecasted FY2016 principal and interest obligations totaled between $44-45 million, its projected FY2016 cash flows, excluding principal and interest payments on its debt ("Net Debt-free Cash Flows"), totaled only around $26 million. Therefore, the required FY2016 principal and interest payments exceeded projected Net Debt-free Cash Flows by around $18-19 million. This shortfall exceeded Erickson's combined cash on hand of $2.1 million and positive working capital of $8.5 million by approximately $8.4 million. While the $22.9 million available under Erickson's Line of Credit exceeded the $8.4 million shortfall, the audit team failed to analyze adequately Erickson's projections given the amount drawn down on the Line of Credit observed in the first month of 2016.

31. The Firm and Homsley failed to consider adequately the terms of Erickson's financial covenants and their impact on Erickson's Line of Credit borrowing capacity. Erickson's borrowing increased by around $10 million in January 2016. As of January 31, 2016, Erickson's borrowing availability was around $13 million without triggering a default, which affected Erickson's ability to make up the shortfall between its debt service obligations and projected cash flows, while using the Line of Credit as a method of funding operations. The Firm and Homsley failed to consider the limiting effect of the financial covenants on Erickson's borrowing capacity and the effective cap on Erickson's ability to borrow.

32. The Firm and Homsley also failed to consider adequately multiple negative trends affecting Erickson. For example, Erickson's revenue decreased 14 percent, from $346.6 million in FY2014 to $297.5 million in FY2015. Erickson also decreased its projected revenue. Management announced in Q1 2015 that their FY2015 revenue forecast was to be between $330 to $350 million, which they decreased to around $300 million in Q3 2015. Another negative trend was that Erickson reported a net loss totaling $86.7 million for FY2015, a 742 percent increase from the reported net loss totaling $10.3 million for FY2014. The FY2015 net loss included impairment losses of around $65 million, which had increased by 200 percent from the reported impairment losses of $21.3 for FY2014.

33. Homsley and the engagement team also failed to consider adequately other indications of possible financial difficulties. For example, in FY2015 Erickson was considered to have an accounting and governance risk that was rated "Very Aggressive," in a research analysis report, from an outside data research firm that provided GT with analyst services. GT provided this report to the engagement team during the FY 2015 Audit. The report also placed Erickson in the first percentile, indicating the Company had a higher likelihood of experiencing financial distress than 99 percent of other companies reviewed.

34. The Firm and Homsley also failed to adequately consider whether the following factors in the aggregate indicated that there could be substantial doubt about Erickson's ability to continue as a going concern: (i) Erickson classified around 20 percent of its operating fleet (15 aircraft) as held for sale as of December 31, 2015; (ii) Erickson reduced employee headcount from December 31, 2013 to December 31, 2015 by around 400, or 33 percent; and (iii) Erickson received a determination from the U.S. Small Business Administration ("SBA") on November 25, 2015 that concluded Erickson was no longer considered to have a "small business size" status. The SBA's decision precluded Erickson from bidding on certain contracts as the prime contractor, resulting in lower margins and increased uncertainty over revenue for the affected contracts for Erickson. Ultimately, Erickson was not able to continue operating as a going concern until December 31, 2016; it filed for bankruptcy protection in November 2016.

35. As a result of these deficiencies, the Firm and Homsley failed to exercise due professional care and failed to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence concerning Erickson's ability to continue as a going concern.[27]

G. Homsley Failed to Supervise Appropriately the Engagement Teams

36. PCAOB standards hold the engagement partner responsible for the engagement and its performance.[28] Homsley was therefore responsible for the assignment of tasks to, and supervision of, members of the engagement teams.[29]

37. Homsley failed to determine appropriately the extent of supervision necessary for his engagement teams' members to perform their work and form appropriate conclusions related to Erickson's aircraft lease liabilities.[30] Homsley failed to evaluate appropriately his teams' knowledge, skill, and ability.[31] For example, Homsley failed to take adequately into account his teams' lack of experience with aviation companies like Erickson, and, in particular, his teams' lack of auditing experience relating to aircraft leases.

38. PCAOB standards also required Homsley, in the absence of other engagement team members performing supervisory activities, to review the work of his engagement team members to evaluate whether the work was performed and documented, the objectives of the procedures were achieved, and the results of the work supported the conclusions reached.[32] Homsley failed to perform these responsibilities appropriately, including with regard to the engagement teams' work concerning certain Erickson lease-related liabilities and, in FY2015, the evaluation of Erickson's ability to continue operating as a going concern.

39. Homsley failed to supervise appropriately the engagement teams' review of Erickson's leases, including certain Erickson lease-related liabilities. Homsley failed to instruct the engagement teams to review Erickson's aircraft leases to examine potential RTS Obligations or Lease Return Obligations that might lead to liabilities, despite knowledge of similar obligations in Erickson's aircraft lease agreements that GT had reviewed in connection with the 2013 EHI Liability. Homsley also failed to direct the engagement teams to analyze the terms of the leases to identify when Erickson would incur such lease-related liabilities. Homsley further failed to instruct the FY2015 engagement team to perform sufficient work to support its conclusion as to Erickson's ability to continue functioning as a going concern. Homsley neglected to supervise the engagement team's work to ensure it had performed sufficient work to support its conclusion as to Erickson's ability to keep functioning as a going concern.

40. The audit deficiencies discussed above stemmed from, among other things, Homsley's failure to supervise properly the work of his engagement teams' members.

H. Leslie Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with his Engagement Quality Reviews for the FY2014 and FY2015 Audits

41. The EQR partner is responsible for evaluating the significant judgments made by the engagement team and the related conclusions reached in forming the overall conclusion on the engagement and in preparing the engagement report.[33] The EQR partner's responsibilities include evaluating the engagement team's significant judgments that relate to engagement planning, including with respect to financial reporting risks.[34] In connection with an audit, the

[34] See AS 7 ¶ 10.a.

EQR partner should evaluate whether the documentation that he or she reviewed supports the conclusions reached by the engagement team with respect to the matters reviewed.[35] The EQR partner must perform his or her responsibilities with due professional care and skepticism.[36]

42. Leslie violated PCAOB rules and standards by failing to evaluate appropriately the engagement teams' significant judgments relating to engagement planning with respect to financial reporting risks and the Company's ability to continue as a going concern.[37] Leslie also failed to exercise due professional care in performing his engagement quality reviews and thus, failed to have an appropriate basis to provide his concurring approval of issuance.[38]

43. Leslie failed to evaluate sufficiently the engagement teams' significant judgments relating to engagement planning in the FY2014 Audit and FY2015 Audit. Specifically, he failed to evaluate adequately the engagement teams' judgments not to plan in either the FY2014 Audit or FY2015 Audit to test whether Erickson may have understated certain of its liabilities arising from aircraft leases as described above. Leslie's omission occurred despite his knowledge that Erickson had previously recorded the lease-related liability of $20.4 million following the EHI Acquisition.

44. During the FY2015 Audit, Leslie inquired whether Erickson might be understating its liabilities relating to its RTS Obligations. As a result, he raised questions with an audit manager about whether the team had tested Erickson's estimate of such lease-related liabilities by reviewing flight logs. Leslie requested that the audit manager look at the flight logs and obtain any additional support for Erickson's estimate of its lease-related liabilities which, at the time of the FY2015 Audit, was zero. Despite raising these concerns and questions, Leslie failed to evaluate adequately whether the engagement team's documentation was sufficient to assuage his concerns relating to the risk that Erickson may be understating its liabilities. Therefore, Leslie did not evaluate sufficiently the engagement team's response to the concern he raised, or whether the engagement documentation he reviewed when performing his required procedures supported the conclusions reached by the engagement team concerning the risk that Erickson's lease-related liabilities were understated as of December 31, 2015.[39]

39 See AS 7 ¶¶ 9-10.a., 11.

45. Leslie also failed to evaluate appropriately the significant judgments made by the engagement team concerning Erickson's ability to continue as a going concern.[40] Leslie considered the engagement team's conclusion that a going concern explanatory paragraph was not required in the FY2015 Audit report to be a significant judgment made by the engagement team. However, Leslie failed to evaluate appropriately the engagement team's consideration of Erickson's ability to continue as a going concern. Leslie did not adequately evaluate whether the engagement documentation supported the significant judgment made by the engagement team with respect to going concern. Leslie was aware from review of the engagement team's going concern documentation and his conversations with Homsley of conditions and events that may have contradicted the engagement's team conclusion. Leslie also failed to give sufficient weight to contradictory evidence in work papers that he reviewed.[41] In addition, Leslie failed to ensure his going concern considerations were sufficiently documented in the audit work papers.[42]

46. As a result of the deficiencies mentioned above, Leslie violated AS 7 and provided his concurring approval of issuance of the FY2014 Audit and FY2015 Audit reports without performing his EQRs with due professional care.[43]

I. The Firm and Homsley Violated PCAOB Rules and Auditing Standards Regarding the Dating of Audit Work Papers

47. AS No. 3, Audit Documentation, ("AS 3") requires that audit documentation contain sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement, to determine the person who reviewed the work and the date of the review.[44] AS 3 also requires that any documentation added after the documentation completion date must indicate the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding it.[45] Homsley understood this requirement when he signed off on the Remediation Work Papers for the Audits.

48. The Firm and Homsley completed the Remediation Work Papers because each of the Audits was found to have deficiencies. The Firm's internal inspection function determined that the FY2013 Audit and FY2015 Audit required remediation. The PCAOB's inspectors examined the FY2014 Audit and issued four comment forms on that audit. As a result, Homsley and the engagement team also performed remediation work relating to the FY2014 Audit.

49. Homsley bore ultimate responsibility for ensuring that audit remediation work papers were complete and accurate and were added to the hard copy work papers file. Homsley understood the importance that the Board and the Firm placed on timely remediation and understood that failing to complete the remediation timely could negatively impact his performance evaluation and compensation.

50. Homsley and the engagement teams failed to ensure that the Remediation Work Papers relating to the FY2013, FY2014, and FY2015 Audits bore correct dates. The FY2013 Audit remediation cover memorandum was dated September 16, 2014. While the engagement team drafted a version of the cover memorandum by that date, the engagement team did not complete the FY2013 Audit remediation by that date. The engagement team continued to work on the FY2013 remediation through at least November 9, 2014. Indeed, the FY2013 Audit remediation work papers had not been finalized or added to the FY2013 external file, and the remediation of the FY2013 Audit remained open, on the date that GT issued its FY2014 Erickson audit report.

51. Homsley and the engagement team also failed to ensure that the Remediation Work Papers for the FY2014 Audit bore correct dates. The FY2014 Audit remediation cover memorandum was dated September 18, 2015. While the engagement team drafted a version of the cover memorandum by that date, the engagement team had not completed all of the documented procedures as of September 18, 2015. Further, the FY2014 Audit remediation work papers reflect communications between Homsley and Erickson's management and audit committee chair that did not occur until after the date reflected in the FY2014 Audit remediation work papers.

52. In addition, the FY2015 Audit remediation work was also not completed by the date reflected on that remediation cover memo.

53. As a result of the foregoing, the Firm and Homsley violated PCAOB rules and audit documentation standards.

J. The Firm Failed to Comply with PCAOB Quality Control Standards Relating to Certain Audit Remediation Documentation

54. PCAOB rules and standards require that registered firms establish and maintain an adequate system of quality control.[46] PCAOB quality control standards require firms to design, implement, and monitor policies and procedures to "provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its personnel comply with applicable professional standards and the firm's standards of quality."[47]

55. "A firm's system of quality control encompasses the firm's organizational structure and the policies adopted and procedures established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance of complying with professional standards."[48] "The nature, extent, and formality of a firm's quality control policies and procedures should be appropriately comprehensive and suitably designed in relation to the firm's size, the number of its offices, the degree of authority allowed its personnel and its offices, the knowledge and experience of its personnel, the nature and complexity of the firm's practice, and appropriate cost-benefit considerations."[49]

56. A firm should also establish policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its quality control policies and procedures are suitably designed and are being effectively applied.[50] In addition, PCAOB quality control standards require that a firm "should communicate its quality control policies and procedures to its personnel in a manner that provides reasonable assurance that those policies and procedures are understood and complied with."[51]

57. The Firm's quality control system failed to meet the requisite standards with respect to the dating of hard copy remediation work papers. During the period of the violations described above, the Firm failed adequately to design, implement, maintain and monitor an adequate QC system to ensure that personnel dated all hard copy work papers in compliance with professional standards.

58. Specifically, the Firm's quality control system failed to ensure that Firm personnel, including Homsley, accurately dated the Remediation Work Papers. Likewise, the Firm's QC system enabled Homsley and the engagement teams to access and finalize the Remediation Work papers without any significant controls to ensure certain professional standards related to the dating of remediation work papers were followed. Specifically, the Firm failed to monitor appropriately the access to, and dating of, hard copy Remediation Work Papers. As a result, the Firm failed to ensure that the Remediation Work Papers bore correct dates in each of the Audits.[52]

IV.

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Homsley is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[53]

[52] The Firm has represented to the Board that, since the events described in this Order, it has issued revised internal quality control policies requiring engagement teams to document remediation procedures in the electronic work paper file, which requires electronic signoffs and allows the Firm's electronic audit program to automatically track the date remediation work papers are archived. Under the revised policies, engagement teams are also required to use a standard remediation cover memorandum, which instructs engagement teams to date the memorandum with the date it is added to the audit work papers (which, unless impracticable, should be the same date the remediation file is archived) as opposed to any other date. The revised policies also require a member of the Firm's National Office to determine whether the remediation work papers were appropriately archived.

[53] As a consequence of the bar, the provisions of Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act will apply with respect to Gary Homsley, CPA. Section 105(c)(7)(B) provides: "It shall be unlawful for any person that is suspended or barred from being associated with a registered public accounting firm under this subsection willfully to become or remain associated with any issuer, broker, or dealer in an accountancy or a financial management capacity, and for any issuer, broker, or dealer that knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of such suspension or bar, to permit such an association, without the consent of the Board or the Commission."

B. Pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), Homsley may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order;

C. If Homsley is permitted to associate once again with a registered public accounting firm, pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(C) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(3), for a period of three years from the date of this Order, Homsley's role in any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(a)(v), shall be restricted as follows: Homsley shall not (1) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement partner," as that term is used in the Board's AS 1201, Supervision of the Audit Engagement; (2) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement quality reviewer," as that term is used in the Board's AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review; (3) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, in any role that is equivalent to engagement partner or engagement quality reviewer, but differently denominated (such as "lead partner," "practitioner-in-charge," or "concurring partner"); (4) exercise authority, or supervise the work of another person exercising authority, either to sign a registered public accounting firm's name to an audit report, or to consent to the use of a previously issued audit report, for any issuer, broker, or dealer; or (5) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as the "other auditor," or "another auditor," as those terms are used in the Board's AS 1205, Part of the Audit Performed by Other Independent Auditors;

D. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(C) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(3), for a period of two years from the date of this Order, Leslie's role in any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(a)(v), shall be restricted as follows: Leslie shall not (1) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement quality reviewer," as that term is used in AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review, or (2) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, in any role that is equivalent to, but differently denominated from, engagement quality reviewer (such as "concurring partner"); and

E. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), the Board imposes the following civil money penalties:

1. Grant Thornton LLP, $750,000; and

2. Gary Homsley, $15,000.

All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of these civil money penalties will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Respondents shall pay these civil money penalties within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Controller, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the entity or person as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006. Respondent Gary Homsley understands that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may alone be grounds to deny any petition, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm.

ORDER INSTITUTING DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDINGS, MAKING FINDINGS, AND IMPOSING SANCTIONS

In the Matter of Mimi Liu, CPA,

Respondent.

December 3, 2020

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is suspending Mimi Liu, CPA ("Liu" or the "Respondent") from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm for a period of one year from the date of this Order.

The Board is imposing this sanction on Liu on the basis of its findings that Liu violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the audits of the financial statements of Issuer A for the year ended December 31, 2016 and Issuer B for the year ended March 31, 2016 (collectively, the "Audits").

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds[2] that:

A. Respondent

1. Mimi Liu is a certified public accountant licensed by the Nevada State Board of Accountancy (License No. CPA-5430). At all relevant times, Liu was a partner of AMC Auditing, LLC ("AMC" or the "Firm") and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Relevant Entity

2. AMC Auditing, LLC is a limited liability company organized under the laws of the State of Nevada and headquartered in Las Vegas, Nevada. AMC is licensed in the state of Nevada (Business ID NV20161240269). AMC is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

C. Issuers

3. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, a Marshall Islands corporation headquartered in Marjuro, Marshall Islands. Its public filings disclose that Issuer A was a development stage company focused on delivering targeted therapies, including chemotherapy drugs. Its common stock was registered, at all relevant times, under Section 12(g) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act"). It was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

4. Issuer B was, at all relevant times, a Nevada corporation headquartered in Scottsdale, Arizona. Its public filings disclose that the company sold bottled water. Its common stock was registered, at all relevant times, under Section 12(g) of the Exchange Act. It was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

D. Summary

5. This matter concerns Liu's violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Audits. Liu served as the engagement quality review ("EQR") partner for the 2016 audit of Issuer A and as the engagement partner for the 2016 audit of Issuer B.[3]

6. Liu gave her concurring approval in connection with the issuance of AMC's 2016 audit report for Issuer A, which expressed an unqualified audit opinion on Issuer A's financial statements. The audit report stated that AMC's audit was conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards and that the company's financial statements were fairly presented in all material respects in conformity with U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles ("GAAP"). As detailed below, while serving as EQR partner for the Firm's 2016 audit of Issuer A, Liu failed to: (a) properly evaluate significant judgments made by the engagement team; and (b) properly evaluate whether the audit documentation supported the engagement team's conclusions reached. As a consequence, Liu failed to perform her review of the Firm's 2016 audit of Issuer A with due professional care.

7. Liu authorized the issuance of AMC's 2016 audit report for Issuer B, which expressed an unqualified opinion on Issuer B's financial statements. The audit report stated that the audit was conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards, and that the company's financial statements were fairly presented in all material respects in conformity with GAAP. As detailed below, Liu failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence and failed to perform sufficient audit procedures to support the opinion expressed in the audit report, in violation of PCAOB rules and auditing standards.

E. Respondent Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the 2016 Audit of Issuer A.

8. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[4] AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review, requires that an EQR be performed on all audit engagements conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards.[5] AS 1220 also provides that a firm may grant permission to an audit client to use the firm's audit report only after an EQR partner provides concurring approval of issuance of the report.[6] In conducting the engagement quality review, the EQR partner should evaluate the significant judgments made by the engagement team and the related conclusions reached in forming the overall conclusion on the engagement.[7] The EQR partner should also evaluate whether the engagement documentation supports the conclusions reached by the engagement team with respect to the matters reviewed by the EQR partner.[8]

9. Prior to 2016, Issuer A had a history of recurring losses. In 2016, Issuer A reported an intangible asset, subject to amortization, related to a patent license agreement. The intangible asset represented approximately 37 percent of total assets. The company claimed to be using the patent license agreement in connection with developing a program to deliver chemotherapy drugs.

As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. See Reorganization of PCAOB Auditing Standards and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards and Rules, PCAOB Release No. 2015-002 (Mar. 31, 2015); see also PCAOB Auditing Standards Reorganized and Pre-Reorganized Numbering (Jan. 2017). The reorganization did not impose additional requirements on auditors or change substantively the requirements of PCAOB standards. While Respondent's conduct occurred both before and after the reorganization, the reorganized standards are cited herein for purposes of clarity.

10. The engagement team did not perform an appropriate risk assessment relating to the intangible asset, and it did not perform sufficient procedures to identify and assess the risks of material misstatement related to the intangible asset.[9] The engagement team's risk assessment procedures were documented in work papers that Liu reviewed.

11. The engagement team also did not identify and assess risks related to the effect of certain conditions on the recoverability of the intangible asset or its valuation.[10] These conditions included the issuer's lack of revenue, recurring losses, negative cash flows from operating activities, and its accumulated deficit. In addition to reviewing the risk assessment work papers, Liu also reviewed the issuer's financial statements and the Firm's draft audit report, which identified these conditions.

12. The intangible assets section of AMC's work papers for this audit, which Liu reviewed, consisted of: (1) an amortization and depreciation worksheet; and (2) an impairment questionnaire filled out by company management. The engagement team did not perform audit procedures beyond recalculating the amortization and depreciation calculations on the worksheet and reviewing the issuer's impairment questionnaire responses. The impairment questionnaire contained questions asking management to identify events or changes in circumstances that indicated the potential need to test a long-lived asset for recoverability. For each item, management represented that the events or changes in circumstances were not applicable, even though certain items appeared to be applicable based on the facts known to the engagement team and Liu at the time of the audit. For example, one of the factors on the impairment questionnaire asked whether there was a "current-period operating or cash flow loss combined with a history of operating or cash flow losses or a projection or forecast that demonstrates continuing losses associated with the use of a long-lived asset (asset group)," and management responded "No." The engagement team and Liu, however, reviewed the issuer's financial statements, which revealed that the company had a current-year operating cash flow loss and operating cash flow losses for the last several years.

13. As stated above, Liu also reviewed AMC's draft audit report, which included an explanatory paragraph indicating that there was substantial doubt about the issuer's ability to continue as a going concern due to the following conditions: lack of revenue, recurring losses, negative cash flows from operating activities, and accumulated deficit. Despite knowing about this information, which contradicted management's representations in the completed questionnaire and raised serious questions about whether the intangible asset was properly valued, Liu, serving as the EQR partner, provided concurring approval for the issuance of AMC's audit report, and the engagement partner authorized the issuance of that report.

14. Liu reviewed the engagement team's intangible asset work papers, and thus knew that the engagement team had determined not to perform procedures outside of recalculating the amortization and depreciation calculations and management inquiry. Liu also knew that certain management responses in the impairment questionnaire were contradicted by information in the issuer's financial statements and the Firm's own audit report. Finally, the work papers she reviewed did not evidence any consideration by the engagement team of contradictory audit evidence known to the team and Liu. As a result, Liu failed to conduct her review with due professional care and failed to properly evaluate the significant judgments made, and the related conclusions reached, by the engagement team.[11] Liu also failed to properly evaluate whether the audit documentation supported the engagement team's conclusions with respect to the intangible asset, in violation of PCAOB rules and auditing standards.[12]

F. Respondent Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the 2016 Audit of Issuer B.

15. An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements only when the auditor has formed such an opinion on the basis of an audit performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[13] Among other things, PCAOB standards require an auditor to exercise due professional care, exercise professional skepticism, and plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the auditor's opinion.[14]

16. Issuer B's 2016 financial statements were originally audited by a different firm. Following the Board's issuance of an order revoking the predecessor auditor's registration with the PCAOB, and suspending an engagement partner at the predecessor auditor, Issuer B was required to have its 2016 financial statements reaudited.[15] AMC performed the reaudit and Liu served as the engagement partner.

17. In 2016, Issuer B reported inventory that represented approximately 12 percent of total assets. The predecessor auditor's work papers, which were included in the AMC reaudit work papers, indicated that inventory was held at five locations. Liu did not perform sufficient appropriate procedures to test the existence of inventory, such as making or observing physical counts of the inventory and applying appropriate tests of intervening transactions, but instead relied on the predecessor auditor's performance, at the time of the original 2016 audit, of a year-end physical inventory observation and inventory test counts at two locations.[16] In 2016, inventory at those two locations represented approximately 42 percent of the issuer's inventory at year-end. In addition, Liu failed to perform any procedures to test the existence of inventory held at other locations and in transit, which represented approximately 58 percent of the issuer's inventory at year-end.[17] Despite this, Liu authorized the issuance of AMC's audit report containing an unqualified opinion.

18. In sum, because inventory observation procedures were not performed for most of the reported inventory, nor was sufficient evidence obtained or conclusions reached to evaluate Issuer B's representations about quantities and physical condition of inventory, Liu failed to obtain sufficient evidence for reported inventory during Issuer B's 2016 audit.[18]

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanction agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Mimi Liu, CPA is suspended for a period of one year from the date of this Order from

In the Matter of AMC Auditing, LLC and Alexandria Yi, CPA,

Respondents.

December 3, 2020

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is imposing sanctions upon AMC Auditing, LLC ("AMC" or the "Firm") and Alexandria Yi, CPA ("Yi") (collectively, "Respondents"). The Board is:

(1) revoking the registration of AMC, a registered public accounting firm;[1] and

(2) barring Yi from being associated with a registered public accounting firm.[2]

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that: (a) Respondents violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Firm's audits of the financial statements of Issuer A for the year ended December 31, 2016, and Issuer B for the years ended March 31, 2016 and March 31, 2017 (collectively, the "Audits"); and (b) the Firm violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards in connection with the Audits.

[1] The Firm may reapply for registration after one year from the date of this Order.

[2] Yi may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after one year from the date of this Order. If the Board later consents to Yi associating with a registered firm, the Board further restricts, for one year from the date of the granting of such consent, the roles that Yi may perform on "audits," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act").

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have submitted Offers of Settlement ("Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to the entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[3]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds[4] that:

A. Respondents

B. Issuers

3. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, a Marshall Islands corporation headquartered in Marjuro, Marshall Islands. Its public filings disclose that Issuer A was a development stage company focused on delivering targeted therapies, including chemotherapy drugs. Its common stock was registered, at all relevant times, under Section 12(g) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act"). It was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

4. Issuer B was, at all relevant times, a Nevada corporation headquartered in Scottsdale, Arizona. Its public filings disclose that the company sold bottled water. Its common stock was registered, at all relevant times, under Section 12(g) of the Exchange Act. It was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

5. This matter concerns Respondents' violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Audits. Yi served as the engagement partner for the 2016 audit of Issuer A, and as the engagement quality review ("EQR") partner for the 2016 and 2017 audits of Issuer B.[5]

6. In the 2016 audit report for Issuer A, the Firm expressed an unqualified opinion on Issuer A's financial statements. The audit report stated that the Firm's audit was conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards, and that the company's financial statements were fairly presented in all material respects in conformity with U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles ("GAAP"). As detailed below, Respondents failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence and failed to perform sufficient audit procedures to support the opinion expressed in the audit report, in violation of PCAOB rules and auditing standards.

7. In the 2016 and 2017 audit reports for Issuer B, the Firm expressed unqualified opinions on Issuer B's financial statements. The audit reports stated that the Firm's audits were conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards, and that the company's financial statements were fairly presented in all material respects in conformity with GAAP. As detailed below, the Firm failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence and failed to perform sufficient audit procedures to support the opinions expressed in the audit reports, in violation of PCAOB rules and auditing standards.

8. While serving as the EQR partner for the Firm's 2016 and 2017 audits of Issuer B, Yi provided her concurring approval for the issuance of the Firm's audit reports despite Yi failing to: (a) properly evaluate the significant judgments made, and the related conclusions reached, by the engagement teams; and (b) properly evaluate whether the audit documentation supported the engagement teams' conclusions. As a consequence, Yi failed to perform her review of the Firm's 2016 and 2017 audits of Issuer B with due professional care.

9. Finally, this matter concerns the Firm's violations of PCAOB rules and quality control standards. In connection with the Audits, the Firm failed to maintain a system of quality control sufficient to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that engagement teams performed issuer audits in accordance with applicable professional standards and regulatory requirements.

D. Respondents Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the Audits.

10. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[6] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements only when the auditor has formed such an opinion on the basis of an audit performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[7] Among other things, PCAOB standards require an auditor to exercise due professional care, exercise professional skepticism, and plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the auditor's opinion.[8]

As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. See Reorganization of PCAOB Auditing Standards and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards and Rules, PCAOB Release No. 2015-002 (Mar. 31, 2015); see also PCAOB Auditing Standards Reorganized and Pre-Reorganized Numbering (Jan. 2017). The reorganization did not impose additional requirements on auditors or change substantively the requirements of PCAOB standards. While Respondents' conduct occurred both before and after the reorganization, the reorganized standards are cited herein for purposes of clarity.

11. Further, while management representations are part of the evidential matter the auditor obtains, they are not a substitute for the application of those auditing procedures necessary to afford a reasonable basis for an opinion regarding the financial statements under audit.[9] If management representations are contradicted by other audit evidence, the auditor should investigate the circumstances and consider the reliability of the representations made and, based on the circumstances, consider whether his or her reliance on management's representations relating to other aspects of the financial statements is appropriate and justified.[10]

i. Respondents' 2016 Audit of Issuer A

12. Prior to 2016, Issuer A had a history of recurring losses. In 2016, Issuer A reported an intangible asset, subject to amortization, related to a patent license agreement. The intangible asset represented approximately 37 percent of total assets. The company claimed to be using the patent license agreement in connection with developing a program to deliver chemotherapy drugs.

13. Respondents failed to perform an appropriate risk assessment relating to the intangible asset, and failed to perform sufficient procedures to identify and assess the risks of material misstatement related to the intangible asset.[11] Respondents also failed to identify and document intangible assets as a significant account.

14. Respondents failed to identify and assess risks related to the effect of certain conditions on the recoverability of the intangible asset or its valuation.[12] These conditions, which were known to Respondents, included the issuer's lack of revenue, recurring losses, negative cash flows from operating activities, and its accumulated deficit.

15. The intangible assets section of AMC's work papers for this audit consisted of: (1) an amortization and depreciation worksheet; and (2) an impairment questionnaire filled out by company management. Respondents failed to perform audit procedures beyond recalculating the amortization and depreciation calculations on the worksheet and reviewing the issuer's impairment questionnaire responses. As explained below, the procedures performed failed to provide sufficient appropriate audit evidence about whether the asset was properly valued. [13]

16. Respondents also failed to take into account all relevant audit evidence, regardless of whether it appeared to corroborate or to contradict the assertions in the financial statements.[14] Management's representations in the impairment questionnaire were contradicted by other audit evidence. The impairment questionnaire contained questions asking management to identify events or changes in circumstances that indicated the potential need to test a long-lived asset for recoverability. For each item, management represented that the events or changes in circumstances were not applicable, even though certain items appeared to be applicable based on the facts known to Respondents at the time of the audit. For example, one of the factors on the impairment questionnaire asked whether there was a "current-period operating or cash flow loss combined with a history of operating or cash flow losses or a projection or forecast that demonstrates continuing losses associated with the use of a long-lived asset (asset group)," and management responded "No." Respondents knew, and the issuer's financial statements revealed, however, that the company had a current-year operating cash flow loss and operating cash flow losses for every year since 2013.[15] Respondents, however, failed to exercise professional skepticism by not investigating the circumstances and considering the reliability of the management representations made.[16]

17. In addition, the Firm's audit report included an explanatory paragraph indicating that there was substantial doubt about the issuer's ability to continue as a going concern due to the following conditions: lack of revenue, recurring losses, negative cash flows from operating activities, and accumulated deficit. Despite knowing about this information, which contradicted management's representations in the completed questionnaire and raised serious questions about whether the intangible asset was properly valued, Yi authorized the issuance of the Firm's audit report without investigating the circumstances and considering the reliability of management's representations.[17]

18. Respondents failed to evaluate the intangible asset with due professional care and professional skepticism, and failed to resolve inconsistencies in the audit evidence suggesting that management's representations in the impairment questionnaire were inaccurate.[18] Instead, Respondents accepted management's representations and ignored the inconsistent audit evidence.[19] Respondents thus failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence and failed to perform sufficient procedures to assess the impairment and valuation of the intangible asset, in violation of PCAOB rules and auditing standards.

ii. AMC's 2016 and 2017 Audits of Issuer B

19. Issuer B's 2016 financial statements were originally audited by a different firm. Following the Board's issuance of an order revoking the predecessor auditor's registration with the PCAOB, and suspending an engagement partner at the predecessor auditor, Issuer B was required to have its 2016 financial statements reaudited. AMC performed the reaudit.[20]

20. In 2016, Issuer B reported inventory that represented approximately 12 percent of total assets. The predecessor auditor's work papers, which were included in the AMC reaudit work papers, indicated that inventory was held at five locations. The Firm did not perform sufficient appropriate procedures to test the existence of inventory, such as making or observing physical counts of the inventory and applying appropriate tests of intervening transactions, but instead relied on the predecessor auditor's performance, at the time of the original 2016 audit, of a year-end physical inventory observation and inventory test counts at two locations.[21] In 2016, inventory at those two locations represented approximately 42 percent of the issuer's inventory at year-end. In addition, the Firm failed to perform any procedures to test the existence of inventory held at other locations and in transit, which represented approximately 58 percent of the issuer's inventory at year-end.[22]

21. In 2017, Issuer B reported inventory that represented approximately 19 percent of total assets. At year-end, the issuer had inventory in six locations and inventory in-transit. The Firm performed an inventory observation at the same two locations selected the prior year, where approximately 25 percent of inventory was held in 2017. The Firm, however, failed to perform any procedures related to the existence of approximately 75 percent of inventory.

22. In sum, because inventory observation procedures were not performed for most of the reported inventory, nor was sufficient evidence obtained or conclusions reached to evaluate Issuer B's representations about quantities and physical condition of inventory, the Firm failed to obtain sufficient evidence for the reported inventory during Issuer B's 2016 audit and most of the reported inventory for the 2017 audit.[23]

iii. Yi's EQR of the 2016 and 2017 Audits of Issuer B

23. AS 1220 requires that an EQR be performed on all audit engagements conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards.[24] AS 1220 also provides that a firm may grant permission to an audit client to use the firm's audit report only after an EQR partner provides concurring approval of issuance of the report.[25] Further, the EQR partner should evaluate the significant judgments made by the engagement team and the related conclusions reached in forming the overall conclusion on the engagement.[26] The EQR partner should also evaluate whether the engagement documentation supports the conclusions reached by the engagement team with respect to the matters reviewed by the EQR partner.[27]

24. Yi reviewed the engagement documentation that indicated the procedures performed for inventory testing in the 2016 and 2017 audits of Issuer B, and gave her concurring approval for the issuances of the 2016 and 2017 audit reports. During her EQR, Yi reviewed the issuer's financial statements, which reflected that inventory represented approximately 12 percent of total assets in 2016 and 19 percent in 2017. Yi also reviewed the engagement teams' inventory work papers, and thus knew that the engagement team had determined in each audit to rely on the testing of the same two locations. In giving her concurring approval, Yi failed to properly evaluate this significant judgment made, and the related conclusions reached, by the engagement teams for these audits, and failed to properly evaluate whether the audit documentation supported the engagement teams' conclusions with respect to the existence of reported inventory during Issuer B's 2016 audit and most of the reported inventory for the 2017 audit, in violation of PCAOB rules and auditing standards.[28]

E. The Firm Violated PCAOB Quality Control Standards.

25. PCAOB rules and standards require that a registered firm establish and maintain a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice.[29] A firm should establish policies and procedures to provide it with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality.[30]

26. In connection with the Audits, AMC failed to establish and maintain policies and procedures that provided reasonable assurance Firm personnel complied with applicable professional standards and regulatory requirements, including exercising due professional care and obtaining sufficient appropriate evidence.[31] Instead, on multiple issuer audits, conducted by multiple engagement personnel over the course of multiple years, AMC and its professionals failed to comply with applicable professional standards and regulatory requirements. As a result, AMC violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

ORDER INSTITUTING DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDINGS, MAKING FINDINGS AND IMPOSING SANCTIONS

In the Matter of Tan Joon Wei,

Respondent.

March 29, 2021

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is barring Tan Joon Wei ("Tan" or "Respondent") from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm.[1] The Board is imposing this sanction on the basis of its findings that Tan failed to cooperate with a Board inspection and violated PCAOB audit documentation standards in connection with the audit of an issuer.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order Instituting

[1] Tan may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two (2) years from the date of this Order.

Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[2]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[3]

A. Respondent

1. Tan Joon Wei, age 32, is a member of the Institute of Singapore Chartered Accountants (member no. 830651). Until January 2020, and at all relevant times, Tan was a manager at KPMG LLP, a firm based in Singapore ("KPMG Singapore" or "Firm"). Tan participated as a member of the engagement team in the audit of Issuer A's 2018 financial statements. At all relevant times, Tan was an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Issuer A

2. Issuer A is based in Germany with American Depository Shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange. At all relevant times, Issuer A was an issuer as defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

3. This matter concerns Tan's failure to cooperate with a Board inspection and violation of PCAOB audit documentation requirements. Tan was a manager on the Firm engagement team that performed an audit of the 2018 financial statements of a subsidiary of Issuer A ("Subsidiary"). The audit of those financial statements ("Subsidiary Audit") was performed as part of the 2018 audit of Issuer A conducted—and in support of an audit opinion issued—by KPMG AG Wirtschaftsprüfungsgesellschaft ("KPMG Germany").

[2] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[3] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

4. Following the documentation completion date for the Issuer A and Subsidiary audits, Tan learned that the Subsidiary Audit had been selected for review as part of an upcoming PCAOB inspection of the Firm. Tan thereafter oversaw the modification of four work papers to add descriptions of audit procedures, including certain procedures conducted following KPMG Germany's issuance of its audit opinion on Issuer A's 2018 financial statements. Those modified work papers were then included in hard copy binders provided to PCAOB inspectors without any indication that modifications had been made, nor any information about when, why, or by whom they had been modified.

5. Tan also prepared on behalf of the Firm a Substantial Role and Referred Work Engagement Profile ("Engagement Profile"), a form that PCAOB inspectors asked the Firm to complete in advance of their fieldwork. Tan falsely stated therein that no changes had been made to the work papers for the Subsidiary Audit after the documentation completion date. During inspection fieldwork, Tan participated in meetings with the inspectors, but failed to disclose the work paper modifications or the false statement in the Engagement Profile.

6. Tan's actions and omissions violated his duty to cooperate with a Board inspection and the PCAOB's audit documentation standard.

D. Tan Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

i. Duty to Cooperate with a Board Inspection and Audit Documentation Requirements

7. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that associated persons of registered public accounting firms comply with applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.[4]

8. The Board's audit documentation standard states in part: "Prior to the report release date, the auditor must have completed all necessary auditing procedures and obtained sufficient evidence to support the representations in the auditor's report. A complete and final set of audit documentation should be assembled for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date (documentation completion date) . . . . Audit documentation must not be deleted or discarded after the documentation completion date, however, information may be added. Any documentation added must indicate the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding it."[5]

[4] See PCAOB Rule 3100, Compliance with Auditing and Related Professional Practice Standards.

[5] AS 1215.15-.16, Audit Documentation (emphasis in original).

9. PCAOB Rule 4006 states in part: "Every registered public accounting firm, and every associated person of a registered public accounting firm, shall cooperate with the Board in the performance of any Board inspection."[6] "Implicit in this cooperation requirement is that auditors provide accurate and truthful information" to the Board's inspectors.[7]

ii. Tan Oversaw Improper Work Paper Modifications in Anticipation of a PCAOB Inspection

10. The documentation completion date for KPMG Germany's 2018 audit of Issuer A was April 6, 2019. The Firm assembled for retention the final sets of electronic and hard copy work papers for the Subsidiary Audit on March 5, 2019, and April 6, 2019, respectively.

11. By letter dated July 16, 2019, the PCAOB's Division of Registration and Inspections notified KPMG Singapore that the Firm had been selected for inspection, with fieldwork scheduled to begin in August. Tan learned of the scheduled inspection and, in early August, of the inspectors' selection of the Subsidiary Audit for review as part of that inspection.

12. Tan subsequently expressed concern to colleagues about the quality of work conducted in certain areas of the Subsidiary Audit and about the potential findings from the upcoming inspection. On August 4, 2019, for example, in reference to the anticipated review of the Subsidiary Audit, he wrote in a chat communication to a senior-in-charge assigned to the Subsidiary Audit: "I think [Issuer A] got picked for pcaob/ We are screwed." On the same day, he wrote to another colleague: "[Issuer A] only revenue work is good/ All else is crap....."

13. Over the next several days, Tan had additional communications with Firm audit staff regarding concerns related to the adequacy of the Subsidiary Audit generally and of the work in particular audit areas.

14. On August 7, 2019, the senior-in-charge wrote in a chat communication to Tan about certain deficiencies in work papers for the Subsidiary Audit. The senior-in-charge proposed: "we do hardcopy and file in? then no timestamp." Tan replied affirmatively to that suggestion. That same day, Tan asked another member of the Subsidiary Audit engagement team to check out the hard copy work paper files for the Subsidiary Audit from the Firm's Central Filing Room.

15. Between August 7, 2019, and the beginning of inspection fieldwork on August 19, 2019, other Firm audit staff worked with Tan to modify four work papers from the Subsidiary Audit. They modified the electronic versions of those work papers by deleting, revising, and adding content; printing out the revised versions; and placing them in the hard copy work paper binders for the Subsidiary Audit. The modifications reflected the results of both procedures performed only after the issuance of KPMG Germany's report on the 2018 audit of Issuer A and procedures performed duiring the Subsidiary Audit but never documented. The modified work papers contained no indication they had been modified following the April 6, 2019 documentation completion date for the Subsidiary Audit, nor any information concerning who made the modifications or when or why they had been made.

16. Tan understood that the work paper binders would be provided to the Board's inspectors when they arrived to conduct their fieldwork.

17. On August 16, 2019, after the modified work papers had been printed and added to the hard copy work paper files, in a chat conversation with the senior-in-charge, Tan stated: "I damn scared they go and catch the hardcopy."

18. The hard copy binders, containing the four improperly altered work papers, were provided to the Board's inspectors when they arrived to conduct their fieldwork.

iii. Tan Prepared a Misleading Engagement Profile and Failed to Disclose the Modifications in Meetings with the Board's Inspectors

19. Tan prepared the Engagement Profile that KPMG Singapore provided to the Board's inspectors prior to the commencement of their fieldwork. The Engagement Profile contained the question: "Have there been any changes made to the audit documentation subsequent to the documentation completion date?" Tan added the response: "no."

20. During the first week of the inspection fieldwork, Tan participated in multiple meetings with inspection staff. Tan, however, disclosed neither the modification of the work papers nor the false statement in the Engagement Profile.

21. Later that week, the inspectors encountered indications that the work papers had been modified. They communicated their concerns to Firm management and engagement team personnel, and Tan learned of those concerns. Rather than disclose the modifications at that point, however, Tan falsely told Firm leadership and the engagement partner for the Subsidiary Audit that the modifications had been made in connection with the Firm's still ongoing audit of the Subsidiary's financial statements for purposes of local reporting requirements, rather than in anticipation of the PCAOB inspection. Tan did not clarify or correct that false information when the engagement partner communicated it to the Board's inspectors in Tan's presence.

22. Tan's actions and omissions violated his duty to cooperate with the Board's inspection of the Subsidiary Audit under PCAOB Rule 4006, as well as the audit documentation requirements of AS 1215.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Tan is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[8] and

B. After two years from the date of this Order, Tan may file a petition, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm.

ORDER INSTITUTING DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDINGS, MAKING FINDINGS, AND IMPOSING SANCTIONS

In the Matter of Morgan & Company LLP,

Respondent.

March 30, 2021

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or PCAOB) is imposing sanctions upon Morgan & Company LLP ("Morgan," the "Firm," or "Respondent"). The Board is:

(1) censuring the Firm, a registered public accounting firm; and

(2) imposing a $25,000 civil money penalty on the Firm.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Morgan violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the audits of an issuer.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. Morgan & Company LLP[2] is a limited liability partnership organized under the laws of British Columbia, Canada, and headquartered in Vancouver, Canada. The Firm was, until its practice merger on August 1, 2020, licensed by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia (Lic. No. 664381). At all relevant times, the Firm was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

B. Other Relevant Entity

2. Firm B is a partnership organized under the laws of Mexico and headquartered in Mexico City, Mexico. At all relevant times, the firm was a "public accounting firm" within the meaning of Section 2(a)(11) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(iii).

C. Issuer

3. "Issuer A" was, at all relevant times, a Canadian corporation. Issuer A's public filings disclose that, at all relevant times, it was a mineral company engaged in the business of acquiring and exploring mineral properties. Its common stock was registered, at all relevant times, under Section 12(g) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act"). Issuer A was required to file periodic reports with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission"), and the financial statements contained in those reports were required to be audited pursuant to PCAOB standards. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] Effective August 1, 2020, the Firm merged its practice with Canadian PCAOB registrant Smythe LLP and also submitted a Form 1-WD to withdraw from PCAOB registration on that date. The Firm's withdrawal request is pending.

D. Summary

4. This matter concerns Morgan's violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with its audits of Issuer A.

5. During three consecutive audits of the consolidated financial statements of Issuer A for fiscal years ended August 31, 2015, 2016 and 2017, respectively (the "FY 2015 – FY 2017 Audits"), Morgan issued audit reports on Issuer A's financial statements as Issuer A's principal auditor. During this period, Morgan used the work of a Mexican public accounting firm not registered with the PCAOB ("Firm B") in opining on Issuer A's financial statements.

6. Firm B audited over 90% of Issuer A's assets and performed services that Morgan used or relied on in issuing its audit reports. Morgan knew from inquiries to Firm B that it was not PCAOB-registered. However, during the FY 2015 – FY 2017 Audits, Morgan failed to perform an adequate analysis regarding whether it could serve as Issuer A's principal auditor and use the work of Firm B.

7. During each audit, Morgan also failed to appropriately coordinate its activities with Firm B. Morgan asked Firm B to perform specified procedures to support its opinions, and instructed Firm B to perform the procedures in accordance with Canadian Auditing Standards (CAS), not PCAOB standards. Firm B personnel were not trained in CAS or PCAOB standards, and, in fact, performed its procedures in accordance with Mexican Auditing Standards (MAS). Morgan was not aware that Firm B applied MAS, and failed to determine whether Firm B's audit work was compliant with PCAOB standards.

8. As such, Morgan failed, as described in more detail below, to comply with PCAOB rules and standards during the FY 2015 – FY 2017 Audits.

E. Morgan Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the FY 2015 – FY 2017 Audits of Issuer A

9. For the FY 2015 – FY 2017 Audits, Morgan served as the principal auditor of Issuer A. In each independent auditor's report included with Issuer A's financial statements filed with the Commission on Form 20-F for FY 2015 – FY 2017, Morgan stated that it had conducted its audits in accordance with CAS and PCAOB standards.[3] The audit reports did not make reference to another auditor.[4]

10. In connection with the preparation or issuance of any audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[5] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements only when the auditor has formed such an opinion on the basis of an audit performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[6] In addition, AS 1015, Due Professional Care in the Performance of Work, requires "[d]ue professional care … to be exercised in the planning and performance of the audit and the preparation of the report."[7]

[3] The Firm issued audit reports containing unqualified audit opinions on the financial statements of Issuer A dated December 23, 2015, December 28, 2016, and December 21, 2017, respectively. Each report contained an explanatory paragraph on the entity's ability to continue as a going concern, and was included in Forms 20-F filed with the Commission on January 15, 2016, January 18, 2017, and January 18, 2018, respectively.

As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. See Reorganization of PCAOB Auditing Standards and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards and Rules, PCAOB Release No. 2015-002 (Mar. 31, 2015); see also PCAOB Auditing Standards Reorganized and Pre-Reorganized Numbering (January 2017). The reorganization did not impose additional requirements on auditors or change substantively the requirements of PCAOB standards. While Respondent's conduct occurred both before and after the reorganization, the reorganized standards are cited herein for purposes of clarity.

This conclusion may be expressed only when the auditor has formed such an opinion on the basis of an audit performed in accordance with the standards of the PCAOB.").

11. AS 1205, Part of the Audit Performed by Other Independent Auditors, establishes requirements that apply when an auditor of an issuer's financial statements "use[s] the work and reports of other independent auditors who have audited the financial statements of one or more subsidiaries, divisions, branches, components, or investments included in [that issuer's] financial statements…."[8]

12. In circumstances where a significant part of the audit is performed by another auditor, a firm, in considering whether it can serve as principal auditor, must decide whether its own participation in the audit is sufficient to enable it to serve as the principal auditor and to report as such on the financial statements.[9]

13. In deciding this question, the auditor should consider, among other things, the materiality of the portion of the financial statements the firm audited in comparison with the portion audited by other auditors, the extent of the auditor's knowledge of the overall financial statements, and the importance of the components the firm audited in relation to the enterprise as a whole.[10]

14. Whether or not the principal auditor decides to make reference to the audit of the other auditor, it should make inquiries concerning the professional reputation and independence of the other auditor.[11] In addition, the principal auditor should adopt appropriate measures to assure the coordination of its activities with those of the other auditor in order to achieve a proper review of the matters affecting the consolidating or combining of accounts in the financial statements.[12]

15. A public accounting firm that prepares or issues any audit report with respect to any issuer, broker, or dealer or plays a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an audit report with respect to any issuer, broker, or dealer must be registered with the Board.[13] A public accounting firm plays a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an audit report and is thus required to register when it: (1) performs material services that a public accounting firm uses or relies on in issuing all or part of its audit report; or (2) performs the majority of the audit procedures with respect to a subsidiary or component of any issuer, broker, or dealer, the assets or revenues of which constitute 20% or more of the consolidated assets or revenues of such issuer, broker, or dealer, necessary for the principal auditor to issue an audit report.[14]

16. The term "material services" means "services, for which the engagement hours or fees constitute 20% or more of the total engagement hours or fees, respectively, provided by the principal auditor in connection with the issuance of all or part of its audit report." [15] The term "does not include non-audit services provided to non-audit clients."[16]

i. Morgan's Use of Firm B's Work in the FY 2015 – FY 2017 Audits

17. During each of the FY 2015 – FY 2017 Audits, Morgan knew Issuer A's Mexican subsidiary held a substantial portion—over 90%—of Issuer A's assets. Morgan used another independent auditor—a Mexican public accounting firm, Firm B—to audit the subsidiary. Morgan inquired as to Firm B's professional reputation and independence, and understood from its inquiries that Firm B was not registered with the PCAOB.

18. Morgan failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards in its use of Firm B's work. For each of the FY 2015 – FY 2017 Audits, Morgan failed to perform any analysis to determine whether it could serve as Issuer A's principal auditor and use the work of Firm B.

19. Firm B in fact played a substantial role in the each of the FY 2015 – FY 2017 Audits—a level of participation requiring PCAOB registration.[17] Firm B performed the majority of the audit procedures with respect to the assets held by Issuer A's Mexican subsidiary, which constituted over 90% of the consolidated assets of Issuer A—substantially over the "20% or more" substantial role participation threshold.[18]

20. Firm's B's engagement hours and fees also amounted to "material services" that Morgan relied upon in issuing its reports, and constituted substantial role participation in the FY 2015 – FY 2017 audits.[19] In particular, the percentage of Firm B's hours out of the total audit hours ranged from 28% to 44%—each over the "material services" threshold of 20%. Firm B's fees, which varied from 21% to 24% of the total audit fees, were also over the 20% material services threshold.

21. Morgan failed to consider, in light of the materiality of the assets of the Mexican subsidiary that Firm B audited and the importance of the subsidiary in relation to the enterprise as a whole, whether Morgan's participation was sufficient to serve as a principal auditor.[20] Morgan also failed to perform any analysis as to whether it could use Firm B's audit work.

22. An adequate inquiry and analysis performed with due professional care concerning Firm B's professional reputation, based in part on the significance of the assets audited by Firm B, should have revealed that because Firm B was not registered with the PCAOB, Morgan should not have used its audit work.[21]

ii. Morgan Failed to Appropriately Coordinate its Activities with Firm B

23. During the FY 2015 – FY 2017 Audits, Morgan also failed to adopt appropriate measures to assure the coordination of its activities with Firm B in order to achieve a proper review of the matters affecting the consolidating or combining of accounts in Issuer A's financial statements.[22]

24. At the outset of each audit, Morgan provided Firm B with detailed instructions for performing more than 20 specified substantive audit procedures on the Mexican subsidiary, ranging from obtaining and preparing internal control process narratives and walkthroughs to identification of related parties and related balance confirmations. For each audit, Morgan directed Firm B to perform the specified procedures in accordance with CAS, not PCAOB standards. During the FY 2017 audit, for example, Morgan made no mention of PCAOB standards in its instructions to Firm B, and provided Firm B with copies of two CAS standards for reference.

25. Morgan never ascertained whether Firm B was familiar with PCAOB standards, and did not provide Firm B with any comparison or analysis of relevant CAS or PCAOB standards. In fact, Firm B personnel were trained in MAS, and applied MAS to the specified procedures, as they were not trained in auditing pursuant to CAS or PCAOB standards. Due to the lack of coordination between Morgan and Firm B, Morgan was not aware that Firm B personnel were applying MAS.

26. Morgan thus failed, during the FY 2015 – 2017 Audits, to perform adequate procedures to determine whether the work Firm B performed complied with the PCAOB standards referenced in its audit reports. In sum, Morgan failed to perform its work with due professional care and to assure the appropriate coordination of its activities with Firm B during the FY 2015 – FY 2017 Audits, in violation of PCAOB standards.[23]

iii. Morgan's Opinions Were Not Formed on the Basis of Audits Performed Pursuant to PCAOB Standards

27. Finally, because Morgan issued audit reports containing unqualified opinions on Issuer A's financial statements when the Firm had in fact failed during those audits to exercise due professional care and to adhere to PCAOB standards relating to the use of another auditor, as described above, Morgan also violated AS 3101 during the FY 2015 – FY 2017 Audits.[24]

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Morgan & Company LLP is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), the Board imposes a civil money penalty of $25,000 on Morgan & Company LLP. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of these civil money penalties will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Respondent shall pay this civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting

Order Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of MJF & Associates, APC and Miguel J. Figueroa, CPA,

Respondents.

April 22, 2021

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is imposing sanctions upon MJF & Associates, APC ("MJF" or "Firm") and Miguel J. Figueroa, CPA ("Figueroa") (collectively, "Respondents"). The Board is:

(1) revoking the registration of MJF, a registered public accounting firm;[1]

(2) barring Figueroa from being associated with a registered public accounting firm;[2] and

(3) imposing a $10,000 civil money penalty jointly and severally upon Respondents.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that: (a) MJF violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards, as well as the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act") by failing to take adequate steps to prevent a person subject to a Board-ordered bar from becoming an associated person of the Firm; and (b) Figueroa violated PCAOB rules and auditing standards by substantially contributing to MJF's violations and by violating the two-year cooling off period for engagement quality reviewers.

[2] Figueroa may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after one year from the date of this Order.

I.

The Board instituted non-public disciplinary proceedings against Respondents on December 19, 2019.[3] Pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have submitted Offers of Settlement ("Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to the entry of this Order Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[4]

II.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[5]

A. Respondents

1. MJF & Associates, APC is a professional corporation organized under the laws of the State of California and headquartered in Los Angeles. MJF is licensed by the California Board of Accountancy (Lic. No. 6236). At all relevant times, MJF was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

2. Miguel J. Figueroa is a certified public accountant licensed by the California Board of Accountancy (Lic. No. 87686) and the Florida Board of Accountancy (Lic. No. AC43301). At all relevant times, Figueroa was the managing partner and sole owner of MJF. Figueroa was, at all relevant times, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

[3] Section 105(c)(2) of the Act provides that litigated disciplinary proceedings shall not be public, "unless otherwise ordered by the Board for good cause shown, with the consent of the parties." Although the Board found good cause for making the proceedings public, Respondents did not consent, as permitted by Section 105(c)(2) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5203.

[4] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

B. Other Relevant Individual

3. Partner A joined MJF in February 2015 and remained with the Firm until July 2019. Pursuant to a Board order, Partner A was barred from associating with a registered public accounting firm for a period of over a year during the time Partner A was employed by MJF. During that bar period, therefore, MJF was prohibited from permitting Partner A to associate with the Firm, including by participating in the preparation or issuance of any audit report for MJF's issuer clients, without the consent of the Board or the Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission").[6]

C. Issuers

4. Issuer A is a Nevada corporation with its principal offices located in China. Issuer A's business focused on mining and processing direct reduced iron feed stock for the Chinese steel industry until it shifted its focus to the provision of digital displays for exhibition booths and real estate in late 2018. At all relevant times, Issuer A was an issuer as defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

5. Issuer B is a Nevada corporation with its principal offices in China. Issuer B's business focuses on developing waste energy recycling projects for industrial application. At all relevant times, Issuer B was an issuer as defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

6. Issuer C is a Nevada corporation with its principal offices in China. Issuer C's business focused on the sale in China of imported consumer products until the first quarter of 2017, when it pivoted to operating an upscale restaurant and catering business. At all relevant times, Issuer C was an issuer as defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

7. Issuer D is a Nevada corporation with its principal offices in China. Issuer D's business focuses on the design and manufacturing of heat pumps for commercial applications. At all relevant times, Issuer D was an issuer as defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

[6] See Act § 105(c)(7)(A); PCAOB Rule 5301(b). No such consent was provided by the Board or Commission.

D. Summary

8. This matter concerns MJF's and Figueroa's failure to take adequate steps to ensure that MJF would not permit Partner A to associate with the Firm while barred. Figueroa, MJF's sole owner and managing partner, was aware of the PCAOB order barring the individual from associating with any registered public accounting firm ("Bar Order") and understood that it precluded Partner A from remaining in a position that allowed Partner A to participate in any activity of MJF connected to the preparation or issuance of issuer audit reports.

9. However, while Partner A was barred, MJF did not take adequate steps to prevent Partner A from participating in year-end 2017 audits of Issuers A, B, and C, as well as quarterly reviews of those issuers during 2017. By failing to implement sufficient measures to preclude Partner A's participation in issuer audits and reviews while barred, MJF violated provisions of the Act and PCAOB rules prohibiting a registered public accounting firm that knows an individual is barred from allowing that person to become or remain associated with the firm. The Firm also violated the Board's quality control standards. Figueroa violated PCAOB rules by directly and substantially contributing to MJF's violations.

10. In addition, Figueroa violated AS 1220 in three separate instances by serving as the engagement quality reviewer ("EQR") for Issuers B and D within two years of serving as the engagement partner in audits of Issuers B and D.[7]

E. MJF Violated the Act, PCAOB Rules, and Quality Control Standards

i. Registered Firms May Not Permit Barred Individuals to Associate and Must Have Adequate Systems of Quality Control

11. Under the Act and PCAOB rules, a registered public accounting firm that knows, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, an individual is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm may not permit that person to become or remain an associated person of the firm without the consent of the Board or Commission.[8] A person becomes (or remains) associated with a registered public accounting firm when, among other things, that person is an "accountant" who "in connection with the preparation or issuance of any audit report . . . participates as agent or otherwise on behalf of such accounting firm in any activity of that firm."[9]

12. Additionally, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm comply with the Board's quality control standards,[10] which provide that a registered public accounting firm "shall have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice."[11] PCAOB quality control standards specify that "[p]olicies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality."[12]

13. PCAOB quality control standards also provide that policies and procedures for monitoring "should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the policies and procedures established by the firm for each of the other elements of quality control . . . are suitably designed and are being effectively applied,"[13] and that the firm's "system of quality control is effective."[14]

ii. MJF Failed to Take Adequate Steps to Not Permit Partner A to Associate with the Firm While Barred

14. Partner A informed Figueroa of the impending Bar Order prior to its issuance and Figueroa received a copy of the Bar Order after it was formally issued by the Board. Figueroa understood that the Bar Order meant Partner A could not participate in MJF's audits and reviews of issuer clients.

15. After the Board issued the Bar Order, however, MJF permitted Partner A to become or remain associated with the Firm by having Partner A remain in a position that allowed Partner A to engage in activities in connection with the preparation or issuance of issuer audit reports. Although MJF took certain steps to restrict Partner A's activity, the Firm failed to develop sufficient policies or procedures designed to ensure that Partner A did not associate with the Firm while barred.[15]

16. MJF continued to employ Partner A while barred, and MJF decided that it would continue performing audit work for issuer clients, many of which Partner A had brought to the Firm when Partner A joined MJF.

17. In response to the Bar Order, Respondents removed Partner A from the engagement teams conducting audits and reviews for issuer clients and assigned Partner A to engagements for non-issuers. Figueroa and Partner A informed MJF's issuer clients that Partner A would not act as engagement partner.

18. Respondents also blocked Partner A's access to MJF's electronic audit software as well as its electronic portal for receiving and storing client documents. Figueroa informed MJF staff about the Bar Order and continued his practice of conducting general periodic inquiries of Firm staff to ask if anything significant had occurred that he should know about. Figueroa, however, did not specifically inquire about whether Partner A had continued to participate in activities related to issuer audits.

19. Despite their awareness that Partner A had relationships with many of MJF's issuer clients and had previously served as engagement partner on those clients' audits, Respondents took no additional steps designed to ensure Partner A's compliance with the Bar Order. For instance, MJF did not enact any policies or procedures in response to the Bar Order. Nor did MJF institute any steps designed to directly monitor whether the Firm was permitting Partner A to associate while barred.

iii. MJF Permitted Partner A to Associate with the Firm While Barred

20. As a result of the above conduct, MJF permitted Partner A, while subject to the Bar Order and employed by MJF, to participate in MJF's year-end 2017 audits of Issuers A, B, and C, as well as quarterly reviews of those issuers during 2017.

21. Partner A's participation included communications with MJF engagement team members and issuer client personnel. For example, Partner A provided specific comments on audit work papers for issuer audits, raised substantive accounting issues for the engagement teams to consider, offered his professional opinion on accounting issues, and commented on specific language for issuer clients' public filings. Figueroa was not made aware of any of these communications.

22. Accordingly, MJF permitted Partner A to become an associated person of the Firm by engaging in activities on MJF's behalf in connection with the preparation or issuance of audit reports for MJF's issuer audit clients in violation of the Act and PCAOB rules.[16] Moreover, MJF's failure to implement adequate policies and procedures to ensure that the Firm would not permit Partner A's association while barred violated PCAOB quality control standards.[17]

F. Figueroa Violated PCAOB Rules and Auditing Standards

i. Figueroa Directly and Substantially Contributed to MJF's Violations

23. PCAOB Rule 3502 states that, "[a] person associated with a registered public accounting firm shall not take or omit to take an action knowing, or recklessly not knowing, that the act or omission would directly and substantially contribute to a violation by that registered public accounting firm of the Act, the Rules of the Board, the provisions of the securities laws relating to the preparation and issuance of audit reports and the obligations and liabilities of accountants with respect thereto, including the rules of the Commission issued under the Act, or professional standards."[18]

24. Throughout the time MJF employed Partner A, Figueroa was MJF's sole owner and managing partner. He was responsible for MJF's response to the Bar Order, including whether to continue to employ Partner A, what restrictions to place on Partner A while barred, and how to monitor Partner A's compliance with the Bar Order. Figueroa was also responsible for implementing quality control policies and procedures at MJF.

25. All of MJF's conduct described above was either conduct of Figueroa's, or omissions to act for which Figueroa was responsible, that Figueroa knew, or was reckless in not knowing, would directly and substantially contribute to MJF's violations of the Act, PCAOB rules, and quality control standards described above. Figueroa thereby violated PCAOB Rule 3502.

18 PCAOB Rule 3502, Responsibility Not to Knowingly or Recklessly Contribute to Violations.

ii. Figueroa Violated Auditing Standards by Serving as EQR within Two Audits of Serving as Engagement Partner

26. AS 1220 requires that "[t]he person who served as the engagement partner during either of the two audits preceding the audit subject to the engagement quality review may not be the engagement quality reviewer."[19]

27. MJF audited Issuer B's financial statements as of and for the years ended December 31, 2015, and December 31, 2016. Figueroa served as the engagement partner for the year-end 2015 audit of Issuer B and EQR for the year-end 2016 audit of Issuer B.

28. MJF audited Issuer D's financial statements as of and for the years ended December 31, 2015, December 31, 2016, and December 31, 2017. Figueroa served as the engagement partner for the year-end 2015 audit of Issuer D and EQR for the year-end 2016 and 2017 audits of Issuer D.

29. Therefore, on three separate occasions, Figueroa served as EQR on an issuer audit after having served as engagement partner within the prior two audits of that issuer in violation of PCAOB auditing standards.

III.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(A) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(1), the registration of MJF & Associates, APC is revoked;

B. After one year from the date of this Order, MJF & Associates, APC may reapply for registration by filing an application pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2101;

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Miguel J. Figueroa is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[20]

All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Respondents shall pay this civil money penalty within 10 days of the issuance of this Order by (a) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (b) United States postal money order, certified check, bank cashier's check or bank money order; (c) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board; (d) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006; and (e) submitted under a cover letter which identifies MJF and Figueroa as Respondents in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB Release Number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to the Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006. Respondents understand that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may alone be grounds to deny any petition, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm, or any reapplication for registration pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2101.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of RBSM LLP,

Respondent.

August 9, 2021

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is imposing sanctions upon RBSM LLP ("Respondent," "RBSM," or the "Firm"). The Board is:

(1) Censuring Respondent;

(2) Imposing a civil money penalty of $50,000 on Respondent; and

(3) Requiring Respondent to engage an independent consultant for a period of three years to review and make recommendations concerning RBSM's quality control policies and procedures.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that the Firm violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards by failing to take sufficient steps from 2015 through 2018 to ensure that its system of quality control provided reasonable assurance that its personnel complied with applicable professional standards and the Firm's standards of quality, despite auditing and quality control concerns repeatedly brought to the Firm's attention through several PCAOB inspections.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that[2]:

A. Respondent

1. RBSM LLP is a limited liability partnership organized under the laws of the state of Virginia with headquarters in McLean, Virginia. The Firm has offices in multiple locations, including in Larkspur, California; Henderson, Nevada; New York, New York; Beijing, China; and Mumbai and Pune, India. The Firm is licensed to practice public accounting by the state of Virginia (License No. 132879), among others. The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

B. Summary

2. This matter concerns the Firm's failure to comply with PCAOB rules and quality control standards. The Firm failed to establish engagement performance and monitoring policies and procedures sufficient to provide it with reasonable assurance that its policies and procedures were suitably designed and effectively applied. During the period from 2014 through 2017, PCAOB inspectors repeatedly brought concerns to the Firm's attention related to significant deficiencies in various audit areas, and raised concerns that RBSM's system of quality control failed to provide reasonable assurance of complying with the related professional

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that the Firm's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

standards. Despite the Firm's awareness of these deficiencies and concerns, the Firm's internal monitoring procedures failed to provide reasonable assurance that its system of quality control was effective, and the Firm failed to make changes to improve its system of quality control, as indicated by the repeated significant deficiencies in the 2014 through 2017 inspections and a subsequent 2019 inspection.

C. The Firm Violated PCAOB Rules and Quality Control Standards

3. PCAOB rules require a registered public accounting firm to comply with PCAOB quality control standards.[3] These standards require that a registered firm have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice.[4] "A firm's system of quality control encompasses the firm's organizational structure and the policies adopted and procedures established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance of complying with professional standards."[5]

4. A firm's system of quality control should, among other things, include policies and procedures for engagement performance.[6] A firm should establish policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality.[7] Quality control policies and procedures for engagement performance encompass all phases of the design and execution of an engagement.[8] To the extent appropriate and as required by applicable professional standards, these policies and procedures should cover planning, performing, supervising, reviewing, documenting, and communicating the results of each engagement.[9] These policies and procedures also should address engagement quality reviews.[10]

As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. See Reorganization of PCAOB Auditing Standards and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards and Rules, PCAOB Release No. 2015-002 (Mar. 31, 2015); see also PCAOB Auditing Standards Reorganized and Pre-Reorganized Numbering (Jan. 2017). The reorganization did not impose additional requirements on auditors or change substantively the requirements of PCAOB standards.

5. A firm should also establish policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its quality control policies and procedures are suitably designed and are being effectively applied.[11] Monitoring procedures taken as a whole should enable the firm to obtain reasonable assurance that its system of quality control is effective. Procedures that provide the firm with a means of identifying and communicating circumstances that may necessitate changes to or the need to improve compliance with the firm's policies and procedures contribute to the monitoring element. Among other things, a firm's monitoring procedures may include inspection procedures, preissuance or postissuance review of selected engagements, determination of any corrective actions to be taken and improvements to be made in the quality control system, communication to appropriate firm personnel of any weaknesses identified, and follow-up to ensure that any necessary modifications are made to the quality control system on a timely basis.[12]

6. Inspection procedures, as a part of a firm's system of quality control, evaluate the adequacy of a firm's policies and procedures, its personnel's understanding of those policies and procedures, and the extent of the firm's compliance with its quality control policies and procedures.[13] Inspection procedures contribute to the monitoring function because findings are evaluated and changes in, or clarifications of, quality control policies and procedures are considered.[14]

7. To provide reasonable assurance that the firm's quality control system achieves its objectives, appropriate consideration should be given to the assignment of quality control responsibilities within the firm, the means by which quality control policies and procedures are communicated, and the extent to which the policies and procedures and compliance should be documented.[15]

8. PCAOB quality control standards further require that a firm prepare appropriate documentation to demonstrate compliance with its quality control policies and procedures, including monitoring, and that such documentation be retained for a period of time sufficient to enable those performing monitoring procedures and a peer review to evaluate the extent of the firm's compliance with its quality control policies and procedures.[16]

i. RBSM Received Notice of Significant Audit Deficiencies in the Firm's Audits through Repeat Notifications in Multiple PCAOB Inspections

9. During the time period from 2014 through 2019, the PCAOB inspection staff notified the Firm of repeated significant audit deficiencies that raised concerns about the Firm's engagement performance. The initial instances of these deficiencies provided the Firm with notice of engagement performance issues. Subsequent findings of deficiencies provided continuing notice and indicated the Firm's system of quality control had failed to adequately address the deficiencies noted in previous inspections.

10. In 2014, PCAOB inspection staff conducted an inspection of the Firm. In connection with the inspection, between July 2014 and February 2015, PCAOB inspection staff informed the Firm of its findings regarding significant audit deficiencies in RBSM issuer audits related to revenue testing, specifically audit sampling and substantive analytical reviews, and engagement quality reviews (EQR). With respect to the EQR deficiencies, certain work papers, including documentation of significant judgments related to engagement planning and the engagement completion document, that should have been reviewed by the engagement quality review partner prior to granting permission for the issuer to use the Firm's audit reports to satisfy the requirements of AS No. 7, Engagement Quality Review, were not completed by the engagement team until after the audit report release date.[17]

11. In 2015, PCAOB inspection staff conducted another inspection of the Firm. In connection with the inspection, between January 2016 and February 2016, PCAOB inspection staff informed the Firm of its findings regarding significant audit deficiencies in numerous RBSM issuer audits related again to revenue testing, specifically audit sampling, and EQRs. With respect to the EQR deficiencies, the inspection staff noted that, among other issues, documentation of the EQR did not contain sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement, to identify the documents reviewed by, or otherwise to understand the procedures performed by, the engagement quality review partner.[18] In addition, the inspection staff also identified audit deficiencies in fair value assumptions and using the work of specialists.

12. In 2017, PCAOB inspection staff conducted an inspection of the Firm. In connection with the inspection, during 2017, PCAOB inspection staff informed the Firm of its findings regarding significant audit deficiencies in numerous RBSM issuer audits related to revenue testing, fair value assumptions, using the work of specialists, and EQRs. With respect to the EQR deficiencies, the inspection staff noted that, among other issues, documentation of the EQR did not contain sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement, to identify the documents reviewed by, or otherwise to understand the procedures performed by, the engagement quality review partners.[19]

13. In 2019, PCAOB inspection staff conducted an inspection of the Firm. In connection with the inspection, between October 2019 and January 2020, PCAOB inspection staff informed the Firm regarding significant audit deficiencies in numerous RBSM issuer audits related to revenue testing, fair value assumptions and using the work of specialists, and EQRs. With respect to the EQR deficiencies, PCAOB inspection staff identified one or more deficiencies in areas that the engagement quality review partners were required to evaluate, such as the engagement teams' assessment of, and audit responses to, areas of significant risk, including in some cases a fraud risk.[20]

ii. Despite the Repeat, Significant Audit Deficiencies, the Firm's Quality Control Policies and Procedures Failed to Provide Reasonable Assurance That They Were Suitably Designed and Being Effectively Applied from 2015 through 2018

14. From 2015 through 2018, the engagement performance element of the Firm's system of quality control failed to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by its engagement personnel met applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality.[21] In addition, the Firm's monitoring procedures were limited to inspections ("Internal Inspections") that were deficient and failed to provide the Firm with a means of identifying and communicating circumstances that may necessitate changes to or the need to improve compliance with the Firm's policies and procedures that contribute to the monitoring element.[22]

15. During 2015, the Firm's written policy stated that an integral part of its monitoring process for its system of quality control would be annual Internal Inspections. During the period from 2016 through 2018, the Firm's updated written policy stated that its system of quality control would be monitored on an ongoing basis through "pre-issuance reviews of reports, financial statements and notes to financial statements, engagement quality control review, where applicable, and [Internal Inspections]."

16. While the Firm performed Internal Inspections annually during the period from 2015 through 2018, these procedures were ineffective. The Firm's quality control policies on monitoring stated that a team, not "directly involved in the administration, supervision, or performance of the QC procedures or engagements each will inspect," would be selected to perform inspection procedures. Nevertheless, during these years, the Firm's managing partner was solely responsible for and performed all Internal Inspections for the Firm, including audits in which he had served as the engagement quality review partner. This led to a higher risk that noncompliance with the Firm's quality control policies and procedures would not be detected.[23]

17. To address requirements that a firm's monitoring element provide it with reasonable assurance that its policies and procedures for each of the other elements of its system of quality control are suitably designed and were being effectively applied,[24] the Firm's policies indicated that inspection procedures were to be performed on all elements of the Firm's quality control system, at least annually. Notwithstanding the requirements of quality control standards and the Firm's policies, the Internal Inspections conducted by the managing partner of the Firm were limited to the engagement performance element of quality control.

18. In addition, the Firm's Internal Inspections failed to identify any deficiencies in the engagement performance for any audits reviewed, other than in the 2015 Internal Inspection report, which noted only two documentation deficiencies. In fact, a number of audits documented in the Firm's Internal Inspections as having no deficiencies were subsequently found in later PCAOB inspections to contain significant audit deficiencies.

19. Despite the Firm's awareness that PCAOB inspectors had found repeated engagement performance deficiencies in specific audits, the Firm's monitoring process did not consider and evaluate the adequacy of RBSM's policies and procedures in light of these findings.[25] The Firm failed to make changes to, or improve, its policies and procedures to address the failures of its procedures to identify these deficiencies, such as engaging a qualified individual from outside the Firm to perform internal inspection procedures.[26]

[23] See QC § 30.11 ("An individual inspecting his or her own compliance with a quality control system may be inherently less effective than having such compliance inspected by another qualified individual. When one individual inspects his or her own compliance, the firm may have a higher risk that noncompliance with policies and procedures will not be detected.").

20. Appropriate documentation to demonstrate compliance with a firm's quality control policies and procedures should be prepared by the firm.[27] However, the Internal Inspection reports prepared by the Firm were, for the most part, created in response to requests from PCAOB staff, and prepared after the completion dates of those Internal Inspections. As such, the Firm failed to prepare appropriate documentation to demonstrate its compliance with the monitoring element of its quality control policies and procedures during the period from 2015 through 2018.

21. Other than the deficient Internal Inspections described above, the Firm did not perform other effective monitoring procedures to obtain reasonable assurance that its system of quality control was effective. For example, from 2016 through 2018, the Firm failed to perform pre-issuance reviews, in contravention of its written policy.

22. In addition, the Firm's EQR procedures failed to identify and communicate circumstances necessitating changes to or the need to improve compliance with the Firm's policies and procedures.[28] In fact, the individuals performing the Firm's EQRs failed to comply with professional standards and regulatory requirements in their performance.

23. As a result, the Firm violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards by failing to have monitoring procedures, taken as a whole, that enabled the Firm to obtain reasonable assurance that its system of quality control was effective, such that the policies and procedures for each of the elements of its system of quality control were suitably designed and being effectively applied, including engagement performance.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), RBSM is hereby censured.

[28] QC § 30.03.

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $50,000 is imposed upon RBSM. All funds collected by the PCAOB as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. RBSM shall pay the civil money penalty within ten (10) days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer pursuant to instructions provided by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies RBSM as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006.

C. Pursuant to Sections 105(c)(4)(C) and (G) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 5300(a)(3), (8), and (9), the Board orders that:

1. Independent Consultant.

   a. RBSM shall retain and pay for an independent consultant not unacceptable to the PCAOB staff who has experience with, and is knowledgeable concerning, PCAOB quality control standards ("Independent Consultant"). Within sixty days after the entry of this Order, RBSM shall submit to the PCAOB staff a proposal setting forth the identity, qualifications, and proposed terms of retention of the Independent Consultant. RBSM may not retain as the Independent Consultant any individual or entity that has provided legal, auditing, or other services to, or has any affiliation with, RBSM during the prior year.

   b. To ensure the independence of the Independent Consultant, RBSM: (i) shall not have the authority to terminate the Independent Consultant or substitute another independent consultant for the initial Independent Consultant, without the prior written approval of the PCAOB staff; and (ii) shall compensate the Independent Consultant and persons engaged to assist the Independent Consultant for services rendered pursuant to this Order at their reasonable and customary rates.

   c. RBSM will enter into an agreement with the Independent Consultant that provides that, for the period of the engagement and for a period of three years from completion of the engagement, the Independent Consultant shall not enter into any employment, consultant, attorney-client, auditing, or other professional relationship with RBSM or any of their present or former affiliates, directors, officers, employees, or agents acting in their capacity as such. The agreement also will provide that the Independent Consultant will require that any firm with which the Independent Consultant is affiliated or of which the Independent Consultant is a member, and any person engaged to assist the Independent Consultant in performance of the Independent Consultant's duties under this Order, shall not, without prior written consent of the PCAOB staff, enter into any employment, consultant, attorney-client, auditing, or other professional relationship with RBSM or any of their present or former affiliates, directors, officers, employees, or agents acting in their capacity as such, for the period of the engagement and for a period of three years after the engagement.

d. RBSM shall cooperate fully with the Independent Consultant and shall provide reasonable access to its personnel, information, and records as the Independent Consultant may reasonably request for the Independent Consultant's review, evaluation, and reports described in Paragraphs IV.C.2 and IV.C.3 below.

e. If RBSM, despite its best, good faith efforts, is unable to identify an Independent Consultant candidate that meets all of the above-listed criteria, RBSM may seek approval from the PCAOB staff of alternative candidates or alternative terms that RBSM believes to be otherwise suitable.

2. Areas Independent Consultant Is To Review. Within the periods specified below, the Independent Consultant will review and evaluate the following:

a. RBSM's quality control policies and procedures as they relate to "Engagement Performance," as that term is described in QC Section 20.17;

b. RBSM's quality control policies and procedures as they relate to "Monitoring," as that term is described in QC Section 20.20 and as further discussed in QC Section 30;

c. RBSM's quality control policies, procedures, and staff training as they relate to the performance of an "Engagement Quality Review" as that term is used in AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review, applicable to audits and reviews conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards; and

d. Whether RBSM is devoting appropriate resources to professional education and training of its personnel to ensure the adequate functioning of its system of quality control.

3. Independent Consultant Reports and Certifications.

a. Within five months of the Independent Consultant being retained, RBSM shall require the Independent Consultant to issue a detailed written report ("Report") to RBSM: (i) summarizing the Independent Consultant's review and evaluation of the areas identified in Paragraph IV.C.2 above, and (ii) making recommendations, where appropriate, reasonably designed to ensure that RBSM maintains a system of quality control sufficient to give the Firm reasonable assurance that its engagement teams perform issuer audits in compliance with applicable PCAOB auditing standards. RBSM shall require the Independent Consultant to provide a copy of the Report to the PCAOB staff when the Report is issued.

b. RBSM will adopt, as soon as practicable, all recommendations of the Independent Consultant in the Report; provided, however, that within thirty days of the issuance of the Report, RBSM may advise the Independent Consultant and the PCAOB staff in writing of any recommendation that it considers to be unnecessary, unduly burdensome, or impractical. RBSM need not adopt any such recommendation at that time, but instead may propose in writing to the Independent Consultant and the PCAOB staff an alternative proposal designed to achieve the same objective or purpose. RBSM and the Independent Consultant will engage in good faith negotiations in an effort to reach agreement on any recommendations objected to by RBSM.

c. In the event that the Independent Consultant and RBSM are unable to agree on an alternative proposal within forty-five days, RBSM either will abide by the determinations of the Independent Consultant or will seek approval from the PCAOB staff to engage, at RBSM's expense, a qualified third party acceptable to the PCAOB staff to promptly resolve the issue(s).

d. Within seventy-five days of the issuance of the Report and the resolution of any issues that are the subject of disagreement between RBSM and the Independent Consultant, RBSM will certify to the PCAOB staff in writing that it has adopted and has implemented or will implement all recommendations of the Independent Consultant ("Certification"). RBSM will provide a copy of the Certification to the PCAOB staff.

e. Within six months of the issuance of the Report, RBSM shall require the Independent Consultant to test whether RBSM has implemented the Independent Consultant's recommendations and to assess the effectiveness of those implemented recommendations. Within eighteen months of the issuance of the Report, RBSM shall require the Independent Consultant to test and to assess the effectiveness of the implemented recommendations and to issue a detailed written report ("Interim Review") summarizing the results of the Independent Consultant's test and assessment of RBSM's system of quality control. The Independent Consultant's test and assessment of RBSM's system of quality control should determine whether RBSM is maintaining a system of quality control sufficient to give the Firm reasonable assurance that its engagement teams are performing issuer audits in compliance with applicable PCAOB auditing standards. RBSM shall require the Independent Consultant to provide a copy of the Interim Review to the PCAOB staff when the Interim Review is issued.

f. RBSM shall require the Independent Consultant to issue a detailed written final report no later than three years from the date of the Independent Consultant being retained summarizing the results of the Independent Consultant's test and assessment of RBSM's system of quality control during the entire period ("Final Report") and to provide a copy of the Final Report to the PCAOB staff. At this time, if the Independent Consultant determines that the undertakings discussed herein have been completed to the satisfaction of the Independent Consultant, RBSM shall require the Independent Consultant to certify in writing that the undertakings have been so completed ("Independent Consultant Certification") and to provide a copy of this certification to the PCAOB staff.

g. The Report, Interim Review, Final Report, Certification, and Independent Consultant Certification shall be submitted by the Firm to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations.

h. For good cause shown, the PCAOB staff may extend any of the procedural dates relating to these undertakings.

i. RBSM understands that the failure to satisfy these undertakings may constitute a violation of PCAOB Rule 5000 that could provide a basis for the imposition of additional sanctions in a subsequent disciplinary proceeding.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Morey, Nee, Buck & Oswald, LLC, John P. Morey, CPA, and Gerard B. Nee, CPA,

Respondents.

August 10, 2021

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is imposing sanctions upon Morey, Nee, Buck & Oswald, LLC (the "Firm"), John P. Morey, CPA ("Morey"), and Gerard B. Nee, CPA ("Nee") (collectively, "Respondents"). The Board is:

(1) Censuring the Respondents;

(2) Imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000 on the Firm; and

(3) Limiting Respondents' activities, for a period of two years from the date of this Order, by prohibiting them from performing audit services in audit engagements, including examination engagements, for clients that are brokers or dealers that are required to file a compliance report under Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act") Rule 17a-5, 17 C.F.R. § 240.17a-5, of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission"), including audit engagements for clients that are brokers or dealers that carry customer or broker or dealer accounts and receive or hold funds or securities for those persons.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Respondents violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Firm's 2017 and 2018 examination engagements for a broker-dealer ("Broker-Dealer A") registered with the Commission, and that the Firm and Morey violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with their 2017 and 2018 audits of Broker-Dealer A.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have submitted Offers of Settlement ("Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[2]

B. Broker-Dealer

4. At all relevant times, Broker-Dealer A was a New York corporation headquartered in New York. At all relevant times, Broker-Dealer A's public filings disclosed that it was registered with the Commission as a broker-dealer, and was engaged in a single line of business as a self-clearing securities broker-dealer that provides a service to help customers become enrolled in dividend reinvestment plans of publicly traded companies. At all relevant times, Broker-Dealer A was a "broker" and "dealer," as defined in Section 110(3) and (4) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(b)(iii) and (d)(iii). At all relevant times, Broker-Dealer A was a "carrying broker-dealer" (i.e., a broker-dealer that maintains custody of customer funds and/or securities).

C. Summary

5. This matter concerns the Firm's and Morey's violations of PCAOB rules and Attestation Standard No. 1 ("AT No. 1"), Examination Engagements Regarding Compliance Reports of Brokers and Dealers, when performing their examinations of the statements made by Broker-Dealer A in its fiscal year end ("FYE") December 31, 2017 and FYE December 31, 2018 compliance reports (the "Examinations") prepared pursuant to Exchange Act Rule 17a-5, 17 C.F.R. § 240.17a-5 ("Rule 17a-5"). In particular, the Firm and Morey failed to identify and test Broker-Dealer A's key internal controls over compliance with Commission rules for safeguarding certain customer assets held by Broker-Dealer A.

6. This matter also concerns the Firm's and Morey's violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with their audits of the financial statements and accompanying supporting schedules of Broker-Dealer A for FYEs December 31, 2017 and December 31, 2018 (the "Audits"). Among other things, the Firm and Morey failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support the Firm's audit opinion on Broker-Dealer A's financial statements and supporting schedules.

7. Additionally, in connection with the above Examinations, Nee violated AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review, by providing his concurring approval of issuance without performing the required engagement quality reviews with due professional care.

D. The Firm and Morey Violated AT No. 1 in The Firm's Examinations of Broker-Dealer A's 2017 and 2018 Compliance Reports

i. Certain Commission Reporting Requirements for Broker-Dealer A

8. At all relevant times, Exchange Act Rule 15c3-3, 17 C.F.R. § 240.15c3-3 ("Rule 15c3-3"), also known as the "Customer Protection Rule," imposed various obligations on Broker-Dealer A to avoid, in the event of a broker-dealer failure, a delay in returning customer securities or worse, a shortfall in which customers are not made whole.[3] For example, paragraph (e) of Rule 15c3-3 (the "Reserve Requirements Rule") required Broker-Dealer A, among other things, to maintain with a bank or banks[4] a "Special Reserve Bank Account for the Exclusive Benefit of Customers" that was kept separate from its other accounts ("Customer Reserve Bank Account"), to deposit therein an amount calculated in accordance with that paragraph, and to make and maintain a record of each such computation. Paragraph (f) of Rule 15c3-3 required Broker-Dealer A, among other things, to have a written contract with any bank at which it maintained one or more Customer Reserve Bank Accounts that provides that the cash and/or qualified securities[5] in such Customer Reserve Bank Account(s) will at no time be used directly or indirectly as a security for a loan to the broker-dealer by the bank and will not be subject to any right, charge, security interest, lien, or claim of any kind in favor of the bank or any person claiming through the bank. And paragraph (d) of Rule 15c3-3 required Broker-Dealer A, with respect to customers'[6] fully-paid securities and excess margin securities,[7] regularly to determine: (i) whether such securities are in its possession and control, in accordance with paragraphs (b) and (c) of Rule 15c3-3 (i.e., held in a "Good Control Location"), and (ii) the quantity of such securities.

9. At all relevant times, Rule 17a-5 required Broker-Dealer A, among other things, to file with the Commission[8] an annual report containing: (a) a financial report that includes financial statements and supporting schedules,[9] and, in the case of a broker-dealer (including Broker-Dealer A) not claiming exemption under paragraph (k) of Rule 15c3-3,[10] (b) a compliance report concerning the effectiveness of the broker-dealer's internal control over compliance ("ICOC")[11] with, among other things, the Customer Protection Rule;[12] and (c) a report by a PCAOB-registered firm based on an examination of the broker-dealer's financial and compliance reports that meets certain specified requirements.[13] Rule 17a-5 also required that the auditor's examinations of each of Broker-Dealer A's financial report and compliance report be performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[14]

10. Rule 17a-5 also required, at all relevant times, Broker-Dealer A's compliance report to contain certain statements ("assertions") about its compliance with, among other things, the Customer Protection Rule, including that: (a) the broker-dealer's ICOC was effective during the most recent fiscal year; (b) the broker-dealer's ICOC was effective as of the end of the most recent fiscal year; and (c) the broker-dealer was in compliance with, among other things, the Reserve Requirements Rule as of the end of the most recent fiscal year.[15]

[10] The Commission has stated that there may be circumstances in which a broker-dealer has not held customer securities or funds during the past year, but does not fit into one of the exemptive provisions set forth in paragraph (k) of Rule 15c3-3, and should file an "exemption report" under Rule 17a-5(d)(1)(i)(B)(2) in lieu of a "compliance report" under Rule 17a-5(d)(1)(i)(B)(1). See U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, Broker-Dealer Reports, Exchange Act Release No. 70073 (July 30, 2013), at n. 74, available at https://www.sec.gov/rules/final/2013/34-70073.pdf. See also Division of Trading and Markets of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, Frequently Asked Questions Concerning the July 30, 2013 Amendments to the Broker-Dealer Financial Reporting Rule (updated July 1, 2020), at Question and Answer 8 (describing the views of the staff of the Division of Trading and Markets regarding the eligibility of certain broker-dealers to file exemption reports in accordance with the circumstances described in footnote 74 of the 2013 Broker-Dealer Reports release), available at https://www.sec.gov/divisions/marketreg/amendments-to-broker-dealer-reporting-rule-faq.htm. Those circumstances are not applicable here.

[11] The term "internal control over compliance" is defined in Rule 17a-5(d)(3)(ii) as follows: "The term Internal Control Over Compliance means internal controls that have the objective of providing the broker or dealer with reasonable assurance that non-compliance with [Exchange Act Rules 15c3-1, 15c3-3, 17a-13], or any rule of the designated examining authority of the broker or dealer that requires account statements to be sent to the customers of the broker or dealer (an 'Account Statement Rule') will be prevented or detected on a timely basis."

ii. Relevant Provisions of PCAOB Rules and Standards

11. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, including an examination report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards, including attestation standards.[16]

12. AT No. 1 provides that, in performing an examination of the assertions made by a broker or dealer in a compliance report (an "examination engagement"), the auditor's objective is to express an opinion regarding whether the assertions made by the broker or dealer in its compliance report are fairly stated, in all material respects.[17] AT No. 1 also provides that, to express such an opinion, the auditor must plan and perform the examination engagement to obtain appropriate evidence that is sufficient to obtain reasonable assurance about whether, among other things: (1) one or more material weaknesses[18] existed during the most recent fiscal year specified in the broker's or dealer's assertion; (2) one or more material weaknesses existed as of the end of the most recent fiscal year specified in the broker's or dealer's assertion; and (3) one or more instances of non-compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule existed as of the end of the most recent fiscal year specified in the broker's or dealer's assertion.[19] As noted in AT No. 1, the auditor's examination should include an evaluation of the effectiveness of ICOC with the Customer Protection Rule during, and as of the end of, the most recent fiscal year.[20]

13. AT No. 1 also provides that the auditor must exercise due professional care, which includes application of professional skepticism, in planning and performing the examination and preparation of the report, and that the engagement partner is responsible for proper planning and supervision of work for the engagement.[21]

14. Additionally, when planning the examination engagement, the auditor should obtain an understanding of the broker-dealer's processes regarding compliance with, among other things, the Customer Protection Rule, which includes evaluating the design of controls that are relevant to the examination and determining whether they have been implemented.[22] When performing the examination engagement, the auditor must test the controls that are important to the auditor's conclusion about whether the broker or dealer has maintained effective ICOC for, among other things, the Customer Protection Rule during the fiscal year and at fiscal year-end.[23] The auditor must obtain evidence that the controls over compliance selected for testing are designed effectively and operated effectively during the fiscal year and at fiscal year-end.[24]

15. AT No. 1 further requires the auditor to conduct tests that are sufficient to support the auditor's conclusions regarding whether the broker or dealer was in compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule at fiscal year-end; the auditor does this by, among other things, testing the accuracy and completeness of the information that the broker or dealer used to determine its compliance with that rule at fiscal year-end.[25]

16. As provided in AT No. 1, the auditor should evaluate whether he or she has obtained sufficient appropriate evidence to support the conclusions to be presented in the examination report, taking into account the risks associated with controls and non-compliance, the results of the examination procedures performed, and the appropriateness (i.e., the relevance and reliability) of the evidence obtained.[26] If the auditor is unable to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence about an assertion, the auditor should express a disclaimer of opinion.[27]

17. As described below, the Firm and Morey failed to comply with applicable PCAOB rules and standards in connection with their examinations of the assertions made by Broker-Dealer A in its compliance reports for FYEs December 31, 2017, and December 31, 2018.

iii. The Firm's Examinations of Broker-Dealer A's 2017 and 2018 Compliance Reports

18. Broker-Dealer A filed its Forms X-17A-5 Part III for Fiscal Year ("FY") 2017 and FY 2018 with the Commission on February 22, 2018 and on February 27, 2019, respectively. In connection with those filings, Broker-Dealer A filed its related compliance reports – the FY 2017 compliance report was dated February 21, 2018, and the FY 2018 compliance report was dated February 21, 2019 (collectively, the "Compliance Reports"). The Compliance Reports' assertions included that Broker-Dealer A's ICOC with the Customer Protection Rule was effective during the period from January 1, 2017 to December 31, 2017 and as of December 31, 2017, and also from January 1, 2018 to December 31, 2018 and as of December 31, 2018, respectively.

19. Morey authorized the Firm's issuance of its examination reports for FY 2017 and FY 2018 concerning Broker-Dealer A's related Compliance Reports (collectively, the "Examination Reports"), and Nee, as the engagement quality reviewer, provided concurring approval of issuance of those Examination Reports. The Firm's examination report for FY 2017 was dated February 21, 2018, and the Firm's examination report for FY 2018 was dated February 26, 2019. The Examination Reports expressed the Firm's unqualified opinions that Broker-Dealer A's assertions in the respective Compliance Reports were fairly stated, in all material respects, and the Examination Reports stated, among other things, that the respective examinations were conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards.

20. With respect to both the 2017 and 2018 Examinations, the Firm and Morey failed to plan and perform adequate procedures to obtain appropriate evidence that was sufficient to obtain reasonable assurance about whether there were material weaknesses in Broker-Dealer A's ICOC, as required by AT No. 1.[28] In particular, the Firm and Morey failed to perform any procedures to obtain an understanding of Broker-Dealer A's ICOC, even though the Firm and Morey had no pre-existing knowledge of Broker-Dealer A until the start of the 2017 audit and examination engagements.[29] In addition, the Firm and Morey failed to perform any procedures to test controls that were important to the Firm's conclusion about whether Broker-Dealer A maintained effective ICOC, and obtain evidence that those controls were designed effectively and operating effectively.[30]

21. More specifically, the Firm and Morey failed to perform any procedures to identify, understand, or test the design effectiveness and operating effectiveness of any ICOC with the rules requiring Broker-Dealer A to: (1) properly calculate the minimum amount of funds it must hold in its Customer Reserve Bank Accounts, in compliance with the Reserve

Requirements Rule; (2) obtain written evidence that its Customer Reserve Bank Accounts were compliant with the "no-lien" requirement, in compliance with Rule 15c3-3(f); (3) determine the quantity of customers' fully-paid securities and excess margin securities held by Broker-Dealer A, in compliance with Rule 15c3-3(d); and (4) maintain those customer securities in an appropriate Good Control Location, in compliance with Rule 15c3-3(b) – (d).

22. The Firm and Morey also violated AT No. 1 by failing to perform certain required tests to determine whether Broker-Dealer A was in compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule at year-end 2017 and 2018.[31] Specifically, the Firm and Morey tested Broker-Dealer A's compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule at year-end by comparing information produced by Broker-Dealer A to a schedule it used to calculate the amount required to be reserved in the Customer Reserve Bank Accounts, but the auditors failed to test the accuracy and completeness of the information in the schedules that Broker-Dealer A had used to compute whether its Customer Reserve Bank Accounts held sufficient reserves in compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule at the end of the respective fiscal years.[32]

23. As a result of the above deficiencies, the Firm and Morey failed to obtain appropriate audit evidence sufficient to provide reasonable assurance about whether there were material weaknesses in Broker-Dealer A's ICOC, as required by AT No. 1.[33]

E. The Firm and Morey Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in The Firm's Audits of Broker-Dealer A's 2017 and 2018 Supporting Schedules

24. Rule 17a-5 required that Broker-Dealer A file certain supplemental information in supporting schedules accompanying its 2017 and 2018 financial statements, and that those schedules be audited by a PCAOB-registered firm.[34]

25. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report on such supplemental information, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[35] Among other things, PCAOB standards require an auditor to exercise due professional care and professional skepticism in performing the audit.[36]

36 See AS 1015.01 and .07, Due Professional Care in the Performance of Work.

26. PCAOB standards also require that, when the auditor is engaged to perform audit procedures and report on supplemental information accompanying audited financial statements, the auditor should perform audit procedures to obtain appropriate audit evidence that is sufficient to support the auditor's opinion regarding whether the supplemental information is fairly stated, in all material respects, in relation to the financial statements as a whole.[37] In doing so, the auditor should, among other things, obtain an understanding of the criteria that management used to prepare the supplemental information, including relevant regulatory requirements.[38] The auditor also should perform procedures to test the completeness and accuracy of the information presented in the supplemental information to the extent it was not tested as part of the audit of financial statements, and should evaluate whether the supplemental information complies with relevant regulatory requirements or other applicable criteria, if any.[39] Additionally, when an auditor uses information produced by the company as audit evidence, the auditor should evaluate whether the information is sufficient and appropriate for purposes of the audit by performing procedures to, among other things, test the accuracy and completeness of the information, or test the controls over the accuracy and completeness of that information.[40]

27. According to PCAOB standards, if an auditor is unable to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support an opinion on the supplemental information, the auditor should disclaim an opinion on the supplemental information.[41]

28. As described below, the Firm and Morey failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the audit procedures they performed on the supplemental information in supporting schedules accompanying Broker-Dealer A's 2017 and 2018 financial statements.

29. Broker-Dealer A filed its Forms X-17A-5 Part III for FY 2017 and FY 2018 with the Commission on February 22, 2018, and on February 27, 2019, respectively. Included in those filings were the Firm's audit reports for FY 2017 and FY 2018 dated February 21, 2018, and February 26, 2019, respectively (collectively, the "Audit Reports"). Morey authorized the Firm's issuance of the Audit Reports, which expressed an unqualified opinion on Broker-Dealer A's related financial statements and supporting schedules, and stated, among other things, that the Firm's audits were conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards. Nee, as the engagement quality reviewer, provided concurring approval of issuance of the Audit Reports. The Audit Reports also stated that the supplemental information in the accompanying supporting schedules was subjected to audit procedures in connection with the Firm's audits of Broker-Dealer A's related financial statements. In particular, the Firm represented that it had "perform[ed] procedures to test the completeness and accuracy of the information presented in the supplemental information."[42]

30. For both 2017 and 2018, Broker-Dealer A's supporting schedules reported on its compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule and Rule 15c3-3(f), relating to obtaining documentation of compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule. Broker-Dealer A's supporting schedules also reported on its compliance with the Commission rule requiring it to, among other things, maintain customers' fully paid securities and excess margin securities in an appropriate Good Control Location in compliance with Rule 15c3-3(b) – (d).

31. In these supporting schedules for 2017 and 2018, Broker-Dealer A reported that its minimum required reserve under the Reserve Requirements Rule was $68,868 and $66,848, respectively, and that the "Amount on deposit in 'Reserve Bank Accounts' over amount required" was $630,249 and $634,292, respectively. Broker-Dealer A's supplemental information also represented that, as of the report date, all customers' fully paid securities and excess margin securities entrusted to Broker-Dealer A were held in a Good Control Location in compliance with the Customer Protection Rule.

32. But, in both years, the engagement teams' procedures concerning these supporting schedules relied solely on information produced by Broker-Dealer A without testing that information for completeness or testing Broker-Dealer A's controls over the completeness of that information. And with respect to the supplemental information concerning the quantity of customers' fully paid securities and excess margin securities that Broker-Dealer A held in custody accounts, the Firm and Morey also failed to test the accuracy of the client-produced information that the engagement team used as audit evidence. Additionally, the Firm and Morey failed to obtain documentation establishing that Broker-Dealer A's Customer Reserve Bank Accounts were in compliance with the "no-lien" requirement of the Customer Protection Rule.[43]

33. Consequently, the Firm and Morey violated PCAOB standards in both the FY 2017 and FY 2018 audits by failing to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence that the supplemental information in the FY 2017 and FY 2018 supporting schedules was fairly stated, in all material respects, in relation to the financial statements as a whole.[44]

F. Nee Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the Engagement Quality Reviews for the Examinations

34. As noted above, PCAOB Rules provide that associated persons of registered public accounting firms shall comply with all applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.[45]

35. AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review, requires that an engagement quality review be performed on all audits and certain attestation engagements conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards, like the Examinations.[46] AS 1220 also provides that the engagement quality reviewer for an engagement performed pursuant to PCAOB attestation standards should evaluate the significant judgments made by the engagement team and the related conclusions reached in forming the overall conclusion on the attestation engagement.[47] In an attestation engagement performed pursuant to AT No. 1, a firm may grant permission to an audit client to use the firm's engagement report only after an engagement quality reviewer provides concurring approval of issuance of the report.[48]

36. Moreover, under AS 1220, the engagement quality reviewer may provide concurring approval of issuance of the report for an engagement performed pursuant to PCAOB attestation standards only if, after performing with due professional care the review required by AS 1220, he or she is not aware of a significant engagement deficiency.[49] AS 1220 states that a significant engagement deficiency in an attestation engagement exists when, among other things, "the engagement team failed to perform attestation procedures necessary in the circumstances of the engagement."[50]

37. In connection with the Examinations, Nee failed to appropriately evaluate the conclusions reached by the engagement team with respect to significant areas of the Examinations, including the testing of Broker-Dealer A's ICOC and the testing of Broker-Dealer

A's compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule at fiscal year-end. Specifically, the Firm's engagement teams did not perform any procedures concerning Broker-Dealer A's assertions in its Compliance Reports that its ICOC with the Customer Protection Rule was effective during, and at the end of, the most recent fiscal year, even though such procedures were critical to the core objectives of the Firm's Examinations of the Compliance Reports. Additionally, the engagement teams failed to perform required procedures to test the accuracy and completeness of information in the schedules that Broker-Dealer A used to assert in its Compliance Reports that, at FYE December 31, 2017 and FYE December 31, 2018, respectively, its Customer Reserve Bank Accounts held sufficient reserves in compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule.[51] Nee knew the engagement teams had concluded that these assertions in the Compliance Reports were fairly stated, in all material respects, yet he saw no evidence in his reviews that the teams had performed the above necessary procedures related to those assertions.

38. As a result, Nee was aware of a significant engagement deficiency in each of the Examinations: the engagement teams' failures to perform attestation procedures necessary in the circumstances of the engagements.[52] Nevertheless, Nee provided his concurring approvals of issuance of the Examination Reports. Accordingly, Nee failed to perform the engagement quality reviews with due professional care, in violation of AS 1220.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Morey, Nee, Buck & Oswald, LLC, John P. Morey, CPA, and Gerard B. Nee, CPA, are hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000 is imposed upon the Firm. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. The Firm shall pay the civil money penalty within 10 days of the issuance of this Order by (a) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (b) United States Postal money order, certified check, bank cashier's check or bank money order; (c) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (d) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (e) submitted under a cover letter which identifies Morey, Nee, Buck & Oswald, LLC as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006; and

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(C) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(3), for a period of two years from the date of this Order, the Firm, John Morey, and Gerard Nee shall not perform audit services in audit engagements, including examination engagements, for clients that are brokers or dealers that are required to file a compliance report under Securities Exchange Act of 1934 Rule 17a-5, 17 C.F.R. § 240.17a-5, of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, including audit engagements for clients that are brokers or dealers that carry customer or broker or dealer accounts and receive or hold funds or securities for those persons.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Haskell & White LLP,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2021-006
(Corrected Copy)

August 13, 2021

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or PCAOB) is imposing sanctions upon Haskell & White LLP ("H&W," "the Firm," or "Respondent"), a registered public accounting firm. The Board is:

(1) censuring the Firm;

(2) imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $20,000 on the Firm;

(3) requiring the Firm to establish quality control policies and procedures, or revise and/or supplement existing policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, for the purpose of providing the Firm with reasonable assurance of compliance with the documentation requirements of AS 1215, Audit Documentation, applicable to audits and quarterly reviews, including with respect to the timely assembly for retention of audit documentation ("archiving"); and

(4) requiring the Firm to provide additional professional education and training to its associated persons related to AS 1215.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that the Firm violated PCAOB rules and standards by repeatedly failing to: (1) timely archive audit documentation in connection with audits, in violation of AS 1215; (2) effectively implement policies and procedures to provide it with reasonable assurance that its engagement personnel were timely archiving audit documentation in compliance with AS 1215, in violation of the PCAOB's quality control standards; and (3) timely make changes or improve compliance with the Firm's policies and procedures in order to enable the Firm to obtain reasonable assurance that its system of quality control was effective, upon becoming aware of repeated failures by engagement personnel to archive audit documentation in compliance with AS 1215.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. Haskell & White LLP is a limited liability partnership headquartered in Irvine, California. The Firm is licensed in the states of California (License No. PAR 5257), Oregon (License No. 2742), Washington (License No. 6316), and Nevada (License No. PART-0816). At all relevant times, the Firm was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

B. Summary

2. This matter concerns the Firm's repeated violations of PCAOB rules and standards by failing to archive a complete and final set of audit documentation by the relevant documentation completion date.[2] The Firm serves as an external auditor for certain issuers that

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. See Reorganization of PCAOB Auditing Standards and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards and Rules, PCAOB Release No. 2015-002 (Mar. 31, 2015); see also PCAOB Auditing Standards Reorganized and Pre-Reorganized Numbering (Jan. 2017). file Forms 10-K with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. The PCAOB standard concerning audit documentation, AS 1215, provides that "[a] complete and final set of audit documentation should be assembled for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date (documentation completion date)."[3] Beginning in 2016 through 2019, in connection with at least six issuer audits and four quarterly reviews (the "Audits"), the Firm failed to archive a complete and final set of audit documentation by the relevant documentation completion dates, in violation of AS 1215.

3. From 2016 through 2019, the Firm also violated PCAOB quality control standards by failing to effectively implement policies and procedures to provide it with reasonable assurance that its engagement teams would timely archive audit documentation for the Audits.[4]

4. Despite the Firm's annual internal inspections from 2016 through 2019 identifying late archiving of audit documentation as a significant, ongoing problem, the Firm failed to timely make changes or improve compliance with the Firm's policies and procedures in order to enable the Firm to obtain reasonable assurance that its system of quality control was effective. That failure constituted a further violation of PCAOB quality control standards.[5]

C. The Firm Violated PCAOB Standards in Connection with its Repeated Failures to Timely Archive Audit Documentation Beginning in 2016

Audit documentation is the written record of the basis for the auditor's conclusions that provides the support for the auditor's representations, whether those representations are contained in the auditor's report or otherwise. each engagement conducted pursuant to the standards of the PCAOB.[7] The auditor must document the procedures performed, evidence obtained, and conclusions reached with respect to relevant financial statement assertions.[8] This documentation requirement applies to the work of all those who participate in the engagement.[9] As noted above, "[a] complete and final set of audit documentation should be assembled for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date (documentation completion date)."[10]

6. Beginning no later than 2016, the Firm's engagement teams failed to timely archive audit and quarterly review documentation for the Audits. For example, on a number of occasions, the audit documentation was not finalized for over 500 days after the documentation completion date.

7. As a result of the above-described conduct, the Firm violated AS 1215.

D. The Firm Violated PCAOB Quality Control Standards by Failing to Effectively Implement Policies and Procedures and to Timely Make Changes or Improve Compliance In Order to Provide Reasonable Assurance Related to Timely Archiving of Audit Work Papers

8. PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm comply with the Board's quality control standards.[11] PCAOB quality control standards, in turn, require that a registered firm "shall have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice."[12]

9. Pursuant to PCAOB quality control standards, firms should establish policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality.[13] To the extent appropriate and as required by applicable professional standards, these policies and procedures should cover planning, performing, supervising, reviewing, documenting, and communicating the results of each engagement.[14]

10. PCAOB quality control standards provide that one required element of a quality control system is monitoring.[15] Monitoring involves an ongoing consideration and evaluation of the: (a) relevance and adequacy of the firm's policies and procedures; (b) appropriateness of the firm's guidance materials and any practice aids; (c) effectiveness of professional development activities; and (d) compliance with the firm's policies and procedures.[16] Monitoring procedures taken as a whole should enable the firm to obtain reasonable assurance that its system of quality control is effective.[17]

11. A firm's monitoring procedures may include internal inspection procedures,[18] which contribute to the monitoring function because findings are evaluated and changes in or clarifications of quality control policies and procedures are considered.[19] The adequacy of and compliance with a firm's quality control system are evaluated by performing such inspection procedures as: (a) discussions with the firm's personnel; (b) summarization of the findings from the inspection procedures, at least annually, and consideration of the systemic causes of findings that indicate improvements are needed; (c) determination of any corrective actions to be taken or improvements to be made with respect to the specific engagements reviewed or the firm's quality control policies and procedures; and (d) consideration of inspection findings by appropriate firm management personnel who should also determine that any actions necessary, including necessary modifications to the quality control system, are taken on a timely basis.[20]

12. Review of work papers after the issuance of the audit report may constitute inspection procedures provided: (a) the review is sufficiently comprehensive to enable the firm to assess compliance with all applicable professional standards and the firm's quality control policies and procedures; (b) findings of such reviews that may indicate the need to improve compliance with or modify the firm's quality control policies and procedures are periodically summarized, documented, and communicated to the firm's management personnel having the responsibility and authority to make changes in those policies and procedures; (c) the firm's management personnel consider on a timely basis the systemic causes of findings that indicate improvements are needed and determine appropriate actions to be taken; and (d) the firm implements on a timely basis such planned actions, communicates changes to personnel who might be affected, and follows up to determine that the planned actions were taken.[21]

13. At all relevant times, the Firm's quality control personnel performed annual internal inspections of the Firm's audit practice. The annual internal inspections were intended to provide reasonable assurance that the Firm's policies and procedures were suitably designed and being effectively applied.

14. As part of its annual internal inspections, the Firm's quality control personnel evaluated, among other things, whether audit engagement teams archived audit work papers in accordance with the Firm's policies and the requirements of AS 1215 regarding the archiving of audit documentation. The Firm's annual internal inspections included, but were not limited to, reviews of the Audits.

15. During its annual internal inspections from 2016 through 2019, the Firm identified numerous instances where engagement teams did not timely archive audit work papers. After each of those annual internal inspections, the Firm's Quality Control Partner-in-Charge and the Audit Department Partner-in-Charge conducted department-wide trainings with all department members that referenced the importance of archiving. The internal inspection findings were also reported to and discussed each year with the Firm's entire audit department, all department managers, and all principals and partners, including the Managing Partner of the Firm.

16. Notwithstanding the repeated identification of failures to archive work papers on a timely basis and the communication of those problems to the Firm's Managing Partner, the Firm's archiving problems persisted.

17. As a result of the above-described conduct, the Firm violated PCAOB standards by failing to effectively implement policies and procedures to provide it with reasonable assurance that its engagement personnel were timely archiving audit documentation.[22] For example, during the relevant time period, Firm personnel were not required to and did not consistently input report release dates into the Firm's audit software, which significantly limited the Firm's visibility into timely archiving audit documentation.

18. Despite identifying late archiving of audit work papers as a significant problem each year from 2016 to 2019, the Firm's steps to address the failures were inadequate.

19. Thus, the Firm failed to adequately monitor compliance with its quality control policies and procedures regarding archiving of audit work papers and to timely make changes or improve compliance with the Firm's policies and procedures in order to enable the Firm to obtain reasonable assurance that its system of quality control was effective.[23]

IV.

In ordering sanctions, the Board took into account the Firm's extraordinary cooperation in this matter. Specifically, the Firm voluntarily modified and implemented enhancements to its quality control policies and procedures in relevant areas, including hiring a third-party consultant to improve the Firm's internal inspection and archiving processes; requiring personnel to input the report release date into the Firm's audit software, which allows the Firm to create reports identifying documentation completion dates and related milestones; and incorporating failures to timely finalize audit documentation into Firm personnel's performance evaluations. The Board took these remedial or corrective actions into account in ordering the sanctions.

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Haskell & White LLP is censured.

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), the Board imposes a civil money penalty in the amount of $20,000 upon Haskell & White LLP. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Haskell & White LLP shall pay this civil money penalty within ten (10) days of the issuance of this Order by: (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board; (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W.,

Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

C. Pursuant to Sections 105(c)(4)(F) and (G) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 5300(a)(6) and (9), the Firm is required:

1. within ninety (90) days of the entry of this Order, to establish quality control policies and procedures, or revise and/or supplement existing policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, for the purpose of providing the Firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel complies with documentation requirements applicable to audits and quarterly reviews, including with respect to the archiving of audit documentation pursuant to AS 1215;

2. within ninety (90) days from the entry of this Order, to ensure that all professionals involved in any audit, as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act, have received four (4) hours of additional training[24] concerning compliance with AS 1215, including archiving of audit documentation in accordance with AS 1215; and

3. within one hundred twenty (120) days from the entry of this Order, to certify in writing to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006, the Firm's compliance with paragraphs C.1 and C.2 above.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings And Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Tamba S. Mayah, CPA, and Tamba Seibu Mayah, CPA,

Respondents.

September 13, 2021

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is imposing sanctions on Tamba S. Mayah, CPA (the "Firm") and Tamba Seibu Mayah, CPA ("Mayah") (collectively, "Respondents"). The Board is:

(1) censuring Respondents;

(2) limiting the Firm's activities for a period of two years from the date of this Order, by prohibiting it from issuing an audit report for any clients that are issuers, or broker-dealers;

(3) limiting Mayah's activities for a period of two years from the date of this Order, in connection with any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"); and

(4) requiring Mayah to complete fifty hours of continuing professional education ("CPE") directly related to the audits of issuers or broker-dealers under PCAOB standards, in addition to any CPE required in connection with any professional license.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Respondents violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with their 2018 and 2019 audit and review engagements for a broker-dealer audit client ("Broker-Dealer A") registered with the Commission.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Act, and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have submitted Offers of Settlement ("Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[2]

A. Respondents

1. Tamba S. Mayah, CPA is a sole proprietorship headquartered in New Carrollton, Maryland. The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. The Firm served as Broker-Dealer A's independent auditor for the fiscal years ending December 31, 2018 ("FY 2018"), and December 31, 2019 ("FY 2019").

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other persons or entities in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (A) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (B) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

2. Tamba Seibu Mayah, CPA is a certified public accountant licensed by the Maryland Board of Public Accountancy (license no. 24191). Mayah was, at all relevant times, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). Mayah is the sole owner and only employee of the Firm, and was the engagement partner on the Firm's FY 2018 and FY 2019 audit and review engagements for Broker-Dealer A.

B. Broker-Dealer

3. Broker-Dealer A was, at all relevant times, a Commonwealth of Virginia corporation headquartered in Falls Church, Virginia. Broker-Dealer A's public filings disclose that it is registered with the Commission as an introducing broker and dealer in securities primarily consisting of stocks, bonds, and mutual funds. Broker-Dealer A also claimed an exemption pursuant to paragraph (k)(2)(ii) of Rule 15c3-3, 17 C.F.R. § 240.15c3-3(k)(2)(ii), Customer Protection-Reserves and Custody of Securities ("Rule 15c3-3"), under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act"). At all relevant times, Broker-Dealer A was a "broker" and "dealer" as defined in Section 110(3) and (4) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(b)(iii) and (d)(iii).

C. Summary

4. This matter concerns Respondents' violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Firm's FY 2018 and FY 2019 audits of the financial statements and accompanying supplemental information of Broker-Dealer A (the "Audits"). Among other things, Respondents failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence and exercise due professional care and professional skepticism to support the Firm's audit opinions on the financial statements and accompanying supplemental information of Broker-Dealer A.

5. This matter also concerns Respondents' violation of Attestation Standard No. 2 ("AT No. 2"), Review Engagements Regarding Exemption Reports of Brokers and Dealers, in performing their reviews of the statements of Broker-Dealer A in the FY 2018 and FY 2019 exemption reports (the "Reviews") prepared pursuant to paragraph (d)(1)(B)(2) of Exchange Act Rule 17a-5, 17 C.F.R. § 240.17a-5 ("Rule 17a-5").

6. In connection with the above Audits and Reviews, the Firm also violated AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review, by improperly permitting the issuance of engagement reports without obtaining an engagement quality review and concurring approval of issuance. Mayah violated PCAOB rules by substantially contributing to the Firm's violation of AS 1220.

D. Respondents Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Their Audits

i. Commission Reporting Requirements and PCAOB Rules and Standards Related to the Audits

7. Rule 17a-5 generally requires a broker-dealer, among other things, to file annually with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission"): (a) a financial report containing certain financial statements and supporting schedules (i.e., supplemental information);[3] and (b) a report prepared by a PCAOB-registered firm based on an examination of a broker-dealer.[4]

8. In connection with the preparation or issuance of audit reports, PCAOB rules require a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons to comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[5]

9. An auditor is in a position to express an unqualified opinion on the financial statements and supplemental information when the auditor has conducted an audit in accordance with the PCAOB standards and concludes that (a) the financial statements, taken as a whole, are presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework, and (b) the supplemental information is fairly stated, in all material respects, in relation to the financial statements as a whole.[6] Among other things, PCAOB standards require an auditor to exercise due professional care and professional skepticism, and to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for an opinion regarding the financial statements and supplemental information that accompanies the audited financial statements.[7]

10. PCAOB standards further require that the auditor properly plan the audit, which includes performing risk assessment procedures sufficient to provide a reasonable basis for identifying and assessing the risks of material misstatement, whether due to error or fraud.[8] The auditor should identify and assess the risks of material misstatement at the financial statement level and the assertion level, and design and implement overall responses to address the assessed risks of material misstatement.[9]

11. When the auditor is engaged to perform audit procedures and report on supplemental information accompanying audited financial statements, the auditor should, among other things, obtain an understanding of the criteria that management used to prepare the supplemental information, including relevant regulatory requirements.[10] The auditor also should perform procedures to test the completeness and accuracy of the information presented in the supplemental information to the extent it was not tested as part of the audit of financial statements, and should evaluate whether the supplemental information, including its form and content, complies with relevant regulatory requirements or other applicable criteria, if any.[11]

12. As described below, Respondents failed to comply with applicable PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Audits of Broker-Dealer A.

ii. Violations Related to the Audits of Broker-Dealer A's Financial Statements

13. Mayah was the engagement partner for the Firm's Audits of Broker-Dealer A. Mayah also authorized the Firm's issuance of audit reports containing unqualified opinions on Broker-Dealer A's FY 2018 and FY 2019 financial statements included in Form X-17A-5 Part III, filed with the Commission on March 4, 2019, and March 3, 2020, respectively. The Firm's audit reports on Broker-Dealer A's FY 2018 and FY 2019 financial statements both stated, among other things, that the Firm's audit of Broker-Dealer A's financial statements was conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards.

14. Respondents failed to comply with applicable PCAOB standards in connection with the Firm's audits of Broker-Dealer A's FY 2018 and FY 2019 financial statements. Specifically, Mayah failed to establish an overall audit strategy for the engagement or to develop an audit plan.[12] Respondents also failed to perform any risk assessment procedures to identify and assess the risks of material misstatement and to design and implement overall responses to address the assessed risks of material misstatement.[13] Further, Respondents failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence concerning each relevant assertion of each significant account and disclosure in Broker-Dealer A's financial statements.[14] Other than obtaining representations from management, Respondents failed to perform any audit procedures concerning Broker-Dealer A's reported assets, liabilities, revenues and expenses.

15. As a result of the above deficiencies, Respondents failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the audits of Broker-Dealer A's financial statements for FY 2018 and FY 2019.

iii. Violations Related to Audits of Broker-Dealer A's Supplemental information

16. Broker-Dealer A's Form X-17A-5 included supplemental information accompanying its FY 2018 and FY 2019 financial statements, relating to (i) computation of aggregate indebtedness and net capital ("Net Capital") pursuant to 17 C.F.R. § 240.15c3-1;[15] and (ii) reconciliation of the computation of aggregate indebtedness and net capital with that of the registrant [Broker-Dealer A] as filed in Part IIA of Form X-17A-5 ("Reconciliation Report").[16]

17. Respondents failed to obtain sufficient audit evidence appropriate to support the Firm's opinion on Broker-Dealer A's supplemental information for both FY 2018 and FY 2019 as required by PCAOB standards.[17] Specifically, other than obtaining Broker-Dealer A's Net Capital calculations and agreeing them to regulatory reports prepared by management, Respondents failed to perform the required audit procedures under AS 2701 on Broker-Dealer A's Net Capital and Reconciliation Report included in the supplemental information.[18]

18. Consequently, Respondents violated PCAOB standards by failing to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence that the supplemental information accompanying Broker-Dealer A's FY 2018 and FY 2019 financial statements was fairly stated, in all material respects, in relation to the financial statements as a whole.[19]

E. The Firm and Mayah Violated AT No. 2 in Their Reviews of Broker-Dealer A's 2017 and 2018 Exemption Reports

i. Commission Reporting Requirements and PCAOB Rules and Standards Related to the Reviews

19. Rule 17a-5 requires a broker or dealer that claims it was exempt from Rule 15c3-3 throughout the most recent fiscal year to prepare an exemption report.[20] This report must contain the following statements made to the best knowledge and belief of the broker-dealer: (1) a statement that identifies the provisions in paragraph (k) of Rule 15c3-3 under which the broker or dealer claimed an exemption from Rule 15c3-3; (2) state that the broker-dealer met the identified exemption provisions throughout the most recent fiscal year without exception or that it met the identified exemption provisions throughout the most recent fiscal year except as described in the exemption report; and (3) if applicable, a statement that identifies each exception during the most recent fiscal year in meeting the identified exemption provisions in paragraph (k) of Rule 15c3-3 and that briefly describes the nature of each exception and the approximate date(s) on which the exception existed.[21]

20. Rule 17a-5(g) further requires that an independent public accountant registered with the PCAOB prepare a report based on a review of the statements made by the broker or dealer in the exemption report, in accordance with PCAOB standards.[22] PCAOB Rule 3100 requires a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons to comply with all applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.

21. AT No. 2 establishes requirements that apply when an auditor is engaged to perform a review of the statements (also referred to as "assertions") made by a broker or dealer in an exemption report ("Review Engagement").[23] When performing the review, the auditor must plan and perform the Review Engagement to obtain appropriate evidence that is sufficient to obtain moderate assurance about whether one or more conditions exist that would cause one or more of the broker-dealer's assertions not to be fairly stated, in all material respects.[24] The Review Engagement should be coordinated with the audit of the financial statements and the audit procedures performed on the supplemental information of the broker-dealer.[25] Prior to issuing a review report, the auditor is required to obtain written representations from management of the broker-dealer.[26]

22. As described below, Respondents failed to comply with applicable PCAOB standards in connection with their Reviews of the statements made by Broker-Dealer A in its exemption reports for FY 2018 and FY 2019.

ii. Violations Related to the Exemption Report Reviews

23. Broker-Dealer A filed exemption reports with its Forms X-17A-5 for FY 2018 and FY 2019. Both reports stated that Broker-Dealer A: (i) was exempt under paragraph (k)(2)(ii) of Rule 15c3-3; and (ii) met the identified exemption provisions in paragraph (k) of Rule 15c3-3 throughout the most recent fiscal year without exception.

24. The Firm reviewed the statements made by Broker-Dealer A in its FY 2018 and FY 2019 exemption reports and issued review reports, dated February 28, 2019, and January 15, 2020, respectively (collectively, the "Review Reports").

25. Mayah was responsible for the Reviews and the performance of procedures related to those Reviews.[27] He also authorized the Firm's issuance of the Review Reports.

26. Among other things, the Review Reports stated that the Firm was not aware of any material modifications that should be made in the statements made by Broker-Dealer A in its FY 2018 and FY 2019 exemption reports for them to be fairly stated, in all material respects.

27. Respondents failed to plan and perform the Reviews, however, to obtain appropriate evidence that was sufficient to obtain moderate assurance about whether one or more conditions existed that would cause one or more of Broker-Dealer A's statements in the FY 2018 and FY 2019 exemption reports not to be fairly stated, in all material respects.[28] Specifically, other than reading those exemption reports and testing whether customer funds were promptly transmitted to the clearing broker, Respondents failed to plan and perform the procedures required under AT No. 2, including inquiries, to opine that the Firm was not aware of any material modifications that should be made to the statements in the FY 2018 and FY 2019 exemption reports for them to be fairly stated, in all material respects.[29]

28. Additionally, Respondents failed to obtain written representations from Broker-Dealer A's management as required by AT No. 2.[30] The failure to obtain written representations from management constituted a limitation on the scope of those engagements.[31]

29. As a result of the above deficiencies, Respondents lacked a sufficient basis for their opinions in the Review Reports. Consequently, Respondents violated AT No. 2.[32]

F. The Firm Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards Relating to Engagement Quality Review

30. As noted above, PCAOB rules further provide that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons shall comply with all applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.

31. AS 1220 requires that an engagement quality review be performed on all audits and certain attestation engagements, including a review engagement under AT No. 2, conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards.[33] In addition, a firm may grant permission to a client to use an engagement report only after an engagement quality reviewer provides concurring approval of issuance.[34]

32. The Firm failed to obtain engagement quality reviews for the Audits and Reviews of Broker-Dealer A, and improperly permitted the issuance of its engagement reports without concurring approval of issuance. As a result, the Firm repeatedly violated AS 1220.[35]

G. Mayah Contributed to the Firm's Violations of PCAOB Rules and Standards Relating to Engagement Quality Review

33. PCAOB Rule 3502 states that, "[a] person associated with a registered public accounting firm shall not take or omit to take an action knowing, or recklessly not knowing, that the act or omission would directly and substantially contribute to a violation by that registered public accounting firm of the Act, the Rules of the Board, the provisions of the securities laws relating to the preparation and issuance of audit reports and the obligations and liabilities of accountants with respect thereto, including the rules of the Commission issued under the Act, or professional standards."[36]

34. Mayah was the sole owner of the Firm and the engagement partner for the Audits and Reviews. For each audit engagement and review, Mayah was responsible for ensuring that the Firm complied with PCAOB rules and standards. Mayah knew that he was directly and substantially contributing to the Firm's violations of AS 1220, as described above. As a result, Mayah violated PCAOB Rule 3502.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Tamba S. Mayah, CPA and Tamba Seibu Mayah, CPA, are hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(C) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(3), for a period of two years from the date of this Order, the Firm shall not issue an audit report for any clients that are: (i) an "issuer" as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii); or (ii) a "broker" or "dealer", as those terms are defined in Section 110(3) and (4) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(b)(iii) and (d)(iii), respectively;

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(C) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(3), for a period of two years from the date of this Order, Mayah's role in any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(a)(v), shall be restricted as follows: Mayah shall not (1) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement partner," as that term is used in AS 1201, Supervision of the Audit Engagement; (2) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement quality reviewer," as that term is used in AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review; (3) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, in any role that is equivalent to engagement partner or engagement quality reviewer, but differently denominated (such as "lead partner," "practitioner-in-charge," or "concurring partner"); (4) exercise authority, or supervise the work of another person exercising authority, either to sign a registered public accounting firm's name to an audit report, or to consent to the use of a previously issued audit report, for any issuer, broker, or dealer; or (5) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as the "other auditor" or "another auditor," as those terms are used in AS 1205, Part of the Audit Performed by Other Independent Auditors; and

D. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(F) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(6), Mayah is required to complete, within two years of the date of the Order, fifty hours of professional education and training directly related to the audits of issuers or broker-dealers under PCAOB standards (such hours shall be in addition to, and shall not be counted in, continuing professional education Mayah is required to obtain in connection with any professional license).

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of KPMG,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2021-008

September 13, 2021

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is imposing sanctions upon KPMG ("KPMG Australia," the "Firm," or "Respondent"). The Board is:

(1) censuring the Firm;

(2) imposing a $450,000 civil money penalty on the Firm; and

(3) requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial actions as described in Section IV of this Order.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that KPMG Australia violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards over several years in connection with the Firm's internal training program.

In ordering these sanctions, the Board took into account the Firm's extraordinary cooperation in this matter, including self-reporting, substantial assistance, and personnel and policy actions, as described in more detail below.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. KPMG is an unincorporated partnership in Australia, and headquartered in Sydney, New South Wales, Australia. It is a member firm of the KPMG International Limited global network of firms ("KPMG Global"). At all relevant times, the Firm was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. During the period covered by this Order, the Firm served as the auditor for one issuer audit client. Additionally, at all relevant times, the Firm performed audit work that other PCAOB-registered firms, including member firms of KPMG Global, used or relied on in issuing audit reports for their issuer clients.

B. Summary

2. From at least 2016 until early 2020, KPMG Australia violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards related to integrity and personnel management by failing to establish appropriate policies and procedures for administering and monitoring training tests, including tests designed to help the Firm's audit professionals satisfy the requirements for maintaining their accounting licenses. Those quality control failures prevented the Firm from identifying that more than 1,100 Firm personnel, including more than 250 of its auditors, were involved in improper answer sharing—either by providing or receiving answers—in connection with tests for mandatory training courses covering topics that included professional independence, auditing, and accounting.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

3. After discovering the training-related misconduct in February 2020, KPMG Australia reported the matter to the PCAOB within 15 days and began implementing remedial policies and procedures.

C. KPMG Australia Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

i. Applicable PCAOB Rules and Quality Control Standards

4. PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm comply with the Board's quality control standards,[2] which provide that a registered firm "shall have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice."[3]

5. As part of a firm's system of quality control, "[p]olicies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that personnel . . . perform all professional responsibilities with integrity."[4] In addition, PCAOB quality control standards related to personnel management state that "policies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that . . . [w]ork is assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances."[5] Moreover, "policies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that . . . [p]ersonnel participate in general and industry-specific continuing professional education and other professional development activities that enable them to fulfill responsibilities assigned, and satisfy applicable continuing professional education requirements of . . . regulatory agencies."[6]

6. PCAOB quality control standards recognize that "[t]he elements of quality control are interrelated,"[7] and that monitoring procedures are necessary "to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the policies and procedures related to each of the other elements of quality control are suitably designed and are being effectively applied."[8] Under

PCAOB standards, monitoring involves an ongoing consideration and evaluation of, among other things, the effectiveness of professional development activities and compliance with the firm's policies and procedures.[9]

ii. Training Requirements for KPMG Australia Personnel

7. As part of KPMG Australia's personnel management system, the Firm administers a training program for all of its professionals. The Firm has designed its training program to serve multiple purposes, including to provide Firm personnel with technical instruction, to further their professional development, and to satisfy some of the continuing professional education requirements imposed by the accountancy boards that license the Firm's auditors. The Firm's training requirements vary by each professional's position, role, and industry practice area, and are intended to be relevant to, among other things, the independence of its personnel, the audit work they perform, and the integrity with which they carry out their professional responsibilities. The Firm's internal training often includes a testing component.

8. Since at least 2016, the Firm has utilized an online platform to offer training to its personnel. The platform enables the Firm to deliver, track, and record completion of mandatory training and testing. The platform records the dates and times when personnel access and complete mandatory training and testing. For training courses with a testing component, the Firm does not credit personnel with completing the training until they satisfactorily pass the related test.

9. Since at least 2016, the Firm has required all personnel to take certain online courses, including courses on "Independence." These courses include a testing component at the end. During the same period, the Firm has also administered a number of online courses related to auditing, including "Audit Foundations," "Spotlight" (bi-annual training for the Firm's audit personnel covering accounting and auditing standards), and "US GAAP and GAAS training." The particular courses the Firm's auditors must take vary based on their experience levels. These audit-related courses include a testing component and are mandatory for audit personnel.

iii. Failures by KPMG Australia to Establish Adequate Quality Control Policies and Procedures Related to Integrity and Personnel Management

10. Between 2016 and 2020, KPMG Australia had in place certain quality control policies and procedures intended to address integrity and personnel management, including the training aspect of personnel management. For example, with respect to integrity, the Firm's Code of Conduct generally advised personnel that the Firm does not "tolerate behavior . . . that is . . . unethical." The Firm also stated in its audit training policy document that "employees should ensure that the results of the online assessments . . . reflect their own capabilities and not those of their peers." Further, in connection with annual Independence Training, the Firm informed personnel that they should complete the training test without the assistance of others. In administering all other training courses, however, the Firm failed to communicate this expectation. During the same time period, the Firm also employed certain monitoring procedures related to internal training, but those procedures were limited to tracking completion of courses and related tests. The monitoring procedures were not designed to detect other compliance issues, such as answer sharing.

11. As described below, these policies and procedures were inadequate to prevent or detect the extensive answer sharing on training tests that occurred among Firm personnel over multiple years.

iv. Widespread Sharing of Answers to Training Tests at KPMG Australia

12. From at least 2016 to early 2020, more than 1,100 KPMG Australia personnel were involved in improper answer sharing when taking training tests. Firm personnel primarily shared answers using email, by attaching documents containing answers to training test questions. In addition, individuals also shared answers using text messages or instant message services, by providing the answers in hard copy documents, by saving the answers to test questions on a shared server, or orally when taking tests in the presence of others.

13. Instances of improper answer sharing occurred in connection with tests that were a part of the Firm's mandatory training, including the Independence Training, Audit Foundations, Spotlight, and U.S. GAAP and GAAS courses.

14. Improper sharing of training test answers occurred at all levels of the Firm. After Firm leadership learned of the practice and conducted an internal investigation, the Firm sanctioned 1,131 individuals, or approximately 12% of Firm personnel, for their involvement in answer sharing. The Firm's investigation revealed that the misconduct was widespread within the Firm's audit practice, including among those who performed work on audits governed by PCAOB standards. With respect to audit training tests, at least 277 personnel engaged in answer sharing.

15. As illustrated by the misconduct described above, from 2016 to early 2020, KPMG Australia failed to establish policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that (1) Firm personnel performed all professional responsibilities with integrity; (2) work was assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances; and (3) personnel participated in general and industry-specific continuing professional education and other professional development activities that enable them to fulfill responsibilities assigned and satisfy applicable continuing professional education requirements of regulatory agencies. Accordingly, the Firm violated PCAOB quality control policies related to integrity and personnel management.[10]

IV.

In ordering sanctions, the Board took into account the Firm's extraordinary cooperation in this matter.[11] First, the Firm voluntarily self-reported the matter to PCAOB staff within fifteen days of learning about the misconduct. Second, the Firm provided substantial assistance to the PCAOB's investigation by conducting, and providing to the PCAOB the results of, a thorough internal investigation, including evidence relating to each of the Firm's interviews of the 1,172 individuals it suspected of engaging in improper answer sharing. The Firm also held regular update calls with PCAOB staff and provided a root cause analysis of the underlying misconduct, as well as a detailed written report of the results of its internal investigation. Third, the Firm promptly instituted remedial measures, including retaining an independent consultant to undertake a systemic review of the Firm's culture, conduct, and ethics; and requiring personnel to re-take certain training and testing. The Firm also took disciplinary action against 1,131 personnel, ranging from requiring individuals to retire to issuing verbal cautions. Absent the Firm's extraordinary cooperation, the civil money penalty imposed would have been significantly larger, and the Board may have imposed additional sanctions.

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), KPMG is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), the Board imposes a civil money penalty of $450,000 on KPMG. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. KPMG shall pay this civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service postal money order, certified check, bank cashier's check, or bank money order (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board; (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006; and (c) submitted under a cover letter which identifies KPMG as the Respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB Release Number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006; and

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), KPMG is required:

1. Within 90 days of the entry of this Order, to establish, revise, or supplement, as necessary, policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that (a) personnel perform all professional responsibilities with integrity; (b) work is assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances; (c) personnel participate in general and industry-specific continuing professional education and other professional development activities that enable them to fulfill responsibilities assigned and satisfy applicable continuing professional education requirements of regulatory agencies; and (d) the above-described policies and procedures are suitably designed and are being effectively applied.

2. Within 120 days of the entry of this Order, to provide a certification, signed by its CEO, to the Director of the PCAOB's Division of Enforcement and Investigations, stating that the Firm has complied with paragraph IV.C.1.

above. The certification shall identify the actions undertaken to satisfy the conditions specified above (including any remedial actions taken prior to the date of this Order), provide written evidence of compliance in the form of a narrative, and be supported by exhibits sufficient to demonstrate compliance. KPMG shall also submit such additional evidence of, and information concerning, compliance as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Sarah C. Martin, CPA,

Respondent.

September 17, 2021

By this Order, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is barring Sarah C. Martin, CPA ("Martin" or "Respondent") from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm[1] and imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000 on Martin. The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Martin violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the 2017 integrated audit of an issuer's financial statements and internal control over financial reporting ("ICFR") and her subsequent failure to cooperate with the Board's inspection of that audit.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Respondent pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order") as set forth below.[2]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[3]

A. Respondent

1. Sarah C. Martin was, at all relevant times, a certified public accountant licensed by the Virginia Board of Accountancy (license no. 26944). Martin's CPA license is currently on inactive status. Martin was, at all relevant times, a partner in PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP's ("PwC") Richmond, Virginia office and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). She served as the engagement partner for PwC's integrated audit of the Issuer's 2017 financial statements and ICFR.

B. The Issuer

2. The Issuer was, at all relevant times, a Virginia corporation and an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

3. This matter concerns Martin's violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the integrated audit of the Issuer's financial statements and ICFR as of and for the year ended December 31, 2017, and during the PCAOB's subsequent inspection of that audit.

4. During the 2017 audit, Martin failed to perform sufficient audit procedures to test the design and operating effectiveness of certain of the Issuer's controls. As a result,

[2] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[3] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

Martin failed to identify numerous control deficiencies that PwC later determined, following a PCAOB inspection, to be material weaknesses in ICFR.

5. Specifically, Martin's failure to perform sufficient audit procedures caused her not to identify 15 material weaknesses. Following PwC's post-inspection ICFR supplemental procedures, the Issuer and PwC combined these 15 individual material weaknesses into two aggregated material weaknesses that existed as of December 31, 2017: one with respect to the accuracy and occurrence of revenue, and a second with respect to the review of cash flow forecasts. The Issuer filed a Form 8-K disclosing that PwC's unqualified 2017 ICFR opinion should no longer be relied upon.

6. In addition, during the PCAOB's inspection of the 2017 Issuer audit, Martin participated in meetings during which PwC personnel provided the PCAOB inspectors with a sensitivity analysis performed during the inspection that PwC personnel claimed had informed the engagement team's work during the audit. Martin knew or should have known that the sensitivity analysis had been created during the inspection and had not informed the team's work during the audit. However, Martin failed to disclose this information to the PCAOB inspectors, in violation of PCAOB rules.

D. Martin Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards During the 2017 Audit of the Issuer's ICFR

7. Martin served as the engagement partner for PwC's 2017 audit of the Issuer. On February 21, 2018, PwC issued unqualified audit opinions on the Issuer's financial statements and ICFR as of and for the year ended December 31, 2017. The Issuer filed PwC's audit report with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") as part of its 2017 Form 10-K.

8. During the 2017 audit of the Issuer's ICFR, Martin reviewed audit documentation identifying the likely sources of potential misstatement ("LSPMs") for each relevant area of the audit, as well as all of the related walkthrough work papers where the controls that were intended to address those LSPMs were identified and described. Martin also reviewed many, but not all, of the relevant detailed control testing work papers.

9. Based on her review, Martin knew or should have known that the Issuer's controls failed to address the LSPMs she had identified with respect to the accuracy and occurrence of revenue in two of the Issuer's divisions ("Division 1" and "Division 2," respectively) and the review of cash flow forecasts.

10. The PCAOB inspection of the 2017 Issuer audit resulted in the issuance of four comment forms criticizing PwC's ICFR testing. As part of its remediation of the inspection comments, PwC performed supplemental procedures and identified nine material weaknesses in controls related to the Division 1 revenue cycle and five material weaknesses in controls related to the Division 2 revenue cycle. The Issuer and PwC aggregated these individual material weaknesses into a single aggregated material weakness in controls over the accuracy and occurrence of revenue.

11. During its post-inspection ICFR supplemental procedures, PwC also identified two deficiencies in controls related to cash flow forecasts used in valuing certain of the Issuer's assets. The Issuer and PwC aggregated these deficiencies into a single material weakness in controls over the review of cash flow forecasts.

12. On November 1, 2018, the Issuer filed a Form 8-K stating that it and PwC had re-evaluated the company's ICFR as of December 31, 2017, and identified material weaknesses in the two areas discussed above, and that PwC's 2017 ICFR opinion should no longer be relied upon.

i. Relevant PCAOB Rules and Standards

13. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[4]

14. Section 404 of the Act requires company management to assess and report on the effectiveness of ICFR. The Act also, in certain circumstances, requires a company's independent auditor to attest and report on management's assessment of the effectiveness of ICFR. Effective ICFR provides reasonable assurance regarding the reliability of financial reporting and the preparation of financial statements for external purposes.[5] However, a company's ICFR cannot be considered effective if one or more material weaknesses in internal control exist.[6]

15. PCAOB standards provide that an auditor performing an ICFR audit should test those controls that are important to the auditor's conclusion about whether the company's controls sufficiently address the assessed risk of misstatement for each relevant assertion.[7]

16. "The auditor should test the design effectiveness of controls by determining whether the company's controls, if they are operated as prescribed by persons possessing the necessary authority and competence to perform the control effectively, satisfy the company's control objectives and can effectively prevent or detect errors or fraud that could result in material misstatements in the financial statements."[8] The auditor also should test the operating effectiveness of controls "by determining whether the control is operating as designed and whether the person performing the control possesses the necessary authority and competence to perform the control effectively."[9]

17. When determining whether a control deficiency rises to the level of a material weakness, the auditor should evaluate the effect of compensating controls.[10] "To have a mitigating effect, the compensating control should operate at a level of precision that would prevent or detect a misstatement that could be material."[11]

ii. Controls Over Division 1 and Division 2 Revenue

18. Division 1 and Division 2 contributed 31% and 24%, respectively, of the Issuer's 2017 revenue.

19. During the 2017 audit, Martin and the engagement team identified LSPMs for Division 1 revenue, which included: (1) inaccurate or incomplete entry of sales orders; (2) recognition of revenue for goods or services that were not ordered by customers; and (3) a failure to recognize revenue at the appropriate price.

20. Martin failed to ensure that the engagement team adequately tested whether the Issuer's controls were, in fact, appropriately designed to address these LSPM risks.[12] For example, Martin failed to ensure that the engagement team identified or tested any controls over whether the sales order quantities manually recorded in the company's software system were consistent with customer purchase orders.

21. Similarly, while Martin and the engagement team identified two controls that were intended to address the accuracy of prices used to record revenue, neither of these controls tested sales orders in a price range from which the Issuer derived 98% of its Division 1 revenue.

22. For Division 2 revenue, the LSPMs that Martin and the engagement team identified included: (1) inaccurate or incomplete entry of sales orders; (2) recognition of revenue for goods or services that were not ordered by customers; (3) a failure to properly segregate duties; (4) inaccurate recording of cash receipts; and (5) a failure to record cash receipts in the correct period.

23. Once again, while Martin and the engagement team identified several controls that purported to address these LSPM risks, they failed to adequately test whether the Issuer's controls were, in fact, appropriately designed to do so.[13] For example, Martin and the engagement team identified a design deficiency relating to the accuracy of sales order entries and the potential recognition of revenue for goods and services not ordered by customers. In response, Martin and the engagement team identified certain compensating controls upon which they relied to conclude that the deficiency was not a material weakness. However, these compensating controls did not adequately mitigate the risk from the identified control deficiency.[14]

24. One of the controls that PwC identified as compensating was the automatic generation of sequential sales order numbers by the Issuer's software system when a purchase order was manually entered. Martin and the engagement team noted that the control prevented duplicate sales orders, but they did not evaluate the control's failure to address whether the manually-entered order quantities were accurate. The remaining compensating controls identified by Martin and the engagement team likewise failed to adequately address this risk.

14 See AS 2201.68.

25. Accordingly, Martin failed to ensure that the engagement team adequately tested whether the Issuer's controls were designed in a manner that appropriately addressed the LSPMs identified with respect to Division 1 and Division 2 revenue.[15]

iii. Controls Over Cash Flow Forecasts

26. The Issuer reported a significant investment in a private company representing 7% of the Issuer's total assets as of December 31, 2017 ("Investment"). The Issuer accounted for the Investment using the fair value method, which relied on cash flow forecasts, and recorded a net gain on the Investment of 63% of the Issuer's net income during 2017.

27. In addition, the Issuer recorded a significant acquisition ("Acquisition") during 2017 for which it recorded customer relationship and trade name intangible assets totaling 4% of total assets. The Issuer used revenue projections in valuing these intangible assets.

28. During the 2017 audit, Martin and the engagement team identified the significant judgment used in management's cash flow projections and inaccurate revenue growth rate assumptions as LSPMs with respect to the valuation of the Investment and the acquired intangible assets, respectively.

29. Martin and the engagement team determined that these LSPMs were addressed by two controls involving the corporate controller's review of cash flow projections, including revenue projections, for reasonableness.

30. However, in testing these two controls, Martin and the engagement team failed to evaluate the specific review procedures the corporate controller performed to assess the reasonableness of projected cash flows and revenue growth assumptions. Martin and the engagement team failed to evaluate whether and how the controller would follow up on items relating to management's use of significant judgment or the accuracy of revenue growth rate assumptions. Accordingly, Martin failed to ensure that the engagement team adequately tested whether the controls were designed and operating in a manner that appropriately addressed the LSPMs.[16]

E. Martin Failed to Cooperate With a Board Inspection

i. Duty to Cooperate With a Board Inspection

31. PCAOB rules require that registered public accounting firms and their associated persons "shall cooperate with the Board in the performance of any Board inspection."[17] This cooperation requirement includes an obligation not to provide misleading documents or information in connection with, or otherwise to interfere with, the Board's inspection processes.[18] An auditor provides misleading information if he or she fails to disclose that documentation presented to inspectors as having existed at the time of the audit was, in fact, subsequently altered or created.[19]

ii. Martin Failed to Disclose that a Sensitivity Analysis Provided to the PCAOB Inspectors Had Not Existed at the Time of the Audit

32. Because PwC issued its audit report on February 21, 2018, the 45 day period for PwC to complete its documentation for the 2017 audit of the Issuer ended on April 7, 2018.[20]

33. The Board selected the 2017 audit of the Issuer for inspection. The Board's Division of Registration and Inspections ("DRI") performed field work for the inspection during the week of May 21, 2018.

34. The engagement team's testing of the Issuer's accounting for the Acquisition, and in particular the team's testing of the customer relationship intangible asset, was an area of interest of the PCAOB inspection.

35. On May 21, 2018, a PwC audit staff member requested that PwC's Transaction Services Group perform a sensitivity analysis—"a valuation of customer relationships assuming a static growth rate of 4% in revenue"—in response to questions during the inspection. Martin was then copied on emails concerning the preparation of the analysis.

36. The next day, a member of PwC's Transaction Services Group sent the newly-created sensitivity analysis to Martin and other PwC personnel. Martin forwarded the sensitivity analysis to a PwC audit staff member, along with a note stating that it was "[o]ne more piece of support for the [Acquisition] file for tomorrow."

37. Also on May 22, 2018, Martin and other PwC personnel participated in a meeting with the PCAOB inspectors. PwC's notes of this meeting record that PwC personnel told the inspectors that a sensitivity analysis had "informed our work" with respect to the customer relationship intangible asset.

38. During the May 22 meeting, neither Martin nor any other PwC personnel disclosed that the specific sensitivity analysis shown to the inspectors had not existed during the 2017 audit, and so could not have informed their work at the time of the audit.

39. On May 24, 2018, Martin and other PwC personnel participated in another meeting with the inspectors to discuss the engagement team's testing of the Acquisition. PwC personnel provided the inspectors with a hard copy of the sensitivity analysis. Martin and her team did not provide the inspectors with an electronic copy of the sensitivity analysis; nor did they disclose that the sensitivity analysis had been created during the inspection week, and not during the 2017 audit.

40. At the end of the day on May 24, Martin and one other PwC representative attended an additional meeting with a PCAOB inspector. PwC's notes from this meeting, which were located in a spreadsheet tab labeled "High priority," indicate that the inspector requested "anyting [sic] that can show the sensitivy [sic] was done at the time of the audit." The notes do not reflect a response.

41. Martin knew or should have known that the inspector's comment reflected her understanding that PwC purported to have performed the sensitivity analysis at the time of the 2017 audit. Nonetheless, Martin did not disclose that the sensitivity analysis had, in fact, been created during the inspection, and not during the time of the 2017 audit of the Issuer.

42. Martin's acts and omissions as described above violated her duty under Rule 4006 to cooperate with the Board's inspection of the 2017 audit of the Issuer.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Sarah C. Martin, CPA is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[21]

B. Pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), Sarah C. Martin may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after one year from the date of this Order; and

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), the Board imposes a civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000 on Sarah C. Martin. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of these civil money penalties will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Respondent shall pay the civil money penalty within 10 days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies Sarah C. Martin as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this

[21] As a consequence of the bar, the provisions of Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act will apply with respect to Martin. Section 105(c)(7)(B) provides: "It shall be unlawful for any person that is suspended or barred from being associated with a registered public accounting firm under this subsection willfully to become or remain associated with any issuer, broker, or dealer in an accountancy or a financial management capacity, and for any issuer, broker, or dealer that knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of such suspension or bar, to permit such an association, without the consent of the Board or the Commission."

Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006. Respondent Sarah C. Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Alison G. Yablonowitz, CPA, and Shawn C. Rogers, CPA,

Respondents.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2021-010

September 22, 2021

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) suspending Alison G. Yablonowitz, CPA, from being associated with a registered public accounting firm for one year, imposing on her a $25,000 civil money penalty, and requiring her to complete 20 additional hours of continuing professional education (CPE) within one year of the date of this Order; and

(2) censuring Shawn C. Rogers, CPA, imposing on him a $10,000 civil money penalty, and requiring him to complete 20 additional hours of CPE within one year of the date of this Order.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Yablonowitz and Rogers (collectively, "Respondents") violated PCAOB rules and auditing standards by failing to perform adequate procedures and obtain sufficient evidence concerning certain significant unusual transactions.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have submitted Offers of Settlement ("Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[2]

A. Respondents

1. Alison G. Yablonowitz is a certified public accountant licensed by the New Jersey State Board of Accountancy (license number 20CC03376200) and registered with the New York State Education Department (license number 081347). At all relevant times, she was a partner of Ernst & Young LLP ("EY") in its Iselin, New Jersey office. Yablonowitz is, and at all relevant times was, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

2. Shawn C. Rogers is a certified public accountant licensed by the New Jersey State Board of Accountancy (license number 20CC02392800) and registered with the New York State Education Department (license number 092690). Rogers is, and at all relevant times was, a partner of EY in its Iselin, New Jersey office and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Relevant Entities

3. Ernst & Young LLP is a public accounting firm organized as a Delaware limited liability partnership and headquartered in New York, New York. EY is licensed in multiple jurisdictions, including New Jersey (license number 20CB00262400). EY at all relevant times was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB Rules.

[2] The Board finds that Yablonowitz's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5)(B) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5)(B), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

4. Synchronoss Technologies, Inc. ("Synchronoss" or "Company") is a Delaware corporation headquartered in New Jersey. Its public filings disclose that, during the relevant period, Synchronoss was a software company that provided technologies and services including cloud solutions and software-based activation for mobile carriers, enterprises, retailers, and original equipment manufacturers. At all relevant times, its common stock was registered under Section 12(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. At all relevant times, Synchronoss was an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

5. This matter concerns Respondents' failures to comply with PCAOB rules and auditing standards in connection with EY's audits of Synchronoss's financial statements as of and for the years ended December 31, 2014 ("2014 Audit"), December 31, 2015 ("2015 Audit"), and December 31, 2016 ("2016 Audit").

6. Synchronoss reported progressively increasing net revenues from approximately $349 million for the year ended December 31, 2013 to $622 million[3] for the year ended December 31, 2016—an increase of more than 78%.

7. Yablonowitz served as the engagement partner on the 2014 and 2015 Audits, and her violations took place in connection with audit procedures to test the accounting for three software license transactions. Rogers served as the engagement partner on the 2016 Audit, and his violations took place in connection with audit procedures to test the accounting for two software license transactions.

Audit Year	Engagement Partner	Transaction Counterparty	License Fee
2014	Yablonowitz	(1) Counterparty A	$6 million
2015	Yablonowitz	(2) Counterparty B (3) Counterparty C	$10 million $23 million
2016	Rogers	(4) Counterparty D (5) Counterparty E	$10 million $9.2 million

[3] This amount includes net revenues that Synchronoss reflected as income from discontinued operations, net of tax, in its Consolidated Statement of Income for the year ended December 31, 2016.

8. In each of the transactions, Synchronoss licensed software technology to an entity—in exchange for a license fee—around the same time it was negotiating a strategic transaction (i.e., an acquisition, business venture, or divestiture) with that same entity or one or more of its affiliates. In each instance, Synchronoss incorrectly accounted for the license transaction as separate from the strategic transaction and improperly recognized the license payment as revenue.

9. With respect to these transactions, Respondents failed to adequately evaluate (a) Synchronoss's accounting treatment of the license transaction as separate from the related strategic transaction and (b) the factors specified in the PCAOB's fraud consideration standard with respect to significant unusual transactions. Moreover, Respondents failed to adequately resolve inconsistencies in audit evidence and investigate instances in which evidence contradicted management representations, and instead relied on uncorroborated management representations. In doing so, Respondents failed, among other things, to exercise due care and professional skepticism, and to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support EY's audit opinions for the 2014-2016 Audits.

10. In July 2018, after an audit committee-led investigation into accounting issues that revealed information previously withheld from EY engagement teams, Synchronoss filed a Form 10-K restating its financial statements for the years ended December 31, 2015 and 2016, as well as selected financial data for the year ended December 31, 2014, and other periods. EY conducted an audit of those restated financial statements. Rogers authorized the issuance of EY's audit report. Synchronoss's restatement reversed revenue from all five software license transactions at issue.

D. Respondents Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

11. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that the associated persons of a registered public accounting firm comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[4] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements only when the auditor has formed such an opinion on the basis of an audit performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[5]

12. PCAOB standards require that an auditor exercise due professional care in planning and performing an audit.[6] Due professional care requires that the auditor exercise professional skepticism—an attitude that includes a questioning mind and a critical assessment of audit evidence—throughout the audit process.[7] Professional skepticism requires "an ongoing questioning of whether the information and evidence obtained suggests that a material misstatement due to fraud has occurred."[8]

13. Auditors are required to plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the opinion expressed in the auditor's report, including obtaining reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement, whether caused by error or fraud.[9] The higher the risk of material misstatement, the more evidence the auditor should obtain, and the more persuasive that evidence should be.[10]

14. Audit evidence "consists of both information that supports and corroborates management's assertions regarding the financial statements" and "information that contradicts such assertions."[11] While an auditor may use inquiry to obtain information, "[i]nquiry alone does not provide sufficient appropriate evidence to support a conclusion about a relevant assertion."[12] Management representations "are not a substitute for the application of those auditing procedures necessary to afford a reasonable basis for an opinion regarding the financial statements under audit."[13] The auditor "should obtain corroboration for management's explanations regarding significant unusual or unexpected transactions."[14]

15. If audit evidence obtained from one source is inconsistent with audit evidence obtained from another source, "the auditor should perform the audit procedures necessary to resolve the matter and should determine the effect, if any, on other aspects of the audit."[15] Moreover, if "a representation made by management is contradicted by other audit evidence, the auditor should investigate the circumstances," "consider the reliability of the representation made," and "consider whether his or her reliance on management's representations relating to other aspects of the financial statements is appropriate and justified."[16] In addition, if management's responses to the auditor's inquiries appear to be "inconsistent with other audit evidence, imprecise, or not at a sufficient level of detail to be useful, the auditor should perform procedures to address the matter."[17]

16. Auditors who have identified significant unusual transactions are required to comply with certain provisions in the PCAOB's auditing standard governing the auditor's consideration of fraud. During the 2014 Audit, that standard was AU § 316, Consideration of Fraud in a Financial Statement Audit. Paragraphs 66 and 67 of AU § 316 required an auditor to (a) understand the business rationale for such a transaction, (b) understand whether that

17. By the time of the 2015 Audit, the PCAOB's fraud consideration standard—AU § 316—had been amended. By the time of the 2016 Audit, that amended standard had also been reorganized as AS 2401, Consideration of Fraud in a Financial Statement Audit. Paragraphs 66A, 67, and 67A of amended AU § 316 and AS 2401 require an auditor to (a) evaluate the business purpose of a significant unusual transaction, (b) evaluate whether that business purpose (or lack thereof) indicates the transaction may have been entered into to engage in fraudulent financial reporting, (c) take into account the potential misstatements that could result from significant unusual transactions in designing and performing further audit procedures, and (d) evaluate certain factors. Those factors include whether the form of the transaction is overly complex; whether the transaction involves other parties that do not appear to have the financial capability to support the transaction without assistance from the company; whether the transaction is part of a larger series of connected, linked, or otherwise interdependent arrangements that lack commercial or economic substance individually or in the aggregate; whether the transaction enables the company to achieve certain financial targets; and whether management is placing more emphasis on the need for a particular accounting treatment than on the underlying economic substance of the transaction (e.g., accounting-motivated structured transaction).[19]

18. An auditor at the time of the 2015-2016 Audits was also required to "evaluate whether significant unusual transactions that the auditor has identified have been properly accounted for and disclosed in the financial statements."[20]

i. Yablonowitz Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in the 2014 Audit with Respect to Counterparty A Transactions

a. Background

20. Synchronoss sued Counterparty A, an affiliate of Counterparty A, and Counterparty A's parent company in 2011, alleging that these entities were infringing certain Synchronoss software patents. In late January 2014, while the infringement lawsuit was pending, Synchronoss signed a letter of intent to acquire Counterparty A.

21. By the end of March 2014, and while the acquisition discussions were ongoing, Synchronoss and Counterparty A substantially completed negotiations to settle the infringement lawsuit through a software licensing arrangement. That negotiation culminated in the execution of two software license agreements. In the first, entered into by Synchronoss, Counterparty A and its parent, and a Counterparty A affiliate on March 28, 2014 ("First Counterparty A License Agreement"), Synchronoss dismissed its patent infringement lawsuit and granted Counterparty A a perpetual license to use the software at issue in exchange for $3 million. Synchronoss recorded the $3 million fee as revenue on March 31, 2014, the last day of Q1 2014.

22. Three weeks later, on April 18, 2014, Synchronoss and Counterparty A, along with its parent and its affiliates, entered into a second software license agreement ("Second Counterparty A License Agreement" and, collectively with the First Counterparty A License Agreement, "Counterparty A License Agreements") by which Synchronoss granted Counterparty A's parent and affiliates a license for a second $3 million fee—but due only if within 135 days Counterparty A's stock or assets were acquired by another company, referred to as a "change in control." If there was no such change in control, Counterparty A's parent would not have to pay the second $3 million but would keep the software license.

23. Two weeks later, on May 3, 2014, Synchronoss and Counterparty A along with Counterparty A's parent entered into a third agreement, whereby Synchronoss acquired all of Counterparty A's stock for approximately $26.6 million ("Share Purchase Agreement"). That acquisition closed on July 11, 2014. As a result of the acquisition and upon receipt of the second license fee, Synchronoss recorded $3 million in revenue during Q3 2014.

24. Yablonowitz and the 2014 Audit engagement team identified the acquisition of Counterparty A as a significant unusual transaction.

25. In addition, Yablonowitz and the 2014 Audit engagement team identified revenue recognition and purchase accounting as "areas of audit emphasis." EY defined "areas of audit emphasis" as "those processes, accounts, contracts or transactions where we believe there is the greatest risk of material misstatement to the consolidated financial statements, whether due to error or fraud." Under PCAOB auditing standards, that increased risk required Yablonowitz to obtain greater and more persuasive audit evidence to support her conclusions.[24]

b. Yablonowitz Failed to Adequately Perform Procedures Concerning Counterparty A Transactions

26. GAAP includes ASC 805, Business Combinations. ASC 805 provides guidance to determine what is part of a business combination and requires the acquirer to identify any amounts that are not part of what the acquirer and acquiree exchanged in the business combination. ASC 805-10-25-20 ("25-20") states:

> The acquirer and the acquiree may have a preexisting relationship or other arrangement before negotiations for the business combination began, or they may enter into an arrangement during the negotiations that is separate from the business combination. In either situation, the acquirer shall identify any amounts that are not part of what the acquirer and the acquiree (or its former owners) exchanged in the business combinations, that is, amounts that are not part of the exchange for the acquiree. The acquirer shall recognize as part of applying the acquisition method only the consideration transferred for the acquiree and the assets acquired, and liabilities assumed in the exchange for the acquiree.

[24] See AS 1105.05 ("Sufficiency is the measure of the quantity of audit evidence. The quantity of audit evidence needed is affected by the following: Risk of material misstatement (in the audit of financial statements) . . . . As the risk increases, the amount of evidence that the auditor should obtain also increases."); AS 2301.09.a ("In designing the audit procedures to be performed, the auditor should: . . . Obtain more persuasive audit evidence the higher the auditor's assessment of risk . . . ."); id. at .37 ("As the assessed risk of material misstatement increases, the evidence from substantive procedures that the auditor should obtain also increases.").

> Separate transactions shall be accounted for in accordance with the relevant generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP).

27. Yablonowitz understood that the Counterparty A License Agreements and business combination were entered into around the same time, and that Synchronoss had to consider, and she had to evaluate, whether those license agreements were separate transactions from the acquisition within the meaning of 25-20. If they were not separate transactions under GAAP, then the license fees could not be appropriately recorded as revenue and, instead, the $6 million in payments would need to be deducted from the cost to acquire Counterparty A.

28. In addition, to determine whether the Counterparty A transactions were "separate," Synchronoss had to consider the criteria set out in ASC 805's implementation guidance, specifically ASC 805-10-55-18 ("55-18"). 55-18 sets out three factors for determining "whether a transaction is part of the exchange for the acquiree or whether the transaction is separate from the business combination." Those factors are: the reasons for the transaction, who initiated the transaction, and the timing of the transaction.[25] Yablonowitz neither received nor reviewed any documentation of Synchronoss's consideration of 25-20 or 55-18 related to the Counterparty A transactions during the 2014 Audit.

29. Further, Synchronoss routinely documented its selection and application of accounting principles—such as the provisions in ASC 805—in accounting memoranda prepared by its Finance personnel. For the First Counterparty A License Agreement, the engagement team obtained, and Yablonowitz reviewed, a draft of such an accounting memorandum. However, that memorandum did not refer to 25-20 or 55-18, and contained no analysis of why Synchronoss had concluded the first license agreement was separate from the acquisition under 25-20. Nor was there any documentation that management considered the factors in 55-18.

30. Discussing the Second Counterparty A License Agreement, Yablonowitz observed in an email to her audit manager, "I don't think it's that straight forward [sic] given they acquired [Counterparty A], subsidiary of [Counterparty A's parent] at the same time. One could challenge whether it should be reduction in purchase price." Despite her observation, neither Yablonowitz nor others on the engagement team obtained an accounting memorandum, draft or otherwise, from Synchronoss in connection with the second license agreement.

31. Moreover, the 2014 Audit work papers do not reflect that Yablonowitz or the engagement team evaluated under 25-20 and 55-18 Synchronoss's treatment of the [25] See ASC 805-10-55-18.a, .b, .c.

Counterparty A License Agreements as separate. For example, though the second factor in 55-18 is "who initiated the transaction," Yablonowitz did not know during the 2014 Audit, and failed to take steps to find out, which party (a) approached the other about settling the patent litigation between Synchronoss and Counterparty A or (b) raised with the other, or with any intermediary banker or broker, the possibility of an acquisition.

32. Yablonowitz also failed to perform an adequate evaluation of separateness during the 2014 Audit even though she was aware of evidence suggesting the Counterparty A License Agreements were not separate transactions from the acquisition of Counterparty A under 25-20 and 55-18 and indicating the need to exercise heightened professional skepticism in evaluating whether they were. For example, Yablonowitz was aware that the minutes of a January 2014 Synchronoss board meeting reflected that management told the board that Synchronoss would enter into the Counterparty A License Agreements "as part of" the acquisition, and that the 135-day change-in-control provision directly linked the Second Counterparty A License Agreement to the acquisition and was not "usual" for Synchronoss.

33. Moreover, the identification of the Counterparty A acquisition as a significant unusual transaction required Yablonowitz, among other things, to obtain an understanding of whether the business rationale for the acquisition or lack of rationale suggested the transaction may have been entered into to engage in fraudulent financial reporting[26] and to consider the factors specified in paragraph 67 of the PCAOB's fraud consideration standard with respect to significant unusual transactions ("SUT factors").[27]

34. However, there is no documentation, in the 2014 Audit work papers or elsewhere, indicating that Yablonowitz performed that evaluation or obtained evidence for the purpose of performing that evaluation.

35. In particular, Yablonowitz failed to adequately: (a) gain an understanding of the business rationale for entering into the Counterparty A acquisition separately from the Counterparty A License Agreements; (b) gain an understanding of whether the rationale for the Counterparty A acquisition suggested the Share Purchase Agreement was entered into separately from the license agreements in order to engage in fraudulent financial reporting; (c) consider whether the form of the Counterparty A acquisition as one of multiple transactions between Synchronoss and Counterparty A and its parent was "overly complex"; and (d) consider whether, by entering into the license agreements separate from the acquisition, management was placing more emphasis on the need for revenue treatment than on the underlying economics of the transaction.

36. Furthermore, though the evidence described above in paragraph 32 contradicted a representation by Synchronoss's chief financial officer (CFO) to Yablonowitz that the Counterparty A License Agreements and the acquisition were not negotiated together, Yablonowitz failed to adequately investigate the circumstances of those contradictions[28] or otherwise perform procedures to resolve those inconsistencies.[29]

ii. Yablonowitz Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in the 2015 Audit with Respect to Counterparty B Transactions

a. Background

37. Synchronoss sued Counterparty B in October 2014, alleging that Counterparty B was infringing certain of its software patents. At some point in 2014, Counterparty B approached Synchronoss to discuss a potential acquisition of Counterparty B's cloud business.

38. In November 2014, Counterparty B's chief executive officer ("CEO") met with Synchronoss's CEO to discuss both the settlement of the lawsuit and the sale of Counterparty B's cloud business to Synchronoss. Minutes of a December 2014 board meeting reviewed by Yablonowitz state that the two CEOs met "to discuss the patent litigation, the potential acquisition and a strategic partnership to cross-sell and market each other's products" and that the "Board agreed that the Company should continue negotiations with" Counterparty B.

39. On February 4, 2015, Synchronoss entered into an asset purchase agreement with Counterparty B to acquire its cloud assets for $60 million. The acquisition closed on February 23, 2015. That same day, Synchronoss entered into another agreement with Counterparty B to dismiss its patent infringement lawsuit and grant Counterparty B a perpetual license ("Counterparty B License Agreement") to use the patented software at issue in exchange for a $10 million license fee. Synchronoss accounted for the software license agreement with Counterparty B separately from the acquisition and recorded the $10 million license fee as revenue in Q1 2015.

40. In addition to identifying both the license agreement and acquisition agreement with Counterparty B (collectively, "Counterparty B Transactions") as significant unusual transactions, Yablonowitz and the 2015 Audit engagement team identified revenue recognition and business combinations, as well as significant unusual transactions in general, as areas of audit emphasis that presented the greatest risk of material misstatement to the financial statements. Yablonowitz and the engagement team thus were required to obtain greater and more persuasive audit evidence to support their conclusions.[30]

[29] AS 1105.29.

b. Yablonowitz Failed to Adequately Perform Procedures Concerning Counterparty B Transactions

41. Yablonowitz understood that the Counterparty B License Agreement and business combination were entered into around the same time, and that Synchronoss had to consider, and she had to evaluate, whether the license agreement was a separate transaction from the acquisition within the meaning of 25-20. If it was not a separate transaction, the $10 million payment would need to be deducted from the cost to acquire Counterparty B's cloud business.

42. In addition, Yablonowitz understood that, to determine whether the Counterparty B Transactions were "separate," Synchronoss had to consider the criteria set out in the implementation guidance at 55-18. Yet Synchronoss's accounting memoranda reviewed by Yablonowitz for the Counterparty B Transactions contained no reference to 55-18 nor any analysis of why Synchronoss had concluded the license agreement with Counterparty B was separate from the acquisition. The accounting memoranda stated that the "settlement was not a negotiating factor" during the acquisition discussions, but that assertion constituted neither sufficient appropriate audit evidence nor an analysis of the factors in 55-18.

43. Yablonowitz also failed to perform an adequate evaluation of the Counterparty B License Agreement during the 2015 Audit even though she was aware of evidence suggesting the license agreement with Counterparty B was not a separate transaction from the acquisition under 25-20 and 55-18 and indicating the need to exercise heightened professional skepticism in evaluating whether it was. For example, among other things, Yablonowitz was aware that management had communicated to the engagement team that the Counterparty B Transactions were negotiated in connection with each other.

44. Moreover, identification of the Counterparty B Transactions as significant unusual transactions required Yablonowitz, among other things, to evaluate whether the business purpose or lack of business purpose indicated that the transactions may have been entered into to engage in fraudulent financial reporting[31] and to evaluate the SUT factors[32] presented by the transactions.[33] However, there is no documentation in EY's work papers reflecting an adequate evaluation.

45. Furthermore, though the evidence described above in paragraph 43 was inconsistent with and contradicted management's statements in accounting memoranda that the purchase consideration was "unrelated to the license agreement settlement" and that the "settlement agreement was separate and distinct from the asset purchase agreement," Yablonowitz failed to adequately investigate the circumstances of those contradictions[34] or otherwise perform procedures to resolve those inconsistencies.[35]

iii. Yablonowitz Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in the 2015 Audit with Respect to Counterparty C Transactions

a. Background

46. On December 31, 2015, Synchronoss executed two agreements and recognized $20 million of revenue on the last day of its fiscal year. One agreement provided for the formation of a business venture ("Business Venture") in which Synchronoss and two companies affiliated with each other (collectively, "Counterparty C") were investors ("BV Transaction"). The purpose of the Business Venture was to develop and market a new version of Counterparty C's then-existing software platform.

47. Pursuant to the BV Transaction, Synchronoss contributed $48 million of cash to the Business Venture in exchange for a two-thirds ownership interest in it. Counterparty C contributed to the Business Venture its ownership of its software platform and related assets (altogether valued at $72 million), in exchange for an immediate payout of $48 million of cash from the Business Venture and a one-third ownership interest in it. As a result of the BV Transaction (1) the Business Venture owned Counterparty C's software platform, including the related software; (2) Counterparty C had the $48 million of cash that Synchronoss initially contributed to the Business Venture; and (3) Counterparty C no longer had the right to use the software platform or the related software.

31 See AU § 316.67.

32 See supra ¶ 17.

33 See AU § 316.67.

34 See AS 2805.04.

35 See AS 1105.29.

48. However, Counterparty C needed to continue using the software. Consequently, on the same day that the BV Transaction was entered into, December 31, 2015, the Business Venture and an affiliate of Counterparty C entered into a license agreement ("Counterparty C License Agreement") by which the Business Venture granted Counterparty C and its affiliates a license to use the software for a $23 million fee and agreed to provide maintenance services for $1 million.

49. Synchronoss concluded that the Business Venture's financial statements should be consolidated with Synchronoss's consolidated financial statements. Thus, Synchronoss consolidated the Business Venture's 2015 financial statements (which included only one day of operations) into its 2015 financial statements, accounted for the license agreement relating to Counterparty C separately from the BV Transaction, and recorded approximately $20 million of the license fee as revenue on December 31, 2015, deferring revenue recognition for the remaining fee, approximately $4 million, to later periods.

50. Yablonowitz and the engagement team identified the BV Transaction and the license agreement (collectively, "Counterparty C Transactions") as significant unusual transactions in the 2015 Audit. Yablonowitz and her team also identified significant unusual transactions, revenue recognition, business combinations, and investments in other affiliates as areas of audit emphasis with increased risk, and thus were required to obtain greater and more persuasive audit evidence to support their conclusions.[36]

b. Yablonowitz Failed to Adequately Perform Procedures Concerning Counterparty C Transactions

51. The Company's draft accounting memorandum for the license agreement obtained by the engagement team and reviewed by Yablonowitz was incorrect in two respects. First, it incorrectly concluded that 25-20 did not apply. Second, it incorrectly stated that, in order for Synchronoss to account for the license fee separately from the BV Transaction under ASC 805, Synchronoss needed to "show that the consideration exchanged for the license was at fair value and was not a bargain purchase resulting in a substantial benefit for either party." Although Yablonowitz knew that 25-20 and 55-18 should have been considered by Synchronoss in its accounting for the license agreement and BV Transaction and that assessing fair value alone was not a proper basis for determining that the license agreement was a separate transaction, Yablonowitz did not inquire about or challenge these statements nor request that the memorandum be revised or supplemented.

[36] See AS 1105.05; AS 2301.09, .37; see also AS 2310.27, The Confirmation Process ("[T]here may be circumstances (such as for significant, unusual year-end transactions that have a material effect on the financial statements . . .) in which the auditor should exercise a heightened degree of professional skepticism . . . .").

52. Moreover, notwithstanding that Yablonowitz had to evaluate Synchronoss's treatment of the license agreement as separate under 25-20 and 55-18, EY's work papers do not reference such an evaluation.

53. Yablonowitz failed to perform an adequate evaluation of the Counterparty C License Agreement during the 2015 Audit even though she was aware of evidence suggesting the license agreement was not a separate transaction from the BV Transaction under 25-20 and 55-18 and indicating the need to exercise heightened professional skepticism in evaluating whether it was. For example, Yablonowitz understood that the Counterparty C Transactions involved round trip transfers of cash and software rights, and that Counterparty C needed to retain a right to continue using the software for its business. Moreover, Yablonowitz was aware that the Counterparty C Transactions were originally structured without a license agreement—that is, as an acquisition by Synchronoss with Counterparty C retaining software rights.

54. Instead of performing an adequate evaluation, Yablonowitz relied on management representations, including a statement in Synchronoss's draft revenue recognition memorandum that "[t]his license agreement was not a negotiating factor in the [B]V agreement and has a stand-alone value" and a verbal representation by the CFO that the license agreement was being "separately negotiated" from the BV Transaction. Those assertions, however, did not constitute sufficient appropriate audit evidence.

55. Moreover, Yablonowitz understood that the identification of the Counterparty C Transactions as significant unusual transactions required her, among other things, to evaluate whether the business purpose or lack of business purpose indicated that the transactions may have been entered into to engage in fraudulent financial reporting[37] and to evaluate the SUT factors[38] presented by the transactions.[39]

56. However, there is no documentation reflecting such an evaluation even though Yablonowitz was aware of evidence indicating that the license agreement was not a separate transaction, and did not have separate economic substance, from the BV Transaction, and might have been entered into separately in order to allow Synchronoss to improperly record revenue and potentially engage in fraudulent financial reporting.

iv. Rogers Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in the 2016 Audit with Respect to Counterparty D Transactions

a. Background

57. In February 2016, shortly after Rogers had taken on responsibilities as engagement partner for the 2016 Audit, he received an email from Synchronoss's controller concerning a potential acquisition of and license agreement with Counterparty D and attaching a draft of that license agreement. The draft agreement released software patent infringement claims Synchronoss purportedly had against Counterparty D and granted a perpetual license to use the patented software to Counterparty D.

58. On March 1, 2016, Synchronoss entered into an agreement to acquire for approximately $125 million all of the stock of Counterparty D from its parent company.

59. On the same day, March 1, 2016, Synchronoss entered into a license agreement with both Counterparty D and its affiliate ("Counterparty D License Agreement") to release software patent infringement claims Synchronoss purportedly had against Counterparty D and to grant, for a $10 million license fee, a perpetual license to use the patented software at issue to Counterparty D and its affiliate.

60. Synchronoss accounted for the license agreement separately from the acquisition of Counterparty D and recorded the $10 million as revenue during Q1 2016.

61. Rogers and the 2016 Audit engagement team identified the Counterparty D acquisition and the license agreement with Counterparty D (collectively, "Counterparty D Transactions") as significant unusual transactions. Rogers and the team also identified revenue recognition and business combinations as areas of audit emphasis and thus were required to obtain greater and more persuasive evidence.[40]

b. Rogers Failed to Adequately Perform Procedures Concerning Counterparty D Transactions

62. Rogers understood that the Counterparty D License Agreement and business combination were entered into around the same time, and that Synchronoss had to consider, and he had to evaluate, whether the license agreement with Counterparty D was a separate transaction under 25-20. Rogers also understood that if it was not a separate transaction under GAAP, then the license fee could not be appropriately recorded as revenue and instead the $10 million payment would need to be deducted from the cost to acquire Counterparty D from its parent company.

63. To determine whether the Counterparty D License Agreement was "separate" under 25-20, Synchronoss had to consider the implementation guidance under 55-18 to assert that the $10 million license fee was properly recorded as revenue, and Rogers had to evaluate whether Synchronoss had properly implemented 55-18 to the license agreement.

64. The engagement team obtained from Synchronoss, and Rogers reviewed, two accounting memoranda for the Counterparty D Transactions. Neither specifically mentioned 55-18 nor contained an analysis of why Synchronoss had concluded the license agreement was separate from the acquisition. Rogers failed to obtain an understanding of why the Company accounting memoranda omitted discussion of the factors in 55-18 or to request that the Company accounting memoranda be revised or supplemented.

65. Moreover, the 2016 Audit work papers do not reflect an analysis of 25-20 or 55-18. Rogers failed to perform an adequate evaluation of separateness during the 2016 Audit even though he was aware of evidence suggesting the license agreement was not a separate transaction from the acquisition of Counterparty D under 25-20 and 55-18 and indicating the need to exercise heightened professional skepticism in evaluating whether it was. For example, Synchronoss's controller communicated to Rogers that the Company intended to sue Counterparty D for patent infringement if the acquisition fell through. In addition, Rogers reviewed the engagement team's purchase accounting memorandum for the Counterparty D acquisition, which concluded that Synchronoss was able to pay a higher price for Counterparty D than any other potential buyer because, unlike any other buyer, Synchronoss would not be impacted by the intellectual property infringement of its own patents.

66. In evaluating separateness, Rogers and the engagement team relied on statements in the Company's accounting memoranda that the "settlement was not a negotiating factor" in the acquisition of Counterparty D and that "[n]one of the two transactional amounts were negotiated together and the acquisition was not contingent on entering into the license agreement." They also relied on oral representations from the CFO and the Company's general counsel that the license agreement and Counterparty D acquisition were negotiated separately and not on a net basis. That reliance on written and oral representations was insufficient to properly evaluate separateness.

67. In addition, Rogers failed to obtain sufficient evidence that Synchronoss and Counterparty D had a preexisting relationship—that is, "a relationship that existed before they contemplated the business combination."[41] Rogers understood that Synchronoss first contemplated the business combination when it was initially contacted by an investment banker about a potential acquisition of Counterparty D. But Rogers also knew that Synchronoss had never filed a patent infringement lawsuit against Counterparty D. Rogers never otherwise obtained an understanding of what facts Synchronoss was relying on to determine that a "relationship" had existed before the investment banker's contact, nor came to any conclusion himself of what, in the absence of a lawsuit, that "relationship" was.

68. Though Rogers had conversations with the Company's CFO and general counsel about Synchronoss's potential patent infringement claims, he failed to obtain evidence that Synchronoss communicated potential claims to Counterparty D before the investment banker contact. Moreover, he failed to corroborate the representations made during those conversations.

69. Furthermore, though Rogers knew the identification of the Counterparty D Transactions as significant unusual transactions required him to perform the procedures specified in AS 2401.66A and .67, the 2016 Audit work papers do not reflect an evaluation of SUT factors[42] beyond the conclusory statement: "There are no indications that the transaction was entered into to engage in fraud."

70. Rogers failed to adequately perform that evaluation even though he was aware of evidence indicating that the license agreement was not a separate transaction, and did not have separate economic substance, from the acquisition of Counterparty D, and might have been entered into separately in order to allow Synchronoss to improperly record revenue and potentially engage in fraudulent financial reporting.

71. Moreover, though the evidence described above in paragraph 65 was inconsistent with the management representation that the license agreement and Counterparty D acquisition were negotiated separately, Rogers failed to investigate the circumstances of those contradictions[43] or otherwise perform procedures to resolve those inconsistencies.[44]

v. Rogers Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in the 2016 Audit with Respect to Counterparty E Transactions

a. Background

72. On December 16, 2016, Synchronoss sold to Counterparty E a 70% ownership interest in the business process outsourcing ("BPO") segment of its carrier activation business for $146 million ("BPO Sale"). The BPO Sale was documented in an operating agreement ("Operating Agreement").

73. In order to help finance the BPO Sale, Synchronoss loaned Counterparty E $83 million through a subordinated seller's promissory note, and guaranteed $30 million of a total of $40 million in unsubordinated debt that Counterparty E owed a third party. As a result of the BPO Sale, Synchronoss and Counterparty E jointly owned the BPO business and became related parties.

74. Synchronoss accounted for the BPO Sale as part of net income from discontinued operations net of taxes in the Consolidated Statement of Income.

75. Six days after the BPO Sale, on December 22, 2016, Synchronoss entered into a license agreement with Counterparty E, which allowed Counterparty E to use Synchronoss's Razorsight software in connection with operating the BPO business. Counterparty E paid Synchronoss a $10 million fee in connection with the license agreement.

76. Synchronoss accounted for the license agreement separately from the BPO Sale and recorded $9.2 million of the $10 million license fee as revenue in Q4 2016, because $9.2 million was the Company's fair value estimate of the license agreement. Rogers testified that Synchronoss treated the remaining $800,000 as additional consideration paid by Counterparty E to purchase the BPO business, and recorded the $800,000 as an element of the gain on the sale of the discontinued operations.

77. Rogers and the 2016 Audit engagement team identified the BPO Sale and the license agreement with Counterparty E (collectively, "Counterparty E Transactions") as significant unusual transactions. Rogers and the team also identified revenue recognition and business combination as areas of audit emphasis, and identified the Counterparty E Transactions as part of two other areas of audit emphasis—discontinued operations including divestiture and related parties—and thus were required to obtain greater and more persuasive evidence.[45]

b. Rogers Failed to Adequately Perform Procedures Concerning Counterparty E Transactions

78. The Company's accounting memorandum, which Rogers reviewed, identified ASC 805 as the authoritative guidance for accounting for the license agreement with Counterparty E. Rogers understood that ASC 805 applied by analogy to the accounting for the license agreement with Counterparty E and the BPO Sale, which was a divestiture.[46]

79. Rogers understood that Synchronoss had to evaluate the license agreement and divestiture under 25-20 and 55-18 to determine whether it was proper to record $9.2 million of the license fee as revenue. The Company's accounting memorandum reviewed by Rogers during the 2016 Audit incorrectly stated that Synchronoss needed to "show that the consideration exchanged for the license was at fair value and was not a bargain purchase resulting in a substantial benefit for either party" in order to treat the license fee as separate. Yet Rogers never understood the basis for that statement, inquired why it had been included, or asked that the memorandum be revised.

80. Rogers failed to perform an adequate evaluation of the Counterparty E License Agreement during the 2016 Audit even though he was aware of evidence suggesting the license agreement with Counterparty E was not a separate transaction from the BPO Sale and indicating the need to exercise heightened professional skepticism. For example, Rogers reviewed minutes of a November 5, 2016 Synchronoss board meeting indicating that a draft of the Operating Agreement included the license agreement as one of its ancillary agreements.

81. Instead, Rogers relied on representations from the CFO and other members of management that the two agreements with Counterparty E were separately negotiated and the negotiations were led by separate members of management. However, Rogers failed to corroborate those representations. The statement in Synchronoss's accounting memorandum for the license agreement—that the "license agreement was not a negotiating factor in the divestiture"—did not provide sufficient evidence as to whether management's representations were true.

82. Furthermore, though the identification of the Counterparty E Transactions as significant unusual transactions required Rogers to perform the procedures specified in AS 2401.66A and .67, the 2016 Audit work papers do not reflect an evaluation of SUT factors[47] beyond the conclusory statement: "There are no indications that the transaction was entered into to engage in fraud."

83. Rogers failed to adequately perform that evaluation even though he was aware of evidence indicating that the license agreement with Counterparty E was not a separate transaction, and did not have separate economic substance, from the BPO Sale, and might have been entered into separately in order to allow Synchronoss to improperly record revenue and potentially engage in fraudulent financial reporting.

84. Moreover, though the evidence described above in paragraph 80 contradicted, and was inconsistent with, the management representation that the license agreement and BPO Sale were negotiated separately, Rogers failed to sufficiently investigate the circumstances of those contradictions[48] or otherwise perform procedures to resolve those inconsistencies.[49]

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers.[50] Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Alison G. Yablonowitz is suspended for a period of one year from the date of this Order

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Shawn C. Rogers is hereby censured;

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), the Board imposes the following civil money penalties:

1. Alison G. Yablonowitz, $25,000; and

2. Shawn C. Rogers, $10,000.

All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of these civil money penalties will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Respondents shall pay these civil money penalties within 10 days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006; and (c) submitted under a cover letter which identifies Yablonowitz or Rogers as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to the Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006. Respondents understand that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may alone be grounds for a summary suspension or bar pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5304.

[51] As a consequence of the suspension, the provisions of Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act will apply with respect to Yablonowitz. Section 105(c)(7)(B) provides: "It shall be unlawful for any person that is suspended or barred from being associated with a registered public accounting firm under this subsection willfully to become or remain associated with any issuer, broker, or dealer in an accountancy or a financial management capacity, and for any issuer, broker or dealer that knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of such suspension or bar, to permit such an association, without the consent of the Board or the Commission."

D. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(F) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(6), Yablonowitz and Rogers are each required to complete, within one year of the date of this Order, 20 hours of professional education and training directly related to the audits of issuer financial statements under PCAOB standards, covering, among other topics, significant unusual transactions and management representations. Such hours shall be in addition to, and shall not be counted in, the continuing professional education Yablonowitz and Rogers are each required to obtain in connection with any professional license.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Yichien Yeh, CPA and Yichien Yeh,

Respondents.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2021-011

September 29, 2021

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) Revoking the registration of Yichien Yeh, CPA (the "Firm"), a registered public accounting firm;[1]

(2) Barring Yichien Yeh ("Yeh") (with the Firm collectively, "Respondents") from being associated with a registered public accounting firm;[2] and

(3) Imposing a $10,000 civil money penalty jointly and severally upon Respondents.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Respondents violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Firm's audit of the financial statements of AmericaTowne Holdings, Inc. ("AmericaTowne" or the "Company") for the year ended December 31, 2018 (the "2018 Audit").

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c)

[2] Yeh may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order.

of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents each have submitted Offers of Settlement ("Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Respondents consent to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[3]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[4]

A. Respondents

1. Yichien Yeh, CPA is a sole proprietorship headquartered in Oakland Gardens, New York. At all relevant times, the Firm was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

2. Yichien Yeh is a certified public accountant licensed by the New York State Board for Public Accountancy (License No. 096015). At all relevant times, Yeh was the sole owner of the Firm and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). Yeh was the engagement partner on the 2018 Audit.

[3] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

B. Issuer

3. AmericaTowne[5] was, at all relevant times, a Nevada corporation headquartered in Raleigh, North Carolina, and an issuer as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). Its public filings disclose that AmericaTowne is an emerging growth company that provides "Made in the USA" goods and services to China and African countries, and engages in the development and exporting of modular energy efficient technology and processes to China and elsewhere.

C. Summary

4. This matter concerns Respondents' violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the 2018 Audit.[6] As detailed below, Respondents failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism; failed to evaluate whether revenue was recognized in accordance with the applicable financial reporting framework; and failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence concerning service fee revenues, related party relationships and transactions, accounts receivable, and the allowance for doubtful accounts.

D. Respondents Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the 2018 Audit

5. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[7] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements when the auditor has conducted an audit in accordance with PCAOB standards and concludes that the financial statements, taken as a whole, are presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework.[8] Among other things, PCAOB standards require an auditor to exercise due professional care, exercise professional skepticism, and plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the auditor's opinion.[9]

6. PCAOB standards state that the auditor must evaluate whether the financial statements are presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework.[10] As part of the evaluation of the presentation of the financial statements, the auditor should evaluate whether the financial statements contain the information essential for a fair presentation of the financial statements in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework.[11]

i. Respondents Failed to Evaluate Whether AmericaTowne's Revenue Was Recognized in Conformity With the Applicable Financial Reporting Framework

7. In FY 2018, AmericaTowne reported total revenue of $377,000. The Company recognized $262,000 in revenue from four service provider agreements with related parties, and $110,000 in revenue from two agreements with unrelated parties (collectively, the "Agreements"). The Agreements were entered into during FY 2018.

8. Approximately 99% of the Company's FY 2018 revenue was from nonrefundable service fees charged by AmericaTowne pursuant to the Agreements. The service fees were fixed and payable over a period in excess of five years, with approximately 4% of the total fee due upon signing, 44% due in monthly installments over a period of 60 months, and 52% due in equal parts in months 61 and 62. AmericaTowne recognized the total amount of service fees in FY 2018, even though approximately 92% of the fees were not due for payment as of year-end.

9. AmericaTowne's public filings disclosed that revenue was recognized when the following criteria have been met: (i) persuasive evidence of an arrangement exists, (ii) delivery has occurred or services have been rendered, (iii) the price is fixed or determinable, and (iv) collectability is reasonably assured.[12]

10. During the 2018 Audit, Respondents failed to evaluate whether AmericaTowne appropriately recognized revenue in conformity with U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles (GAAP). While they obtained the Agreements, Respondents failed to perform any procedures to evaluate whether the revenue recognition criteria had been met prior to AmericaTowne's recognition of the total amount of service fees as revenue. As a result, Respondents failed to evaluate whether AmericaTowne's revenue was presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with U.S. GAAP.[13]

ii. Respondents Failed to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Audit Evidence Concerning AmericaTowne's Service Fee Revenue

11. During the 2018 Audit, Respondents identified a fraud risk related to improper revenue recognition. To test revenue, Respondents agreed the service fee revenue amounts recorded in the FY 2018 financial statements to the amounts reflected in the Agreements, but failed to perform any other procedures regarding revenue. As a result, they failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, and failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether the services were provided to a customer, recorded in the proper period, and properly valued in the FY 2018 financial statements.[14]

iii. Respondents Failed to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Audit Evidence Related to AmericaTowne's Related Party Relationships and Transactions

12. As noted above, AmericaTowne disclosed related party transactions of $262,000 in service provider agreement revenue in its FY 2018 financial statements, and also disclosed associated related party receivables owed to the company of $1.3 million. Respondents identified related party transactions as a significant risk during the 2018 Audit.

13. PCAOB standards require that an auditor obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether related parties and relationships and transactions with related parties have been properly, identified, accounted for, and disclosed in the financial statements.[15] For each related party transaction that is either required to be disclosed in the financial statements or determined to be a significant risk, the auditor should, among other things, evaluate whether the terms and other information about the transaction are consistent with explanations from inquiries and other audit evidence about the business purpose (or lack thereof) of the transaction, and evaluate the financial capability of the related parties.[16] The auditor must also evaluate whether the financial statements contain the information regarding relationships and transactions with related parties essential for a fair presentation in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework.[17]

14. During the 2018 Audit, Respondents identified related party sales transactions from the service provider agreements and proposed an entry to reclassify those amounts as related party revenue. Respondents, nevertheless, performed no other procedures to evaluate whether AmericaTowne's revenue and receivables from related party transactions were properly identified, accounted for, and disclosed in the financial statements.[18] Specifically, Respondents failed to perform any procedures to: (i) obtain an understanding of the business purpose of the related party transactions; (ii) evaluate the financial capability of the related parties with respect to significant uncollected accounts receivable balances; and (iii) evaluate whether AmericaTowne had properly disclosed the nature of each material relationship in accordance with U.S. GAAP.[19]

15. As a result of these deficiencies, Respondents failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether related parties and relationships and transactions with related parties had been properly identified, accounted for, and disclosed in the financial statements.[20]

iv. Respondents Failed to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Audit Evidence Related to AmericaTowne's Sales and Support Services Agreement with Yilaime

16. AmericaTowne's FY 2018 financial statements disclosed that in 2016, ATI, AmericaTowne's predecessor entity, entered into a sales and support services agreement with Yilaime Corporation ("Yilaime"). Yilaime, a Nevada corporation, was a related party entity, AmericaTowne's majority shareholder, and was controlled by AmericaTowne's sole officer and director. Under the 2016 agreement, Yilaime agreed to provide ATI with marketing, sales, and support services related to ATI's business in China in exchange for a commission equal to 10% of the gross amount of monies procured for ATI through Yilaime's services. In consideration of the right to receive the commission, Yilaime agreed to pay ATI a quarterly fee of $250,000 starting on July 1, 2016.

17. Related to the agreement with Yilaime, AmericaTowne's FY 2018 financial statements disclosed a receivable of approximately $2 million (42% of total assets) and a corresponding deferred revenue balance of approximately $2.2 million (89% of total liabilities), and recorded $950,000 in quarterly fees as "accounts receivable, net-related parties" and as deferred revenue.

18. AmericaTowne's financial statements also disclosed that: (1) AmericaTowne's sole officer and director previously entered felony nolo contendere pleas for fraudulent misappropriation; and (2) as a result of his failure to disclose the pleas, he received a desist and refrain order from the California Department of Corporations relating to the offer and sale of securities.

19. To test the related party transactions with Yilaime, Respondents obtained written representations from AmericaTowne's sole officer and director regarding the gross outstanding receivable balance, and traced the quarterly fees due from Yilaime to invoices. Despite knowledge of the sole officer and director's prior convictions, Respondents performed no other procedures to evaluate AmericaTowne's relationship and transactions with Yilaime. Respondents failed to evaluate the business purpose (or lack thereof) of the transactions with Yilaime, and the financial capability of Yilaime to make payments with respect to the $2 million outstanding receivable.[21] As a result, Respondents failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether AmericaTowne's relationship and transactions with Yilaime had been properly identified, accounted for, and disclosed in the financial statements.[22]

v. Respondents Failed to Evaluate AmericaTowne's Accounts Receivable and Allowance for Doubtful Accounts

20. At year-end, AmericaTowne's accounts receivable for service fees from the Agreements was $2.58 million (54% of total assets), with a corresponding allowance for doubtful accounts of $800,000.

21. To test the allowance for doubtful accounts, Respondents obtained AmericaTowne's accounts receivable aging schedule by customer, including the allowance for bad debt. Respondents understood that AmericaTowne estimated its allowance for doubtful accounts by applying an uncollectable percentage based on past collection experience to each aged receivable group.

22. Respondents failed, however, to perform any procedures to test AmericaTowne's allowance for doubtful accounts to determine whether it was properly valued in the financial statements.[23] More specifically, Respondents failed to perform any procedures to evaluate AmericaTowne's collection history or the reasonableness of the estimated uncollectable percentages applied to accounts receivable to obtain the estimated allowance for bad debt and the bad debt expense.[24]

23. Furthermore, Respondents failed to perform procedures to evaluate whether AmericaTowne's accounts receivable was properly presented and disclosed on the consolidated balance sheet in accordance with U.S. GAAP.[25] For example, Respondents failed to perform procedures to evaluate AmericaTowne's classification of accounts receivable from service fees as a current asset, even though amounts due for payment extended beyond 12 months.

24. As a result, Respondents failed to perform sufficient procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether AmericaTowne's allowance for doubtful accounts was properly valued and to determine whether AmericaTowne's accounts receivable was properly presented and disclosed.[26]

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers.

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(A) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(1), the registration of Yichien Yeh, CPA is revoked;

B. After two years from the date of this Order, Yichien Yeh, CPA may reapply for registration by filing an application pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2101;

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Yichien Yeh is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[27]

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Donald R. Burke, CPA,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2021-012

September 29, 2021

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) suspending Donald R. Burke, CPA ("Burke") from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm for a period of one year; and

(2) imposing a $10,000 civil money penalty upon Burke.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Burke violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with Rehmann Robson LLP's audits of the financial statements of Issuer A, for the years ended December 31, 2014 ("FY 2014"), and December 31, 2015 ("FY 2015") (each an "Audit" and, collectively, the "Audits").[1]

I.

[1] All references to PCAOB rules and standards in this Order are to the versions of those rules and standards, and to their organization and numbering, in effect at the time of the audits discussed herein. As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. See Reorganization of PCAOB Auditing Standards and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards and Rules, PCAOB Release No. 2015-002 (Mar. 31, 2015).

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Burke has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Burke and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Burke consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[2]

III.

On the basis of Burke's Offer, the Board finds[3] that:

A. Respondent

1. Donald R. Burke was, at all relevant times, a certified public accountant licensed by the Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulatory Affairs (License No. 1101011461) and by Florida's Department of Business and Professional Regulation, Division of Certified Public Accounting (License No. AC45199). He served as the engagement quality review ("EQR") partner on both Audits. At all relevant times, Burke was a principal at Rehmann Robson LLC (the "Firm") and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Issuer

2. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, a Nevada corporation headquartered in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and Golden, Colorado. Issuer A's public filings indicate that it was in the business of marketing and distributing vaping products and e-cigarettes. Its common stock was registered, at all relevant times, under Section 12(g) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. It was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). Issuer A filed for bankruptcy on March 16, 2017.

[3] The Board finds that Burke's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

C. Summary

3. This matter concerns Burke's violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Audits.[4] As detailed below, Burke, in performing EQRs for both Audits, failed to comply with Auditing Standard ("AS") No. 7, Engagement Quality Review ("AS No. 7"), and failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism.

4. Specifically, Burke failed to evaluate properly the significant judgments made by the engagement teams relating to engagement planning concerning revenue. In addition, Burke failed to evaluate properly the engagement teams' assessment of, and audit responses to, significant risks identified by the engagement team, including fraud risks. As a result of his failure to perform the EQRs with due professional care and in conformity with PCAOB standards, Burke lacked an appropriate basis to provide his concurring approvals of issuance of the Firm's audit reports regarding Issuer A's financial statements in each of the Audits.

D. Burke Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the Audits

6. In conducting the EQR, the EQR reviewer should evaluate the significant judgments made by the engagement team and the related conclusions reached in forming the overall conclusion on the engagement and in preparing the engagement report.[7] To evaluate those judgments and conclusions, the EQR reviewer should evaluate the engagement team's significant judgments that relate to engagement planning, including consideration of the company's business, and related financial reporting issues and risks.[8] In addition, the EQR reviewer should evaluate, among other things, the engagement team's assessment of, and audit responses to, significant risks identified by the engagement team, including fraud risks.[9] In connection with an audit, the EQR reviewer should evaluate whether the engagement documentation that he or she reviewed indicates that the engagement team responded appropriately to significant risks and supports the conclusions reached by the engagement team with respect to the matters reviewed.[10] The EQR reviewer may provide concurring approval of issuance of an audit report only if, after performing his or her responsibilities with due professional care, he or she is not aware of a significant engagement deficiency.[11] To perform an EQR with due professional care, the EQR reviewer must exercise professional skepticism, which is an attitude that includes a questioning mind and a critical assessment of audit evidence.[12]

i. Background

7. The Firm served as Issuer A's external auditor for the 2014 and 2015 financial statements. It issued an audit report containing an unqualified opinion, dated March 31, 2015, on Issuer A's FY 2014 financial statements. The Firm also issued an audit report containing an unqualified opinion, dated March 28, 2016, on Issuer A's FY 2015 financial statements. These reports were included with Issuer A's Forms 10-K filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission on April 1, 2015, and March 28, 2016, respectively.

8. Issuer A's public filings reported total revenue for FY 2014 of approximately $43.5 million. In its FY 2015 financial statements, Issuer A reported total revenue for FY 2015 of approximately $54.2 million. In each of the Audits, the engagement teams identified improper revenue recognition as a significant risk and a fraud risk. Notwithstanding these risks, the engagement teams failed to perform sufficient procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence regarding revenue in connection with Issuer A's Audits.

9. For significant risks, including fraud risks, PCAOB standards require an auditor to perform substantive procedures, including tests of details, that are specifically responsive to the assessed risk.[13] In addition, for significant risks of material misstatement, it is unlikely that substantive analytical procedures alone will be sufficient.[14]

10. In both Audits, Issuer A's revenue controls were not operating effectively. During the FY 2014 Audit, management identified 37 revenue key controls. The Firm concluded that 34, or 92%, of the key controls related to revenue were not operating effectively.[15] In both Audits, the engagement teams concluded that it was necessary to increase substantive testing since it was determined that the revenue controls could not be relied upon in the audit.

11. Despite this conclusion and awareness of these control issues, the engagement teams failed to perform substantive audit procedures, including testing of details, relating to revenue in both Audits.[16] In addition, the engagement teams did not design and implement responses to appropriately identify and address the risks of material misstatement relating to revenue in both Audits.[17] In both Audits, the engagement teams' procedures regarding revenue were limited to analytical procedures and were not substantive analytical procedures.[18] The engagement teams failed to perform any audit procedures to test revenue beyond a year-over-year comparison of revenue and inquiry of management. In performing these comparisons, the engagement teams failed to comply with PCAOB standards because they failed to: (1) develop an expectation precise enough to provide the desired level of assurance that differences that may be potential material misstatements, individually or when aggregated with other misstatements, would be identified for investigation;[19] (2) consider the amount of difference from the expectation that could be accepted without further investigation;[20] and (3) evaluate significant unexpected differences.[21] As a result, the year-over-year revenue comparisons were not substantive analytical procedures and the engagement teams failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether revenue was recorded in the proper period and was properly valued in each of the Audits.[22]

ii. Burke Failed to Perform an Adequate EQR in Relation to Revenue in Both Audits

12. During the Audits, Burke failed to evaluate properly the significant judgments made by the engagement teams relating to planning, including consideration of the company's business and related financial reporting issues and risks. Prior to the Audits, Burke knew that Issuer A was in a troubled financial condition, including that it had depleted its cash reserves and owed money to its service providers. Despite his knowledge of Issuer A's financial issues, Burke failed to evaluate properly the fact that the engagement teams' planned procedures related to revenue did not include substantive procedures.[23]

13. In addition, during the Audits, Burke failed to evaluate properly the significant judgments made, and the related conclusions reached, by the engagement teams with respect to revenue.[24] Specifically, Burke failed to evaluate properly the engagement teams' assessment of, and audit responses to, significant risks identified by the engagement teams, including fraud risks, related to revenue.[25] During the Audits, Burke, who knew the engagement teams had identified revenue as a significant risk and a fraud risk, failed to obtain an understanding of what, if any, procedures had been performed regarding revenue. Finally, he failed to review properly the engagement teams' work performed and documentation related to revenue testing in both Audits.[26]

14. As a result of the failures described above, Burke provided his concurring approvals of issuance without performing his reviews with the requisite due professional care.[27]

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Glenn Alan Zubryd, CPA,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2021-013

September 29, 2021

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) barring Glenn Alan Zubryd, CPA ("Zubryd" or "Respondent") from being associated with a registered public accounting firm;[1] and

(2) imposing a $15,000 civil money penalty upon Zubryd.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Zubryd violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with Rehmann Robson LLP's audits of the financial statements of Issuer A, for the years ended December 31, 2014 ("FY 2014"), and December 31, 2015 ("FY 2015") (each an "Audit" and, collectively, the "Audits").[2]

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Zubryd.

[1] Zubryd may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order.

[2] All references to PCAOB rules and standards in this Order are to the versions of those rules and standards, and to their organization and numbering, in effect at the time of the audits discussed herein. As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. See Reorganization of PCAOB Auditing Standards and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards and Rules, PCAOB Release No. 2015-002 (Mar. 31, 2015).

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Zubryd has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Zubryd and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Zubryd consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[3]

III.

On the basis of Zubryd's Offer, the Board finds[4] that:

A. Respondent

1. Glenn Alan Zubryd was, at all relevant times, a certified public accountant licensed by the Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulatory Affairs. His Michigan registration as a Licensed Accountant (License No. 1101024804) expired on December 31, 2019. His Michigan license as a Registered Accountant (License No. 1103024804) is currently active.[5] At all relevant times, Zubryd was a principal at Rehmann Robson LLC (the "Firm"), and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Issuer

2. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, a Nevada corporation headquartered in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and Golden, Colorado. Issuer A's public filings indicate that it was in the business of marketing and distributing vaping products and e-cigarettes. Its common stock was registered, at all relevant times, under Section 12(g) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. It was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). Issuer A filed for bankruptcy on March 16, 2017.

[4] The Board finds that Zubryd's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

C. Summary

3. This matter concerns Zubryd's violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Audits.[6] As detailed below, Zubryd, who served as engagement partner on both Audits, failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence and to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, in connection with the Audits. First, with respect to revenue, which was identified as a significant risk and a fraud risk during both Audits, Zubryd failed to perform, or to ensure that the engagement teams performed, substantive audit procedures over revenue, including requisite tests of details specifically responsive to the assessed risks. Second, with respect to intangible asset valuations in both Audits, Zubryd failed to perform, or failed to ensure that the engagement teams performed, adequate procedures to evaluate the reasonableness of the assumptions and to test the underlying data used by Issuer A in its impairment analysis. Specifically, Zubryd and the engagement teams did not test the process for generating the projected amounts in Issuer A's impairment analysis, develop an independent expectation of the projected amounts, or review subsequent events or transactions to evaluate the reasonableness underlying the valuation of intangible assets, including goodwill. Third, Zubryd failed to supervise properly the work of the engagement teams during the Audits.

4. Finally, Zubryd failed to ensure that the FY 2015 Audit documentation was archived by the relevant documentation completion date as required by Auditing Standard ("AS") No. 3, Audit Documentation ("AS No. 3").

D. Zubryd Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the Audits

an opinion on the basis of an audit performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[8] PCAOB standards require an auditor to plan and perform the audit with due professional care, to exercise professional skepticism, and to plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the auditor's opinion.[9] PCAOB standards further require the auditor to identify and appropriately assess the risks of material misstatement at the financial statement level and the assertion level.[10] The auditor should perform risk assessment procedures that are sufficient to provide a reasonable basis for identifying and assessing risks of material misstatement and designing further audit procedures.[11]

6. PCAOB standards state that the engagement partner is responsible for the engagement and its performance.[12] The engagement partner and other engagement team members performing supervisory activities are also responsible for proper supervision of the work of the engagement team members and compliance with PCAOB standards.[13] The engagement partner is required to review the work of engagement team members to evaluate whether the work was performed and documented, the objectives of the procedures were achieved, and the results of the work supported the conclusions reached.[14]

7. As further detailed below, Zubryd violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with revenue as well as intangible asset valuations in both Audits, and the archiving of audit documentation in the FY 2015 Audit.

i. Failure to Perform Substantive Procedures related to Revenue in Both Audits

8. The Firm served as Issuer A's external auditor for the 2014 and 2015 financial statements. reports were included with Issuer A's Forms 10-K filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission on April 1, 2015, and March 28, 2016, respectively. Zubryd, the engagement partner on both Audits, authorized the issuance of both audit reports.

9. Issuer A's public filings reported total revenue for FY 2014 of approximately $43.5 million. In its FY 2015 financial statements, Issuer A reported total revenue for FY 2015 of approximately $54.2 million. In each of the Audits, Zubryd and the engagement teams identified improper revenue recognition as a significant risk and a fraud risk. Notwithstanding these risks, Zubryd failed to perform, or ensure that the engagement teams performed, sufficient procedures to obtain appropriate audit evidence regarding revenue in connection with Issuer A's Audits.

10. For significant risks, including fraud risks, PCAOB standards require an auditor to perform substantive procedures, including tests of details, that are specifically responsive to the assessed risk.[15] In addition, for significant risks of material misstatement, it is unlikely that substantive analytical procedures alone will be sufficient.[16]

11. In both Audits, Issuer A's revenue controls were not operating effectively. During the FY 2014 Audit, management identified 37 revenue key controls. 12. Despite this conclusion and his awareness of these control issues, Zubryd failed to perform, or ensure that the engagement teams performed, substantive audit procedures, including testing of details, relating to revenue in both Audits.[18] In addition, Zubryd failed to ensure that the engagement teams designed and implemented responses to appropriately identify and address the risks of material misstatement relating to revenue in both Audits.[19] In both Audits, the engagement teams' procedures regarding revenue were limited to analytical procedures and were not substantive analytical procedures.[20] Zubryd failed to perform, or ensure the engagement teams performed, any audit procedures to test revenue beyond a year-over-year comparison of revenue and inquiry of management. In performing these comparisons, Zubryd failed to comply with PCAOB standards because he and the engagement teams failed to: (1) develop an expectation precise enough to provide the desired level of assurance that differences that may be potential material misstatements, individually or when aggregated with other misstatements, would be identified for investigation;[21] (2) consider the amount of difference from the expectation that could be accepted without further investigation; [22] and (3) evaluate significant unexpected differences.[23] As a result, the year-over-year revenue comparisons were not substantive analytical procedures and Zubryd failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether revenue was recorded in the proper period and was properly valued in each of the Audits.[24]

13. As engagement partner, Zubryd was responsible for supervising the engagement and its performance.[25] However, despite revenue being identified as a significant risk and fraud risk, Zubryd failed to supervise adequately the engagement teams' work during both Audits. Specifically, Zubryd, who had limited involvement in the engagement teams' work in this area, failed to review sufficiently the work of the engagement team members regarding revenue and failed to evaluate whether the work was performed and documented, the objectives of the procedures were achieved, and the results of the work supported the conclusions reached.[26]

14. In addition to the failures noted above, Zubryd failed to exercise the requisite due professional care, including professional skepticism, relating to revenue in both Audits.[27]

ii. Failure to Perform Adequate Intangible Assets Valuation Testing in Both Audits

15. As of December 31, 2014, Issuer A's public filings reported total assets were $126.8 million, of which approximately $106.4 million consisted of intangible assets including goodwill. As of December 31, 2015, Issuer A's public filings reported total assets of $95.3 million, of which approximately $81.9 million consisted of intangible assets including goodwill. The intangible assets were primarily associated with certain of Issuer A's recently completed acquisitions. Goodwill was reported as being $51.7 million as of December 31, 2014, and $47.7 million as of December 31, 2015.

16. The FY 2014 Audit was the Firm's first audit of Issuer A and intangible asset valuations were Issuer A's most significant estimates during the Audits. Valuation of intangible assets was identified as an area of significant audit emphasis and as a significant accounting estimate during both Audits.

17. PCAOB standards require the auditor to evaluate the reasonableness of accounting estimates made by management in the context of the financial statements taken as a whole.[28] The auditor's objective when evaluating accounting estimates is to obtain sufficient appropriate evidential matter to provide reasonable assurance that all accounting estimates that could be material to the financial statements have been developed, those estimates are reasonable in the circumstances, and those estimates are presented in conformity with applicable accounting principles and are properly disclosed.[29]

18. To determine whether goodwill is properly valued, it should be tested for impairment at least annually, and whenever there is an indication that it may be impaired.[30] Issuer A disclosed that the amounts of its intangible asset impairments were determined by assessing the recoverable amount, as compared to its carrying amount. Zubryd and the engagement teams understood that Issuer A's management used certain estimates of projected amounts—such as future net sales, the associated projected cost of sales, and projected operating expenses—as key assumptions in formulating the cash flow projections on which it based its impairment analysis.

19. During both Audits, Zubryd failed to gather, or failed to ensure that the engagement teams gathered, sufficient appropriate evidence concerning the intangible asset valuations. Zubryd and the engagement teams failed to perform any audit procedures to evaluate the reasonableness of the key factors and assumptions in Issuer A's impairment analysis, or to test the underlying data used by Issuer A in its impairment analysis. Specifically, the engagement teams failed to test the process for generating the projected amounts, develop an independent expectation of the projected amounts, or review subsequent events or transactions to evaluate the reasonableness of the projected amounts.[31]

[30] Goodwill is periodically tested for impairment—the condition that exists when the carrying amount of goodwill on a company's books exceeds its implied fair value. See ASC 350, Intangibles – Goodwill and Other. Such testing must occur annually, or more frequently if there is an indication of impairment. If the testing results in an impairment, the carrying amount of the goodwill must be reduced by the amount of the impairment.

20. Zubryd and the engagement teams also failed, in both Audits, to corroborate Issuer A management's representations regarding key factors and assumptions used in the valuation of intangible assets. While evidential matter can include management representations, such representations "are not a substitute for the application of those auditing procedures necessary to afford a reasonable basis for an opinion regarding the financial statements under audit."[32] Zubryd and the engagement teams failed in this regard despite knowing financial information, including Issuer A's historical results, that should have caused them to exercise greater skepticism. For example, Zubryd and engagement team members knew that management assumptions included in the projections to test the valuation of intangible assets predicted increases in net sales and gross profit of approximately 154% and 174%, respectively, in a period of three years (i.e., from 2015 to 2018). These optimistic projections were inconsistent with Issuer A's then-current operations and historical results. In this regard, Issuer A's net sales and gross profit actually increased only 18% and 57%, respectively, during 2015.

21. Zubryd also failed to supervise adequately the engagement teams' work relating to intangible asset valuations.[33] Zubryd failed to review the work of the engagement team members regarding intangible assets and failed to evaluate whether the work was performed and documented, the objectives of the procedures were achieved, and the results of the work supported the conclusions reached.[34] Specifically, Zubryd failed to review the engagement team's work to ensure they tested the underlying data and evaluated the reasonableness of the significant assumptions used in Issuer A's projections to test sufficiently the valuation of the intangible assets.

iii. Failure to Archive Audit Documentation for the FY 2015 Audit

22. AS No. 3 requires that a complete and final set of audit documentation should be assembled for retention by the "documentation completion date," a date not more than 45

23. The Firm's records indicate that the audit work papers were not archived by the documentation completion date in the FY 2015 Audit. Zubryd and the engagement team used a date 60 days after the report release date—May 27, 2016—as the documentation completion date for the FY 2015 Audit. As a result, Zubryd violated AS No. 3 by failing to assemble a complete and final set of audit documentation for the FY 2015 Audit for retention as of a date no later than 45 days after the report release date.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Zubryd's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Glenn Alan Zubryd, CPA, is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[36]

B. Pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), Glenn Alan Zubryd, CPA, may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order; and

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $15,000 is imposed upon Zubryd. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Zubryd shall pay this civil money penalty within 10 days of the issuance of this Order by: (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter which identifies Zubryd as a Respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB Release Number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to the Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006. Zubryd understands that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may alone be grounds to deny any petition, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm.

[36] As a consequence of the bar, the provisions of Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act will apply with respect to Zubryd. Section 105(c)(7)(B) provides: "It shall be unlawful for any person that is suspended or barred from being associated with a registered public accounting firm under this subsection willfully to become or remain associated with any issuer, broker, or dealer in an accountancy or a financial management capacity, and for any issuer, broker, or dealer that knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of such suspension or bar, to permit such an association, without the consent of the Board or the Commission."

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Deloitte LLP,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2021-014

September 29, 2021

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (the "Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Deloitte LLP ("Deloitte Canada," the "Firm," or "Respondent");

(2) imposing a civil money penalty of $350,000 on the Firm;

(3) requiring the Firm to establish, revise, or supplement, as necessary, its quality control policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that personnel comply with PCAOB audit documentation requirements, including those concerning the dating of the completion of work performed and the dating of the review of work papers; and

(4) requiring the Firm to ensure that all Firm professionals involved in any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), have received four (4) hours of additional training concerning compliance with PCAOB audit documentation standards.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that, from November 2016 through early March 2018, Deloitte Canada's system of quality control failed to provide reasonable assurance that Firm personnel appropriately dated their preparation and review of audit work papers. As a result, during that period, the Firm failed to comply with PCAOB audit documentation standards in connection with certain audits and quarterly reviews.

In ordering these sanctions, the Board took into account the Firm's extraordinary cooperation in this matter, including self-reporting, substantial assistance, and personnel and policy actions, as described in more detail below.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Act, and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. Deloitte LLP is a public accounting firm organized as a limited liability partnership under the laws of Ontario, Canada, and headquartered in Toronto, Ontario. It is a member firm of the Deloitte Touche Tohmatsu Limited ("DTTL") global network of firms. The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. During the period covered by this Order, the Firm served as the auditor for issuer audit clients and performed audit work that other PCAOB-registered firms, including member firms of DTTL, used or relied on in issuing audit reports for their issuer clients ("referred work").

B. Summary

2. This matter concerns Deloitte Canada's failure to establish, implement, and communicate appropriate quality control policies and procedures to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel complied with applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the Firm's standards of quality. These failures resulted in violations of PCAOB audit documentation standards concerning the dating of work papers over a 16-month period.

3. PCAOB standards require auditors to prepare audit documentation that accurately reflects when audit work was completed and reviewed. Prior to November 2016, Deloitte Canada's electronic work paper system ("system" or "work paper system") allowed Firm personnel to document their performance and review of work by manually selecting preparer and reviewer sign-off dates for each work paper. In November 2016, the Firm updated its work paper system and removed Firm personnel's ability to manually select sign-off dates. Under the new system, when an auditor entered a sign-off, the current date was automatically generated. At the time the Firm adopted its new system, personnel from the Firm's National Office were aware of a risk that individuals could override the new system by changing their computer date settings to backdate work paper sign-offs. Despite that awareness, the Firm did not take sufficient steps—through written policies, guidance, training, or otherwise—to address that risk.

4. During the 16 month-period following the adoption of the new work paper system, Firm personnel overrode the system and backdated their work paper sign-offs in at least six issuer audits and two quarterly reviews subject to PCAOB standards. This conduct occurred while teams were assembling a complete and final set of work papers for retention, or earlier, in these engagements. Additionally, some auditors on these engagements deleted and replaced sign-offs in order to ensure that reviewer sign-offs were dated after preparer sign-offs. Collectively, this conduct obscured the dates on which work had actually been completed and reviewed.

5. In light of the above-described conduct, the Firm violated PCAOB quality control and audit documentation standards.

C. The Firm Violated PCAOB Quality Control and Audit Documentation Standards

i. Applicable Standards

6. PCAOB rules require a registered public accounting firm to comply with all applicable auditing and related professional practice standards, including the Board's quality control standards.[2]

7. PCAOB quality control standards require a registered firm to have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice.[3] The system should include policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality.[4] Among other areas, a firm's policies and procedures should address the documentation of each engagement in accordance with applicable professional standards.[5] PCAOB quality control standards also provide that a firm should communicate its quality control policies and procedures to its personnel in a manner that provides reasonable assurance that those policies and procedures are understood and complied with.[6]

8. PCAOB auditing standards require an auditor to document the procedures performed, evidence obtained, and conclusions reached with respect to relevant financial statement assertions.[7] This audit documentation must contain sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement, to determine who performed the work and the date such work was completed, as well as who reviewed the work and the date of such review.[8]

The reorganization did not impose additional requirements on auditors or change substantively the requirements of PCAOB standards. While Respondent's conduct occurred both before and after the reorganization, the reorganized standards are cited herein for purposes of clarity.

[8] See AS 1215.06.

ii. Firm Personnel Backdated Work Paper Sign-offs in Multiple Engagements

9. Until November 2016, Deloitte Canada's work paper system allowed Firm personnel to select the date of their sign-off when documenting their preparation or review of each work paper. In November 2016, the Firm implemented an update to its work paper system, which restricted personnel from selecting sign-off dates. Under the updated system, when an auditor entered a sign-off, the system automatically generated the current date, as reflected on the auditor's computer, and prevented the auditor from manually entering a different date.

10. At the time the Firm was preparing to implement the update, certain personnel in the Firm's National Office were aware of the possibility of circumventing the new system's restriction on selecting sign-off dates. Specifically, the National Office personnel were aware of a risk that, although the updated system automatically generated sign-off dates based on a computer's settings, auditors could change the date settings on their computers and thereby alter sign-off dates.

11. Based on that awareness, National Office personnel responsible for implementing the new system considered issuing guidance instructing Firm auditors not to circumvent the new system's sign-off restrictions by changing their computer settings. Ultimately, they chose not to do so based on their understanding at the time that such changes could not be systematically prevented or detected.

12. Shortly after the Firm's implementation of the updated system, Firm personnel in certain engagements began changing the date setting on their computers to backdate work paper sign-offs. Specifically, from November 2016 through early March 2018, in connection with at least six issuer audits and two quarterly reviews subject to PCAOB standards, Firm personnel changed the settings on their individual computers to backdate numerous work paper sign-offs.

13. This backdating of sign-offs occurred in connection with engagement teams' assembling a complete and final set of work papers for retention,[9] or earlier, in the engagements. It often resulted from an engagement team member running a Deloitte software program to detect work papers with missing sign-offs or inconsistencies, such as a preparer sign-off that post-dated a reviewer sign-off. After running the program, the engagement team member would direct other team members, including partners, to insert missing sign-offs and backdate them to earlier dates. Additionally, in certain instances, Firm personnel were instructed to delete existing work paper sign-offs, change the date settings on their computer clocks, and substitute new sign-offs, in order to indicate the sequential preparation and review of the work papers.

14. In February 2018, a Deloitte Canada auditor raised a concern with senior Firm personnel about auditors altering the dates on their computers to backdate work paper sign-offs. In response, the Firm identified and implemented in early March 2018 a method to remove personnel's ability to change the date settings on their computers, which prevented further backdating of work paper sign-offs. The Firm also promptly instructed personnel to "[a]lways use the actual date on when the physical sign-off occurs."

iii. Violations of PCAOB Quality Control and Audit Documentation Standards

15. As a result of the conduct described above, Deloitte Canada violated PCAOB quality control standards. From November 2016 through early March 2018, the Firm failed to establish and communicate policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel met applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the Firm's standards of quality with respect to documenting the dating of work paper sign-offs.[10]

16. Specifically, when the Firm upgraded its work paper system to eliminate personnel's ability to manually select sign-off dates, it failed to establish and communicate appropriate and effective written policies and guidance and failed to provide sufficient training to personnel about the upgrade and its purpose. The Firm failed to do so, despite the fact that National Office personnel were aware of the risk that the new system's restrictions could be overridden to backdate work paper sign-offs.

17. The Firm's quality control violations, in turn, resulted in, or contributed to, violations of PCAOB audit documentation standards concerning the dating of work papers for audit, referred work, and quarterly review engagements. The practices in which Firm personnel engaged—changing their computer settings to backdate sign-offs, and deleting and re-ordering sign-offs—had the effect of obscuring the date when work was actually performed and reviewed, in violation of PCAOB standards.[11]

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer.

In ordering sanctions, the Board took into account the Firm's extraordinary cooperation in this matter.[12] Specifically, the Firm: (a) voluntarily self-reported the conduct described in this Order; (b) provided substantial assistance to the PCAOB's investigation, including by conducting its own extensive internal investigation and sharing the results of that internal investigation with Board staff; (c) disciplined personnel identified by the Firm as involved in the conduct; and (d) implemented enhancements to its quality control policies and procedures in relevant areas, including by providing training to its personnel concerning PCAOB documentation standards. Absent that extraordinary cooperation, the civil money penalty imposed would have been significantly larger, and the Board may have charged the Firm with additional violations of PCAOB rules and standards.

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Deloitte LLP is censured.

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4),a civil money penalty in the amount of $350,000 is imposed upon Deloitte LLP. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Deloitte LLP shall pay this civil money penalty within ten (10) days of the issuance of this Order by: (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, certified check, bank cashier's check, or bank money order (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board; (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006; and (c) submitted under a cover letter which identifies Deloitte LLP as the Respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB Release Number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to the Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. C. Pursuant to Sections 105(c)(4)(F) and (G) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 5300(a)(6) and (9), Deloitte LLP is required:

1. within 120 days from the date of this Order, to establish, revise, or supplement, as necessary, policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that personnel comply with applicable audit documentation requirements, including those concerning the dating of the completion of work performed and the dating of the review of audit documentation;

2. within 120 days from the date of this Order, to ensure that all Firm professionals involved in any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act, have received four (4) hours of additional training concerning compliance with PCAOB auditing standard AS 1215;[13] and

3. to certify in writing to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, the Firm's compliance with paragraphs C(1) and C(2) above. The certification shall identify the undertakings, provide written evidence of compliance in the form of a narrative, and be supported by exhibits sufficient to demonstrate compliance. The Firm shall submit such certification within 150 days from the date of this Order. The Firm shall also submit such additional evidence of and information concerning compliance as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request.

Order Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Thomas P. Donovan, CPA,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2021-015

September 30, 2021

By this Order Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Thomas P. Donovan, CPA ("Donovan" or "Respondent");

(2) imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $15,000 on Donovan;

(3) limiting Donovan's activities in connection with any audit of an issuer, for two years from the date of this Order, by prohibiting Donovan from serving in certain capacities in any issuer audit, as described in Section III.B. herein; and

(4) requiring that Donovan complete forty hours of continuing professional education ("CPE") within two years from the date of this Order in addition to any CPE required in connection with any professional license.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Respondent violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the audits of the financial statements of two issuers.

I.

On September 1, 2020, the Board instituted non-public disciplinary proceedings against Respondent.[1] Pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement

[1] Section 105(c)(2) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended, 15 U.S.C. § 7215 (c)(5) ("Act"), provides that litigated disciplinary proceedings shall not be public, "unless otherwise ordered by the Board for good cause shown, with the consent of the parties . . . ." Although the Board found good cause

("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over him and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order as set forth below.[2]

II.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[3]

A. Respondent

1. Thomas P. Donovan is a certified public accountant licensed by the State of Texas (License No. 040410). Donovan is, and at all relevant times was, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). At all relevant times, Donovan was the engagement partner in charge of the Issuer A Audit, and he was the engagement quality review ("EQR") reviewer for the Issuer B Audit.

B. Other Relevant Entity and Individual

2. PMB Helin Donovan, LLP was, at all relevant times, a limited liability partnership organized under the laws of the State of Texas, licensed in the State of Texas (License No. P05374), and headquartered in Austin, Texas. The Firm also was, at all relevant times, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. On December 17, 2019, the Board entered an Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions against PMB Helin Donovan, LLP, Christie J. Cardwell, CPA, for making the proceedings public, Respondent did not consent, as permitted by Section 105(c)(2) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5203.

[2] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[3] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (A) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (B) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

and Donald K. McPhee, CPA ("December 2019 OIP").[4] In the December 2019 OIP, the Board stated that the Firm had filed a Form 1-WD seeking leave to withdraw from registration with the Board, which the Board had determined to grant as of December 17, 2019.

3. Christie J. Cardwell was, at all relevant times, a partner of the Firm. Cardwell was, at all relevant times, a certified public accountant licensed by the State of Washington and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). Cardwell served as the engagement partner for the Issuer B Audit. In the December 2019 OIP, the Board sanctioned Cardwell in connection with the audits of two issuers for which she was the engagement partner, including the Issuer B Audit.[5]

C. Issuers

4. Issuer A is, and at all relevant times was, a Bermuda corporation headquartered in Addison, Texas. Its public filings disclose that, at the time of the Issuer A Audit, it was an international oil and natural gas company engaged in acquisition, exploration, development and production. At all relevant times, its common stock was registered under Section 12(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act"). At all relevant times, Issuer A was an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

5. Issuer B was, at all relevant times, a Wyoming corporation headquartered in Folsom, California. Its public filings disclose that, at the time of the Issuer B Audit, Issuer B was a payments and banking software developer, licensor, and services provider. Its common stock was registered under Section 12(g) of the Exchange Act. At all relevant times, Issuer B was an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

D. Summary

6. This matter concerns Donovan's failure to comply with PCAOB rules and auditing standards in connection with PMB Helin Donovan LLP's ("PMB" or the "Firm") audit of the financial statements of Issuer A for the fiscal year ending December 31, 2016 ("Issuer A Audit"). While serving as the engagement partner on the Issuer A Audit, Donovan failed to exercise due care and professional skepticism, failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence, and failed to properly supervise his engagement team members.

7. Specifically, during the Issuer A Audit, Donovan improperly used the report of a specialist engaged by Issuer A to evaluate relevant financial statement assertions for oil and natural gas properties. Donovan failed to make appropriate tests of the data provided by Issuer A to the specialist. Oil and natural gas properties, net of accumulated amortization, constituted approximately one-half of the value of Issuer A's total assets.

8. Additionally, this matter concerns Donovan's failure to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, and to maintain objectivity, while serving as the EQR reviewer for PMB's audit of the financial statements of Issuer B for the year ending December 31, 2015 ("Issuer B Audit"). Donovan failed to maintain objectivity in performing his EQR by assuming responsibilities of the engagement team. Further, Donovan violated the EQR standard by providing his concurring approval of issuance for PMB's audit report when he was aware of a significant engagement deficiency in the Issuer B Audit.

E. Donovan Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Two Issuer Audits

9. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[6] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements only when the auditor has formed such an opinion on the basis of an audit performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[7] Among other things, PCAOB standards require an auditor to exercise due professional care, exercise professional skepticism, and plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the auditor's opinion.[8] PCAOB standards

As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. See Reorganization of PCAOB Auditing Standards and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards and Rules, PCAOB Release No. 2015-002 (Mar. 31, 2015); see also PCAOB Auditing Standards Reorganized and Pre-Reorganized Numbering (Jan. 2017). further require that auditors evaluate whether the financial statements are presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework.[9]

10. PCAOB standards provide that the engagement partner is responsible for proper supervision of the work of engagement team members and for compliance with PCAOB standards, including standards regarding using the work of specialists.[10] Among other things, the engagement partner should review the work of engagement team members to evaluate whether the work was performed and documented, the objectives of the procedures were achieved, and the results of the work support the conclusions reached.[11]

11. As described below, Donovan failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Issuer A Audit and the Issuer B Audit.

i. Donovan and His Engagement Team Failed to Make Appropriate Tests of Data Provided to a Specialist in the Issuer A Audit

12. The Firm served as the external auditor for the Issuer A Audit. The Firm's audit report for Issuer A's 2016 financial statements, dated March 22, 2017, was included in Issuer A's Form 10-K filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") on March 22, 2017. The Firm expressed an unqualified opinion that Issuer A's 2016 financial statements presented fairly, in all material respects, Issuer A's financial position, results of operations, and cash flows in conformity with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles ("GAAP"). Donovan served as the engagement partner and authorized the issuance of the Firm's audit report for the Issuer A Audit.

13. When using the findings of a specialist, PCAOB standards require an auditor, among other things, to make appropriate tests of data provided to the specialist, taking into account the auditor's assessment of control risk.[12]

14. During the Issuer A Audit, Donovan understood that oil and natural gas properties, net of accumulated amortization, constituted approximately one-half of Issuer A's total assets. The work papers Donovan reviewed included a report on reserves and revenues that was prepared by a specialist engaged by Issuer A (the "Specialist Report"). This report provided estimates, as of December 31, 2016, of the extent and value of the proved, probable, and possible oil, condensate, and sales gas reserves of certain properties in which Issuer A represented that it owned an interest.

15. The Specialist Report states that the specialist relied, without independent verification, on information furnished by Issuer A with respect to its property interests, production from such properties, current costs of operation and development, current prices for production, agreements relating to current and future operations and sale of production, estimation of taxes, and various other information and data that the specialist accepted as represented.

16. Donovan relied on the Specialist Report as audit evidence to support his evaluation of components of Issuer A's depletion expense and any required impairment of Issuer A's oil and gas properties at year-end.[13] However, despite relying on these findings, Donovan and the engagement team failed to perform any audit procedures to test the data Issuer A provided to the specialist. Accordingly, Donovan failed to "make appropriate tests of data provided to the specialist," and failed to direct the engagement team to make such tests, when he used the specialist's findings in the audit.[14]

17. In addition, Donovan failed to review with due care the work of engagement team members regarding the use of the Specialist Report, and failed to evaluate whether the work was performed and documented, the objectives of the procedures were achieved, and the results of the work supported the conclusions reached.[15]

ii. Donovan Violated PCAOB Standards in Conducting His Engagement Quality Review for the Issuer B Audit

18. An EQR is required for all audits conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards.[16] An EQR reviewer must be independent of the company, the EQR must be performed with integrity, and the EQR reviewer must maintain objectivity in performing the review.[17] In order to maintain objectivity, the EQR reviewer and others who assist the reviewer should not make decisions on behalf of the engagement team or assume any of the responsibilities of the engagement team.[18]

19. The standards provide that a firm may grant permission to an audit client to use the firm's audit report only after an EQR reviewer provides concurring approval of issuance of the report.[19] The EQR reviewer may provide concurring approval of issuance for an audit report only if, after performing with due professional care the review required, he or she is not aware of a significant engagement deficiency.[20]

20. An EQR reviewer should evaluate whether the engagement documentation reviewed indicates that the engagement team responded appropriately to the significant risks and supports the conclusions reached with respect to the matters reviewed.[21] Furthermore, documentation of an EQR, which is required to be included in the engagement documentation, should contain sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement, to understand the procedures performed by the reviewer.[22]

21. The Firm served as the external auditor for the Issuer B Audit. The Firm's audit report, dated June 3, 2016, for Issuer B's financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2015, was included in Issuer B's Form 10-K filed with the Commission on June 6, 2016.

22. Christie Cardwell, as engagement partner, authorized the issuance of the Firm's audit report for the Issuer B Audit. Donovan served as the EQR reviewer for the audit and, prior to the start of his EQR, was aware that Cardwell had recent negative internal inspection results, including findings of poor audit documentation. At the time he started working on the Issuer B Audit, Donovan was also aware that Cardwell might leave the Firm. And before the conclusion of the audit, he further learned she was in the process of leaving the Firm. Knowing these facts, Donovan, throughout the audit, reviewed the work papers for all significant accounts.

a. Donovan Failed to Maintain His Objectivity in Conducting His EQR of Issuer B

23. As part of the acquisition of an overseas company in 2015, Issuer B obtained, among other things, a computer application developed by that company that purportedly enabled customers to complete banking transactions on mobile telephones (the "Mobile App IP"). As a result, the engagement team needed to audit Issuer B's measurement of the fair value of the assets and liabilities of the acquired company as of the acquisition date, including the Mobile App IP intangible asset, which would comprise almost all of Issuer B's post-acquisition assets.

24. Although he served as the EQR reviewer on the audit, Donovan performed audit procedures and prepared two work papers for the engagement team in connection with the Firm's evaluation of Issuer B's measurement of the fair value, at acquisition, of the Mobile App IP intangible asset.[23] These work papers documented his tests of Issuer B's significant assumptions, the valuation model, and underlying data used in its measurement of the acquisition date fair value.[24] Donovan also communicated directly with Issuer B's CEO about the revenue projections drafted by the CEO that were used to determine year-end impairment of the intangible asset, and suggested revisions thereto.

25. As a result of these actions, Donovan assumed responsibilities of the engagement team with regard to the assessment of management's determination of the fair value of the Mobile App IP intangible asset as of the acquisition date. Because Donovan failed to maintain his objectivity in performing his EQR for the Issuer B Audit, he violated AS 1220.06 and .07.

b. Donovan Failed to Exercise Due Care and Provided His Concurring Approval of Issuance in the Issuer B Audit While Aware of a Significant Engagement Deficiency

26. The Mobile App IP intangible asset constituted over 90% of Issuer B's total assets. Notwithstanding that this asset had been acquired during the year, Donovan knew that the engagement team had identified a significant risk of material misstatement from the identification and recording of impairment to the value of this intangible asset. As of year-end, Issuer B had noted events or changes in circumstances indicating that the carrying amount of the Mobile App IP may not have been recoverable. Accordingly, the engagement team needed to evaluate the reasonableness of Issuer B's estimate of any potential year-end impairment of the Mobile App IP intangible asset,[25] and Donovan was required to evaluate, with due professional care, the engagement team's assessment of, and audit responses to, this significant risk.[26]

27. Donovan understood that the determination of whether or not the Mobile App IP intangible asset was impaired was a significant accounting estimate. Yet, based on his review of the audit documentation, he was aware that the engagement team had failed to evaluate the reasonableness of Issuer B's estimate indicating there was no impairment of the Mobile App IP intangible asset, because, among other things, the engagement team failed to: (a) adequately review and test the process used by management to develop the estimate and/or develop an independent expectation of the estimate, (b) perform the necessary procedures to resolve inconsistencies and contradictions in the audit evidence obtained, and (c) evaluate the estimate for bias and whether the effect of that bias resulted in a material misstatement.[27] As a result, Donovan was aware that the engagement team failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence, which constituted a significant engagement deficiency.[28]

28. Donovan reviewed work papers and other documents containing audit evidence that was inconsistent and contradicted Issuer B's ultimate conclusion not to impair the Mobile App IP intangible asset. In an Impairment Analysis Memo shared with the engagement team, Issuer B's Controller indicated that, "[u]ntil the Company has contracts in place[,] it is hard to justify the current balance of the intangible asset . . ., and therefore [the Company] must impair the entire balance of the intangible asset related to the [Mobile App IP]." Although he did not know the exact source of this impairment determination, Donovan understood that Issuer B's Controller had initially proposed to fully impair the intangible asset. And he reviewed an audit work paper about Issuer B's significant estimates that indicated there was no significant revenue from the Mobile App IP to support the carrying value, and noted agreement with management's assessment that this IP was fully impaired. The Mobile App IP value, however, remained unchanged on Issuer B's books, while the CEO, contradicting his Controller's proposed impairment adjustment, drafted a revenue forecast to support no impairment as of year-end. Donovan was aware that, at the time the CEO was drafting his projections, Issuer B was in default of certain loan covenants and under threat of being delisted, which increased the risk for management bias in that estimate, yet the work papers do not evaluate this potential management bias.[29] Finally, Donovan reviewed the engagement team's inadequate evaluation of the reasonableness of Issuer B's ultimate conclusion of no impairment, which used the CEO's projections.[30]

29. Donovan provided his concurring approval of issuance in the Issuer B Audit engagement, despite being aware of a significant engagement deficiency related to the audit testing for impairment of the Mobile App IP. Further, he failed to evaluate with due care whether the audit documentation indicated that the engagement team responded appropriately to significant risks and supported the conclusions reached by the engagement team. As a result, Donovan failed to perform the engagement quality review with due professional care in violation of AS 1220.

III.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Thomas P. Donovan is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(C) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(3), for a period of two years from the date of this Order, Thomas P. Donovan's role in any audit of an "issuer," as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii), shall be restricted as follows: Thomas P. Donovan shall not (1) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement partner," as that term is used in AS 1201, Supervision of the Audit Engagement; (2) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement quality reviewer," as that term is used in AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review; (3) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, in any role that is equivalent to engagement partner or engagement quality reviewer, but differently denominated (such as "lead partner," "practitioner-in-charge," or "concurring partner"); (4) exercise authority, or supervise the work of another person exercising authority, either to sign a registered public accounting firm's name to an audit report, or to consent to the use of a previously issued audit report; or (5) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as the "other auditor," or "another auditor," as those terms are used in AS 1205, Part of the Audit Performed by Other Independent Auditors;

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $15,000 is imposed upon Thomas P. Donovan. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Thomas P. Donovan shall pay this civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter which identifies Thomas P. D. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(F) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(6), Thomas P. Donovan is required to complete, within two years from the date of this Order, forty hours of CPE in subjects that are directly related to the audits of issuer financial statements under PCAOB standards, including audits of ICFR (such hours shall be in addition to, and shall not be counted in, the CPE that he is required to obtain in connection with any professional license).

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of WDM Chartered Professional Accountants and Mike Kao,

Respondents.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2021-016

September 30, 2021

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) revoking the registration of WDM Chartered Professional Accountants ("WDM" or the "Firm"), a registered public accounting firm;[1]

(2) barring Mike Kao ("Kao") from being associated with a registered public accounting firm;[2] and

(3) imposing a $10,000 civil money penalty jointly and severally upon WDM and Kao (collectively, "Respondents").

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that: (a) WDM violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards by failing to take sufficient steps to ensure that its system of quality control provided reasonable assurance that its personnel complied with applicable professional standards and the Firm's standards of quality, despite being made aware repeatedly of quality control concerns by PCAOB inspections; (b) Kao violated PCAOB Rule 3502 by directly and substantially contributing to WDM's violations of PCAOB quality control standards; and (c) WDM and Kao violated PCAOB rules and auditing standards in connection with the audit of an issuer.

[1] WDM may reapply for registration after five years from the date of this Order.

[2] Kao may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after five years from the date of this Order.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have submitted Offers of Settlement ("Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[3]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[4]

A. Respondents

1. WDM Chartered Professional Accountants is a chartered accounting firm in Vancouver, British Columbia. The Firm is currently licensed by the Chartered Professional Accountants of British Columbia. WDM registered with the Board on June 21, 2005, and has been subject to PCAOB inspection five times. WDM first registered with the Board as Watson Dauphinee & Masuch, Chartered Accountants. In 2013, the Firm changed its name to WDM Chartered Accountants and, in 2015, the Firm became WDM Chartered Professional

[3] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[4] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

Accountants.[5] At all relevant times, the Firm was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

2. Mike Kao is the sole and Managing Partner of the Firm. He is a Chartered Professional Accountant, Certified General Accountant (CPA, CGA) licensed by the Chartered Professional Accountants of British Columbia. At all relevant times, Kao was an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). Prior to becoming the Managing Partner in 2020, Kao served as the Firm's Engagement Quality and Professional Standards leader. He was the engagement partner for the fiscal year ended December 31, 2019 audit of Issuer A.

B. Issuer A

3. Issuer A is a British Columbia corporation with its principal offices located in Vancouver, British Columbia. Issuer A's public filings disclosed that it is a financial technology services company. At all relevant times, Issuer A was an issuer as defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

4. This matter primarily concerns WDM's violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with its failure to properly design and implement, and monitor the effectiveness of, a system of quality control, and Kao's direct and substantial contribution to certain of those violations.[6] Specifically, the Firm failed to: (1) use an audit methodology designed to comply with PCAOB standards and rules; (2) provide technical training; and (3) perform internal monitoring procedures. The Firm's system of quality control, therefore, did not (1) provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel would meet applicable professional standards and regulatory requirements, (2) provide reasonable assurance that personnel participated in continuing professional education that enabled them to fulfill responsibilities assigned, or (3) ensure performance of adequate monitoring procedures, including internal inspections.

[5] The Firm was previously sanctioned by the Board for failing to timely file required Forms AP. See WDM Chartered Professional Accountants, PCAOB Rel. No. 105-2019-007 (Mar. 19, 2019).

[6] All references to PCAOB rules and standards in this Order are to the versions of those rules and standards, and to their organization and numbering, in effect at the time of the audits discussed herein.

5. During the period from 2009 through 2017, PCAOB inspectors conducted four inspections of the Firm and raised concerns about several significant deficiencies in its system of quality control including in the areas noted above.

6. The Firm was given the opportunity to submit a remediation response to demonstrate that it had satisfactorily addressed the quality control criticisms, and yet each time, the Firm chose not to do so.[7] The Firm also failed to undertake actions to improve its system of quality control. As of late 2020, the significant historical quality control defects were still present and the Firm's system of quality control was not effective.

7. In addition, the Firm and Kao violated numerous PCAOB rules and standards in conducting the Firm's 2019 audit of Issuer A, by failing to: (1) properly evaluate the accounting for a significant transaction, (2) obtain pre-approval for non-audit services, and (3) properly communicate matters related to the audit to Issuer A's audit committee equivalent. Many of these audit violations are directly linked to the defects in the Firm's quality controls.

D. WDM Violated PCAOB Rules and Quality Control Standards

8. Beginning with the inspection conducted in December 2009, PCAOB inspectors identified, and communicated to WDM, deficiencies in the Firm's system of quality control including, among others, its failure to (1) implement an audit methodology designed to comply with PCAOB standards and rules; (2) provide training to its personnel on PCAOB and SEC requirements; and (3) perform sufficient and appropriate monitoring of its issuer audit practice.[8] PCAOB inspectors also noted defects in the Firm's performance of issuer audits, including, among others, the failure to (1) perform sufficient audit procedures over material accounts or transactions; (2) perform audit procedures to evaluate material disclosures; and (3)

[7] As a result, the quality control sections of the PCAOB's inspection reports on WDM were made public. See WDM Chartered Professional Accountants - Firm Summary.

Under the Act and Board rules, portions of an inspection report that deal with criticisms of or potential defects in the quality control system of the firm must remain nonpublic if the firm addresses those criticisms or defects to the Board's satisfaction within 12 months of the report's issuance. If the firm fails to satisfactorily address a quality control criticism within 12 months, the PCAOB expands the publicly available version of the firm's inspection report to reveal those quality control criticisms. See Section 104(g)(2) of the Act; PCAOB Rule 4009.

identify and address departures from U.S. generally accepted accounting principles.[9] Despite the Firm's awareness of these deficiencies and concerns, the Firm's internal monitoring procedures failed to provide reasonable assurance that its system of quality control was effective, and the Firm failed to take and implement timely corrective action to improve quality control. Each of the above quality control defects contributed to the audit deficiencies above, as well as the Firm's and Kao's violations of auditing standards during the audit of the 2019 financial statements of Issuer A.

i. WDM's Quality Control Policies and Procedures Failed to Provide the Firm with Reasonable Assurance that the Work Performed by Engagement Personnel Met Professional Standards

9. PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's quality control standards.[10] These standards require that a registered firm have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice.[11] PCAOB quality control standards provide that a registered firm should establish policies and procedures "to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality."[12] Such policies should "encompass all phases of the design and execution of the engagement."[13] In addition, "[t]o the extent appropriate and as required by applicable professional standards, these policies and procedures should cover planning, performing, supervising, reviewing, documenting, and communicating the results of each engagement."[14]

10. At all relevant times, WDM failed to establish policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that the Firm used an audit methodology on issuer audit work that was designed to comply with applicable PCAOB auditing standards and other regulatory requirements. WDM used an external service provider and its associated practice aids as the Firm's audit methodology for purposes of performing audits of issuers' financial statements that were designed to be conducted in accordance with Canadian Auditing Standards ("CAS") and not PCAOB and SEC requirements. As early as 2009, WDM understood that use of its audit methodology on issuer audits did not meet PCAOB requirements.

11. Despite being aware for more than a decade that its audit methodology was not designed for work in accordance with PCAOB standards, WDM failed to implement a system to ensure that issuer audits were conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards. Indeed, during 2015, WDM obtained third-party prepared forms for use on issuer audits, but in the years that followed, the Firm failed to implement a system to ensure that firm personnel were using those forms during issuer audit work. As a result, WDM continued to use CAS methodology and practice aids on its issuer audits rather than the forms designed to assist the Firm in complying with PCAOB standards. Thus, WDM failed to implement a system to provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel complied with professional standards and regulatory requirements in violation of QC § 20.17.

ii. WDM Quality Control Policies and Procedures Failed to Provide the Firm with Reasonable Assurance that Personnel Participated in Training on PCAOB and SEC Requirements

12. PCAOB quality control standards provide that firms should establish policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that "[w]ork is assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances" and "[p]ersonnel participate in general and industry-specific continuing professional education . . . that enable them to fulfill responsibilities assigned."[15]

13. Despite these requirements, WDM repeatedly failed to establish policies and procedures to require those assigned to PCAOB audits to participate in continuing professional education to ensure that such individuals received periodic technical training related to PCAOB standards and SEC reporting requirements, rules, and regulations. Instead, the Firm relied upon an informal "hands-on" approach to training where senior staff, including Kao, would inform junior staff of what the audit entails and train them on the use of WDM's audit program. This approach assumed that Kao had the requisite knowledge of PCAOB and SEC requirements to appropriately teach the more junior staff; however, the Firm failed to take any actions to ensure that Kao had that knowledge and failed to require that Kao obtain formal training in such requirements. In fact, although Kao reviewed PCAOB update newsletters, he did not attend any continuing professional education courses related to PCAOB and SEC requirements. Accordingly, the Firm's reliance on Kao to train junior staff on PCAOB and SEC requirements was misplaced and did not provide reasonable assurance that personnel participated in continuing professional education to enable them to fulfill responsibilities assigned or that work was being assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required to perform audits under PCAOB standards.

14. The Firm was also on notice that in prior years its approach to training had failed to provide reasonable assurance that its staff could fulfill assigned responsibilities. The Firm's 2009 and 2012 PCAOB inspection reports included quality control findings on that issue. Significantly, the Firm's 2012 Inspection Report emphasized the Firm's failure to take "meaningful steps to address" the Firm's prior failure to implement procedures "to provide sufficient assurance that individuals assigned to issuer clients receive periodic technical training related to PCAOB standards and SEC reporting requirements, rules, and regulations."[16]

15. Despite the Firm's Quality Assurance Manual's ("QAM") requirement that staff understand and comply with all relevant professional standards, defects in the Firm's training-related quality controls continued in 2020 because the staff had not received training on PCAOB and SEC requirements. The defects were attributable to the Firm's continued failure to implement a system that ensured its personnel received periodic training on PCAOB and SEC requirements from appropriate sources.[17] As a result, the Firm violated QC § 20.[18]

16. Because the Firm failed to ensure that its staff received appropriate training on SEC and PCAOB requirements, it was unable to ensure that work was assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances and that personnel participated in general and industry-specific continuing professional education that enabled them to fulfill their assigned responsibilities. Accordingly, the Firm violated QC § 20.[19]

[16] See Report on 2012 Inspection of Watson Dauphinee & Masuch, Chartered Accountants, at 8 (May 2, 2013).

[17] Although the Firm's QAM required personnel to understand and comply with relevant professional requirements, its QAM did not require personnel to participate in continuing professional education on PCAOB and SEC requirements. The Firm's policies and procedures do not specify how the Firm expected its personnel to develop the required understanding.

iii. WDM Failed to Perform Internal Monitoring to Ensure Its System of Quality Control Was Operating Effectively

17. Pursuant to PCAOB standards, firms should also establish policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that: (a) "the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality,"[20] including with respect to "planning, performing, supervising, reviewing, documenting, and communicating the results of each engagement"[21] and (b) the firm's quality control policies and procedures "are suitably designed and are being effectively applied."[22]

18. PCAOB quality control standards further provide that one required element of a quality control system is monitoring.[23] Monitoring involves an ongoing consideration and evaluation of: (a) the relevance and adequacy of the firm's policies and procedures; (b) the appropriateness of the firm's guidance materials and any practice aids; (c) the effectiveness of professional development activities; and (d) compliance with the firm's policies and procedures.[24] Monitoring procedures taken as a whole should enable the firm to obtain reasonable assurance that its system of quality control is effective.[25]

19. To satisfy its PCAOB practice monitoring requirements, WDM's QAM required that the Firm perform triennial internal inspections; however, the Firm has not performed a cyclical inspection of completed audit files since 2016. Moreover, when the Firm conducted an internal inspection in 2016, Issuer A, the Firm's only issuer audit client at the time, was not included in the internal inspection. As a result, over the course of at least five years, the Firm did not perform an internal inspection to assess whether the work performed by its engagement personnel on PCAOB audits meets the applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the Firm's standards of quality.

20. Significantly, the Firm failed to perform appropriate monitoring procedures even after receiving repeat criticisms from PCAOB inspectors. Specifically, the 2009 Inspection Report noted that "the Firm's engagement performance monitoring program [did] not include procedures to evaluate whether audits of issuers are being conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards."[26] In the 2015 Report, PCAOB inspectors noted that the Firm had not performed any monitoring procedures since 2011.[27]

21. Despite these quality control criticisms and the engagement-level deficiencies noted by PCAOB inspectors during prior inspections, the Firm repeatedly failed to follow the monitoring requirements set forth in its QAM in violation of QC § 30.[28] Therefore, with respect to its PCAOB issuer audits, since 2016 the Firm did not undertake monitoring procedures to enable the firm to obtain reasonable assurance that its system of quality control was effective. Accordingly, the Firm violated QC §§ 20 and 30.

E. Kao Directly and Substantially Contributed to WDM's QC Violations

22. PCAOB Rule 3502 states that "[a] person associated with a registered public accounting firm shall not take or omit to take an action knowing, or recklessly not knowing, that the act or omission would directly and substantially contribute to a violation by that registered public accounting firm of the Act, the Rules of the Board, the provisions of the securities laws relating to the preparation and issuance of audit reports and the obligations and liabilities of accountants with respect thereto, including the rules of the Commission issued under the Act, or professional standards."[29]

23. At the time of the 2015 PCAOB inspection, Kao served as the Firm's Engagement Quality and Professional Standards leader. He also served as the engagement partner on the Firm's issuer audits that were reviewed during each of the Firm's PCAOB inspections. After a Firm restructuring in February 2020, Kao assumed the role of Managing Partner. In these management roles, Kao was responsible, at least in part, for the Firm's system of quality control, was on notice of the PCAOB inspection findings identifying deficiencies in the Firm's system of quality control discussed above, and was in a position to remediate those deficiencies. Yet Kao knowingly failed to take appropriate actions to provide reasonable assurance that the Firm's quality controls were suitably designed and being effectively applied. Specifically, Kao, as engagement partner on issuer audits, was in a position to ensure that forms purchased by the Firm to ensure compliance with PCAOB and SEC requirements were actually used on the audits. Instead, Kao relied on the Firm's CAS audit methodology, which contributed to the Firm's violation of auditing standards on its issuer audits. In his Firm leadership roles, Kao also was in a position to ensure that the Firm performed its cyclical inspection of completed audits, yet again Kao failed to do so.

24. As a result, Kao directly and substantially contributed to the Firm's ongoing violations of audit methodology and practice monitoring-related PCAOB quality control standards in violation of Rule 3502.

F. In Part Due to WDM's Quality Control Failures, WDM and Kao Violated PCAOB Rules and Auditing Standards in the 2019 Audit of Issuer A

25. For the year ended December 31, 2019, WDM served as the auditor for Issuer A and issued an audit report stating it was independent and had conducted its audit in accordance with the requirements of Canadian Generally Accepted Auditing Standards and the standards of the PCAOB.

i. WDM and Kao Failed to Evaluate Whether Issuer A Accounted for a Business Combination in Conformity with International Financial Reporting Standards

26. In connection with the preparation or issuance of any audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[30] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements only when the auditor conducted an audit in accordance with PCAOB standards and concludes that the financial statements, taken as a whole, are presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework.[31] In addition, AS 1015, Due Professional Care in the Performance of Work, requires "[d]ue professional care … to be exercised in the planning and performance of the audit and the preparation of the report."[32]

27. Under AS 2810, Evaluating Audit Results, "[a]s part of the overall review, the auditor should evaluate whether … [t]he evidence gathered in response to unusual or unexpected transactions… is sufficient; and … [u]nusual or unexpected transactions… indicate risks of material misstatement that were not identified previously, including, in particular, fraud risks."[33] The auditor should also "obtain corroboration for management's explanations regarding significant unusual or unexpected transactions[.]"[34] The auditor is also required to evaluate whether the financial statements are presented fairly and in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework.[35]

28. Issuer A entered into an agreement ("Acquisition Agreement") in 2019 to acquire all the assets and liabilities of a third party, ("Company X"). Under the terms of the Acquisition Agreement, a newly formed corporation, ("Company Y"), acquired all the assets and liabilities of Company X. As a result of this acquisition agreement transaction, Issuer A obtained control of Company Y and consolidated it, using Company Y's book value, into Issuer A's consolidated financial statements as of December 31, 2019.

29. Despite designating this transaction a "significant event" in the audit work papers, WDM and Kao failed to evaluate or instruct the engagement team to evaluate the appropriateness of the issuer's accounting for the acquisition, including the initial recognition and measurement of the assets and liabilities assumed and consideration paid. Rather, WDM and Kao simply accepted management's accounting determination and measurement without any evaluation including whether the transaction should be accounted for as a business combination or an asset acquisition. As a result, WDM and Kao violated AS 1015 and AS 2810 because they failed to (a) exercise professional skepticism, (b) evaluate whether the engagement team had obtained sufficient appropriate evidence to support the appropriateness of the accounting for the significant unusual transaction, and (c) evaluate whether the financial statements were presented fairly and in conformity with International Financial Reporting Standards.

ii. WDM and Kao Failed to Obtain Pre-Approval for Tax Services

30. In addition to complying with PCAOB rules and standards with respect to independence, an auditor has an obligation to satisfy all other independence criteria applicable to the engagement.[36] This obligation includes independence criteria set out in the rules and regulations of the Commission under federal securities laws.[37] SEC independence rules specify that audit and non-audit services are required to be pre-approved by an issuer's audit committee or audit committee equivalent, and PCAOB Rule 3524, Audit Committee Pre-approval of Certain Tax Services, sets forth additional requirements relating to audit committee pre-approval of tax services.[38]

31. For the year ended December 31, 2019, WDM provided tax services to Issuer A that consisted of preparation and filing of Corporate Income Tax and Goods and Services Tax returns. Both the Firm and Kao were aware of the requirement to obtain pre-approval for such services as both U.S. and Canadian regulators require such pre-approval and the Firm and Kao had obtained pre-approval for similar services provided to Issuer A during previous years. Despite being aware of the requirement, the Firm and Kao, as engagement partner on the audit of Issuer A, failed to obtain pre-approval for such services from Issuer A's Board of Directors.[39]

32. Therefore, WDM violated PCAOB Rules 3520 and 3524, and Kao directly and substantially contributed to the Firm's violation, in violation of Rule 3502, by knowingly or recklessly failing to obtain the necessary pre-approvals for tax services provided to Issuer A.

iii. WDM and Kao Failed to Communicate All Required Matters to Audit Committee

33. AS 1301, Communications with Audit Committees, requires the auditor to communicate certain matters related to the conduct of an audit to the issuer's Audit Committee.[40] In connection with its audit of Issuer A's December 31, 2019 financial statements, WDM issued letters to the Audit Committee, dated February 19, 2020, and June 4, 2020.

34. Despite issuing the two letters, WDM and Kao failed to address certain required communications, including: (a) whether there were any significant issues discussed with management in connection with the retention of the auditor; (b) critical accounting policies and practices, critical accounting estimates, qualitative aspects of significant accounting policies and practices, assessment of critical accounting policies and practices, and conclusions regarding critical accounting estimates; and (c) matters that are difficult or contentious for which the auditor consulted outside the engagement team and that the auditor reasonably determined are relevant to the audit committee's oversight of the financial reporting process.[41] WDM and Kao were aware of the requirements of AS 1301, as the Firm's 2017 PCAOB Inspection Report included an observation related to the Firm's failure to comply with the requirements of AS 1301 on its 2016 audit of Issuer A.

35. Therefore, WDM and Kao violated AS 1301.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(A) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(1), the registration of WDM Chartered Professional Accountants is revoked;

B. After five years from the date of this Order, WDM Chartered Professional Accountants may reapply for registration by filing an application pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2101;

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Mike Kao is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[42]

D. After five years from the date of this Order, Kao may file a petition, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm; and Respondents shall pay this civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies WDM or Kao as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006. By consenting to this Order, Respondents acknowledge that a failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may alone be grounds to deny any petition to terminate a bar pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b) or a reapplication for registration pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2101.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of SS Accounting and Auditing Inc.,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2021-019

December 14, 2021

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (the "Board" or "PCAOB") is imposing sanctions upon SS Accounting and Auditing Inc. (the "Firm" or "Respondent"), a registered public accounting firm. The Board is:

(1) censuring the Firm;

(2) imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $5,000 upon the Firm, and

(3) requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial measures to establish policies and procedures directed toward ensuring future compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that the Firm failed to timely file a required Form AP, in violation of PCAOB Rule 3211, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. SS Accounting and Auditing Inc. is a corporation located in Texas. At all relevant times, the Firm was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

B. Respondent Failed to Timely File a Form AP in Violation of PCAOB Rule 3211

2. PCAOB Rule 3211, which took effect for issuer audit reports issued on or after January 31, 2017, provides that each registered public accounting firm must provide information about engagement partners and other accounting firms that participate in audits of issuers by filing a Form AP, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants, for each audit report issued by the firm for an issuer. Form APs are due by the 35th day after the date the audit report is first included in a document filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC),[2] subject to a shorter filing deadline that applies when the audit report is first included in a registration statement filed under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended.[3]

3. The Firm audited the financial statements for China Green Agriculture, Inc. as of and for the year ended June 30, 2020. The Firm issued an audit report dated November 25, 2020, which was included in China Green Agricultural, Inc.'s Form 10-K filed with the SEC on December 7, 2020.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] See Rule 3211(b)(1).

[3] In that instance, a firm is required to file the Form AP by the 10th day after the date the audit report is first included in a document filed with the SEC. See Rule 3211(b)(2).

4. The Firm failed to file the required Form AP for the above filing by the 35th day after the date the audit report was first included with the filing made with the SEC, in violation of PCAOB Rule 3211.

5. The Firm belatedly filed the aforementioned Form AP on July 14, 2021.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determined it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), the Firm is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $5,000 is imposed upon the Firm. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. The Firm shall pay this civil money penalty within ten (10) days of the issuance of this Order by: (1) wire transfer pursuant to instructions provided by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the Firm as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006;

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), the Firm is required:

   1. within ninety (90) days from the date of this Order, to establish policies and procedures, or revise and/or supplement existing policies and procedures, for the purpose of providing the Firm with reasonable assurance of compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements, including

PCAOB Rule 3211 and that Form APs are filed in a timely and complete manner;

2. within ninety (90) days from the date of this Order, to establish policies to ensure training concerning PCAOB reporting requirements, including PCAOB Rule 3211, at least annually, of any Firm personnel who participate in the Firm's PCAOB reporting process; and

3. within one hundred twenty (120) days from the date of this Order, to certify in writing to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 2006, the Firm's compliance with paragraphs C(1) and C(2) above. The certification shall identify the undertakings, provide written evidence of compliance in the form of a narrative, and be supported by exhibits sufficient to demonstrate compliance. The Firm shall also submit such additional evidence of and information concerning compliance as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request. The Firm understands that the failure to satisfy these undertakings may constitute a violation of PCAOB Rule 5000 that could provide a basis for the imposition of additional sanctions in a subsequent disciplinary proceeding.

In the Matter of Cheryl L. Gore, CPA and Stanley R. Langston, CPA,

Respondents.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2021-020

December 14, 2021

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) barring Cheryl L. Gore, CPA ("Gore") from being associated with a registered public accounting firm;[1] if the Board later consents to Gore's association with a registered firm, limiting Gore's activities in connection with any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act") for an additional period of one year following the termination of the bar; requiring that Gore complete forty hours of continuing professional education ("CPE"), in addition to any CPE required in connection with any professional license; imposing a $20,000 civil money penalty on Gore; and

(2) limiting Stanley R. Langston, CPA's ("Langston") activities in connection with any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act for a period of one year from the date of this Order, and imposing a $10,000 civil money penalty on Langston.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Gore and Langston (collectively, "Respondents") violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the audits by Turner, Stone & Company, L.L.P. (the "Firm") of the financial statements of Issuer

[1] Gore may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after one year from the date of this Order.

A for the year ended December 31, 2016 ("2016 Audit") and the restated financial statements for the same period ("Restatement Audit") (collectively, the "Audits").

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Act, and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have submitted Offers of Settlement ("Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[2]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds[3] that:

A. Respondents

1. Cheryl L. Gore, CPA is a certified public accountant licensed by the Texas State Board of Accountancy (License No. 063764). Gore is a partner at the Firm and served as the engagement partner on each of the Audits. At all relevant times, Gore was an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

[2] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[3] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

2. Stanley R. Langston, CPA was, at all relevant times, a certified public accountant licensed by the Texas State Board of Accountancy (License No. 042545). Langston was not a partner, principal, or employee of the Firm. Langston served as the engagement quality reviewer ("EQR reviewer") on each of the Audits. At all relevant times, Langston was an associated person of a registered public accounting firm (the Firm) as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Relevant Entities

3. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, a Colorado corporation headquartered in Irvine, California. Issuer A's public filings disclose that, at all relevant times, it was a development-stage company engaged in the development, production, and commercialization of cannabis-based pharmaceutical products. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, an "issuer" as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

4. Corporation A was identified in Issuer A's fiscal year ended December 31, 2016 ("FY 2016") Form 10-K/A filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") on August 11, 2017, as an entity that had made payments on Issuer A's behalf during 2016 and part of 2017. In a second amended Form 10-K/A for FY 2016 filed with the Commission on April 15, 2019, Issuer A further disclosed that Corporation A was owned by Issuer A's CEO's adult son.

C. Summary

5. This matter concerns Respondents' violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Audits. As detailed below, during the Audits, Gore failed to exercise due professional care, including professional skepticism, and failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence in connection with Issuer A's identification, accounting, and disclosure of related party relationships and transactions.

6. In addition, in connection with the Audits, Langston violated AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review, by providing his concurring approval of issuance of the Firm's audit reports without performing the required engagement quality reviews with due professional care.

D. Gore Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards During the Audits

7. In connection with the preparation and issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that registered public accounting firms and their associated persons comply with applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.[4] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements only when the auditor has formed such an opinion on the basis of an audit performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[5] PCAOB standards also provide that due professional care be exercised in the planning and performance of the audit and the preparation of the report.[6] Due professional care requires the auditor to exercise professional skepticism.[7]

8. PCAOB standards require the auditor to plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for his or her opinion.[8] Inquiry of company personnel, by itself, does not provide sufficient audit evidence.[9] Management representations are part of the evidential matter the independent auditor obtains, but they are not a substitute for the application of those auditing procedures necessary to afford a reasonable basis for an opinion regarding the financial statements under audit.[10]

9. PCAOB standards require the auditor's responses to the assessed risks of material misstatement, particularly fraud risks, to involve the application of professional skepticism in gathering and evaluating audit evidence.[11]

10. In the case of significant transactions that are outside the normal course of business for the entity, or that otherwise appear to be unusual given the auditor's understanding of the entity and its environment, PCAOB standards require the auditor to gain an understanding of the business purpose for such transactions and whether that purpose (or lack thereof) suggests that the transactions may have been entered into to engage in fraudulent financial reporting or to conceal misappropriation of assets.[12] In addition, where a risk of fraud is identified, the auditor is required by PCAOB standards to perform substantive procedures, including tests of details, that are specifically responsive to the assessed fraud risks.[13]

11. PCAOB standards further require the auditor to evaluate whether the financial statements are presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework and evaluate whether the financial statements contain the information essential for a fair presentation of the financial statements in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework.[14] Generally accepted accounting principles recognize the importance of reporting transactions and events in accordance with their substance. The auditor should consider whether the substance of transactions or events differs materially from their form.[15]

12. As described below, Gore failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards during the Audits.

i. The 2016 Issuer A Audit

13. The Firm served as Issuer A's external auditor for the FY 2016 financial statements. The Firm issued an audit report containing an unqualified opinion, dated April 13, 2017, regarding Issuer A's FY 2016 financial statements. The report was included with Issuer A's Form 10-K filed with the Commission on April 17, 2017. Gore, the engagement partner on the 2016 Audit, authorized the release of the report. Langston, as the EQR reviewer on the engagement, provided concurring approval of issuance of that audit report.

14. Issuer A disclosed in its Form 10-K revenue of approximately $9,000 and stock-based payments to related parties of approximately $1.4 million in FY 2016. These related party transactions comprised 16% of Issuer A's reported net loss before taxes.

15. The objective of the auditor under the PCAOB's standard on related parties is to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to determine whether related parties and relationships and transactions with related parties have been properly identified, accounted for, and disclosed in the financial statements.[16] PCAOB standards also require an auditor to perform procedures to obtain an understanding of the company's relationships and transactions with its related parties that might reasonably be expected to affect the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements in conjunction with performing risk assessment procedures in accordance with AS 2110, Identifying and Assessing Risks of Material Misstatement.[17] The procedures performed to obtain an understanding of the company's relationships and transactions with related parties include: obtaining an understanding of the company's process; performing inquiries; and communicating with the audit engagement team and other auditors.[18]

16. Gore was required to obtain an understanding of Issuer A management's process for: identifying related parties and relationships and transactions with related parties; authorizing and approving transactions with related parties; and accounting for and disclosing relationships and transactions with related parties in its financial statements.[19] Specifically, as part of her risk assessment procedures, she was required to obtain an understanding of the design and implementation of Issuer A's internal control over financial reporting ("ICFR") in connection with related parties,[20] to evaluate the design of those controls that were relevant to the audit, and to determine whether those controls had been implemented.[21] Gore failed to perform any of these procedures during the 2016 Audit.

17. Moreover, Gore assessed unrecorded and/or undisclosed related party transactions as a fraud risk.[22] She also determined that unrecorded and/or undisclosed related party transactions were the types of disclosure errors that posed the greatest risk of material misstatement to Issuer A's financial statements. However, Gore failed to apply professional skepticism in gathering and evaluating audit evidence in response to this assessed fraud risk.[23]

18. Indeed, other than creating a list of Issuer A's related parties based upon inquiries of Issuer A's CFO and obtaining uncorroborated representations from Issuer A's CEO and CFO regarding the completeness and accuracy of that list, Gore failed to perform any other procedures to obtain an understanding of the company's relationships and transactions with its related parties that might reasonably be expected to affect the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements.[24]

19. In addition, Gore failed to obtain a sufficient understanding of Issuer A's process for identifying related parties and relationships and transactions with related parties.[25] Other than obtaining representations from Issuer A's CFO about the process for identifying, authorizing, and accounting for and disclosing related party relationships and transactions, she failed to perform any other procedures to obtain an understanding of the company's process. For example, Issuer A's CFO represented that Issuer A required the Board of Directors' approval for authorizing significant related party transactions, but Gore failed to inquire of management regarding, among other things, what constituted a significant related party transaction under the company's policies and procedures and how many, if any, significant related party transactions were authorized and approved by the Board of Directors (or were granted exceptions from the company's policies and procedures) during the 2016 Audit.[26]

20. Further, during the 2016 Audit, Gore became aware of certain information indicating management might not have disclosed a complete and accurate listing of its related parties and relationships and transactions with related parties. Among other things, while performing substantive procedures, Gore reviewed numerous recorded transactions with individuals bearing the CEO's surname. These transactions, none of which were disclosed as being with related parties, totaled approximately $2.5 million. They took the form of stock issuances and other payments, and were purportedly made in exchange for various consulting services.

21. Despite the fact that these payments were made to individuals with the CEO's surname, Gore failed to perform any procedures to resolve the inconsistencies in the audit evidence concerning related parties and relationships and transactions with related parties.[27] She also failed to perform procedures to test the accuracy and completeness of the related parties and relationships and transactions with related parties identified by the company, taking into account the information gathered during the audit.[28]

22. In addition, Gore failed to perform certain required inquiries of management about related parties. For example, she failed to inquire of management about, among other things: background information concerning related parties (for example, physical location, industry, size, and extent of operations); the nature of any relationships, including ownership structure, between the company and its related parties; the transactions entered into, modified, or terminated, with its related parties during the period under audit and the terms and business purposes (or the lack thereof) of such transactions; and the business purpose for entering into a transaction with a related party versus an unrelated party.[29] Gore, therefore, failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence and failed to perform sufficient procedures concerning related parties and relationships and transactions with related parties.[30]

ii. The Issuer A Restatement Audit

23. Several weeks after the issuance of the Firm's audit report, Issuer A informed Gore of material errors in its previously issued FY 2016 financial statements. In particular, Gore learned that Issuer A had failed to record or disclose material transactions entered into on Issuer A's behalf during FY 2016 by an entity identified by the CEO as Corporation A. The unrecorded transactions caused Issuer A's total assets to be understated by approximately $1.3 million (107%), and total liabilities by approximately $630,000 (17%).

24. The Firm issued an audit report containing an unqualified opinion, dated August 10, 2017, regarding Issuer A's restated FY 2016 financial statements. The report was included with Issuer A's Form 10-K/A filed with the Commission on August 11, 2017. Gore authorized the release of the audit report. Langston provided concurring approval of issuance of that audit report. This restatement of Issuer A's FY 2016 financial statements amended the FY 2016 financial statements to include the previously unrecorded transactions with Corporation A.

25. Through discussions with Issuer A management during the Restatement Audit, Gore learned that Corporation A was controlled by the adult son of Issuer A's CEO. Issuer A's CEO asserted, however, that Corporation A should not be disclosed as a related party in the restated financial statements based on his view that adult immediate family members were not related parties unless they shared a common household.

26. Based on her understanding of U. S. generally accepted accounting principles and Regulation S-X, Gore understood that Corporation A appeared to be a related party and should be disclosed in Issuer A's financial statements.[31] However, despite being aware of this, she failed prior to authorizing the audit report to recognize that Issuer A was not disclosing Corporation A as a related party. As a result, Gore failed to act with due professional care and professional skepticism and failed to perform sufficient procedures to determine whether related parties and relationships and transactions with related parties were properly identified, accounted for, and disclosed in the restated financial statements.

27. Indeed, although she knew Corporation A was "a related party or relationship or transaction with a related party previously undisclosed to the auditor,"[32] Gore failed to evaluate why the related parties or relationships or transactions with related parties were previously undisclosed to the auditor and to assess the need to perform additional procedures to identify other undisclosed relationships or transactions with Corporation A.[33] In addition, Gore failed to perform the required procedures concerning the implications on her assessment of Issuer A's ICFR for the Restatement Audit.[34]

28. During the Restatement Audit, Issuer A provided Gore with supporting documentation for a second service agreement between Issuer A and Corporation A allowing Corporation A to enter into transactions on Issuer A's behalf, which had been in force during FY

The term "related parties" includes, among other things, principal owners of the entity and members of their immediate families and management of the entity and members of their immediate families. See Footnote 1 of AS 2410; 17 C.F.R. 210.1-02(u); FASB ASC Master Glossary. 2016 but had not been disclosed to Gore and the engagement team during the 2016 Audit. Despite understanding from discussions with Issuer A management that Issuer A's ICFR was based on a definition of "related party" that did not conform with her understanding of U.S. generally accepted accounting principles or Regulation S-X, Gore failed to perform any procedures to evaluate the implications of that information and support her and the engagement team's continued reliance on management's processes to properly identify, approve, and disclose related party relationships and transactions.

29. When evaluating the results of the Restatement Audit, Gore was required to evaluate whether the accumulated results of the auditing procedures and other observations affected the assessment of the fraud risks made throughout the audit and whether the audit procedures needed to be modified to respond to those risks.[35] Gore concluded, without any basis, that the unrecorded, undisclosed Corporation A transactions were an isolated error, despite PCAOB standards stating that Gore could not assume that an instance of error or fraud was an isolated occurrence, and requiring Gore to evaluate the nature and effects of the individual misstatements accumulated during the audit on the assessed risks of material misstatement—an evaluation important in determining whether the risk assessments remained appropriate.[36]

30. In addition, during the Restatement Audit, Gore did not ask for, or obtain, an updated list of related parties from Issuer A, and instead relied on the audit work that she performed in the area of related parties during the 2016 Audit. Gore thus failed to inquire of management or others within the company regarding the names of the company's related parties, and to perform any procedures to test the accuracy and completeness of the related parties and relationships and transactions with related parties identified by the company, taking into account the information she gathered during the audit concerning Corporation A's ownership and potential related party stock transactions.[37] Moreover, the related party list she relied on during the Restatement Audit was still incomplete, as it did not include Corporation A, the CEO's son, or the other individuals that shared the CEO's surname and received large amounts of Issuer A stock in FY 2016.

31. During the Restatement Audit, Gore failed to obtain an understanding of the company's process for identifying, authorizing, and accounting for and disclosing relationships and transactions with related parties,[38] and to apply professional skepticism in gathering and evaluating the audit evidence in response to the assessed fraud risk concerning related parties and relationships and transactions.[39] After learning that Issuer A's interpretation of related parties did not appear to comply with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles and Regulation S-X, Gore failed to obtain the required understanding of the company's process and failed to identify as related party transactions the transactions and stock issuances during FY 2016 that were with and to other individuals that shared the CEO's surname.

32. Gore was also required during the Restatement Audit to obtain an understanding of the design and implementation of Issuer A's ICFR in connection with related parties.[40] She was also required to evaluate the design of these controls, which were relevant to the audit, and to determine whether the controls had been implemented.[41] She failed to perform any of these procedures.

33. Gore also failed to exercise due professional care in connection with her review of the financial statements during the final days of the Restatement Audit.[42] Indeed, despite her discussions with Issuer A management concerning the definition of related parties, and her review of several Form 10-K/A drafts of potential language concerning the Corporation A transactions, Gore failed to evaluate the final Form 10-K/A that was to be filed with the Commission on August 11, 2017, to determine whether it did, in fact, disclose that Corporation A was a related party.[43] As a result, Gore failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence and to perform sufficient procedures concerning whether Issuer A's financial statements accurately disclosed its related party transactions.[44]

E. Langston Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the Engagement Quality Reviews During the Audits

practice standards.[45] PCAOB standards also require that an engagement quality review be performed on all audit engagements conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards.[46] In conducting the engagement quality review, the EQR reviewer should evaluate the significant judgments made by the engagement team and the related conclusions reached in forming the overall conclusion on the engagement and in preparing the engagement report.[47]

35. PCAOB standards also require the EQR reviewer to evaluate the assessment of, and audit responses to, among other things, significant risks identified by the engagement team, including fraud risks.[48] In addition, the EQR reviewer is required to evaluate whether the engagement documentation that he or she reviewed when performing the procedures required by paragraph AS 1220.10 indicates that the engagement team responded appropriately to significant risks, and supports the conclusions reached by the engagement team with respect to the matters reviewed.[49]

36. PCAOB standards further require the EQR reviewer to review the engagement completion document and confirm with the engagement partner that there are no significant unresolved matters.[50] PCAOB standards also require engagement quality review documentation to contain sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement, to understand the procedures performed by the EQR reviewer to comply with the provisions of AS 1220, including information that identifies, among other things, the documents reviewed by the EQR reviewer.[51]

37. During both Audits, Langston failed to evaluate properly the significant judgments made by Gore and the engagement teams with respect to unrecorded and/or undisclosed related party transactions that were identified as fraud risks. As noted above, Issuer A disclosed approximately $1.4 million in stock-based payments to related parties and failed to disclose an additional $2.5 million in such payments. Although he had telephone discussions with Gore during both Audits, and reviewed certain drafts of Issuer A's Form 10-K and 10-K/A during the 2016 Audit and Restatement Audit, respectively, he failed during the

Audits to review any audit work papers in the significant risk areas of the audit, including related parties, and failed to evaluate the engagement teams' assessment of and audit response to these risk areas,[52] as well as the significant judgments made by the engagement teams and the related conclusions reached in forming the overall conclusion on the engagement and in preparing the respective engagement reports.[53] Langston also failed to review the engagement completion documents during both Audits, as required by AS 1220.[54] Because of these failures, Langston failed to evaluate whether the documentation prepared by the engagement teams responded appropriately to significant risks, and supported the conclusions reached by the engagement teams with respect to the matters reviewed.[55]

38. Finally, the documentation Langston prepared did not contain sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement, to understand which documents Langston reviewed.[56]

39. As a result of the failures described above, Langston provided his concurring approvals of issuance without performing his reviews with the requisite due professional care.[57]

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Cheryl L. Gore is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).[58]

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Dale Matheson Carr-Hilton LaBonte LLP,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2021-021

December 14, 2021

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Dale Matheson Carr-Hilton LaBonte LLP (the "Firm," or "Respondent"), a registered public accounting firm;

(2) imposing a $50,000 civil money penalty on the Firm; and

(3) requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial measures.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Respondent violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with two issuer audits and also violated PCAOB quality control standards concerning client acceptance and continuance and engagement performance.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. Dale Matheson Carr-Hilton LaBonte LLP is, and at all relevant times was, a Canadian limited liability partnership headquartered in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. The Firm currently has a total of four offices, each in Canada. The Firm is associated with Moore Global Network Limited, and is licensed to practice public accounting by the Chartered Professional Accountants of British Columbia (License No. 100002080). At all relevant times, the Firm was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

B. Issuers

2. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, a Canadian corporation incorporated in British Columbia, Canada, and headquartered in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. Issuer A's public filings disclose that, at all relevant times, it was engaged in the business of mineral exploration and development. Issuer A filed a Form F-4 registration statement with the Commission on April 10, 2017. From the time that it filed its Form F-4, and at all relevant times thereafter, Issuer A was an "issuer" as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

3. Issuer B was, at all relevant times, a Canadian corporation incorporated in British Columbia, Canada, and headquartered in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. Issuer B's public filings disclose that, at all relevant times, it was engaged in the business of developing and manufacturing electric vehicles. Issuer B was, at all relevant times, an "issuer" as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

4. This matter concerns Respondent's violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with its audit of the financial statements of Issuer A for the fiscal year ended October 31, 2016 ("2016 Issuer A Audit"), and its audit of the financial statements of Issuer B for the fiscal year ended December 31, 2017 ("2017 Issuer B Audit") (collectively, the "Audits"), as well as violations of PCAOB quality control standards in the areas of client acceptance and continuance and engagement performance.[2]

5. Despite information available to the Firm that the Audits were required to be performed in accordance with PCAOB standards, the Firm planned and performed the Audits in accordance with Canadian Generally Accepted Auditing Standards ("CGAAS"). In each instance, the Firm initially issued an audit report stating the audit had been performed in accordance with CGAAS, and its report did not refer to PCAOB standards.

6. In both cases, the staff of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") notified the relevant issuer that its filing required an audit report stating the audit had been performed in accordance with PCAOB standards. The Firm amended each of its initial audit reports to indicate that the audit had been performed in accordance with PCAOB standards, and consented to the inclusion of the amended audit reports in the issuers' amended filings when, in fact, the Audits had not been performed in accordance with PCAOB standards. Indeed, the Firm failed to plan or perform any additional procedures to support the assertions in the amended reports that the audits were conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards.

D. The Firm Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

7. In connection with the preparation and issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the

[2] As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. See Reorganization of PCAOB Auditing Standards and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards and Rules, PCAOB Rel. No. 2015-002 (Mar. 31, 2015); see also PCAOB Auditing Standards Reorganized and Pre-Reorganized Numbering (Jan. 2017). The reorganization did not impose additional requirements on auditors or substantively change the requirements of PCAOB standards. While Respondent's conduct occurred both before and after the reorganization, the reorganized standards are cited herein for clarity.

PCAOB's auditing and related professional practice standards.[3] PCAOB standards also provide that due professional care be exercised in the planning and performance of the audit and the preparation of the report.[4]

8. PCAOB auditing standards state that the auditor should perform certain activities at the beginning of the audit, including procedures regarding the continuance of a client relationship and the specific audit engagement.[5]

9. As part of planning activities, PCAOB auditing standards also require that the auditor evaluate whether certain matters are important to the company's financial statements and internal control over financial reporting, and if so, how they will affect the auditor's procedures, including, but not limited to: matters affecting the industry in which the company operates, such as financial reporting practices, economic conditions, laws and regulations; matters relating to the company's business, including its organization, operating characteristics, and capital structure; and legal or regulatory matters of which the company is aware.[6]

10. PCAOB standards also require that the auditor plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the opinion expressed in the auditor's report.[7] An auditor's standard report stating that the financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, an entity's financial position, results of operations, and cash flows in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles may be expressed only when the auditor has formed such an opinion on the basis of an audit performed in accordance with the standards of the PCAOB.[8]

11. As described below, the Firm failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards during the Firm's 2016 Issuer A Audit and the Firm's 2017 Issuer B Audit.

i. The Firm's 2016 Issuer A Audit

12. In September 2016, Issuer A engaged the Firm to audit Issuer A's financial statements for the fiscal year ended October 31, 2016. Issuer A was a new audit client. However, the Firm failed to exercise due professional care and professional skepticism in planning and performing the audit.[9]

13. Specifically, the Firm was aware prior to its consent to the inclusion of its audit report that Issuer A was in the process of becoming a U.S. public company, and knew that audits of U.S. public companies were required to be performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[10] Indeed, the Firm's work papers contained a summary of press releases indicating that Issuer A was in the process of becoming a U.S. public company—including announcements in February 2017 that Issuer A's securities were trading in the U.S. on an over-the-counter market and that Issuer A planned to file a Form F-4 registration statement with the Commission in March 2017.

14. Despite this awareness, in planning and performing the audit, the Firm failed to evaluate whether Issuer A's plan to become a U.S. public company was important to its financial statements and how it would affect the Firm's audit procedures.[11] In particular, the Firm failed to evaluate matters related to the financial reporting practices and laws and regulations concerning Issuer A's plans to include the Firm's audit report in its registration statement to be filed with the Commission. Specifically, the Firm was required to plan and perform its audit of Issuer A's financial statements in accordance with PCAOB standards and include in the audit report a statement that the audit was conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards.[12]

15. As a result of this failure, the Firm's audit documentation and its audit report reflect that the Firm planned and performed the 2016 Issuer A audit in accordance with CGAAS rather than in accordance with PCAOB standards. For example, the Firm's independence questionnaire, prepared after Issuer A's February 2017 press releases, identified Issuer A only as a Canadian public company, without acknowledging Issuer A's intent to file a registration statement with the Commission the following month. In addition, in conducting the audit, the Firm did not use its checklist and templates designed for U.S. issuer audits, and instead used documentation meant for performing audits in accordance with CGAAS.

16. The Firm's audit report dated March 29, 2017, which opined on Issuer A's financial statements for the fiscal years ended October 31, 2015 and October 31, 2016, and was included with Issuer A's Form F-4 registration statement filed with the Commission on April 10, 2017, stated that the audit was conducted in accordance with CGAAS and did not refer to PCAOB standards.

17. In a comment letter dated May 5, 2017, the Commission's Division of Corporation Finance staff informed Issuer A that it should obtain a revised independent auditor's report indicating the audit had been performed in accordance with PCAOB standards. The issuer informed the Firm of the comment letter. The Firm, in response, issued an amended audit report bearing the same March 29, 2017 date as the original audit report, but adding a statement that the audit was conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards ("Amended Issuer A Report"). The Firm then consented to the inclusion of its Amended Issuer A Report to accompany Issuer A's amended registration statement filed on May 25, 2017.

18. The Firm failed, however, to perform any additional audit procedures in connection with the Amended Issuer A Report prior to its consent to include the Amended Issuer A Report in Issuer A's amended registration statement. Instead, the Firm inappropriately relied upon the work it had performed under CGAAS, which did not sufficiently address PCAOB standards. Consequently, the Firm failed to plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the audit opinion in the Amended Issuer A Report,[13] and expressed that audit opinion without having conducted an audit in accordance with PCAOB standards.[14]

ii. The Firm's 2017 Issuer B Audit

19. In February 2018, Issuer B engaged the Firm to audit Issuer B's financial statements for the fiscal year ended December 31, 2017. The Firm had served as Issuer B's auditor since 2015. From the outset of the 2017 Issuer B Audit, the Firm was aware that Issuer B was a U.S. public company, having audited Issuer B's financial statements for the previous fiscal year ended December 31, 2016 and issued an audit report filed with the Commission indicating the 2016 audit had been conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards. The Firm, as noted above, was also aware during the relevant time frame that audits of U.S. public companies were required to be performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.

20. However, the Firm failed to exercise due professional care and professional skepticism in conducting its client continuance procedures and in planning and performing the audit.[15] Similar to the 2016 Issuer A Audit, the Firm failed to identify that a PCAOB audit was required, and instead conducted the 2017 Issuer B Audit in accordance with CGAAS.

21. No information was brought to the Firm's attention during the 2017 Issuer B Audit suggesting the circumstances had changed with respect to Issuer B's status as a U.S. public company. Indeed, while planning the audit, the Firm was aware that Issuer B had filed an application in October 2017 to list its stock on a major U.S.-based stock exchange. Moreover, a Firm audit work paper concerning materiality noted that "[t]he company recent[ly] went public in the [U.S.] and is trying to increase the capital to fund future operations."

22. In planning and performing the audit, however, the Firm failed to evaluate whether Issuer B's status as a U.S. public company was important to the company's financial statements and how it would affect the Firm's audit procedures.[16] In particular, the Firm failed to consider that because the 2017 Issuer B audit was an audit of a U.S. public company and the audit report would accompany a Form 20-F filed with the Commission, the Firm was required to plan and perform the audit in accordance with PCAOB standards, and include in the audit report a statement that the audit was conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards.[17]

23. Despite issuing an audit report for the prior fiscal year stating that the audit was conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards and being aware of Issuer B's plans to list its stock on a U.S. based exchange, the Firm planned and performed the 2017 Issuer B Audit in accordance with CGAAS rather than in accordance with PCAOB standards. For example, during the audit, the Firm used a client continuance checklist that referred only to Canadian standards. The Firm's engagement letter and communications with Issuer B's Audit Committee indicated that the audit would be conducted in accordance with CGAAS and under the auditor independence requirements of the Code of Professional Conduct of the Chartered Professional Accountants of British Columbia. The Firm did not use its checklist or templates designed for U.S. issuer audits during the audit, and instead used audit documentation meant for performing audits in accordance with CGAAS. The Firm's audit report for the 2017 Issuer B Audit, dated April 2, 2018, indicated that the audit was conducted in accordance with CGAAS and did not make reference to PCAOB standards. This report accompanied Issuer B's Form 20-F for the fiscal year ended December 31, 2017, filed with the Commission on April 19, 2018.

24. In failing to evaluate Issuer B's status as a U.S. public company and recognize that a PCAOB audit was required, the Firm failed to perform sufficient procedures regarding the continuance of the client relationship and the specific audit engagement.[18]

25. In the weeks following the filing of the April 19, 2018 Form 20-F, Issuer B prepared to file a Form F-1/A amended registration statement with the Commission. Because Issuer B intended to include its audited financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2017 in the Form F-1/A, members of the engagement team discussed via email whether the accompanying audit report needed to state that the audit had been performed in accordance with PCAOB standards. Following these discussions, the Firm amended its April 2, 2018 report to state that the audit was conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards ("Amended Issuer B Report"). On May 29, 2018, Issuer B filed a Form F-1/A registration statement, and the Firm consented to the inclusion of the Amended Issuer B Report to accompany the filing. The Firm, however, failed to perform any additional procedures prior to its consent to include the Amended Issuer B Report in Issuer B's amended registration statement to support the assertion in the Amended Issuer B Report that the audit was conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards.[19] Instead, the Firm inappropriately relied upon the work it had performed under CGAAS, which did not sufficiently address PCAOB standards.

26. On August 21, 2018, Issuer B received a comment letter from the Commission's Division of Corporation Finance staff requesting Issuer B to include with its April 19, 2018 Form 20-F an audit report indicating that the Firm conducted its audit in accordance with PCAOB standards. On August 29, 2018, Issuer B filed an amended Form 20-F/A, and the Firm reissued the Amended Issuer B Report stating that the audit had been conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards and consented to the inclusion of the Amended Issuer B Report in the filing. The Firm, however, failed to perform any additional procedures prior to its consent to include the reissued Amended Issuer B Report to accompany the amended Form 20-F/A. Indeed, even after being aware of the Commission's comment letter, the Firm failed to plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the audit opinion in the Amended Issuer B Report,[20] and expressed that audit opinion without having conducted an audit in accordance with PCAOB standards.[21]

iii. The Firm Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards Related to Quality Control

27. PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's quality control standards.[22] PCAOB quality control standards require that "[t]o minimize the risk of misunderstandings regarding the nature, scope, and limitations of the services to be performed," a firm's quality control policies and procedures "should provide for obtaining an understanding with the client regarding those services."[23] Throughout the relevant time period, the Firm's quality control policies and procedures concerning the acceptance and continuance of clients and engagements did not require engagement teams to obtain an understanding with the client regarding the services to be performed. Indeed, as described above, in both Audits, the engagement teams misunderstood the services to be performed, and performed audits in accordance with CGAAS rather than the required PCAOB standards.

28. PCAOB quality control standards also require that a registered public accounting firm establish policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality.[24] As described above, throughout the relevant time period, the Firm failed to establish and implement quality control policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by the Firm met applicable PCAOB standards and regulatory requirements, and the Firm's standards of quality. Although the Firm developed audit checklists and templates, the Firm's quality control policies and procedures did not instruct engagement teams to evaluate the circumstances in which the various templates should be used. Nor did the Firm's quality control policies and procedures instruct engagement teams to evaluate whether an audit needed to be performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Dale Matheson Carr-Hilton LaBonte LLP, is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $50,000 is imposed upon Dale Matheson Carr-Hilton LaBonte LLP. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Dale Matheson Carr-Hilton LaBonte LLP shall pay this civil money penalty within 10 days of the issuance of this Order by (a) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (b) United States Postal Service postal money order, certified check, bank cashier's check or bank money order; (c) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board; (d) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006; and (e) submitted under a cover letter which identifies Dale Matheson Carr-Hilton LaBonte LLP as the Respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB Release Number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to the Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006;

The certification shall identify the undertakings, provide written evidence of compliance in the form of a narrative, and be supported by exhibits sufficient to demonstrate compliance. The Firm shall also submit such additional evidence of and information concerning compliance as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request. The Firm understands that the failure to satisfy these undertakings may constitute a violation of PCAOB Rule 5000 that could provide a basis for the imposition of additional sanctions in a subsequent disciplinary proceeding.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of PKF O'Connor Davies, LLP,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-001

January 25, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring PKF O'Connor Davies, LLP ("PKFOD," the "Firm," or "Respondent");

(2) imposing a civil money penalty of $40,000 on the Firm;

(3) requiring the Firm to undertake a self-assessment of its system of quality control; and

(4) requiring the Firm to retain an independent consultant to review and make recommendations concerning the Firm's system of quality control as it relates to audits performed under PCAOB standards.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that: (a) PKFOD violated PCAOB rules and auditing standards in connection with the audits of two issuers; and (b) PKFOD violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards by failing to take sufficient steps to ensure that its system of quality control provided reasonable assurance that its personnel complied with applicable professional standards and the Firm's standards of quality.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[2]

A. Respondent

1. PKF O'Connor Davies, LLP is a limited liability partnership organized under the laws of the state of New York headquartered in New York City. PKFOD also has offices in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Maryland, and Florida. The Firm is licensed to practice public accounting in multiple jurisdictions, including the state of New York (Partnership ID No. 069980). The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the PCAOB pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. PKFOD is a member of the PKF International Limited network of firms.

B. Issuers

2. Issuer A is a real estate investment trust ("REIT") incorporated under the laws of the state of Maryland. At all relevant times, Issuer A was an issuer as defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

3. Issuer B is a REIT incorporated under the laws of the state of Maryland. At all relevant times, Issuer B was an issuer as defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

4. This matter concerns PKFOD's violations of PCAOB rules and standards in conducting the Firm's integrated audit of Issuer A's financial statements and internal control over financial reporting ("ICFR") for the fiscal year ended December 31, 2018 ("Issuer A Audit"), and integrated audit of Issuer B's financial statements and ICFR for fiscal year ended September 30, 2019 ("Issuer B Audit") (together, "Audits"). In the Audits, the Firm failed to: (1) test the operating effectiveness of the issuers' information technology general controls, (2) test the completeness and accuracy of certain issuer-produced reports, and (3) perform sufficient and appropriate procedures to respond to fraud risks.[3]

5. The Firm's audit violations are the direct result of its failure to properly design and implement, and monitor the effectiveness of, a system of quality control. Specifically, the Firm failed to: (1) provide and implement sufficient practice aids and tools for use on issuer audits; (2) provide sufficient technical training on auditing ICFR; and (3) perform sufficient appropriate internal monitoring procedures. The Firm's system of quality control, therefore, did not: (1) provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel would meet applicable professional standards and regulatory requirements; (2) provide reasonable assurance that personnel participated in continuing professional education or other professional development activities that enabled them to fulfill assigned responsibilities; (3) provide reasonable assurance that work was assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances; and (4) enable the Firm to obtain reasonable assurance that its system of quality control was suitably designed and effectively applied.

D. PKFOD Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements only when the auditor has conducted an audit in accordance with PCAOB standards and the auditor concludes that the financial statements, taken as a whole, are presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework.[5] Among other things, PCAOB standards require an auditor to exercise due professional care and professional skepticism in performing an audit and preparing an auditor's report.[6]

7. When an auditor is engaged to perform an audit of management's assessment of the effectiveness of ICFR, the audit of ICFR should be integrated with the audit of the financial statements.[7] The objectives of the audits are not identical, however, and the auditor must plan and perform the work to achieve the objectives of both audits.[8]

8. In an integrated audit, an auditor should design its testing of controls to accomplish the objectives of both audits simultaneously: (1) to obtain sufficient evidence to support the auditor's opinion on ICFR as of year-end; and (2) to obtain sufficient evidence to support the auditor's control risk assessments for purposes of the audit of financial statements.[9] As part of evaluating the period-end financial reporting process, the auditor should assess, among other things, the extent of information technology ("IT") involvement in the period-end financial reporting process.[10] In addition, the auditor should "understand how IT affects the company's flow of transactions."[11] The auditor's identification of IT-related risk and controls is not a separate evaluation, but instead is "an integral part of the top-down approach used to identify significant accounts and disclosures and their relevant assertions, and the controls to test, as well as to assess risk and allocate audit effort. . . ."[12]

9. Under PCAOB standards, an auditor should test the controls that are important to the auditor's conclusion about whether the company's controls sufficiently address the assessed risk of misstatement to each relevant assertion.[13] That testing should assess both the design and operating effectiveness of such controls.[14] If an auditor plans to assess control risk at less than the maximum and rely on controls for purposes of the financial statement audit, the auditor must obtain evidence that such controls were designed and operating effectively during the entire period upon which the auditor plans to place reliance on these controls.[15]

10. PCAOB standards further require that the auditor should evaluate the extent to which he or she will use the work of others to reduce the work the auditor might otherwise perform. If, in an integrated audit, the auditor determines to use the work of others, including management, the auditor must comply with AS 2605, Consideration of the Internal Audit Function.[16] To that end, the auditor should assess the competence and objectivity of the persons whose work the auditor plans to use to determine the extent to which the auditor can rely on that work.[17]

11. PCAOB standards require the auditor to plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the auditor's opinion.[18] To be appropriate, audit evidence must be both relevant and reliable.[19] The reliability of evidence depends on its nature and source and the circumstances under which it is obtained.[20] Evidence obtained from inquiry of issuer personnel is not on its own sufficient audit evidence.[21]

i. PKFOD Failed to Properly Test and Relied Inappropriately on Information Technology General Controls

12. PKFOD issued audit reports containing unqualified opinions on the financial statements and ICFR for the Issuer A Audit on March 7, 2019, and for the Issuer B Audit on November 25, 2019. These reports were included with the issuers' Forms 10-K filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission on March 7, 2019 and November 25, 2019, respectively. On both Audits, the engagement teams included IT audit personnel from the Firm's Risk Advisory Group, who tested the design and operating effectiveness of the issuers' information technology general controls ("ITGCs").[22] That testing, however, was insufficient as the engagement teams failed to perform procedures sufficient to test design effectiveness of the ITGCs and further failed to test the operating effectiveness of those same controls.

13. The IT audit personnel for both Audits made inquiries and obtained documents management used in its evaluation of ITGCs. The IT audit personnel used these documents to assess the design effectiveness of ITGCs but failed to perform procedures to test whether the controls identified, if operating effectively, satisfied the companies' control objectives and could effectively prevent or detect errors or fraud that could result in material misstatements in the companies' financial statements.[23] Further, the engagement teams' design effectiveness test work was flawed because neither the IT audit personnel nor anyone else on the engagement teams performed any procedures to assess the competence and objectivity of the issuers' management whose work they used in violation of PCAOB standards.[24]

14. Although the IT audit personnel concluded that the ITGCs were operating effectively, there is no evidence that the IT audit personnel performed procedures to test the operating effectiveness of the ITGCs.[25] Because the engagement teams did not test the operating effectiveness of the ITGCs, the Firm lacked the foundation for its reliance on those controls for other audit procedures.[26] As a result of the engagement teams' inappropriate reliance on ITGCs, neither engagement team modified the planned nature, timing or extent of their substantive procedures. This resulted in the engagement teams' failure to obtain sufficient evidence to support its opinions in violation of PCAOB standards.[27]

15. Accordingly, the Firm's failure to test, or sufficiently test, the design and operating effectiveness of ITGCs violated AS 2201 and AS 2301.

ii. PKFOD Failed to Properly Test the Accuracy and Completeness of Information Produced by the Issuers

16. When using information produced by the company as audit evidence, PCAOB standards require the auditor to evaluate whether the information is sufficient and appropriate for purposes of the audit by performing procedures to, among other things, test the accuracy and completeness of the information, or test the controls over the accuracy and completeness of that information.[28]

17. In the Audits, the Firm repeatedly relied on reports provided by the issuers, including in areas identified as significant risks or fraud risks, such as revenue, long-lived assets, and management override of controls, without performing any procedures to test the accuracy and completeness of those reports. The Firm also failed, as described above, to properly test ITGCs related to the underlying systems that generated the reports. Accordingly, the Firm's use of issuer-produced reports as evidence violated PCAOB standards.[29]

iii. PKFOD Failed to Perform Sufficient and Appropriate Fraud Procedures

18. In addressing fraud risk related to management override of controls, PCAOB standards require the auditor to test the appropriateness of journal entries and other adjustments for evidence of possible material misstatement due to fraud.[30] When identifying and selecting specific journal entries and other adjustments for testing, the auditor should consider, among other things, (1) the auditor's assessment of the fraud risk, (2) the effectiveness of controls that have been implemented over journal entries and other adjustments, (3) the entity's financial reporting process and the nature of the evidence that can be examined, (4) the characteristics of fraudulent entries of adjustments, and (5) journal entries or other adjustments processed outside the normal course of business.[31] As noted above, inquiry of company personnel, by itself, does not provide sufficient audit evidence to reduce audit risk to an appropriately low level for a relevant assertion.[32]

19. In both Audits, the engagement teams identified management override of controls as a fraud risk and planned to address that risk, in part, by performing procedures to test journal entries selected based on fraud criteria determined by the engagement teams. However, the engagement teams failed to perform sufficient procedures to test the completeness of the population of journal entries provided by management or to test the controls over the completeness of that information.[33] In the Issuer A Audit, the engagement team noted numerous gaps in the journal entry sequence in the report received from management, yet the Firm relied solely on management inquiry to evaluate the reasonableness of those gaps.[34] Moreover, neither engagement team tested the parameters used to generate the reports used to select journal entries for testing. Accordingly, neither engagement team had an appropriate foundation from which to select journal entries for testing.[35]

20. In both Audits, the engagement teams identified unique characteristics that they believed indicated possible fraudulent journal entries. However, despite identifying populations of journal entries that met those characteristics, neither engagement team addressed adequately the fraud risks presented by those populations. In the Issuer A Audit, the engagement team identified 1,074 journal entries that met its fraud characteristics, yet it tested only 40 journal entries. For the Issuer B Audit, the engagement team obtained a listing from the issuer of all journal entries for the fiscal year. The engagement team then scanned the list and selected 25 entries for testing. The engagement team did not document how many other entries met the criteria, but were not tested.

21. Despite the fraud risk associated with the entries that presented the engagement teams' characteristics of being fraudulent that were not tested and the judgment involved in determining not to test those entries, neither engagement team explained why the full populations of relevant entries were not tested or how the entries that were selected provided sufficient appropriate evidence to address the risk of fraud due to management override of controls.[36] As a result, the procedures performed did not sufficiently address the risk of material misstatement due to management override of controls.[37] Accordingly, the Firm violated AS 1015, AS 1105, and AS 2401 in both Audits.

E. PKFOD Violated PCAOB Rules and Quality Control Standards

i. PKFOD's Quality Control Policies and Procedures Failed to Provide the Firm with Reasonable Assurance that the Work Performed by Engagement Personnel Meets Professional Standards

22. PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's quality control standards.[38] These standards require that a registered firm have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice.[39] PCAOB quality control standards provide that a registered firm should establish policies and procedures "to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality."[40] Such policies should "encompass all phases of the design and execution of the engagement."[41] In addition, "[t]o the extent appropriate and as required by applicable professional standards, these policies and procedures should cover planning, performing, supervising, reviewing, documenting, and communicating the results of each engagement."[42]

23. PKFOD failed to establish policies and procedures sufficient to provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by its engagement personnel met applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality. PKFOD supplemented a third-party audit methodology with Firm-developed practice aids but failed to adequately evaluate whether the resulting methodology and related practice aids provided Firm personnel with sufficient guidance on the requirements for testing ITGCs or whether the Firm needed to supplement its methodology with additional guidance and templates to facilitate engagement teams' compliance with auditing standards. Moreover, the Firm failed to require the use and partner review of certain Firm-developed practice aids on its integrated audits, including practice aids related to testing ICFR.

24. In performing the Audits, the engagement teams relied on a combination of third-party practice aids, Firm-developed practice aids, and "unwritten policies" to provide the necessary guidance to its personnel. However, the aids used failed to provide guidance or establish procedures for testing ITGCs. In addition, the Firm's "unwritten policies" were not sufficiently communicated to Firm personnel. As a result, neither the IT audit personnel nor other engagement team members understood how to properly test ITGCs, and document such testing.

25. Moreover, the engagement partners failed to properly supervise the work of the IT audit personnel. The engagement partners on the Audits did not provide the IT audit personnel with instructions or review their work as required under AS 1201, Supervision of an Audit Engagement.[43] Rather, the engagement partners simply outsourced the ITGC testing to the IT audit personnel. As a result, both engagement partners failed to identify or evaluate the potential control deficiencies identified by the IT audit personnel that were documented in the work papers.

26. At the time of the Audits, the Firm relied primarily on third-party checklists without tailoring or providing supplemental guidance on how to supervise, or the importance of supervising, IT audit personnel involved in issuer audit engagements. The Firm also failed to tailor or provide supplemental guidance to engagement partners on its issuer audits, and thus failed to adequately communicate the responsibility of the engagement partner to supervise the work of IT audit personnel.[44] Therefore, the engagement partners' failures to supervise the IT audit personnel directly stemmed from defects in the Firm's system of quality control.[45]

27. In addition, a Firm worksheet created to assist engagement personnel with complying with AS 2401 was not designed effectively. Specifically, engagement teams were not required to use the worksheet and those that used the worksheet were permitted to modify the worksheet to exclude procedures necessary to satisfy the requirements of AS 2401. As such, the design and implementation of this worksheet did not provide reasonable assurance that the Firm's personnel would comply with AS 2401. Moreover, the worksheet did not: (1) provide guidance on how to identify relevant characteristics of fraudulent journal entries, (2) instruct engagement teams to test the completeness and accuracy of the population of journal entries,

43 See AS 1201.05.

45 See QC § 20.18.

or (3) provide guidance on how or whether engagement teams should implement sampling on journal entry testing to address fraud risks.[46] Because of the design defects in the worksheet and the lack of sufficient guidance elsewhere in the Firm's audit methodology, use of the worksheet failed to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that engagement teams who completed it would comply with PCAOB auditing standards.[47]

ii. PKFOD's Quality Control Policies and Procedures Failed to Provide the Firm with Reasonable Assurance that Certain Personnel Assigned to Issuer Audits Participated in Training on PCAOB and SEC Requirements

28. PCAOB quality control standards provide that firms should establish policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that work is assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances and personnel participate in general and industry-specific continuing professional education that enable them to fulfill responsibilities assigned.[48]

29. Despite these requirements, during the periods under audit, PKFOD's policies and procedures failed to require personnel assigned to PCAOB audits, including its IT audit personnel, to participate in continuing professional education to ensure that such individuals received periodic technical training related to relevant PCAOB standards and SEC reporting requirements, rules, and regulations. Although the Firm provided annual PCAOB updates in January of each year, the Firm's quality control policies and procedures did not require personnel assigned to issuer audits, including IT audit personnel, to attend these updates or any other trainings on PCAOB standards. Further, none of the staff assigned to the audits were required to participate in training on auditing ICFR, including ITGCs, or how to supervise the work of IT audit personnel. Accordingly, the Firm's policies and procedures did not provide reasonable assurance that personnel assigned to issuer audits participated in continuing professional education to enable them to fulfill the responsibilities assigned to them or that work was being assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required to perform audits under PCAOB standards.

30. Because the Firm failed to ensure that its personnel received appropriate training on PCAOB and SEC requirements, it was unable to ensure that work was assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances and that personnel participated in general and industry-specific continuing professional education that enabled them to fulfill their assigned responsibilities. Accordingly, the Firm violated QC §§ 20.13.

iii. PKFOD Failed to Perform Sufficient and Appropriate Internal Monitoring to Ensure Its System of Quality Control Was Operating Effectively

31. PCAOB quality control standards provide that one required element of a quality control system is monitoring.[49] Monitoring involves an ongoing consideration and evaluation of the: (a) relevance and adequacy of the firm's policies and procedures; (b) appropriateness of the firm's guidance materials and any practice aids; (c) effectiveness of professional development activities; and (d) compliance with the firm's policies and procedures.[50] Monitoring procedures taken as a whole should enable the firm to obtain reasonable assurance that its system of quality control is effective.[51]

32. During 2019, PKFOD relied on retrospective monitoring activities performed by the Firm, including inspections and post-issuance reviews (together "Internal Inspections"), as its primary monitoring activities. However, the Firm failed to effectively design and implement those procedures. PKFOD's quality control policies and procedures required that the Firm perform Internal Inspections of a sample of audits annually from a cross-section of the Firm's engagements, including PCAOB engagements. The Firm's policies and procedures required that inspectors have "adequate technical knowledge and experience." Despite this requirement, the Firm failed to perform procedures to confirm that the individual assigned had the requisite knowledge, skills, and abilities to perform the Internal Inspections of PCAOB engagements including integrated audits.[52] The Firm's policies and procedures also required the use of monitoring checklists; however, the Firm failed to design or implement procedures to ensure that the individual performing the Internal Inspections selected appropriate monitoring checklist(s).

33. During its 2019 internal monitoring process, PKFOD's Quality Control Administration committee ("QCA") selected the Issuer A Audit for Internal Inspection. The Firm contracted with a retired audit partner from PKFOD's predecessor firm ("Individual A") to perform the inspection of Issuer A. Individual A was not a licensed CPA at the time of the inspection, had not been a member of a public accounting firm in nearly 20 years, and had never served as an engagement partner on or participated in an integrated audit performed under PCAOB standards. Despite not having adequate technical knowledge and experience to conduct an inspection of an integrated audit, Individual A was assigned to conduct the Internal Inspection of the Issuer A Audit.

34. At the outset, Individual A failed to identify that the inspection checklist used was for audits not subject to PCAOB jurisdiction. Individual A also incorrectly indicated on the checklist that the Issuer A Audit was a financial statement audit only. Moreover, Individual A's inspection was cursory at best. Out of the 190 substantive questions on the checklist, Individual A responded to only five and selected "N/A" to a question asking whether the auditor complied with the applicable independence and quality controls standards of the PCAOB. Significantly, Individual A did not identify any of the deficiencies in the Issuer A Audit discussed in this Order, including the engagement team's failure to: (1) test appropriately the design and operating effectiveness of ITGCs, (2) test the accuracy and completeness of company-produced information, and (3) perform sufficient and appropriate procedures to respond to fraud risks.

35. While the deficiencies in Individual A's inspection may have resulted from a lack of technical knowledge or experience in auditing under PCAOB standards, the Firm's quality control policies and procedures contributed to the deficiencies. For example, the third-party checklist the Firm required and used for all internal inspections noted in bold italics on the first page that it was intended for reviews of audits that were not subject to PCAOB standards. The checklist also provided a list of the types of audits that would fall within that category, which excluded issuer audits. Furthermore, the checklist mentioned a general audit engagement checklist and financial reporting and disclosure checklist that should be completed on all audits, as well as checklists for specialized industries and areas that should be completed if applicable; however, the Firm did not require Individual A to, nor did he, complete any additional checklists.

36. Moreover, the Firm's required checklist was deficient because it did not include questions addressing certain of the determinations the Firm's quality control policies and procedures identified as within the scope of an inspection, including whether the "[t]he Firm's guidance materials and practice aids are appropriate and checklists, forms, programs, or other documentation required by the Firm's QC System have been properly completed."

37. Finally, in its quality control policies and procedures, the Firm described a process for accumulating the results of the inspections and reporting those to its QCA and then ultimately to the partners and staff of the Firm. Yet that reporting process failed to note any of the deficiencies in Individual A's review.[53]

38. Because the Firm's defective internal inspections were its primary monitoring procedures, the Firm violated QC §§ 30.02-.03 and QC §20.20.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer.

In ordering sanctions, the Board took into account the Firm's extraordinary cooperation through its substantial assistance to the PCAOB's investigation and voluntary and timely remedial actions to address the violations described in this Order. Specifically, the Firm performed and provided to the PCAOB an analysis of the causes of the violations set forth in this Order; provided to the PCAOB information from a third-party consultant's review of the Firm's journal entry testing, testing of ICFR, and testing of the design and operating effectiveness of ITGCs related to certain of the Firm's issuer audits; and made initial revisions to its Quality Control Manual. In addition, the Firm provided continuing professional education to members of the Firm's PCAOB practice team and members of the Firm's IT team.

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), PKF O'Connor Davies LLP is hereby censured.

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $40,000 is imposed on the Firm. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of these civil money penalties will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Respondent shall pay this civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies PKFOD as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

C. Pursuant to Sections 105(c)(4)(C) and (G) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 5300(a)(3), (8) and (9), the Board orders that:

1. Self-Assessment

    a. PKFOD shall undertake a self-assessment of its system of quality control to ensure its current policies and procedures are compliant with PCAOB quality control standards.

2. Independent Consultant

    a. PKFOD shall retain and pay for an independent consultant not unacceptable to the PCAOB staff who has the experience with, and is knowledgeable concerning, PCAOB quality control and auditing standards ("Independent Consultant") to review PKFOD's system of quality control applicable to audits and reviews conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards. Within thirty days after the entry of this Order, PKFOD shall submit to the PCAOB staff a proposal setting forth the identity, qualifications, and proposed terms of retention of the Independent Consultant.

    b. To ensure the independence of the Independent Consultant, PKFOD: (i) shall not have the authority to terminate the Independent Consultant or substitute another independent consultant for the initial Independent Consultant, without the prior written approval of the PCAOB staff; (ii) shall compensate the Independent Consultant and persons engaged to assist the Independent Consultant for services rendered pursuant to this Order at their reasonable and customary rates.

    c. PKFOD shall cooperate fully with the Independent Consultant and shall provide reasonable access to its personnel, information, and records as the Independent Consultant may reasonably request for the Independent Consultant's review, evaluation, and reports.

d. If PKFOD, despite its best, good faith efforts, is unable to identify an Independent Consultant candidate that meets all of the above-listed criteria, it may seek approval from the PCAOB staff of alternative candidates or alternative terms that PKFOD believes to be otherwise suitable.

e. Within 90 days of this Order, PKFOD will review, evaluate, and implement, under the supervision of the Independent Consultant, any necessary enhancements to PKFOD's quality control policies and procedures applicable to audits and reviews conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards. If, as a result of that review and evaluation, it appears to the Independent Consultant that any further enhancements to the system of quality control are necessary, it shall recommend such enhancements to PKFOD.

f. Within 180 days of this Order, PKFOD shall (1) implement any recommendations received from the Independent Consultant, pursuant to Paragraph IV.C.2.e, and (2) require the Independent Consultant to review a sample of the Firm's most recent integrated audits to ensure those audits comply with PCAOB auditing standards and that those integrated audits were conducted in accordance with PCAOB quality control standards and the Firm's revised Quality Control Manual. If PKFOD does not implement recommendations received from the Independent Consultant pursuant to Paragraph IV.C.2.e, it shall communicate to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations the recommendations of the Independent Consultant it did not implement and the reasons for doing so.

3. Firm Certification

a. Within 270 days of the date of this Order, PKFOD shall certify in writing to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations, PCAOB, 1666 K Street N.W., Washington, DC 20006, the Firm's compliance with the above paragraphs. The certification shall identify the undertakings, provide written evidence of compliance in the form of a narrative, and be supported by exhibits sufficient to demonstrate compliance. The certification shall include a description of the specific enhancements implemented to PKFOD's system of quality control since the time of the conduct described in this Order. PKFOD shall also submit such additional evidence of and information concerning as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request.

b. For good cause shown, the PCAOB staff may extend any of the procedural dates relating to these undertakings. Deadlines for procedural dates shall be counted in calendar days, except that if the last day falls on a weekend or federal holiday, the next business day shall be considered the last day.

c. PKFOD understands that the failure to satisfy these undertakings may constitute a violation of PCAOB Rule 5000 that could provide a basis for the imposition of additional sanctions in a subsequent disciplinary proceeding.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-002

February 24, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is imposing sanctions upon PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP ("PwC Canada," the "Firm," or "Respondent"). The Board is:

(1) censuring the Firm;

(2) imposing a $750,000 civil money penalty on the Firm; and

(3) requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial actions as described in Section IV of this Order.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that PwC Canada violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards over several years in connection with the Firm's internal training program.

In ordering these sanctions, the Board took into account the Firm's extraordinary cooperation in this matter, including self-reporting and remedial actions, as described in more detail below.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP is an unincorporated partnership in Canada and is headquartered in Toronto, Ontario. It is a member firm of the PricewaterhouseCoopers International Limited global network of firms ("PwC Global"). At all relevant times, the Firm was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. During the period covered by this Order, the Firm served as the principal auditor for over 55 issuer audit clients. Additionally, at all relevant times, the Firm performed audit work that other PCAOB-registered firms, including member firms of PwC Global, used or relied on in issuing audit reports for their issuer clients.

B. Summary

2. From at least 2016 until early 2020, PwC Canada violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards related to integrity and personnel management by failing to establish appropriate policies and procedures for administering and overseeing internal training tests, including tests designed to help the Firm's audit professionals satisfy the requirements for maintaining their accounting certifications. Those quality control failures prevented the Firm from identifying that more than 1,200 Firm professionals were involved in improper answer sharing—either by providing or receiving answers—in connection with tests for mandatory internal training courses covering topics that included auditing, accounting, and professional independence. More than 1,100 of these professionals were from the Firm's Assurance practice.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

3. After discovering the training-related misconduct in January 2020, PwC Canada reported the matter to the PCAOB and began implementing remedial policies and procedures.

C. PwC Canada Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

i. Applicable PCAOB Rules and Quality Control Standards

4. PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm comply with the Board's quality control standards,[2] which provide that a registered firm "shall have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice."[3]

5. As part of a firm's system of quality control, "[p]olicies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that personnel . . . perform all professional responsibilities with integrity."[4] In addition, PCAOB quality control standards related to personnel management state that "policies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that . . . [w]ork is assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances."[5] Moreover, "policies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that . . . [p]ersonnel participate in general and industry-specific continuing professional education and other professional development activities that enable them to fulfill responsibilities assigned, and satisfy applicable continuing professional education requirements of . . . regulatory agencies."[6]

6. PCAOB quality control standards recognize that "[t]he elements of quality control are interrelated,"[7] and that monitoring procedures are necessary "to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the policies and procedures related to each of the other elements of quality control are suitably designed and are being effectively applied."[8] Under PCAOB standards, monitoring involves an ongoing consideration and evaluation of, among other things, the effectiveness of professional development activities and compliance with the firm's policies and procedures.[9]

ii. Training Requirements for PwC Canada Personnel

7. As part of PwC Canada's personnel management system, the Firm administers an internal training program for all of its professionals. The Firm has designed its training program to serve multiple purposes, including to provide Firm personnel with technical instruction, to further their professional development, and to satisfy some of the continuing professional education requirements imposed by the accountancy boards that grant CPA certifications to the Firm's auditors. The Firm's training requirements vary by each professional's position, role, and industry practice area, and are intended to be relevant to, among other things, the independence of its personnel, the audit work they perform, and the integrity with which they carry out their professional responsibilities. The Firm's internal training often includes a testing component.

8. Since at least 2016, the Firm has utilized an online platform to offer training to its personnel. The platform enables the Firm to deliver, track, and record completion of mandatory training and testing. The platform records the dates and times when personnel access and complete mandatory training and testing. For training courses with a testing component, the Firm does not credit personnel with completing the training until they satisfactorily pass the related test.

9. Since at least 2016, the Firm has required all personnel to take certain online courses, including courses containing content regarding professional independence and performing professional responsibilities with integrity. These courses include a testing component at the end. During the same period, the Firm has also administered a number of online courses related to auditing and accounting. The particular courses the Firm's auditors must take vary based on their experience levels. Many of these audit-related courses include a testing component and are mandatory for the Firm's audit personnel.

iii. Failures by PwC Canada to Establish Adequate Quality Control Policies and Procedures Related to Integrity and Personnel Management

10. Between 2016 and early 2020, PwC Canada had in place certain quality control policies and procedures intended to address integrity and personnel management. None of those policies and procedures, however, were designed to provide reasonable assurance that Firm personnel acted with integrity when taking internal training tests. In fact, on only one occasion between 2016 and early 2020 did the Firm formally advise its Assurance personnel that they should perform training tests on their own. During this time period, the Firm also employed certain monitoring procedures related to internal training, but those procedures were limited to tracking completion of courses and related tests. The monitoring procedures were not designed to detect other compliance issues, such as answer sharing.

11. As described below, these policies and procedures were inadequate to prevent or detect the extensive answer sharing on training tests that occurred among Firm personnel over multiple years.

iv. Widespread Sharing of Answers to Training Tests at PwC Canada

12. From at least 2016 to early 2020, more than 1,200 PwC Canada personnel were involved in improper answer sharing related to training tests. Firm personnel primarily shared answers through use of several shared drives that professionals had created on the Firm's computer network (the "Shared Drives"), and on which professionals had posted the answers for others to view and provide supplemental answers. In addition, individuals shared answers by sending emails with attached documents containing answers to training test questions, by providing answers in hard copy documents, or by discussing answers when taking tests in the presence of others.

13. Instances of improper answer sharing primarily occurred in connection with tests that were a part of the Firm's mandatory Assurance training. The Shared Drives contained answers for at least 46 of the Firm's approximately 55 mandatory Assurance tests, as well as answers for some mandatory Firm-wide tests containing content concerning professional integrity and professional independence.

14. Improper sharing of training test answers occurred among junior staff, managers, directors, and partners at the Firm. After Firm leadership learned of the practice, it conducted an internal investigation. The Firm's investigation revealed that the misconduct was widespread within the Firm's audit practice, including among those who performed work on audits governed by PCAOB standards. At least 1,100 professionals in the Firm's Assurance practice were involved in answer sharing.

15. As illustrated by the misconduct described above, from 2016 to early 2020, PwC Canada failed to establish policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that (1) Firm personnel performed all professional responsibilities with integrity; (2) personnel to whom work was assigned had the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances; and (3) personnel participated in general and industry-specific continuing professional education that enabled them to fulfill responsibilities assigned and satisfy applicable continuing professional education requirements of regulatory agencies. Accordingly, the Firm violated PCAOB quality control policies related to integrity and personnel management.[10]

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer.

In ordering sanctions, the Board took into account the Firm's extraordinary cooperation in this matter.[11] The Firm voluntarily self-reported the matter to PCAOB staff after learning about the misconduct. Additionally, the Firm promptly instituted remedial measures, including conducting periodic searches across certain Firm systems to identify improper answer sharing, and requiring personnel to re-take certain training and testing. Absent the Firm's extraordinary cooperation, the civil money penalty imposed would have been significantly larger, and the Board may have imposed additional sanctions.

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), the Board imposes a civil money penalty of $750,000 on PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP shall pay this civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service postal money order, certified check, bank cashier's check, or bank money order (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board; (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006; and (c) submitted under a cover letter which identifies PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as the Respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB Release Number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W.

Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006; and

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP is required:

1. Within 90 days of the entry of this Order, to establish, revise, or supplement, as necessary, policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that (a) personnel perform all internal training and tests associated with such training with integrity; (b) personnel to whom work has been assigned have the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances; (c) personnel participate in general and industry-specific continuing professional education that enable them to fulfill responsibilities assigned and satisfy applicable continuing professional education requirements of regulatory agencies; and (d) the above-described policies and procedures are suitably designed and are being effectively applied.

2. Within 120 days of the entry of this Order, to provide a certification, signed by its CEO, to the Director of the PCAOB's Division of Enforcement and Investigations, stating that the Firm has complied with paragraph IV.C.1. above. The certification shall identify the actions undertaken to satisfy the conditions specified above (including any remedial actions taken prior to the date of this Order), provide written evidence of compliance in the form of a narrative, and be supported by exhibits sufficient to demonstrate compliance. PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP shall also submit such additional evidence of, and information concerning, compliance as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request.

In the Matter of BMKR LLP and Joseph Mortimer, CPA,

Respondents.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-003

February 24, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) revoking the registration of BMKR LLP ("BMKR" or the "Firm"), a registered public accounting firm;[1]

(2) imposing a $20,000 civil money penalty on BMKR;

(3) barring Joseph Mortimer ("Mortimer") from being associated with a registered public accounting firm;[2] and

(4) imposing a $10,000 civil money penalty on Mortimer.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on BMKR and Mortimer (collectively, "Respondents") on the basis of its findings that: (a) Respondents violated PCAOB rules and auditing standards in connection with the audits of two issuers; (b) BMKR violated PCAOB rules

[1] BMKR may reapply for registration after two years from the date of this Order.

[2] Mortimer may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order.

and quality control standards; and (c) Mortimer violated PCAOB Rule 3502 by directly and substantially contributing to BMKR's violations of PCAOB rules and quality control standards.[3]

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have submitted Offers of Settlement ("Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[4]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[5]

A. Respondents

1. BMKR LLP is a limited liability partnership organized under the laws of the State of New York with headquarters in Hauppauge, New York. The Firm was, at all relevant times,

[4] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[5] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

licensed in the state of New York (License No. 058798). The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the PCAOB pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

2. Joseph Mortimer is a partner of the Firm. He is a certified public accountant licensed by the State of New York (License No. 055916). Mortimer is, and at all relevant times was, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Issuers

3. Issuer A is, and at all relevant times was, a Florida corporation headquartered in Hicksville, New York. Its public filings disclosed that it develops and sells products containing Cannabidiol, produces hemp biomass, licenses medical devices, and sells non-CBD products such as sunscreen and lip balm. At all relevant times, Issuer A was an issuer as defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

4. Issuer B was, at all relevant times, a Nevada corporation headquartered in Mississauga, Ontario. Its public filings disclosed that it manages e-commerce transportation and logistics for third parties. At all relevant times, Issuer B was an issuer as defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

5. This matter concerns Respondents' violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the audits of Issuer A for the fiscal year ended ("FYE") December 31, 2019, and Issuer B for the FYE July 31, 2019 (the "2019 Audits"). Mortimer, as the only Firm partner performing issuer audits at the time, led the Firm's issuer audit practice and served as engagement partner on the 2019 Audits. As detailed below, Respondents violated PCAOB rules and standards by failing to: (1) properly evaluate whether the issuers' accounting for certain significant transactions was in conformity with U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles ("GAAP") and (2) perform any testing of certain equity transactions.

6. This matter also concerns the Firm's violations of PCAOB rules and quality control standards between 2016 and 2019, and Mortimer's direct and substantial contribution to certain of those violations. Specifically, the Firm failed to: (1) maintain a system of quality control sufficient to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that the engagement teams performed issuer audits in accordance with applicable professional standards and regulatory requirements; and (2) establish policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its quality control policies and procedures were suitably designed and were being effectively applied.

D. Respondents Violated PCAOB Rules and Auditing Standards in Connection with the 2019 Audits

7. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[6] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements only when the auditor has conducted an audit in accordance with PCAOB standards and concludes that the financial statements, taken as a whole, are presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework.[7] Among other things, PCAOB standards require an auditor to exercise due professional care in the planning and performance of the audit and the preparation of the report, exercise professional skepticism, and plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the auditor's opinion.[8]

8. PCAOB standards further require that auditors evaluate whether the financial statements contain the information essential for a fair presentation of the financial statements in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework.[9] In addition, PCAOB standards require that the auditor evaluate whether the fair value measurements and disclosures in the financial statements are in conformity with GAAP.[10]

i. Audit of Issuer A's 2019 Financial Statements

9. The Firm issued an audit report dated March 26, 2020, containing an unqualified audit opinion on Issuer A's financial statements for the FYE December 31, 2019. Mortimer, as the engagement partner, authorized the Firm's issuance of the audit report, which was included in Issuer A's Form 10-K filed with the Commission on April 2, 2020.

10. In its Form 10-K, Issuer A reported net intangible assets, total assets, revenues, and net loss of approximately $1.1 million, $6.9 million, $2.3 million, and $4.6 million, respectively. It also disclosed that in January 2019, it purchased technology from a company in exchange for 7.5 million shares of Issuer A's common stock. The shares were issued to the owner of the company and valued at $131,625, reflecting the book value of those shares. Issuer A recorded $131,625 of intangible assets in its financial statements.

11. During the 2019 audit, Respondents failed to evaluate whether Issuer A's accounting for the acquired technology was recorded in conformity with GAAP. GAAP requires that assets acquired be measured at either the fair value of the consideration given or the fair value of the assets acquired, whichever is more clearly evident.[11] Respondents obtained the relevant agreement and agreed the purchase price to that agreement. In addition, Respondents determined that the fair value of the common stock issued was $510,000, a difference of $378,375 from book value. Respondents failed, however, to evaluate whether the assets acquired, recorded by Issuer A at the book value of the shares, were accounted for in conformity with GAAP.[12]

12. In its Form 10-K, Issuer A also disclosed that in December 2019, it acquired 51% of the issued and outstanding equity interest of a business in exchange for 37.5 million shares of common stock. Although Issuer A acquired 51% of the outstanding equity, it recorded only inventory, totaling $487,500, related to this acquisition in its 2019 financial statements. In addition, the acquisition agreement required that if the 37.5 million shares issued were valued at less than $1 million, Issuer A would issue additional shares to ensure that the total value of the shares issued equaled $1 million.

13. During the 2019 audit, Respondents failed to evaluate whether Issuer A's accounting for the acquisition was recorded in conformity with GAAP. Generally, GAAP requires that an acquisition be treated as a business combination when the acquirer obtains control of the business.[13] If the acquisition is not determined to be a business combination, then it is recorded as an asset acquisition and the entity applies the acquisition method.[14] Although Respondents obtained the share purchase agreement and recalculated the value of inventory acquired, they failed to evaluate whether the acquisition, accounted for as a purchase of inventory and documented in the workpapers as "essentially purchas[ing] . . . inventory," was recorded in conformity with GAAP.[15]

14. In its Form 10-K, Issuer A disclosed that throughout the year it issued 17 million options of its common stock to a former officer and certain directors, which Issuer A valued in the aggregate at $381,000. Respondents assessed the combined risk of material misstatement as high for equity transactions. Nevertheless, other than obtaining management representations, Respondents failed to perform any audit procedures to test whether the issued stock options were properly valued and properly disclosed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[16]

15. Accordingly, Respondents violated AS 1015, AS 1105, AS 2301, AS 2502, and AS 2810 by failing to: (1) exercise due professional care and professional skepticism; (2) evaluate whether the financial statements were presented fairly and in conformity with GAAP; and (3) perform audit procedures to test stock options.

ii. Audit of Issuer B's 2019 Financial Statements

16. The Firm issued an audit report dated January 15, 2020, containing an unqualified audit opinion on Issuer B's financial statements for the FYE July 31, 2019. Mortimer, as the engagement partner, authorized the Firm's issuance of the audit report, which was included in Issuer B's Form 10-K filed with the Commission on January 16, 2020.

17. In its Form 10-K, Issuer B disclosed that it issued 8 million shares of Series D Preferred Stock, which Issuer B valued at approximately $8,000, recorded at par value.[17] Generally, GAAP requires that share-based payment transactions be measured based on the fair value of the equity instruments issued.[18] Although Respondents obtained the relevant agreement and recalculated the par value of the issued stock, they failed to evaluate whether Issuer B's accounting for the preferred stock was in conformity with GAAP.[19]

18. Accordingly, Respondents violated AS 1015 and AS 2810 by failing to: (1) exercise due professional care and professional skepticism; and (2) evaluate whether the financial statements were presented fairly and in conformity with GAAP.

19. On November 17, 2020, Issuer B disclosed in its Form 10-K for the FYE July 31, 2020, that it had restated its financial statements for FYE July 31, 2019 "to correct the valuation of shares issued for services," after having determined that the shares should have been recorded at fair value rather than par value. The restatement increased operating expenses and net loss by approximately $4.77 million.

E. The Firm Violated PCAOB Rules and Quality Control Standards

20. PCAOB rules and standards require that a registered firm have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice.[20] A firm's system of quality control encompasses the firm's organizational structure and the policies adopted and procedures established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance of complying with professional standards.[21] A firm's system of quality control should, among other things, include policies and procedures for engagement performance and monitoring.[22] Specifically, a firm should establish policies and procedures for engagement performance to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality.[23] A firm should also establish policies and procedures for monitoring to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its quality control policies and procedures are suitably designed and are being effectively applied.[24]

21. From 2016 through 2019, the Firm failed to establish and maintain policies and procedures that provided reasonable assurance that its personnel complied with applicable professional standards and regulatory requirements. Specifically, the Firm's quality control system failed to ensure, in multiple instances, that Firm personnel evaluated whether its issuer clients' financial statements were presented fairly and in conformity with GAAP. In addition, the Firm was aware of significant engagement deficiencies in its prior years' audits inspected by the PCAOB in 2016 and 2018, related to its testing of purchase accounting and equity transactions. During the 2016 inspection, the PCAOB inspectors notified the Firm of significant engagement deficiencies related to the engagement team's testing of, among other things, purchase accounting. During the 2018 inspection, the PCAOB inspectors notified the Firm of significant engagement deficiencies related to the engagement team's testing of, among other things, equity transactions. Despite knowing about significant engagement deficiencies regarding these issues, the Firm failed to effectively implement policies and procedures to provide it with reasonable assurance that its engagement personnel would comply with applicable professional standards in violation of QC § 20.

22. In addition, although the Firm's written policies in place during the 2019 Audits stated that an integral part of its monitoring process for its system of quality control would be annual internal inspections, since at least 2016, the Firm failed to undertake any internal inspections or other monitoring procedures with respect to its PCAOB issuer audits. As a result, the Firm violated QC §§ 20 and 30 by failing to have monitoring procedures to enable the Firm to obtain reasonable assurance that its system of quality control was effective.

F. Mortimer Directly and Substantially Contributed to BMKR's Quality Control Violations

23. PCAOB Rule 3502 states that "[a] person associated with a registered public accounting firm shall not take or omit to take an action knowing, or recklessly not knowing, that the act or omission would directly and substantially contribute to a violation by that registered public accounting firm of the Act, the Rules of the Board, the provisions of the securities laws relating to the preparation and issuance of audit reports and the obligations and liabilities of accountants with respect thereto, including the rules of the Commission issued under the Act, or professional standards."[25]

24. At the time of the 2016 and 2018 PCAOB inspections, Mortimer served as one of three partners at BMKR and, since September 2019, was responsible for overseeing the Firm's system of quality control. Mortimer also performed engagement quality reviews on the Firm's prior years' audits inspected by the PCAOB in 2016 and 2018. In addition, Mortimer served as the engagement partner on the 2019 Audits. In his management roles, Mortimer was responsible, at least in part, for the Firm's system of quality control, and was aware of the PCAOB inspection findings identifying deficiencies discussed above. Yet Mortimer knowingly failed to take appropriate actions to provide reasonable assurance that the Firm's policies and procedures were suitably designed and being effectively applied. Specifically, Mortimer, as the partner in charge of the Firm's system of quality control and the engagement partner on the 2019 Audits, was in a position to ensure that the Firm complied with PCAOB rules and standards.

25. As a result, Mortimer knew, or was reckless in not knowing, that his acts and omissions would directly and substantially contribute to the Firm's violations of PCAOB quality control standards in violation of Rule 3502.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(A) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(1), the registration of BMKR LLP is revoked;

B. After two years from the date of this Order, BMKR LLP may reapply for registration by filing an application pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2101;

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Joseph Mortimer is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[26]

D. After two years from the date of this Order, Joseph Mortimer may file a petition, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm; and

E. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $20,000 is imposed upon BMKR LLP, and a civil money penalty in the amount of $10,000 is imposed upon Joseph Mortimer. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of these civil money penalties will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Respondents shall pay the civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C.

[26] As a consequence of the bar, the provisions of Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act will apply with respect to Mortimer. Section 105(c)(7)(B) provides: "It shall be unlawful for any person that is suspended or barred from being associated with a registered public accounting firm under this subsection willfully to become or remain associated with any issuer, broker, or dealer in an accountancy or a financial management capacity, and for any issuer, broker, or dealer that knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of such suspension or bar, to permit such an association, without the consent of the Board or the Commission."

Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006. By consenting to this Order, Respondents acknowledge that a failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may alone be grounds to deny any petition to terminate a bar pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b) or a reapplication for registration pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2101.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Scott Marcello, CPA,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-004

April 5, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or PCAOB) is:

(1) censuring Scott Marcello, CPA ("Marcello" or "Respondent"); and

(2) imposing a civil money penalty of $100,000 on Marcello.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its finding that, pursuant to Section 105(c)(6) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), Marcello failed reasonably to supervise associated persons of KPMG LLP ("KPMG") who illegally obtained and used confidential PCAOB information in violation of PCAOB rules and provisions of the securities laws related to the preparation and issuance of audit reports and the obligations and liabilities of accountants, including Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") rules.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(2) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. Scott Marcello is a certified public accountant licensed in the states of Florida (license no. AC17907 (active)), Connecticut (license no. CPAL.0010221(inactive)), and New York (license no. 087367 (inactive)). Marcello served as the Vice Chair of Audit for KPMG from July 2015 until April 2017 and, at all relevant times, was an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). Marcello was separated from KPMG in April 2017.

B. Summary

2. This matter concerns Marcello's failure reasonably to supervise senior members of KPMG's audit practice who unlawfully obtained and used confidential PCAOB information.[2] Under Marcello's supervision, several of his subordinates, including his direct report, KPMG's National Managing Partner for the Professional Practice Group, obtained confidential lists of the audits that the PCAOB would select for review during its 2016 and 2017 inspections of KPMG. Marcello's subordinates used the 2016 confidential information to enhance the audit documentation for the engagements on those lists in an attempt to improve KPMG's inspection results. The conduct of Marcello's subordinates violated PCAOB rules and securities laws related to the preparation and issuance of audit reports and the obligations and liabilities of accountants, including Commission rules.[3]

3. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(6) of the Act, Marcello, as a supervisory person of KPMG, failed to take sufficient and appropriate steps to reasonably supervise his subordinates with a view to preventing their misconduct.

C. Marcello Failed Reasonably to Supervise KPMG Personnel Who Obtained and Used PCAOB Confidential Information

i. Applicable Law

4. Section 105(c)(6) of the Act provides that the Board may impose sanctions on a supervisory person of a registered public accounting firm if the Board finds that an associated person of the firm commits certain violations (hereafter, "predicate violations") and "the firm has failed reasonably to supervise [that] associated person, either as required by the rules of the Board relating to auditing or quality control standards, or otherwise, with a view to preventing" such violations.

5. As Vice Chair of Audit, Marcello was in charge of KPMG's audit practice and he had responsibility for implementation and monitoring of KPMG's audit-related quality control policies and procedures. As a result, Marcello was a "supervisory person" of KPMG, as that term is used in Section 105(c)(6) of the Act. As described below, Marcello failed reasonably to supervise several KPMG associated persons who committed predicate violations.

ii. Background: PCAOB Inspection Process and KPMG's Inspection Results

6. The Act directs the Board to conduct a continuing program of inspections to assess registered public accounting firms' compliance with applicable laws, rules and professional standards during the period covered by an inspection.[4] Board inspections are designed to identify and address weaknesses and deficiencies related to how a firm conducts its issuer and broker-dealer audits. To achieve that goal, Board inspections include an evaluation of a firm's performance in selected audit engagements, as well as an evaluation of the design and operating effectiveness of the firm's quality control policies and procedures. Registered firms that issue audit reports for more than 100 issuers, including KPMG, are required to be inspected by the PCAOB annually.[5]

7. To ensure the integrity of the inspection process, the Board closely guards the confidentiality of its inspection selections. Typically, the Board's Division of Registration and Inspections ("DRI") does not reveal those selections to the firm under inspection until after the

"documentation completion dates" for the audits being reviewed and shortly before beginning its inspection field work procedures.[6]

8. Between 2010 and 2014, the rate of deficiencies that the Board identified in the KPMG audits that it reviewed increased each year. More specifically, the percentage of inspected audits in which the Board found that KPMG had failed to obtain sufficient evidence to support its audit opinions (or had failed to fulfill the objectives of its role when it was assigned work by another auditor) steadily increased, from 22 percent in the 2010 inspection to 54 percent in the 2014 inspection.

9. Many of the deficiencies the Board identified during its inspections concerned KPMG's audits of banks and, in particular, the KPMG engagement teams' evaluation of allowances, i.e., reserves, that KPMG's banking clients had recorded for potential losses in their loan portfolios.

10. In light of this inspection history, KPMG determined to take various steps to attempt to improve its results in future PCAOB inspections. One of those steps was to recruit to the Firm personnel from DRI, including individuals who had participated in inspections of KPMG and had identified deficiencies in certain of the Firm's audit work. In May 2015, KPMG hired Brian Sweet as a partner. Immediately prior to joining KPMG, Sweet worked in DRI. While at the PCAOB, Sweet, who had experience auditing and inspecting the audits of banks, was part of the team that inspected KPMG.

iii. Predicate Violations by KPMG's Associated Persons

11. In July 2015, two months after Sweet joined KPMG, the Firm appointed Marcello as Vice Chair of Audit. In his role as Vice Chair, Marcello supervised KPMG's audit practice, which included the Department of Professional Practice ("DPP"), headed by David Middendorf.

12. DPP included an Inspections group responsible for overseeing KPMG's participation in PCAOB inspections. Thomas Whittle, who reported to Middendorf, headed this Inspections group. David Britt, another partner in KPMG's DPP and the co-leader of the Firm's Banking and Capital Markets group, reported to KPMG's Chief Auditor, who, in turn, reported to Middendorf.

[6] Under PCAOB standards, a "complete and final set of audit documentation should be assembled for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date (documentation completion date)." AS 1215.15, Audit Documentation.

13. When Sweet joined KPMG, he became part of DPP's Inspections group, reporting to Whittle. After several months at the Firm, Sweet recruited Cynthia Holder, a former colleague from the PCAOB, to join him in KPMG's Inspections group.

14. Between 2015 and February 2017 (both before and after Marcello became Vice Chair of Audit), Middendorf, Whittle, Britt, Sweet, and Holder obtained and used confidential PCAOB inspection information to improve KPMG's inspection results, including for banking clients. The scheme included using an employee at the PCAOB to provide confidential lists of PCAOB inspection selections and inspection focus areas so that KPMG could target resources to those audits in advance of PCAOB inspections.

15. In March 2016, Holder obtained from a PCAOB inspector, Jeffrey Wada, a list of several KPMG issuer clients, mostly banks, whose audits the PCAOB intended to review as part of its 2016 inspection of the Firm (the "2016 Inspections List"). Holder shared the 2016 Inspection List with Sweet, who, in turn, informed Middendorf, Whittle, and Britt of it.

16. Upon receiving that confidential information, Middendorf, Whittle, and Britt instructed Sweet and others to perform examinations of the audit work papers for seven banking clients on the 2016 Inspections List outside of KPMG's normal processes. The reviews consisted of partners outside of the engagement teams re-reviewing the audit work papers of the seven banking clients after KPMG's audit reports had been issued for those clients, but before the respective documentation completion dates for the audits. The re-reviews uncovered problems with audit documentation as well as concerns about substantive audit issues, which Middendorf, Whittle, and the others attempted to have addressed in hopes of improving KPMG's inspection results.

17. In early February 2017, Holder again received from Wada a confidential list, this time the entire list, of the KPMG audits that the PCAOB intended to review as part of its 2017 inspection of the Firm (the "2017 Inspections List"). Holder shared the 2017 Inspections List with Sweet, who promptly informed Middendorf, Whittle, and Britt of it.

18. Before the confidential information from the 2017 Inspections List could be used, one of the engagement partners, who had been informed by Sweet that the PCAOB was planning to review her audit, recognized that prior knowledge that the PCAOB would inspect the audit was confidential information that KPMG should not have. The partner then contacted a supervisor, who in turn escalated the matter. Ultimately, KPMG's Office of General Counsel was informed and began an internal investigation.

19. As a result of the scheme to obtain and use confidential information for KPMG's benefit, Middendorf, Whittle, Britt, Sweet, and Holder, all violated, among other provisions, PCAOB Rule 3500T, Interim Ethics and Independence Standards.[7]

20. KPMG failed to adequately supervise Middendorf, Whittle, Britt, Sweet, and Holder as required by PCAOB quality control standards. Indeed, KPMG failed to implement and monitor sufficient policies and procedures to provide "reasonable assurance that . . . personnel . . . perform all professional responsibilities with integrity."[8]

iv. Marcello Failed to Reasonably Supervise

21. In his role as a supervisory person of KPMG, Marcello failed reasonably to supervise Middendorf and other subordinates with a view to preventing the predicate violations described above. Specifically, Marcello failed to take appropriate and immediate steps when he learned that KPMG had received confidential PCAOB inspection information in both 2016 and 2017. As a result, Marcello failed reasonably to supervise associated persons of KPMG under Section 105(c)(6) of the Act.

a. KPMG's Focus on Inspection Results

22. KPMG promoted Marcello to Vice Chair of Audit, in part, to improve its relationship with the PCAOB, including by reversing the trend of poor inspection results. After being appointed Vice Chair of Audit, Marcello met with the SEC and the PCAOB, both of which expressed disappointment with KPMG's inspection performance, specifically with respect to its audits of banks. Thereafter, Marcello's actions contributed to a culture in which KPMG personnel, including Marcello's subordinates, perceived that improving the Firm's inspection results took priority over improvements in overall audit quality.

b. 2016 Confidential Information

23. In March 2016, Marcello learned from Middendorf that KPMG had obtained advance information about certain PCAOB inspection selections of KPMG audits. Specifically, Marcello understood that KPMG had obtained information about PCAOB inspection selections or potential selections through Sweet's contacts at the PCAOB, which Marcello should have recognized was inappropriate. At the time, Marcello also understood that for all of the selections, which included the Firm's audits of several banks, the documentation completion date for the final assembly of work papers had not passed.[9] Marcello further understood that KPMG personnel intended to review the work papers for those audits and could enhance the documentation in an effort to improve inspection results.

24. Despite knowing that Middendorf and others had received advance notice of certain inspection selections and intended to review and could enhance work papers for those audits, Marcello failed to take appropriate action in response. Marcello did not report or escalate the matter, or instruct Middendorf and other subordinates to refrain from using the PCAOB's confidential information. In failing to take action in response to learning about the receipt and intended use of confidential information in 2016, Marcello missed an opportunity to change the tone at the top of the Firm, which could have helped prevent further violations.

c. 2017 Confidential Information

25. On February 7, 2017, Middendorf reported to Marcello that Sweet had obtained a list of 2017 PCAOB inspection selections. Marcello understood that the list had come from someone inside the PCAOB. Marcello, however, again failed to respond appropriately, including by failing to promptly report the receipt of that highly confidential information to anyone at KPMG or the PCAOB. Instead, over the course of a week, he and Middendorf had several conversations about the list and what to do with the information, though they agreed that no one should use the information while they decided what to do with it.

26. Marcello ultimately reported the receipt of the confidential information, but only after he learned of others' negative reaction to KPMG having the information. First, Marcello learned from Middendorf that KPMG's Chief Auditor had a very negative reaction to learning that Sweet had obtained the confidential inspection information. Second, Marcello also learned from Middendorf that a professional practice partner likewise had a very negative reaction to learning that KPMG had obtained confidential PCAOB inspection information. Finally, two partners who had learned of the issue from the professional practice partner informed Marcello of additional details concerning the situation and that they were troubled by KPMG having the list and would report the issue themselves if Marcello did not. After that meeting Marcello escalated the issue, reporting it to KPMG's in-house counsel on February 14, 2017, a week after learning of KPMG's receipt of the confidential 2017 Inspections List.

27. As a result of the actions and omissions described above, pursuant to Section 105(c)(6) of the Act, Marcello failed reasonably to supervise Middendorf and other subordinates, with a view to preventing the predicate violations that they committed.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Sections 105(c)(4)(E) and 105(c)(6) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Marcello is censured; and

B. Pursuant to Sections 105(c)(4)(D) and 105(c)(6) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $100,000 is imposed upon Marcello. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Marcello shall pay the civil money penalty within 10 days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, certified check, bank cashier's check, or bank money order (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board; (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006; and (c) submitted under a cover letter which identifies Scott Marcello as the respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to the Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of JLKZ CPA LLP and Jimmy P. Lee, CPA,

Respondents.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-005

April 19, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) Censuring JLKZ CPA LLP ("JLKZ") and Jimmy P. Lee, CPA ("Lee" and, together with JLKZ, "Respondents");

(2) Limiting JLKZ's activities, for a period of two years from the date of this Order, by prohibiting JLKZ from accepting engagements to prepare or issue audit reports for new clients that are issuers, brokers, or dealers, as those terms are defined by the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB rules; and

(3) Imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $50,000 jointly and severally on Respondents.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of Respondents' violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with JLKZ's issuance of audit reports for two issuers after the underlying audits had been performed by a separate public accounting firm that was not registered with the Board.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Respondents pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have each submitted an Offer of Settlement (collectively, the "Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Respondents each consent to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds[2] that:

A. Respondents

1. JLKZ CPA LLP is a partnership organized under the laws of the state of New York and headquartered in Flushing, New York. The firm registered with the Board, pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules, on November 28, 2018.

2. Jimmy P. Lee, CPA is a certified public accountant registered with the New York State Education Department (License No. 110032). Lee is the managing partner of JLKZ and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Other Relevant Entities

3. SBA Stone Forest CPA Co., Ltd. ("Stone Forest") is a limited liability corporation headquartered in Shanghai, China. Stone Forest is a public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(11) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(iii). Stone Forest is not now, and never has been, registered with the Board.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

4. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, a Cayman Islands corporation headquartered in Huli District, Xiamen, China. It was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

5. Issuer B was, at all relevant times, a Cayman Islands corporation headquartered in Flushing, New York. It was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

6. This case concerns Respondents' conduct in allowing audit reports to be issued by JLKZ after the underlying audits had been conducted by an unregistered public accounting firm.

7. Specifically, JLKZ entered into an arrangement with Stone Forest contemplating that Stone Forest personnel would act as the engagement partner and engagement quality review ("EQR") partner for certain issuer audits, and that Stone Forest would receive the majority of the audit fees for such audits.

8. The 2019 audits of Issuer A and Issuer B were conducted under that arrangement: Stone Forest personnel served as the engagement partner, EQR partner, and audit staff. JLKZ's involvement in these audits was limited to a review of certain work papers, primarily to check that they used JLKZ templates, and a draft of the financial statements by Lee near the end of the audit. Lee nonetheless agreed to the issuance of audit reports for Issuer A and Issuer B by JLKZ.

9. By issuing audit reports where it had not conducted the underlying audits, JLKZ violated AS 3101, The Auditor's Report on an Audit of Financial Statements When the Auditor Expresses an Unqualified Opinion. By taking or omitting to take actions knowing, or recklessly not knowing, that his acts and omissions would directly and substantially contribute to the Firm's AS 3101 violations, Lee violated PCAOB Rule 3502, Responsibility Not to Knowingly or Recklessly Contribute to Violations.

10. On or about February 1, 2019, Stone Forest submitted a registration application to the Board. On February 26, 2019, the Board requested that Stone Forest provide certain additional information. To date, Stone Forest has not responded to the Board's information request and is not registered with the Board.

11. On June 29, 2019, Stone Forest entered into a "Collaborative Professional Service Agreement" with JLKZ providing that, "[a]t each Party's sole discretion, a Party may periodically seek to engage the other Party to perform services (the 'Services') on projects (each a 'Project')." The Collaborative Professional Service Agreement was signed by Lee on behalf of JLKZ and by a director of Stone Forest ("Stone Forest Director") on behalf of Stone Forest.

12. The same day, the Stone Forest Director also entered into an agreement between himself and JLKZ. The agreement stated that the Stone Forest Director's relationship to JLKZ was "that of an independent contractor" and that "[n]othing in this agreement shall be construed to form an employer-employee relationship." The agreement further provided that "[e]ach party has no authority, right, or ability to bind or commit each other Party in any way."

13. Two weeks later, on July 11, 2019, a partner in Stone Forest ("Stone Forest Partner") likewise entered into an agreement with JLKZ, the terms of which were substantially the same as those of the Stone Forest Director's agreement with JLKZ. Lee signed both agreements on behalf of JLKZ.

14. On June 28, 2020, Stone Forest entered into an "Alliance and Joint Marketing Agreement" with JLKZ, which stated that the two firms would "enter[] into an alliance with each other . . . for the purposes of soliciting clients and prospects for both [Stone Forest] and JLKZ." Lee and the Stone Forest Partner signed this agreement on behalf of JLKZ and Stone Forest, respectively.

15. The Alliance and Joint Marketing Agreement provided that for PCAOB audit engagements "where [Stone Forest's] partner(s) shall be the engagement partner and engagement quality reviewer for the Engagements . . . [Stone Forest] shall retain 80% of the Client Fees" and "JLKZ must be the technical quality and/or firm quality control reviewer for the Engagements and [Stone Forest] shall pay to JLKZ 20% of the Client Fees."

16. The Alliance and Joint Marketing Agreement between JLKZ and Stone Forest further provided that "[e]ach party will be solely responsible to the client for their respective services rendered to the client. Delivery of services and invoicing will be processed independently and the parties covenant that to the extent practicable, to co-ordinate the delivery and completion of services."

17. The 2019 audits of Issuer A and Issuer B were performed pursuant to the above arrangement among JLKZ and Stone Forest, the Stone Forest Director, and the Stone Forest Partner.

E. Respondents Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

18. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[3]

i. JLKZ Issued Audit Reports for Issuer A and Issuer B Without Conducting an Audit in Accordance with PCAOB Standards

19. PCAOB standards provide that "[t]he auditor is in a position to express an unqualified opinion on the financial statements when the auditor conducted an audit in accordance with the standards of the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ('PCAOB') and concludes that the financial statements, taken as a whole, are presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework."[4]

20. Stone Forest's personnel planned, performed, and supervised the audits of Issuer A's and Issuer B's 2019 financial statements as of December 31, 2019. Despite Stone Forest's performance of the underlying audits, JLKZ issued an audit report on Issuer A's and Issuer B's 2019 financial statements.

21. Because Stone Forest, not JLKZ, performed the underlying audits, JLKZ was not in a position to express an opinion on Issuer A's or Issuer B's 2019 financial statements.[5] In doing so, JLKZ violated AS 3101.

a. The 2019 Audit of Issuer A

22. The Stone Forest Director obtained the 2019 Issuer A audit engagement after Issuer A's audit committee chairman, who had previously worked with the Stone Forest Director at an unrelated entity, approached the Stone Forest Director about the audit engagement opportunity.

23. The Stone Forest Director served as the engagement partner, and the Stone Forest Partner served as the EQR partner, for the Issuer A audit. As engagement partner, the Stone Forest Director supervised the planning and performance of the audit procedures and authorized the issuance of the audit report.

24. Stone Forest personnel acted as the audit staff for the Issuer A audit and performed the audit procedures.

25. Stone Forest billed the audit fees directly to, and was paid by, Issuer A.

26. Accordingly, Stone Forest and its personnel obtained, supervised, performed, and billed the client for the 2019 Issuer A audit engagement.

27. Near the end of the audit, and before the audit report was issued under JLKZ's name, Lee reviewed certain work papers, primarily to check that they used JLKZ templates, and a draft of the financial statements. He drafted a memorandum documenting certain questions he had in connection with his review.

28. Lee considered that the purpose of his review was to gain assurance that the Issuer A audit had been conducted in a manner that was consistent with JLKZ's quality control policies and procedures.

29. Lee's review was insufficient for JLKZ to conclude that it had performed the audit or to provide a reasonable basis for the firm to issue an opinion on the financial statements.[6]

30. Nonetheless, on May 11, 2020, JLKZ issued an audit report expressing an unqualified opinion on Issuer A's 2019 financial statements. Issuer A filed JLKZ's audit report with the Commission.

31. Because Stone Forest, not JLKZ, performed the 2019 Issuer A audit, JLKZ did not conduct an audit in accordance with the standards of the PCAOB.[7] By expressing an unqualified opinion on Issuer A's financial statements without having conducted an audit of those financial statements, JLKZ violated AS 3101.

b. The 2019 Audit of Issuer B

32. The Stone Forest Partner obtained the 2019 Issuer B audit engagement after a business contact who knew about the engagement opportunity approached him about it.

33. The Stone Forest Partner served as the engagement partner, and the Stone Forest Director served as the EQR partner, for the Issuer B audit. As engagement partner, the Stone Forest Partner supervised the planning and performance of the audit procedures and authorized the issuance of the audit report.

34. Stone Forest personnel acted as the audit staff for the Issuer B audit and performed the audit procedures.

35. Stone Forest billed the audit fees directly to, and was paid by, Issuer B.

36. Accordingly, Stone Forest and its personnel obtained, supervised, performed, and billed the client for the 2019 Issuer B audit engagement.

37. As with the Issuer A audit, Lee reviewed certain work papers, primarily to check that they used JLKZ templates, and a draft of the financial statements near the end of the Issuer B audit. Lee's review was insufficient for JLKZ to conclude that it had performed the audit or to provide a reasonable basis for the firm to issue an opinion on the financial statements.[8]

38. Nonetheless, on July 29, 2020, JLKZ issued an audit report expressing an unqualified opinion on Issuer B's 2019 financial statements. Issuer B filed JLKZ's audit report with the Commission.

39. Because Stone Forest, not JLKZ, performed the Issuer B audit, JLKZ did not conduct an audit in accordance with the standards of the PCAOB.[9] By expressing an unqualified opinion on Issuer B's financial statements without having conducted an audit of those financial statements, JLKZ violated AS 3101.

ii. Lee Substantially Contributed to JLKZ's Violations of AS 3101

40. PCAOB rules prohibit an associated person of a registered public accounting firm from taking or omitting to take an action knowing, or recklessly not knowing, that the act or omission would directly and substantially contribute to the firm's violation of PCAOB rules or professional standards.[10]

41. As JLKZ's managing partner, Lee was in a position to prevent the firm from issuing audit reports where it had not performed the underlying audits, but he failed to do so.

42. On behalf of JLKZ, Lee entered into agreements with Stone Forest and its personnel pursuant to which the two firms would "collaborate" in offering professional services to clients, with Stone Forest audit staff performing and supervising the audit procedures, and Stone Forest receiving 80% of the fees, for PCAOB audits.

43. Lee was further aware that, consistent with the agreements he had signed, the 2019 Issuer A and Issuer B audits were planned and conducted by Stone Forest personnel who served as the engagement partner and EQR partner for each audit.

44. Even though he knew, or was reckless in not knowing, that the 2019 Issuer A and Issuer B audits had been planned and performed by Stone Forest, not by JLKZ, Lee agreed to the issuance of the Issuer A and Issuer B audit reports in JLKZ's name. Accordingly, Lee directly and substantially contributed to JLKZ's violations of AS 3101, in violation of Rule 3502.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 5300(a)(5), JLKZ CPA LLP and Jimmy P. Lee, CPA are censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(C) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(3), JLKZ CPA LLP shall be prohibited, for a period of two years from the date of this Order, from accepting engagements to prepare or issue audit reports for new clients who are issuers, as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and [10] PCAOB Rule 3502.

PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii), as well as for new clients who are brokers or dealers, as those terms are defined by PCAOB Rules 1001(b)(iii) and 1001(d)(iii); and

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), the Board imposes a civil money penalty of $50,000 jointly and severally on JLKZ CPA LLP and Jimmy P. Lee. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Respondents shall pay this civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the entity or person as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of WWC, P.C.,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-006

April 19, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring WWC, P.C. ("WWC" or "Respondent");

(2) imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $50,000 on WWC; and

(3) requiring WWC to undertake and certify the completion of certain improvements to its system of quality control.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of WWC's conduct in connection with its use of audit work performed by WWC P.C. Limited ("WWC-Hong Kong"), a Hong Kong based affiliate of WWC that was not registered with the Board and played a substantial role in ten of WWC's issuer audits between 2017 and 2020. In addition, WWC failed to make timely and accurate Form AP and annual report filings. Specifically, the Board finds that WWC failed to reasonably supervise WWC-Hong Kong and failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Respondent pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rules 5200(a)(1) and (2).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, WWC has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of WWC's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. WWC, P.C. is a professional corporation organized under the laws of California and headquartered in San Mateo, California. At all relevant times, WWC was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

B. Other Relevant Entities

2. WWC P.C. Limited is a firm organized under the laws of, and headquartered in, Hong Kong. WWC-Hong Kong is owned by certain partners of WWC. At all relevant times, WWC-Hong Kong was a public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(11) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(iii), and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). WWC-Hong Kong is not now, and never has been, registered with the Board.

3. Issuers A through U were, at all relevant times, issuers as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). With respect to each of the audits of Issuers A through U referenced in this Order, WWC issued an audit report that the relevant issuer included in a filing with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission").

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to WWC's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

C. Summary

4. This matter concerns WWC's conduct in allowing its unregistered affiliate, WWC-Hong Kong, to play a substantial role in numerous issuer audits.

5. WWC was aware that WWC-Hong Kong was required to register with the Board before it played a substantial role in WWC's issuer audits.[2] A "substantial role" is defined in PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(ii) as, among other things, performing "material services" that a public accounting firm uses or relies on in issuing all or part of an audit report. "Material services" means "services, for which the engagement hours or fees constitute 20% or more of the total engagement hours or fees, respectively, provided by the principal auditor in connection with the issuance of all or part of its audit report."[3] Indeed, the WWC partners who owned WWC-Hong Kong sought to register WWC-Hong Kong with the Board, but were unable to do so as a result of WWC-Hong Kong's inability to provide certain required information.

6. WWC nonetheless entered into an arrangement with WWC-Hong Kong pursuant to which WWC-Hong Kong participated in WWC's issuer audits. WWC failed to take any steps to ensure that WWC-Hong Kong's participation was consistent with PCAOB registration requirements, that is, that it did not constitute a "substantial role" in those audits.

7. WWC-Hong Kong's participation exceeded the 20% of total hours threshold with respect to ten issuer audits over the course of three years, including one audit where WWC-Hong Kong incurred 88% of the total audit hours. Due to its failure to adequately plan and supervise WWC-Hong Kong's participation in these ten audits, WWC failed to reasonably

[2] Section 102(a) of the Act requires that an accounting firm must register with the Board "to prepare or issue, or to participate in the preparation or issuance of, any audit report with respect to any issuer, broker, or dealer." 15 U.S.C. § 7212(a). Section 106(a)(2) of the Act provides that "[t]he Board may, by rule, determine that a foreign public accounting firm (or a class of such firms) that does not issue audit reports nonetheless plays such a substantial role in the preparation and furnishing of such reports for particular issuers, brokers, or dealers, that it is necessary or appropriate, in light of the purposes of this Act and in the public interest or for the protection of investors, that such firm (or class of firms) should be treated as a public accounting firm (or firms) for purposes of registration under, and oversight by the Board in accordance with, this subchapter." 15 U.S.C. § 7216(a)(2). PCAOB Rule 2100, Registration Requirements for Public Accounting Firms, requires an accounting firm that "plays a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an audit report with respect to any issuer" to register with the Board. Thus, by virtue of Section 106(a)(2) and Rule 2100, Section 102(a) is applicable to foreign accounting firms that play a substantial role in an issuer audit.

[3] PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(ii) n.1.

supervise an associated person under the Act and failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards.[4]

8. In addition, WWC repeatedly failed to make required Form AP and annual report filings on a timely basis and failed to include all of the required information in those filings, in violation of PCAOB rules.

D. Background

9. In 2014, WWC-Hong Kong took steps to submit a registration application to the Board. However, WWC-Hong Kong did not complete the registration process after concluding that it would be unable to provide certain additional information necessary for the Board to take action on a registration application.[5] As a result, WWC-Hong Kong has remained unregistered and may not play a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an issuer audit report.

10. Because WWC-Hong Kong is owned entirely by partners of WWC, WWC was aware of WWC-Hong Kong's unregistered status.

11. WWC and WWC-Hong Kong entered into an agreement dated January 1, 2015. The agreement provided:

> [WWC] may from time-to-time request [WWC-Hong Kong] to render accounting, auditing, tax compliance and assurance services to the clients of [WWC]. . . . [WWC-Hong Kong] is responsible to provide personnel acceptable to [WWC] requirements to carry out procedures set forth by [WWC]. . . . [WWC-Hong Kong] will issue invoices on an engagement-by-engagement basis to [WWC] for services rendered and reasonably reimbursable expenses that are subject to the approval of [WWC].

No. 2010-007, at 3 (Oct. 7, 2010) (where a firm located in a jurisdiction where the Board has been unable to perform inspections submits a registration application, "the Board will ask the applicant to state its understanding of whether a PCAOB inspection of the firm would currently be allowed by local law or local authorities and, if the response is that the inspection would be allowed, to supply written confirmation of that point from the appropriate local regulatory authority").

12. Pursuant to the agreement between the two firms, WWC-Hong Kong participated in a number of WWC's issuer audits. For these audits, WWC personnel served as the engagement partner and engagement quality reviewer, while WWC-Hong Kong staff and a WWC-Hong Kong partner worked with WWC staff to perform the audit procedures. Per their agreement, WWC-Hong Kong invoiced WWC for the services it provided.

13. From 2017 through August 2019, WWC-Hong Kong exceeded the 20% of total hours threshold and therefore played a substantial role with respect to seven audits that WWC performed for six different issuers. As shown in the table below, WWC-Hong Kong's participation in these audits ranged from 21% to 88% of the total audit hours.

Audit	Percent of Total Audit Hours Incurred by WWC-Hong Kong
Audit of Issuer A's December 31, 2017 financial statements	69%
Audit of Issuer B's December 31, 2017 financial statements	65%
Audit of Issuer B's December 31, 2018 financial statements	88%
Audit of Issuer C's December 31, 2018 financial statements	29%
Audit of Issuer D's December 31, 2018 financial statements	21%
Audit of Issuer E's December 31, 2018 financial statements	42%
Audit of Issuer F's March 31, 2019 financial statements	30%

14. The Form AP Instructions for "Part IV – Responsibility for the Audit Is Not Divided" require that an auditor who uses an "other accounting firm"[6] that incurs more than 5% of the total hours "[s]tate the legal name of other accounting firms and the extent of participation in the audit" in its Form AP. Nonetheless, WWC did not report WWC-Hong Kong's participation in its Form AP filings for any of the seven audits listed in paragraph 13 above.

[6] See Form AP – Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants, General Instruction No. 2 ("'other accounting firm' means (i) a registered public accounting firm other than the Firm; or (ii) any other person or entity that opines on the compliance of any entity's financial statements with an applicable financial reporting framework").

15. WWC omitted WWC-Hong Kong from its Form AP filings because, as the firm subsequently expressed, it understood that WWC-Hong Kong's participation in WWC's issuer audits as an unregistered firm "may be construed as a violation" of PCAOB requirements.

16. In October 2019, the PCAOB's Division of Registration and Inspections performed an inspection of WWC. In January 2020, the PCAOB inspectors issued a comment form criticizing, among other things, WWC's failure to report the participation of WWC-Hong Kong in certain Form AP filings and WWC's failure to make certain Form AP filings on a timely basis.

17. In response to the inspection comment, WWC represented to the inspectors that it would "continue to push forward" WWC-Hong Kong's registration application. Nonetheless, WWC subsequently continued to use WWC-Hong Kong in a substantial role on issuer audits while WWC-Hong Kong remained unregistered.

18. Specifically, as shown in the table below, WWC-Hong Kong exceeded the 20% of total hours substantial role threshold during three audits completed after WWC received the inspection comment form.

Audit	Percent of Total Audit Hours Incurred by WWC-Hong Kong
Audit of Issuer C's December 31, 2019 financial statements	28%
Audit of Issuer D's December 31, 2019 financial statements	47%
Audit of Issuer E's December 31, 2019 financial statements	28%

19. WWC made Form AP filings disclosing WWC-Hong Kong's participation in the 2019 audits of Issuers C and D, but its Form AP filing for the 2019 audit of Issuer E failed to disclose WWC-Hong Kong's participation in that audit.

20. With respect to the audits listed in the tables in paragraphs 13 and 18 above (the "Substantial Role Audits"), WWC failed to take adequate steps to plan or supervise the audits in a manner that would ensure that WWC-Hong Kong's audit hours did not exceed the substantial role threshold. For example, WWC neither documented any consideration of the 20% substantial role threshold nor performed any analysis of whether the hours expected to be incurred by WWC-Hong Kong would exceed that threshold.

E. WWC Failed to Reasonably Supervise WWC-Hong Kong and Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

21. During the Substantial Role Audits, WWC-Hong Kong incurred more than 20% of the total engagement hours. Accordingly, WWC-Hong Kong played a substantial role in each of these audits without being registered with the Board, in violation of Section 102(a) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 2100.

22. WWC failed to reasonably supervise WWC-Hong Kong's participation in the Substantial Role Audits in a manner designed to avoid violations of Section 102(a) and PCAOB Rule 2100, and WWC likewise failed to properly plan the Substantial Role Audits.

i. WWC Failed to Reasonably Supervise WWC-Hong Kong

23. Section 105(c)(6) of the Act provides that the Board may impose sanctions on a registered public accounting firm if the Board finds that (1) the firm has failed to reasonably supervise an associated person, either as required by the rules of the Board relating to auditing or quality control standards, or otherwise, with a view to preventing violations of the Act or the rules of the Board; and (2) such associated person commits a violation of the Act or Board rules.

24. Under Section 2(a)(9) of the Act, the term "person associated with a registered public accounting firm" includes "any . . . entity that, in connection with the preparation or issuance of any audit report—(i) shares in the profits of, or receives compensation in any other form from, that firm; or (ii) participates as agent or otherwise on behalf of such accounting firm in any activity of that firm." WWC-Hong Kong invoiced WWC for the services it provided in connection with the Substantial Role Audits. Thus, WWC-Hong Kong "receive[d] compensation" from WWC in connection with the preparation and issuance of WWC's audit reports. In addition, because it performed audit work at the direction, and under the supervision, of WWC, WWC-Hong Kong acted as an "entity that, in connection with the preparation or issuance of [WWC's] audit report[s,] . . . participate[d] as agent or otherwise on behalf of [WWC]." Accordingly, WWC-Hong Kong was an "associated person" of WWC during the Substantial Role Audits.

25. WWC had a responsibility to reasonably supervise its associated persons during its issuer audits. WWC knew that WWC-Hong Kong was unregistered and that its participation in issuer audits "may be construed as a violation" of PCAOB rules.

26. WWC failed to reasonably supervise WWC-Hong Kong during the Substantial Role Audits with a view to preventing violations of the registration requirements set forth in Section 102(a) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 2100. Rather, WWC allowed WWC-Hong Kong, while unregistered, to play a substantial role in those audits without performing an analysis of WWC-Hong Kong's participation or taking adequate steps to ensure that WWC-Hong Kong's participation would not constitute a substantial role.

27. Indeed, WWC allowed WWC-Hong Kong to play a substantial role in ten issuer audits—including three audits after the January 2020 PCAOB inspection comment form raised the issue of WWC-Hong Kong's unreported participation in WWC's audits, and after WWC's response to the comment form highlighted WWC-Hong Kong's unregistered status.

28. Because WWC-Hong Kong incurred more than 20% of the total audit hours during the Substantial Role Audits, it performed material services used by WWC in issuing WWC's audit reports. WWC-Hong Kong therefore violated Section 102(a) of the Act and Rule 2100 by playing a substantial role in the Substantial Role Audits without being registered with the Board.

29. Accordingly, WWC failed to reasonably supervise WWC-Hong Kong under Section 105(c)(6) of the Act.

ii. WWC Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

30. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[7]

31. PCAOB standards provide that, as part of audit planning, the auditor should establish an overall audit strategy.[8] The auditor should take into account "[t]he factors that are significant in directing the activities of the engagement team" and "[t]he nature, timing, and extent of resources necessary to perform the engagement."[9] PCAOB standards also require that "[d]ue professional care is to be exercised in the planning and performance of the audit and the preparation of the report."[10]

32. In establishing the overall audit strategy for the Substantial Role Audits, WWC failed to adequately take into account: (1) the fact that WWC-Hong Kong was an unregistered firm whose substantial role participation in issuer audits WWC knew "may be construed as a violation"; (2) the nature of the resources necessary to perform the audits, insofar as those resources included the involvement of an unregistered firm; and (3) for the three post-inspection Substantial Role Audits, the fact that a PCAOB inspection comment and the firm's own response had highlighted WWC-Hong Kong's unreported participation as an unregistered firm.[11] As a result of these failures, WWC did not engage in adequate planning to ensure that WWC-Hong Kong would not violate PCAOB registration requirements.

33. Accordingly, WWC violated AS 2101. WWC also violated AS 1015 by failing to exercise due professional care in planning the Substantial Role Audits.

F. WWC Violated PCAOB Rules Regarding Required Filings

i. WWC Failed to Make Timely and Complete Form AP Filings

34. PCAOB rules provide that, "[f]or each audit report it issues for an issuer, a registered public accounting firm must file with the Board a report on Form AP in accordance with the instructions to that form."[12] The Form AP Instructions for "Part IV – Responsibility for the Audit Is Not Divided" require that an auditor who uses another accounting firm that incurs more than 5% of the total hours "[s]tate the legal name of [the] other accounting firm[] and the extent of participation in the audit."

35. As discussed above, WWC failed to report WWC-Hong Kong's participation, which exceeded 5% of the total hours, in its Form AP filings with respect to eight of the Substantial Role Audits.

36. PCAOB rules further provide that a Form AP is timely filed if it "is filed by the 35th day after the date the audit report is first included in a document filed with the Commission."[13]

37. WWC failed to timely file a Form AP within 35 days of its audit report being included in a filing with the Commission with respect to sixteen audits—including three audit reports with respect to which the firm did not file a Form AP at all.

11 See AS 2101.05 ("Planning is not a discrete phase of an audit but, rather, a continual and iterative process that . . . continues until the completion of the current audit").

12 PCAOB Rule 3211(a), Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants.

13 PCAOB Rule 3211(b).

38. Specifically, prior to the 2019 PCAOB inspection, WWC failed to file a Form AP within 35 days of its audit report's inclusion in a filing with the Commission six times, as shown in the following table.

Audit	Days Elapsed Between Audit Report's Inclusion in a Filing with the Commission and WWC's Form AP Filing
Audit of Issuer G's December 31, 2016 financial statements	398 days
Audit of Issuer H's August 31, 2017 financial statements	55 days
Audit of Issuer I's March 31, 2018 financial statements	60 days
Audit of Issuer H's August 31, 2018 financial statements	133 days
Audit of Issuer C's December 31, 2018 financial statements	57 days
Audit of Issuer J's December 31, 2018 financial statements	47 days

39. As discussed above, the PCAOB inspection comment form issued to WWC in January 2020 criticized the firm's failure to make timely Form AP filings. Even after receiving this comment form, however, WWC's failure to make timely Form AP filings continued. As shown in the table below, WWC failed to file a Form AP within 35 days of its audit report's inclusion in a filing with the Commission with respect to ten post-inspection issuer audits.

Audit	Days Elapsed Between Audit Report's Inclusion in a Filing with the Commission and WWC's Form AP Filing
Audit of Issuer K's December 31, 2019 financial statements	Not filed
Audit of Issuer L's December 31, 2019 financial statements	Not filed
Audit of Issuer F's March 31, 2020 financial statements	50 days
Audit of Issuer C's December 31, 2020 financial statements	182 days
Audit of Issuer D's December 31, 2020 financial statements	47 days
Audit of Issuer E's December 31, 2020 financial statements	53 days
Audit of Issuer J's December 31, 2020 financial statements	Not filed
Audit of Issuer M's December 31, 2020 financial statements	48 days
Audit of Issuer N's December 31, 2020 financial statements	168 days
Audit of Issuer O's December 31, 2020 financial statements	145 days

40. Accordingly, WWC violated PCAOB Rule 3211.

ii. WWC Failed to Make Timely and Complete Annual Report Filings

41. PCAOB rules provide that "[e]ach registered public accounting firm must file with the Board an annual report on Form 2 by following the instructions to that form."[14] PCAOB rules also require that "[e]ach registered public accounting firm must file the annual report on Form 2 no later than June 30 of each year."[15] Item 4.1 of the Form 2 instructions require the reporting firm to provide "information concerning each issuer for which the Firm issued any audit report(s) during the reporting period."

14 PCAOB Rule 2200, Annual Report.

15 PCAOB Rule 2201, Time for Filing of Annual Report.

42. WWC filed its 2020 annual report with the Board on July 1, 2020. The 2020 annual report failed to include information relating to four audit reports WWC had issued during the reporting period: the audit reports for the firm's audits of (1) Issuer P's December 31, 2018 financial statements; (2) Issuer Q's June 30, 2019 financial statements; (3) Issuer R's December 31, 2019 financial statements; and (4) Issuer S's December 31, 2019 financial statements.

43. WWC filed its 2021 annual report with the Board on September 16, 2021. The 2021 annual report failed to include information relating to eight audit reports WWC had issued during the reporting period: the audit reports for the firm's audits of (1) Issuer C's December 31, 2019 financial statements; (2) Issuer D's December 31, 2019 financial statements; (3) Issuer E's December 31, 2019 financial statements; (4) Issuer K's December 31, 2019 financial statements; (5) Issuer L's December 31, 2019 financial statements; (6) Issuer T's December 31, 2019 financial statements; (7) Issuer F's March 31, 2020 financial statements; and (8) Issuer U's March 31, 2020 financial statements.

44. Accordingly, WWC failed to include in its 2020 and 2021 annual report filings information concerning each issuer for which the firm issued an audit report during the respective reporting periods, and WWC filed its 2021 annual report two and a half months after the June 30, 2021 filing deadline. By this conduct, WWC violated PCAOB Rules 2200 and 2201.

G. WWC Violated PCAOB Quality Control Standards

45. PCAOB rules require that a registered firm comply with PCAOB quality control standards, which require that a firm "shall have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice" and describe "elements of quality control and other matters essential to the effective design, implementation, and maintenance of the system."[16] As part of this requirement, "[p]olicies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality."[17]

46. WWC failed to establish adequate policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel met applicable regulatory requirements when using other accounting firms. WWC's lack of adequate policies and procedures related to the use of other accounting firms resulted in WWC-Hong Kong's participation in the Substantial Role Audits exceeding the 20% of total hours threshold, despite WWC's knowledge that WWC-Hong Kong's participation in the audits was inconsistent with PCAOB registration requirements.

47. In addition, WWC's repeated Form AP and annual report violations—which ranged from the omission of required information to late filings and failures to file at all—demonstrate that the firm lacked sufficient policies and procedures to ensure that these forms would be accurate and timely filed, in compliance with applicable regulatory requirements.

48. Accordingly, WWC failed to comply with QC § 20.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 5300(a)(5), WWC, P.C. is censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), the Board imposes a civil money penalty of $50,000 on WWC, P.C. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Respondent shall pay this civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the entity or person as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006.

C. Pursuant to Sections 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 5300(a)(9), the Board orders that:

1. Review by WWC, P.C. Within six months of the date of this Order, WWC, P.C. shall review and evaluate its quality control policies and procedures to assess whether those policies and procedures provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its personnel and other associated persons comply with applicable regulatory requirements (a) when the firm uses audit work performed or supervised by other accounting firms, and (b) when the firm makes required regulatory filings.

2. Reporting. Within six months of the date of this Order, WWC, P.C. shall submit a written report to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations summarizing the review and evaluation of the areas specified in paragraph C.1 above ("Report"). The Report shall describe any modified or additional policies or procedures adopted or to be adopted by WWC, P.C. or, if WWC, P.C. concludes no such modifications or additions should be adopted, a detailed and satisfactory explanation of why the firm believes changes are not warranted. In addition, WWC, P.C. shall submit any additional information and evidence concerning the Report, the information in the Report, and WWC, P.C.'s compliance with this Order as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request.

3. Certificate of Implementation. Within twelve months of the date of this Order, WWC, P.C.'s managing partner shall certify in writing ("Certificate of Implementation") to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations that WWC, P.C. has implemented all of the modifications and additions to its policies and procedures that were described in the Report. The Certificate of Implementation shall provide written evidence of WWC, P.C.'s adoption of such modifications and additions in narrative form, identify the actions taken to implement such modifications and additions, and be supported by exhibits sufficient to demonstrate implementation. WWC, P.C. shall also submit such additional evidence of, and information concerning, implementation as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request.

4. Noncompliance. WWC, P.C. understands that a failure to satisfy these undertakings may constitute a violation of PCAOB Rule 5000 and could provide a basis for the imposition of additional sanctions in a subsequent disciplinary proceeding.

ISSUED BY THE BOARD.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Citrin Cooperman & Company, LLP, Joseph Puglisi, CPA, Mark Schniebolk, CPA, and John Cavallone, CPA,

Respondents.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-007

May 11, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Citrin Cooperman & Company, LLP ("Citrin" or the "Firm"), imposing a civil money penalty of $200,000 on Citrin, and requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial actions as described in Section IV of this Order;

(2) suspending Joseph Puglisi, CPA ("Puglisi") from associating with a registered public accounting firm for a period of one year from the date of this Order, limiting his activities in connection with any audit or examination of a broker-dealer that is required to file a compliance report under Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act") Rule 17a-5, 17 C.F.R. § 240.17a-5, of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") until two years from the date of this Order by prohibiting Puglisi from serving in certain capacities, as described in Section IV hereto, imposing a civil money penalty of $25,000 on Puglisi, and requiring Puglisi to complete, within one year from the date of this Order, 20 hours of professional education or training; and

(3) censuring and limiting the activities of Mark Schniebolk, CPA ("Schniebolk") and John Cavallone, CPA ("Cavallone") for a period of one year from the date of this Order by prohibiting them from: (a) serving, or supervising the work of another person serving, as an engagement quality reviewer, or (b) serving, or supervising the work of another person serving, in any role that is equivalent to, but differently denominated from, engagement quality reviewer on any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), or PCAOB Rule 1001(a)(v), imposing civil money penalties of $15,000 on each of Schniebolk and Cavallone, and requiring that they each complete, within one year from the date of this Order, 20 hours of professional education or training.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that: (a) Citrin, Puglisi, Schniebolk, and Cavallone (collectively, "Respondents") violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the audits and examinations of a broker-dealer ("Broker-Dealer A") for the fiscal years ended December 31, 2016 and/or 2017; and (b) Citrin violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards by failing to take sufficient steps to ensure that its system of quality control provided reasonable assurance that work performed by its engagement personnel would comply with PCAOB standards and regulatory requirements and was assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have each submitted an Offer of Settlement (collectively, "Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[2]

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (a) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (b) repeated instances of

B. Broker-Dealer

5. Broker-Dealer A is a Delaware corporation, headquartered in New York. Broker-Dealer A's public filings indicate that it is a broker-dealer registered with the Commission and the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority, Inc. ("FINRA"), and provides order management and clearing services to institutions and professional traders. At all relevant times, Broker-Dealer A was a "broker" and a "dealer," as those terms are defined in Sections 110(3) and 110(4) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 1001(b)(iii) and 1001(d)(iii). Broker-Dealer A had assets of $232 million as of, and revenue of $36 million for, the year ended December 31, 2016, and assets of $196 million as of, and revenue of $33 million for, the year ended December 31, 2017.

C. Summary

6. This matter concerns Puglisi's violations of PCAOB rules and Attestation Standard No. 1 ("AT No. 1"), Examination Engagements Regarding Compliance Reports of Brokers and Dealers, when performing the examinations of the statements made by Broker-Dealer A in its FYE December 31, 2016 and FYE December 31, 2017 compliance reports filed with the Commission pursuant to Exchange Act Rule 17a-5, 17 C.F.R. § 240.17a-5 ("Rule 17a-5") (the "Examinations"). In particular, Puglisi failed to sufficiently evaluate (a) whether Broker-Dealer A maintained effective internal controls over compliance ("ICOC") with Commission Rule 15c3-3. 17 C.F.R. 240.15c3-3, under the Exchange Act ("Rule 15c3-3," or the "Customer Protection Rule") throughout the fiscal years and as of the end of fiscal years 2016 and 2017, and (b) whether Broker-Dealer A was in compliance with Rule 15c3-3(e) (the "Reserve Requirements Rule") as of the end of fiscal years 2016 and 2017.

7. This matter also concerns Puglisi's violations of PCAOB rules and auditing standards in connection with the audits of the financial statements and accompanying supporting schedules of Broker-Dealer A for FYE December 31, 2016 and FYE December 31, 2017 (the "Audits"). Among other things, Puglisi failed to perform sufficient audit procedures to test the supplemental information related to the Customer Protection Rule in connection with the Audits.

8. In addition, Schniebolk and Cavallone, who served as engagement quality reviewers ("EQR reviewers") on the 2016 audit and examination and 2017 audit and examination, respectively, failed to perform their engagement quality reviews ("EQRs") with due professional care, in violation of AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review.

9. Finally, the Firm violated quality control standards because its system of quality control failed to provide it with reasonable assurance that the work performed by its engagement personnel would comply with PCAOB standards and regulatory requirements. The Firm's system of quality control also failed to provide reasonable assurance that work was assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances.

D. Puglisi Violated AT No. 1 in the Examinations of Broker-Dealer A's 2016 and 2017 Compliance Reports

i. Certain Commission Reporting Requirements for Broker-Dealer A

10. At all relevant times, Rule 15c3-3 imposed various obligations on Broker-Dealer A to avoid, in the event of a broker-dealer failure, a delay or a shortfall in returning the assets held by Broker-Dealer A for the accounts of its customers ("customer accounts") or for the proprietary securities accounts of broker-dealers ("PAB accounts").[3,4] For example, the Reserve Requirements Rule required Broker-Dealer A, among other things, to maintain with a bank or banks[5] a "Special Reserve Bank Account for the Exclusive Benefit of Customers" (a "Customer Reserve Bank Account") and a "Special Reserve Bank Account for Brokers and Dealers" (a "PAB Reserve Bank Account"), each kept separate from each other and from Broker-Dealer A's other accounts, to deposit therein an amount calculated in accordance with Exhibit A to Rule 15c3-3 (17 C.F.R. § 240.15c3-3a) ("Reserves"), and to make and maintain a record of each such computation.

11. Furthermore, at all relevant times, Broker-Dealer A was required, among other things to promptly obtain and thereafter maintain physical possession or control over its customers' fully paid and excess margin securities.[6] This included the requirement that Broker-Dealer A hold certain customer securities in a "good control location"[7] pursuant to paragraph [3] The term "PAB account" is defined in Rule 15c3-3(a)(16).

Although some broker-dealers qualify for exemption from the Customer Protection Rule under paragraph (k) of Rule 15c3-3, Broker-Dealer A, at all relevant times, did not qualify for such an exemption.

[5] "Bank" is defined in Rule 15c3-3(a)(7).

[6] See Rule 15c3-3(b).

[7] Although not defined in Rule 15c3-3, the term "good control location" is frequently used to identify those locations that are considered acceptable under the Rule. See, e.g., Division of Trading and Markets, U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and Office of General Counsel, FINRA, Joint Staff Statement on Broker-Dealer Custody of Digital Asset Securities (July 8, 2019) (noting that "[a]mong its core protections for customers, Rule 15c3-3 requires a broker-dealer to physically hold customers' fully paid and excess margin securities or maintain them free of lien at a good control location"), available at https://www.sec.gov/news/public-statement/joint-staff-statement-broker-dealer-custody-digital-asset-securities.

(c) of Rule 15c3-3 ("Good Control Location"). In addition, Rule 15c3-3(d) required that Broker-Dealer A regularly determine the quantity of its customers' fully-paid securities and excess margin securities[8] that were not in its possession or control, and to take actions to bring these securities into its possession or control within the time frame prescribed by the Customer Protection Rule. Collectively, these requirements in Rule 15c3-3(b), (c), and (d) are referred to herein as the "Possession and Control Requirements."

12. At all relevant times, Rule 17a-5 required Broker-Dealer A, among other things, to file with the Commission[9] an annual report containing: (a) a financial report that includes financial statements and supporting schedules;[10] and, as Broker-Dealer A did not claim exemption under paragraph (k) of Rule 15c3-3,[11] (b) a compliance report concerning the effectiveness of Broker-Dealer A's ICOC[12] with, among other things, the Customer Protection

[11] The Commission has stated that there may be circumstances in which a broker-dealer has not held customer securities or funds during the past year, but does not fit into one of the exemptive provisions set forth in paragraph (k) of Rule 15c3-3, and should file an "exemption report" under Rule 17a-5(d)(1)(i)(B)(2) in lieu of a "compliance report" under Rule 17a-5(d)(1)(i)(B)(1). See U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, Broker-Dealer Reports, Exchange Act Release No. 70073 (July 30, 2013), at n. 74, available at https://www.sec.gov/rules/final/2013/34-70073.pdf; see also Division of Trading and Markets of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, Frequently Asked Questions Concerning the July 30, 2013 Amendments to the Broker-Dealer Financial Reporting Rule (updated July 1, 2020), at Question and Answer 8 (describing the views of the staff of the Division of Trading and Markets regarding the eligibility of certain broker-dealers to file exemption reports in accordance with the circumstances described in footnote 74 of the 2013 Broker-Dealer Reports release), available at https://www.sec.gov/divisions/marketreg/amendments-to-broker-dealer-reporting-rule-faq.htm. Those circumstances are not applicable here.

[12] The term "internal control over compliance" is defined in Rule 17a-5(d)(3)(ii) as follows: "The term Internal Control Over Compliance means internal controls that have the objective of providing the broker or dealer with reasonable assurance that non-compliance with [Exchange Act Rules 15c3-1 ("Rule 15c3-1"), 15c3-3, 17a-13], or any rule of the designated examining authority of the broker or dealer that requires account statements to be sent to the customers of the broker or dealer (an 'Account Statement Rule') will be prevented or detected on a timely basis."

Rule;[13] and (c) reports by a PCAOB-registered firm based on examinations of Broker-Dealer A's financial and compliance reports that meets certain specified requirements.[14] At all relevant times, Rule 17a-5 also required that the auditor's examinations of each of Broker-Dealer A's financial report and compliance report be performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.[15]

13. Rule 17a-5 also required, at all relevant times, Broker-Dealer A's compliance report to contain certain statements ("assertions") about its compliance with, among other things, the Customer Protection Rule, including that: (a) Broker-Dealer A's ICOC was effective during the most recent fiscal year; (b) Broker-Dealer A's ICOC was effective as of the end of the most recent fiscal year; and (c) Broker-Dealer A was in compliance with, among other things, the Reserve Requirements Rule as of the end of the most recent fiscal year.[16]

ii. Relevant Provisions of PCAOB Rules and Standards

14. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, including an examination report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with all applicable auditing and related professional practice standards, including attestation standards.[17]

15. AT No. 1 provides that, in performing an examination of the assertions made by a broker-dealer in a compliance report (an "examination engagement"), the auditor's objective is to express an opinion regarding whether the assertions made by the broker-dealer in its compliance report are fairly stated, in all material respects.[18] AT No. 1 also provides that, to express such an opinion, the auditor must plan and perform the examination engagement to obtain appropriate evidence that is sufficient to obtain reasonable assurance about whether, among other things: (a) one or more material weaknesses[19] existed during the most recent fiscal year specified in the broker-dealer's assertion; (b) one or more material weaknesses existed as of the end of the most recent fiscal year specified in the broker-dealer's assertion; and (c) one or more instances of non-compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule existed as of the end of the most recent fiscal year specified in the broker-dealer's assertion.[20] As noted in AT No. 1, the auditor's examination should include an evaluation of the effectiveness of ICOC with the Customer Protection Rule during, and as of the end of, the most recent fiscal year.[21]

16. AT No. 1 also provides that the auditor must exercise due professional care, which includes application of professional skepticism, in planning and performing the examination and preparation of the report, and that the engagement partner is responsible for proper planning and supervision of work for the engagement.[22]

17. Additionally, AT No. 1 provides, that, when planning the examination engagement, the auditor should obtain an understanding of the broker-dealer's processes regarding compliance with, among other things, the Customer Protection Rule, which includes evaluating the design of controls that are relevant to the examination and determining whether they have been implemented.[23] When performing the examination engagement, the auditor must test the controls that are important to the auditor's conclusion about whether the broker-dealer has maintained effective ICOC for, among other things, the Customer Protection Rule, during the fiscal year and as of fiscal year end.[24] The auditor must obtain evidence that the controls over compliance selected for testing are designed effectively and operated effectively during the fiscal year and as of fiscal year end.[25]

18. AT No. 1 further requires the auditor to conduct tests sufficient to support the auditor's conclusions regarding whether the broker-dealer was in compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule as of fiscal year end; the auditor does this by, among other things, testing the accuracy and completeness of the information that the broker-dealer used to determine its compliance with that rule as of fiscal year end.[26]

19. As provided in AT No. 1, the auditor should evaluate whether he or she has obtained sufficient appropriate evidence to support the conclusions to be presented in the examination report, taking into account the risks associated with controls and non-compliance, the results of the examination procedures performed, and the appropriateness (i.e., the relevance and reliability) of the evidence obtained.[27] If the auditor is unable to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence about an assertion, the auditor should express a disclaimer of opinion.[28]

20. As described below, Puglisi failed to comply with applicable PCAOB rules and standards in connection with his examinations of the assertions made by Broker-Dealer A in its compliance reports for FYE December 31, 2016, and FYE December 31, 2017.

iii. Puglisi's Examinations of Broker-Dealer A's 2016 and 2017 Compliance Reports

21. Broker-Dealer A filed its annual reports for 2016 and 2017 with the Commission on March 1, 2017 and March 5, 2018, respectively. Broker-Dealer A included compliance reports in those filings—the 2016 compliance report was dated February 27, 2017, and the 2017 compliance report was dated February 28, 2018 (collectively, the "Compliance Reports"). The Compliance Reports' assertions included that Broker-Dealer A's ICOC with the Customer Protection Rule was effective during the period from January 1, 2016, to December 31, 2016, and as of December 31, 2016, and from January 1, 2017, to December 31, 2017, and as of December 31, 2017, respectively.

22. Puglisi authorized the issuance of the Firm's reports on the Examinations concerning Broker-Dealer A's Compliance Reports (collectively, the "Examination Reports"). Schniebolk and Cavallone, who served as EQR reviewers on the 2016 examination and the 2017 examination, respectively, provided concurring approval of the Firm's issuance of the Examination Reports. The Firm's 2016 examination report was dated February 27, 2017, and the Firm's 2017 examination report was dated February 28, 2018. The Examination Reports expressed the Firm's unqualified opinions that Broker-Dealer A's assertions in the respective Compliance Reports were fairly stated, in all material respects, and the Examination Reports stated, among other things, that the Examinations were conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards.

a. Puglisi's Testing of Broker-Dealer A's ICOC related to the Customer Protection Rule for the Examinations

23. In connection with the Examinations, Puglisi failed to adequately test Broker-Dealer A's ICOC with the Customer Protection Rule during, and at the end of, the 2016 and 2017 fiscal years.

24. With respect to the Possession and Control Requirements, Puglisi failed to sufficiently plan the 2016 examination engagement because Puglisi failed to obtain an understanding of Broker-Dealer A's key controls to ensure compliance with the Possession and Control Requirements during the 2016 examination.[29] Specifically, Puglisi failed to identify the controls that he believed were important to the conclusion that Broker-Dealer A maintained effective ICOC with the Possession and Control Requirements during, and as of, the FYE December 31, 2016. Further, Puglisi failed to perform, or cause the engagement team to perform, any testing to obtain evidence that Broker-Dealer A's controls for compliance with the Possession and Control Requirements were designed and operating effectively.[30]

25. With respect to the Reserve Requirements Rule, Puglisi failed to adequately evaluate Broker-Dealer A's ICOC related to that rule during, and at the end of, the fiscal years 2016 and 2017. Broker-Dealer A used a system-generated report ("Reserve workbook") to determine the minimum amount of Reserves required to comply with the rule. Puglisi and the engagement team documented that, among other things, Broker-Dealer A relied on a key information technology ("IT") application control in its internally-developed system to ensure the completeness and accuracy of the Reserve workbook. In connection with the 2016 examination, however, Puglisi failed to perform, or cause the engagement team to perform, any procedures to test the design and operating effectiveness of the controls related to the Reserve Requirements Rule.[31] In addition, Puglisi and the engagement team did not test the IT controls applicable to the internally-developed system.[32]

[29] See id ¶ 9.

[30] An auditor must obtain evidence that the controls selected for testing were designed and operated effectively. See id. at ¶¶ 11, 14, 16.

[31] See AT No. 1 ¶¶ 11, 14, 16.

[32] Id. In 2017, Puglisi and the engagement team modified their audit procedures; as a result this failure did not recur.

26. Further, Puglisi was aware that FINRA performed annual examinations of Broker-Dealer A, and obtained the FINRA examination report on the preceding year during each audit and examination.[33] FINRA noted repeatedly in its prior examination reports that: (a) Broker-Dealer A had failed to maintain adequate documentation to ascertain the appropriate classification of an account as either a customer account or a PAB account; and (b) Broker-Dealer A, in several instances, incorrectly designated certain accounts as a PAB account instead of a customer account and vice-versa. Despite the recurring FINRA findings, Puglisi failed to sufficiently plan the examination engagements because Puglisi failed to obtain an understanding of Broker-Dealer A's process, including relevant controls, regarding the designation of an account as either a customer account or a PAB account.[34] Similarly, Puglisi failed to perform, or cause the engagement team to perform, procedures to obtain evidence that Broker-Dealer A's internal controls related to account designation were designed and operating effectively. Finally, Puglisi reviewed FINRA's reports but failed to adequately evaluate whether FINRA's repeated findings contradicted Broker-Dealer A's assertions that its ICOC on the Reserve Requirements Rule was effective during, and as of the end of, the fiscal years 2016 and 2017.[35]

27. As a result, Puglisi failed to obtain appropriate evidence that was sufficient to obtain reasonable assurance about whether there were any material weaknesses in Broker-Dealer A's ICOC related to the Customer Protection Rule during, and as of the end of, the fiscal years 2016 and 2017.[36]

b. Puglisi's Testing of Broker-Dealer A's Compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule for the Examinations

28. AT No. 1 required that Puglisi perform procedures sufficient to support the auditor's conclusions regarding whether Broker-Dealer A was in compliance with, among other things, the Reserve Requirements Rule as of the end of each fiscal year.[37] Each year, Puglisi and the engagement team tested whether Broker-Dealer A's reserves complied with the Reserve Requirements Rule, primarily by agreeing Broker-Dealer A's Reserves calculation to the Reserve workbook. During the 2016 examination, Puglisi and the engagement team used the Reserve workbook as audit evidence, but failed to: (a) test the IT controls over the system that generated the Reserve workbook; (b) test the design and operating effectiveness of controls related to the Reserve workbook; and (c) perform sufficient substantive examination procedures to otherwise test the completeness and accuracy of the Reserve workbook.[38]

29. Further, Puglisi failed to test sufficiently in 2016, or test at all in 2017, Broker-Dealer A's designation of whether accounts were appropriately classified as customer accounts or PAB accounts. Specifically, in 2016, Puglisi tested Broker-Dealer A's customer account or PAB account designation by selecting samples from the population of new accounts opened during the year and reviewing certain documents to ascertain whether Broker-Dealer A appropriately classified the account as either a customer account or a PAB account. By excluding existing accounts from the population subject to testing, Puglisi failed to address the risk of non-compliance for existing accounts in light of FINRA's repeated examination findings. In 2017, Puglisi failed to perform, or cause the engagement team to perform, any procedures to test Broker-Dealer A's customer account or PAB account designation for either existing accounts or new accounts.

30. Accordingly, Puglisi failed to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence to obtain reasonable assurance that Broker-Dealer A maintained compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule as of the end of the 2016 and 2017 fiscal years.[39]

E. Puglisi Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in the Firm's Audits of Broker-Dealer A's 2016 and 2017 Supporting Schedules

31. Rule 17a-5 required that Broker-Dealer A file certain supplemental information in supporting schedules accompanying its 2016 and 2017 financial statements,[40] and that those supporting schedules be audited by a PCAOB-registered firm.[41]

---

[38] Under AT No. 1, an auditor must test the completeness and accuracy of the information in the schedules (AT No. 1 ¶ 21(b)), and evaluate whether the amounts in the schedules were determined in accordance with the Reserve Requirements Rule (id. at ¶ 21(a)).

[39] See AT No. 1 at ¶¶ 3, 4, 27.

[40] See supra note 10 and accompanying text. Supporting schedules include, from Part II or Part IIA of Form X-17A-5 (17 C.F.R. § 249.617): (i) a Computation of Net Capital Under Rule 15c3-1; (ii) a Computation for Determination of the Reserve Requirements under Exhibit A of Rule 15c3-3; and (iii) Information Relating to the Possession or Control Requirements Under Rule 15c3-3. See Rule 17a-5(d)(2)(ii).

[41] See Rule 17a-5(d)(1)(i)(A), (d)(1)(i)(C), (d)(2), (g).

32. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report on such supplemental information, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with all applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.[42] Among other things, PCAOB standards require an auditor to exercise due professional care and professional skepticism in performing the audit.[43]

33. PCAOB standards also require the auditor to perform audit procedures to obtain appropriate evidence that is sufficient to support the auditor's opinion about whether the supplemental information is fairly stated, in relation to the financial statements as a whole.[44] Among other things, the auditor should perform procedures to test the completeness and accuracy of the information presented in the supplemental information to the extent it was not tested as part of the audit of the financial statements, and evaluate whether the supplemental information complies with relevant regulatory requirements.[45] The standards also provide that, when an auditor uses information produced by a company as audit evidence, the auditor should evaluate whether the information was sufficient and appropriate for purposes of the audit by performing procedures to, among other things, test the accuracy and completeness of the information, or test the controls over the accuracy and completeness of that information.[46]

34. According to PCAOB standards, if an auditor is unable to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support an opinion on the supplemental information, the auditor should disclaim an opinion on the supplemental information.[47]

35. As described below, Puglisi failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the audit procedures performed on the supplemental information in supporting schedules accompanying Broker-Dealer A's 2016 and 2017 financial statements.

a. Puglisi's Testing of Broker-Dealer A's Supplemental Information

36. Included in Broker-Dealer A's annual reports for 2016 and 2017 filed with the Commission were the Firm's audit reports for the Audits, dated February 27, 2017, and February 28, 2018, respectively (collectively, the "Audit Reports"). Puglisi authorized the Firm's issuance of the Audit Reports, each of which expressed an unqualified opinion on Broker-Dealer A's related financial statements and supplemental information, and stated, among other things, that the Firm's Audits were conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards. Schniebolk and Cavallone, as the EQR reviewers for 2016 and 2017, respectively, provided concurring approval of the Firm's issuance of the Audit Reports.

37. The Audit Reports also stated that the supplemental information was subjected to audit procedures in connection with the Audits. In particular, the Firm represented that it had performed procedures to "test the completeness and accuracy of the information presented in the supplemental information."

38. For both 2016 and 2017, Broker-Dealer A's supplemental information included schedules reported on its compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule.[48] In these supporting schedules, Broker-Dealer A reported, for each fiscal year end, that it maintained cash segregated in a Customer Reserve Bank Account and a PAB Reserve Bank Account in excess of the amounts required by the Reserve Requirements Rule. Broker-Dealer A's supplemental information also included the possession or control supplemental information,[49] which represented that, as of the report date, all customers' fully paid securities and excess margin securities were in Broker-Dealer A's possession or held in a Good Control Location in compliance with the Possession or Control Requirements.

39. Puglisi, however, failed to perform, or cause the engagement team to perform, sufficient procedures to test the completeness and accuracy of the information presented in the possession or control supplemental information for FYE December 31, 2016, and whether that information, including its form and content, complied with Rule 15c3-3.[50]

40. In addition, as of the FYE December 31, 2016 and FYE December 31, 2017, Broker-Dealer A held customer securities in, among other locations, a U.S. bank, a foreign custodian bank, and its foreign broker-dealer affiliate, which Broker-Dealer A claimed were Good Control Locations under Rule 15c3-3(c).[51] Notwithstanding that the amounts at these locations exceeded the Firm's materiality for the Audits,[52] Puglisi failed to perform, or cause the engagement team to perform, any procedures as part of auditing Broker-Dealer A's supplemental information to obtain audit evidence that these three locations were indeed Good Control Locations.

41. Further, Puglisi coordinated the audits of Broker-Dealer A's supplemental information with the testing of Broker-Dealer A's compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule by relying on the procedures performed during the Examinations for the Audits.[53] Thus, the same failures by Puglisi to test Broker-Dealer A's compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule discussed above also constituted a failure to perform sufficient procedures to test the supplemental information related to the Reserves for the end of the 2016 and 2017 fiscal years. Specifically, Puglisi failed to perform, or cause the engagement team to perform, sufficient audit procedures to test the completeness and accuracy of the Reserve workbook used by Broker-Dealer A to compute its Reserves during the 2016 examination,[54] and failed to test sufficiently in 2016, or test at all in 2017, Broker-Dealer A's designation of whether an account was appropriately classified as a customer account or a PAB account.

42. Consequently, Puglisi violated PCAOB standards in the Audits by failing to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support an opinion as to whether the supplemental information in Broker-Dealer A's 2016 and 2017 supporting schedules was fairly stated, in all material respects, in relation to the financial statements as a whole.[55]

52 Puglisi and the engagement team established materiality for the Audits at $1,700,000 in 2016 and $400,000 in 2017.

53 According to PCAOB standards, "[t]he auditor should take into account relevant evidence from . . . the attestation engagement[] . . . in planning and performing audit procedures related to the supplemental information and in evaluating the results of the audit procedures to form the opinion on the supplemental information." F. Schniebolk and Cavallone Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the Engagement Quality Reviews for the Examinations and Audits

43. PCAOB Rules provide that associated persons of registered public accounting firms shall comply with all applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.[56]

44. AS 1220 requires that an engagement quality review be performed on all audits and certain attestation engagements conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards, like the Audits and Examinations.[57] AS 1220 also provides that the engagement quality reviewer for an engagement performed pursuant to PCAOB auditing or attestation standards should evaluate the significant judgments made by the engagement team and the related conclusions reached in forming the overall conclusion on the engagement.[58] In both audit engagements and attestation engagements performed pursuant to AT No. 1, a firm may grant permission to a client to use the firm's audit or attestation report only after an engagement quality reviewer provides concurring approval of issuance of the report.[59]

45. Moreover, under AS 1220, the engagement quality reviewer may provide concurring approval of issuance of an audit or attestation report only if, after performing with due professional care the review required by AS 1220, he or she is not aware of a significant engagement deficiency.[60] AS 1220 states that a significant engagement deficiency in an audit exists when, among other things, the engagement team failed to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence.[61] Similarly, a significant engagement deficiency in an attestation engagement exists when, among other things, "the engagement team failed to perform attestation procedures necessary in the circumstances of the engagement."[62]

46. In connection with the Examinations, Schniebolk and Cavallone failed to properly evaluate the conclusions reached by the engagement team with respect to significant areas of the Examinations, including the testing of Broker-Dealer A's ICOC and the testing of Broker-Dealer A's compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule as of fiscal year end. Specifically, they failed to properly evaluate the failure of Puglisi and the engagement team to obtain an understanding of Broker-Dealer A's key controls to ensure compliance with the Customer Protection Rule and test whether those controls were designed and operating effectively.

47. During the 2016 audit and examination, Schniebolk failed to document his review of any of the work papers related to Puglisi's evaluation of Broker-Dealer A's ICOC or audit of Broker-Dealer A's financial statements and supplemental information. Schniebolk was aware that the engagement team had identified "compliance with the determination of reserve requirements and the information for possession or control requirements" as a significant risk to the client, but failed to document his review of any work papers reflecting the engagement team's responses to this significant risk, and failed to identify that Puglisi had not performed attestation procedures necessary in the circumstances of the engagement. As a result, Schniebolk failed to properly evaluate the significant judgments made by the engagement team and the conclusions reached in these areas prior to providing his concurring approval for the Firm to issue its reports on the 2016 audit and the 2016 examination.[63]

48. Cavallone, the EQR reviewer for the 2017 audit and the 2017 examination, also failed to properly evaluate the conclusions reached by Puglisi and the engagement team and failed to perform his engagement quality review with due professional care. Unlike Schniebolk, Cavallone documented that he reviewed the key work papers in each of the areas identified above where Puglisi violated PCAOB standards. However, Cavallone failed to perform his review with due professional care and professional skepticism, as he failed to identify that Puglisi and the engagement team had failed to perform attestation procedures necessary in the circumstances of the engagements and had reached conclusions unsupported by the procedures performed. Furthermore, although Cavallone was aware of FINRA's findings related to Broker-Dealer A's improper account designations, he failed to evaluate Puglisi's determination, a significant judgment, not to perform procedures to test those account designations.[64] Nevertheless, Cavallone provided his concurring approval for the Firm to issue its reports on the 2017 audit and the 2017 examination.

49. Accordingly, both Schniebolk and Cavallone failed to perform their engagement quality reviews with due professional care, in violation of AS 1220.

G. Citrin Violated PCAOB Rules and Quality Control Standards

50. PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's quality control standards.[65] These standards require that a registered firm have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice.[66] PCAOB quality control standards provide that a registered firm should establish policies and procedures "to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality."[67] Such policies should "encompass all phases of the design and execution of the engagement."[68]

51. PCAOB quality control standards further provide that firms should establish policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that work is assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances.[69]

52. Citrin had a limited number of carrying broker-dealer clients. At the time of the 2016 Broker-Dealer A engagement, only two of Citrin's 35 broker-dealer clients were carrying broker-dealers requiring an examination under AT No. 1. Puglisi was the engagement partner for both of those clients, along with nine other non-carrying broker-dealers.

53. Citrin was also aware that the PCAOB's Division of Registration and Inspections had performed an inspection of the Firm's 2016 audit and 2016 examination of Broker-Dealer A, and that PCAOB inspectors had identified numerous deficiencies in the work performed by Puglisi, including that:

- Puglisi had failed to obtain appropriate evidence that was sufficient to obtain reasonable assurance about whether material weaknesses existed during 2016, and at December 31, 2016, as required by AT No. 1.

65 See PCAOB Rule 3100; Rule 3400T, Interim Quality Control Standards.

- Puglisi had failed to perform sufficient procedures to test controls that were important to determine whether Broker-Dealer A had maintained ICOC with respect to the Reserve Requirements Rule and the Possession and Control Requirements.

- Puglisi had failed to perform procedures sufficient to test the completeness and accuracy of the supplemental information related to the Customer Protection Rule.

54. Notwithstanding the deficiencies identified with respect to the 2016 audit and the 2016 examination, as discussed above, the Firm again assigned Puglisi, who had limited experience with carrying broker-dealers, to serve as the engagement partner for the 2017 engagement. The Firm did so without providing Puglisi with any additional support or resources, as the senior staff on the engagement did not change between 2016 and 2017. The Firm also assigned a new EQR reviewer, Cavallone, to perform the EQR on the 2017 engagement.

55. Puglisi again failed to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence to obtain reasonable assurance that Broker-Dealer A's ICOC related to the Customer Protection Rule were effective during, and as of the end of 2017, and that Broker-Dealer A had maintained compliance with the Reserve Requirements Rule as of the end of 2017. These repeated failures indicated that Citrin's system of quality control failed to provide it with reasonable assurance that the work performed by its engagement personnel met applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the Firm's standards of quality.

56. In addition to failing to provide Puglisi with sufficient support and resources, the Firm's system of quality control failed to ensure that work was assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances.[70] Specifically, during both 2016 and 2017, the Firm failed to perform evaluations of Puglisi's performance required by its quality control system and failed to adequately consider whether Puglisi possessed the degree of technical training and proficiency required to continue as the engagement partner for Broker-Dealer A.

57. Accordingly, Citrin violated PCAOB quality control standards in connection with the 2017 audit and examination.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Bo-Shiang Lien, CPA,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-009

May 24, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) barring Bo-Shiang ("Eric") Lien, CPA ("Lien" or "Respondent") from being associated with a registered public accounting firm;[1]

(2) imposing a $25,000 civil money penalty on Lien; and

(3) requiring that Lien complete 50 hours of continuing professional education ("CPE") (in addition to any CPE required in connection with any professional license) in subjects that are directly related to the audits of issuer financial statements under PCAOB standards.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Lien violated PCAOB rules and auditing standards in connection with the audits by BF Borgers CPA PC ("BF Borgers" or the "Firm") of the financial statements of three issuers.[2]

[1] Lien may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order.

[2] As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. See Reorganization of PCAOB Auditing Standards and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards and Rules, PCAOB Rel. No. 2015-002 (Mar. 31, 2015); see also PCAOB Auditing Standards Reorganized and Pre-Reorganized Numbering (Jan. 2017). The reorganization did not impose additional requirements on auditors or change substantively the requirements of PCAOB standards. While Respondent's conduct occurred both before and after the reorganization, the reorganized standards are cited herein for purposes of clarity.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[3]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[4]

A. Respondent

1. Eric Lien is a certified public accountant licensed by the state of Colorado (license no. 0030719). At all relevant times, Lien was an audit manager or director (non-equity partner) of BF Borgers and served as an engagement partner on issuer audits. Lien was, at all relevant times, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Issuers

2. Chineseinvestors.com, Inc. ("Chineseinvestors.com") is an Indiana corporation headquartered in San Gabriel, California. Its public filings disclose that, at all relevant times, it was a provider of Chinese-language financial information and also sold, among other things, industrial hemp-infused cosmetics and liquor in China. At all relevant times, Chineseinvestors.com was an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

[3] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[4] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

3. United Cannabis Corporation ("United Cannabis") is a Colorado corporation headquartered in Golden, Colorado. Its public filings disclose that, at all relevant times, it was a company focused on developing therapeutics related to the endocannabinoid system. It also owned intellectual properties related to growth, production, manufacture, marketing, management, utilization, and distribution of medical and recreational marijuana, and marijuana-infused products in the United States and the Cayman Islands. At all relevant times, United Cannabis was an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

4. China Pharma Holdings, Inc. ("China Pharma") is a Nevada corporation headquartered in Haikou, Hainan Province, China. Its public filings disclose that, at all relevant times, the company manufactured and marketed generic and branded pharmaceutical and biochemical products primarily to hospitals and private retailers in China. At all relevant times, China Pharma was an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

5. This matter concerns Respondent's violations of PCAOB rules and auditing standards on four audits of three issuers: the audit of the financial statements of Chineseinvestors.com for the fiscal year ("FY") ended May 31, 2019; the audit of the financial statements of United Cannabis for the FY ended December 31, 2018; and the audits of the financial statements of China Pharma for the FYs ended December 31, 2015 and 2016 (collectively, the "Audits"). Lien served as engagement partner on the Audits and authorized the issuance of the Firm's audit reports expressing unqualified opinions on those audits.

6. As detailed below, in performing the Audits, Lien failed to: (1) exercise due professional care and professional skepticism; (2) obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence supporting significant accounts, including accounts designated as a fraud risk or a significant risk; and (3) comply with multiple other PCAOB auditing standards.[5]

[5] An auditor's opinion that an issuer's financial statements are presented in conformity with the applicable reporting framework must be based on an audit performed in accordance with PCAOB standards. See AS 3101.07, Reports on Audited Financial Statements (applicable to audits for fiscal years ending on or before December 14, 2017); AS 3101.02, The Auditor's Report on an Audit of Financial

D. Lien Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Performing the Audits

7. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[6] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements only when the auditor has conducted an audit in accordance with PCAOB standards and concludes that the financial statements, taken as a whole, are presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework.[7]

8. PCAOB standards require that an auditor exercise due professional care in planning and performing an audit.[8] Due professional care requires that the auditor exercise professional skepticism, which is an attitude that includes a questioning mind and a critical assessment of audit evidence.[9]

9. Auditors are required to plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the opinion expressed in the auditor's report, including obtaining reasonable assurance about whether the financial Statements When the Auditor Expresses an Unqualified Opinion (applicable to audits for fiscal years ending on or after December 15, 2017). PCAOB standards require an auditor to perform audit procedures sufficient to evaluate the issuer's adherence to generally accepted accounting principles ("GAAP"). See, e.g., AS 1001.01, Responsibilities and Functions of the Independent Auditor. This Order's description of audit failures relating to GAAP departures in an issuer's financial statements necessarily reflects the Board's judgment concerning the proper application of GAAP. Any such description of GAAP departures, however, should not be understood as an indication that the Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") has considered or made any determination concerning the issuer's compliance with GAAP.

statements are free of material misstatement, whether caused by error or fraud.[10] Auditors should design and perform audit procedures in a manner that addresses the assessed risks of material misstatement for each relevant assertion of each significant account and disclosure.[11] For significant risks, including fraud risks, the auditor should perform substantive procedures that are specifically responsive to the assessed risks.[12]

10. As described below, Lien violated these and other PCAOB standards in performing the Audits.

i. Lien Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in the FY 2019 Chineseinvestors.com Audit

11. The Firm audited Chineseinvestors.com's FY 2019 financial statements and issued an audit report containing an unqualified audit opinion on those financial statements on August 29, 2019. Lien served as engagement partner and authorized the issuance of the audit report.

a. Lien Failed to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Audit Evidence for Revenue

12. In FY 2019, Chineseinvestors.com disclosed that it adopted a new revenue recognition policy, and revised its accounting policies related to revenue recognition. Chineseinvestors.com reported total revenues for FY 2019 of approximately $6.5 million, which included approximately $4.2 million in revenue from sales of products, primarily liquor. During the audit, Lien and the engagement team became aware that Chineseinvestors.com's liquor sales had grown by over 1,000% from FY 2018 to FY 2019, with most of the FY 2019 sales occurring in the final months of the fiscal year. Lien and the engagement team assessed a significant risk and fraud risk related to improper revenue recognition. As described below, although Lien and the engagement team performed certain tests of details on a sample of Chineseinvestors.com's liquor sales, Lien violated multiple PCAOB standards in the Chineseinvestors.com audit with respect to addressing the fraud risk related to improper revenue recognition for liquor sales.

1. Lien Failed to Evaluate Whether Chineseinvestors.com's 2019 Liquor Sales Revenue Was Recognized in Accordance with GAAP

13. During FY 2019, Chineseinvestors.com recognized approximately $4 million in revenue from sales of liquor in China, which represented 62% of total revenues. Essentially all the company's liquor revenue was derived from sales to wholesale customers. When a customer ordered liquor, Chineseinvestors.com purchased from its supplier the quantity of liquor to satisfy the customer's order and the supplier shipped the liquor directly to the company's customer. The company disclosed that it recognized revenue at the gross amount received for the liquor (i.e., "gross basis"). In doing so, Chineseinvestors.com purported to be the principal seller of the liquor as opposed to an agent of the seller.

14. When another party is involved in an entity's provision of goods or services to a customer, the entity should determine whether the nature of its performance obligation is to provide the specified goods or services itself (that is, the entity is a principal) or to arrange for those goods or services to be provided by the other party (that is, the entity is an agent).[13] If a company acts in the capacity of an agent as opposed to a principal seller, it is only entitled to recognize revenue in the amount of any fee or commission earned for arranging for the product to be provided to the end customer.[14]

15. Lien and the engagement team failed to evaluate whether Chineseinvestors.com's revenue was presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with GAAP.[15] More specifically, Lien and the engagement team failed to evaluate whether Chineseinvestors.com's performance obligation under its contracts with its wholesale customers was to provide the liquor itself or arrange for the liquor to be provided by the liquor suppliers. Moreover, Lien knew from his review of the audit work papers that the liquor suppliers shipped the liquor ordered by the company's wholesale customers directly to those customers after Chineseinvestors.com placed an order, evidence suggesting that Chineseinvestors.com was, in fact, acting as an agent of its suppliers and not as a principal seller. Despite being aware of these facts, Lien failed to evaluate whether Chineseinvestors.com's application of accounting principles was in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework, in violation of PCAOB standards.[16]

2. Lien Failed to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Audit Evidence to Support Product Sales Revenue Because the Number of Transactions Tested Was Insufficient

16. Lien planned substantive tests of details procedures using the firm's sample size calculation worksheet, which calculated a minimum sample size of 84 sales transactions

("planned sample size"). The planned sample size was calculated by taking into account the factors identified in AS 2315.23, Audit Sampling.[17]

17. However, Lien and the engagement team then decided to subject only 53 transactions, or 63% of the planned sample size, to potential tests of details ("actual sample size"). The actual sample size was not determined using any reasoned or informed basis. In determining the actual sample size, Lien and the engagement team failed to appropriately take into account the factors of AS 2315.23.

18. Moreover, 16 of the 53 transactions that Lien and the engagement team selected were recorded on Chineseinvestors.com's books at negative amounts (i.e., a reduction to sales revenue). As Lien was aware, these transactions were sales returns. Lien and the engagement team failed to perform any audit procedures on the sales returns selections or evaluate the effect of these unexamined selections on the sample.[18] Excluding the unexamined sales returns, Lien and the engagement team performed tests of details on a sample of only 37 transactions, or 44% of the planned sample size ("effective sample size").

19. Lien reviewed the revenue testing work paper and, thus, knew the effective sample size was less than half of the planned sample size. Nevertheless, Lien failed to either (1) direct the engagement team to test additional transactions, or (2) evaluate whether the effective sample size provided sufficient audit evidence to meet the objective of the substantive tests of details procedures.[19] Lien thus failed to evaluate the audit evidence gathered by the engagement team with due professional care and professional skepticism.[20] Lien also failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support his conclusion that Chineseinvestors.com's product sales had occurred, in violation of PCAOB standards.[21]

3. Lien Failed to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Audit Evidence that Liquor Sales Occurred

20. To test whether each sales transaction in the sample selected for testing was recorded in the proper period, Lien and the engagement team obtained third-party delivery

17 Those factors include: (1) tolerable misstatement for the population; (2) allowable risk of incorrect assessment (based on assessments of inherent risk, control risk, and detection risk); and (3) the characteristics of the population, including the expected size and frequency of misstatements.

records (the "delivery notes"). The delivery notes did not include information about the title for the liquor shipped.

21. Lien knew that Chineseinvestors.com was not able to recognize revenue until it satisfied its contractual performance obligations. Based on management's representations, Lien believed Chineseinvestors.com's performance obligations were satisfied upon transfer of title from the company to the customer. However, as Lien was aware from his review of the work papers, audit evidence suggested Chineseinvestors.com never held the title of the liquor it sold to wholesale customers. Lien failed to resolve the inconsistent audit evidence and, therefore, violated PCAOB standards because he had no basis to conclude that Chineseinvestors.com's recorded wholesale liquor sales were recorded in the proper period.[22]

22. Further, for 25% of the sales transactions tested as part of the test of revenue details, the audit documentation identified the customer as a third-party shipping company, and not the actual customer. Lien reviewed the revenue test of details work paper, and thus knew that Chineseinvestors.com had identified a shipping company as the customer rather than the wholesale customer. However, Lien and the engagement team failed to perform any further procedures to understand who the ultimate wholesale customers were for these transactions or to validate that Chineseinvestors.com had contracts with those purported customers. Therefore, Lien and the engagement team had no basis to conclude that delivery notes were appropriate evidence to support revenue recognition. As a result, Lien failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support his conclusion that these sales transactions had occurred, in violation of PCAOB standards.[23]

4. Lien Failed to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Audit Evidence that Chineseinvestors.com's Revenue from Product Sales Was Recorded at the Proper Value

23. To test whether each sales transaction in the sample selected for testing was recorded at the proper value, Lien and the engagement team relied on the third-party delivery notes. However, as Lien was aware, these delivery notes did not contain sales prices or any other evidence related to the amounts, or values, of the sales transactions. Lien and the engagement team failed to perform any procedures to determine whether the selected transactions were properly valued.

24. Lien reviewed the engagement team's tests of revenue details. Thus, he knew, or should have known, that he and the engagement team had failed to obtain any audit evidence to determine whether the selected revenue transactions were recorded at the proper value. As a result, Lien failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support his conclusion that Chineseinvestors.com's FY 2019 sales were properly valued, in violation of PCAOB standards.[24]

b. Lien Failed to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Audit Evidence Supporting Cost of Product Sales

25. With respect to the $4.2 million in product sales in FY 2019, Chineseinvestors.com reported $3.5 million in cost of product sales. Lien and the engagement team assessed a significant risk for these cost of sales. Thus, Lien and the engagement team were required to perform substantive procedures to test this account.[25]

26. The only substantive procedure Lien and the engagement team performed to test the cost of product sales was to send confirmation requests to Chineseinvestors.com's two suppliers requesting a confirmation of total purchases for the year. However, only one of the company's suppliers responded to the confirmation request. Lien and the engagement team failed to perform any alternative procedures to test the cost of liquor sold during the year that was purportedly purchased from the second supplier, which totaled $2.2 million and represented 60% of total purchases in the year under audit.[26]

27. Because Lien failed to substantively test $2.2 million in product purchases, he failed to perform sufficient procedures in response to a significant risk and failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence supporting the cost of sales account, in violation of PCAOB standards.[27]

ii. Lien Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in the FY 2018 United Cannabis Audit

28. The Firm issued an audit report dated March 28, 2019, containing an unqualified audit opinion on United Cannabis's FY 2018 financial statements. Lien served as engagement partner and authorized the issuance of the audit report.

29. In its 2018 Form 10-K, United Cannabis reported total assets of $12.9 million, of which approximately $4.8 million consisted of goodwill. United Cannabis's goodwill was primarily associated with the July 14, 2017 acquisition of Prana Therapeutics, Inc. ("PTI"), a company that develops therapeutics for the oncology, neurology, and orthopedic markets.

30. Goodwill should be tested for impairment by the issuer at least annually, and whenever there is an indication that the goodwill may be impaired.[28] As Lien was aware, at year-end 2018, United Cannabis performed a qualitative assessment of whether it was more likely than not that the carrying value of PTI exceeded its fair value.[29] Lien also understood that, to support its impairment determination, management relied on a valuation report prepared by a third-party specialist. Lien knew that the third-party specialist was engaged by United Cannabis management to estimate the fair value of PTI based on the present value of PTI's projected future cash flows, and that this estimated fair value was highly dependent on data and assumptions provided by United Cannabis management.

31. During the 2018 audit, Lien assessed the valuation of goodwill as a "high risk" due to the risk of material misstatement related to potential impairment, thereby designating it as an area that required more extensive audit procedures than non-high-risk areas. Lien, however, failed to gather sufficient appropriate audit evidence to address the high risk that goodwill was potentially impaired as of December 31, 2018.

a. Lien Failed to Perform Sufficient Audit Procedures to Evaluate Management's Qualitative Assessment of Goodwill Impairment

32. In its Form 10-K, United Cannabis reported significant operating losses and negative cash flows from operations during 2017 and 2018, and a steady and significant decline in its common stock price. Lien was also aware that PTI experienced a loss of approximately $653,000 in 2018. In addition, Lien and the engagement team concluded that there was substantial doubt about United Cannabis's ability to continue as a going concern due to its recurring losses, illiquidity, and accumulated deficit.

33. Despite being aware of these qualitative factors indicating that goodwill was potentially impaired, Lien accepted management's contradictory representation that there were no relevant events or changes in circumstances that indicated its goodwill may be

[29] To comply with the annual impairment testing requirement under GAAP, an issuer is permitted to first assess certain qualitative factors to determine whether it is necessary to perform a two-step goodwill impairment test (i.e., the qualitative assessment). If determined to be necessary, a two-step impairment test is then used to identify potential goodwill impairment and measure the amount of any impairment loss to be recognized. See ASC 350-20-35-3.

impaired.[30] Lien failed to perform any further procedures to investigate the basis for management's conclusion or evaluate its reasonableness.[31] As a result, Lien failed to perform sufficient appropriate audit procedures to address the risk that United Cannabis's goodwill was impaired.[32]

b. Lien Failed to Perform the Procedures Necessary to Use the Work of a Third-Party Specialist

34. To support its reported goodwill balance, United Cannabis management also relied on the valuation report prepared by a third-party specialist, which indicated there had been no significant changes in PTI's estimated fair value or underlying projections of future cash flows since the prior year. The report also stated that, to determine the fair value of PTI, the specialist relied on data and assumptions provided by United Cannabis management, namely the future cash flow projections, without the specialist performing any procedures to evaluate the reasonableness of this information.

35. PCAOB standards require the auditor to evaluate whether the significant assumptions used by management in measuring fair value, taken individually and as a whole, provide a reasonable basis for the fair value measurements and disclosures.[33] The auditor is also required to test the data used to develop the fair value measurements and disclosures and evaluate whether the fair value measurements have been properly determined from such data and management's assumptions.[34] PCAOB standards further require that when using the work of a specialist, auditors should: (1) obtain an understanding of the methods and assumptions used by the specialist; (2) make appropriate tests of data provided to the specialist; and (3) evaluate whether the specialist's findings support the related assertions in the financial statements.[35]

36. Though Lien obtained the valuation report, he failed to perform any procedures to understand the work performed or assumptions used by the third-party specialist in determining the fair value of United Cannabis's ownership interest in PTI, and to test the data provided by management and relied on by the specialist, including ten years of cash flow projections. As a result of these failures, Lien violated PCAOB standards.[36]

iii. Lien Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in the FY 2015 and FY 2016 China Pharma Audits

37. The Firm audited China Pharma's FY 2015 and FY 2016 financial statements concurrently and issued an audit report containing an unqualified audit opinion on those financial statements on March 31, 2017. Lien served as engagement partner and authorized the issuance of the audit report.

a. Lien Failed to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Audit Evidence for Intangible Assets

38. China Pharma's public filings disclosed that the largest asset on its 2015 and 2016 balance sheets was Advances for the Purchase of Intangible Assets ("Advances"), which represented cash payments made to independent laboratories for the patent rights and development costs of 20 medical formulas ("products"). Advances represented approximately $42 million (44%) and $35.5 million (45%) of China Pharma's total assets as of December 31, 2015 and 2016, respectively. Lien and the engagement team identified the valuation of Advances as a significant risk.

39. During the 2015 and 2016 audits, Lien knew that China Pharma had experienced delays in receiving Chinese government approval for its products purportedly because of uncertainties about new regulations. Lien also knew that China Pharma had suspended the development of its products in FY 2016 because of the uncertainties surrounding these new regulations. As a result, Lien knew that China Pharma was unable to determine when, if ever, any of its products would receive government approval.

40. Lien was required to evaluate the reasonableness of China Pharma's estimates related to the potential impairment of Advances as of both December 31, 2015 and December 31, 2016.[37] The procedures Lien and the engagement team performed, however, failed to provide sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support Lien's conclusions on the Advances.

[37] See AS 2501.04, .07, Auditing Accounting Estimates (as applicable to audits for fiscal years ending on or before December 14, 2017).

41. First, Lien and the engagement team knew that China Pharma had recognized full impairment on the Advances with at least three laboratories in FY 2016, but failed to sufficiently evaluate whether those impairments should have instead been recognized in FY 2015. China Pharma management represented to Lien and the engagement team that the impairments resulted from new Chinese regulations in FY 2016. Lien relied on this representation despite inconsistent information in China Pharma's accounting records suggesting the impairments in connection with at least two of the three laboratories were actually caused by concerns in 2015 about the financial insolvency of the laboratories.

42. Second, Lien and the engagement team failed to perform procedures necessary to resolve inconsistent audit evidence. Management's FY 2016 impairment analysis assumed that, although development of the products was suspended indefinitely, the suspension would not affect the valuation of the Advances because it would not have a significant impact on the projected future cash flows for the products. This assumption was inconsistent with three conditions of which Lien was aware at the time of the audit: (a) China Pharma's competitors were developing similar products and delays by the company could harm its future sales; (b) although the analysis assumed all medical formulas would receive government approval, this was not assured; and (c) the analysis ignored the risk that the laboratories developing the new products might become insolvent and be unable to fulfill their contractual obligations. Lien and the engagement team failed to perform audit procedures necessary to resolve these inconsistencies.[38]

43. Third, Lien and the engagement team failed to obtain and test an impairment analysis for FY 2015. Lien conducted the FY 2015 and FY 2016 audits concurrently and assessed a significant risk relating to the valuation of Advances for both years. Lien planned to address this risk in both years by testing China Pharma's impairment analyses. Although Lien obtained an analysis as of December 31, 2016, he failed to obtain one as of December 31, 2015. Lien's justification for this failure was a belief that the results of management's analyses as of December 31, 2015 and 2016 would be similar, despite the fact that China Pharma suspended the development of its products in 2016. Lien failed to obtain any audit evidence beyond management representation to support this belief.[39]

38 See AS 1105.29.

39 See id. at .17, note.

44. As a result, Lien failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence in the 2015 and 2016 China Pharma audits to determine whether Advances were properly valued, in violation of PCAOB standards.[40]

b. Lien Failed to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Evidence for Revenue

45. China Pharma reported revenue of approximately $15.6 million for the year ended December 31, 2016, and approximately $20.4 million for the year ended December 31, 2015. At the end of each year, the company also reported more than $15 million in outstanding customer receivables that were doubtful of collection. For both audits, Lien identified fraud risks related to improper revenue recognition.

46. Lien failed to evaluate in either audit whether China Pharma's revenue was presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with GAAP.[41] Specifically, Lien knew that, among other things, an issuer could not recognize revenue under GAAP until the seller's price to the buyer was fixed or determinable.[42] Lien also knew that China Pharma had a history of using a collection discount program under which outstanding invoices were discounted to encourage customer payments. Lien did not, however, address this evidence that the sales invoice price recognized as revenue by China Pharma might not be the actual price to the buyer. As a result, Lien failed to evaluate whether China Pharma's reported revenue was presented fairly, in conformity with GAAP.[43]

47. Additionally, in both audits, Lien and the engagement team's procedures to assess the valuation of revenue were limited to inspecting a selection of sales invoices. These procedures were flawed for two reasons. First, because of China Pharma's collection discount program, the invoices did not provide evidence of the actual price to the customer. Second, Lien and the engagement team had no basis to evaluate whether the selected invoices had been paid in full because, as they were aware, China Pharma used a first-in, first-out method to apply customer payments to the oldest outstanding invoice. As a result, Lien failed to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence to determine whether revenue was recorded at the appropriate value, in violation of PCAOB standards.[44]

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Robert C. Duncan Accountancy Corp. and Robert C. Duncan, CPA,

Respondents.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-010
(Corrected Copy)

June 22, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) revoking the registration of Robert C. Duncan Accountancy Corporation (the "Firm"), a registered public accounting firm;[1]

(2) barring Robert C. Duncan, CPA ("Duncan") from being associated with a registered public accounting firm;[2] and

(3) imposing a $30,000 civil money penalty jointly and severally upon the Firm and Duncan (collectively, "Respondents").

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the Respondents on the basis of its findings that they violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with three audit and attestation engagements by the Firm of a broker-dealer client for the fiscal years ended 2017, 2020, and 2021.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit

[1] The Firm may reapply for registration after two years from the date of this Order.

[2] Duncan may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order.

reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have submitted Offers of Settlement ("Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[3]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[4]

A. Respondents

1. Robert C. Duncan Accountancy Corporation is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of California, with headquarters in Roseville, California. The Firm was, at all relevant times, licensed in the state of California (License No. 6271). The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the PCAOB pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

2. Robert C. Duncan, CPA is the Firm's president and sole shareholder. He is a certified public accountant licensed by the State of California (License No. 60174). Duncan is, and at all relevant times was, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

[3] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[4] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

B. Broker-Dealer

3. Seedchange Execution Services Inc. ("SESI") (a/k/a Yosemite Execution Partners, Inc.) was, at all relevant times, a Delaware corporation headquartered in San Francisco, California. SESI's public filings disclose that it is registered with the Commission as a broker-dealer. SESI also claimed an exemption from Rule 15c3-3 under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act"), Customer protection - reserves and custody of securities ("Rule 15c3-3").[5] At all relevant times, SESI was a broker-dealer as defined in Section 110(3) and (4) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(b)(iii) and (d)(iii).

C. Summary

4. This matter concerns the Firm's failure to comply with AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review, with respect to three audit and attestation engagements for SESI for the fiscal years ended 2017, 2020, and 2021. With respect to each of these broker-dealer audit and attestation engagements, the Firm failed to obtain an engagement quality review and concurring approval of issuance even though an engagement quality review was required pursuant to AS 1220.

5. This matter also concerns Duncan's direct and substantial contribution to the Firm's violations of PCAOB rules and standards concerning the requirements for engagement quality reviews. With respect to each of the audit and attestation engagements, Duncan took or omitted to take actions knowing, or recklessly not knowing, that his actions and omissions would directly and substantially contribute to the Firm's violations of AS 1220.

D. The Firm Violated PCAOB Rules and Auditing Standards Relating to Engagement Quality Reviews

6. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report,[6] PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[7]

---

[5] 17 C.F.R. § 240.15c3-3.

[6] Rule 17a-5(d) of the Exchange Act, 17 C.F.R. § 240.17a-5(d), Annual Filing of Audited Financial Statements, requires every broker or dealer registered pursuant to Section 15 of the Exchange Act to file annually a report audited by an independent public accountant. Rule 17a-5(g) requires that audits of broker-dealers be performed in accordance with PCAOB standards.

[7] See PCAOB Rule 3100, Compliance with Auditing and Related Professional Practice Standards; PCAOB Rule 3200, Auditing Standards.

7. AS 1220 requires that an engagement quality review be performed on all audits, reviews of interim financial information, and certain attestation engagements conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards.[8] In addition, a firm may grant permission to a client to use an engagement report only after an engagement quality reviewer provides concurring approval of issuance.[9]

8. An engagement quality reviewer must be independent of the company, perform the engagement quality review with integrity, and maintain objectivity in performing the review.[10] To maintain objectivity, the engagement quality reviewer and others who assist the reviewer should not make decisions on behalf of the engagement team or assume any of the responsibilities of the engagement team.[11] The engagement partner remains responsible for the engagement and its performance, notwithstanding the involvement of the engagement quality reviewer and others who assist the reviewer.[12]

9. The Firm failed to obtain an engagement quality review that complied with AS 1220 for the three SESI audit and attestation engagements for fiscal years 2017, 2020 and 2021.[13] In each instance, the audit and attestation engagement was for a broker-dealer, as defined in Sections 110(3) and 110(4) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 1001(b)(iii) and 1001(d)(iii). And in each instance, the Firm improperly permitted the issuance of its audit report containing an unqualified opinion and review report without obtaining an engagement quality review and concurring approval of issuance. As a result, the Firm repeatedly violated AS 1220.

E. Duncan Contributed to the Firm's Violations of PCAOB Rules and Auditing Standards

10. PCAOB Rule 3502 states that "[a] person associated with a registered public accounting firm shall not take or omit to take an action knowing, or recklessly not knowing, that

13 Duncan represented that, while serving as the engagement partner on these audits and attestation engagements, he simultaneously acted as the engagement quality reviewer. However, Duncan could not serve as the engagement quality reviewer on these engagements while also serving as the engagement partner. See AS 1220.06-.08. As a result, no engagement quality review was performed for the 2017, 2020, and 2021 audit and attestation engagements.

the act or omission would directly and substantially contribute to a violation by that registered public accounting firm of the Act, the Rules of the Board, the provisions of the securities laws relating to the preparation and issuance of audit reports and the obligations and liabilities of accountants with respect thereto, including the rules of the Commission issued under the Act, or professional standards."[14]

11. Duncan was the Firm's principal and sole shareholder, as well as the engagement partner for all three of the SESI audits and attestation engagements at issue. Accordingly, Duncan was responsible for ensuring that the Firm complied with PCAOB rules and standards. Duncan knew, or was reckless in not knowing, that his acts and omissions would directly and substantially contribute to the Firm's violations of AS 1220, as described above. As a result, Duncan violated PCAOB Rule 3502.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(A) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(1), the registration of Robert C. Duncan Accountancy Corporation is revoked;

B. After two years from the date of this Order, Robert C. Duncan Accountancy Corporation may reapply for registration by filing an application pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2101;

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Robert C. Duncan, CPA is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[15]

[14] PCAOB Rule 3502, Responsibility Not to Knowingly or Recklessly Contribute to Violations.

[15] As a consequence of the bar, the provisions of Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act will apply with respect to Duncan. Section 105(c)(7)(B) provides: "It shall be unlawful for any person that is suspended or barred from being associated with a registered public accounting firm under this subsection willfully to become or remain associated with any issuer, broker, or dealer in an accountancy or a financial management capacity, and for any issuer, broker, or dealer that knew, or in the exercise of reasonable

D. After two years from the date of this Order, Robert C. Duncan, CPA may file a petition, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm; and

E. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $30,000 is imposed jointly and severally upon Robert C. Duncan Accountancy Corporation and Robert C. Duncan, CPA. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of these civil money penalties will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Respondents shall pay the civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the entity or person as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006. By consenting to this Order, Respondents acknowledge that a failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may alone be grounds to deny any petition to terminate a bar pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b) or a reapplication for registration pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2101.

Order Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Kevin F. Pickard, CPA,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-011

June 22, 2022

By this Order Making Findings and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) barring Kevin F. Pickard, CPA ("Pickard" or "Respondent") from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, but allowing him, after two years, to file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered firm;

(2) if the Board later consents to Pickard's association with a registered firm, limiting his activities in connection with any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), for an additional period of one year following the termination of the bar;

(3) imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $30,000 on Pickard; and

(4) requiring Pickard to complete 25 hours of continuing professional education ("CPE"), in addition to any CPE required in connection with any professional license, before filing any petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Respondent violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with two issuer audits.[1]

[1] All references to PCAOB rules and standards in this Order are to the versions of those rules and standards, and to their organization and numbering, in effect at the time of the audit discussed herein.

I.

On April 16, 2021, the Board instituted non-public disciplinary proceedings against Respondent.[2] Pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of this proceeding and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order as set forth below.[3]

II.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[4]

A. Respondent

1. Kevin F. Pickard was, at all relevant times, a certified public accountant, licensed by the state of California (license no. CPA 70205). Pickard served as the engagement quality reviewer for audits that a registered public accounting firm, AJ Robbins CPA, LLC, had performed with respect to the year-end April 30, 2017 financial statements of Soldino Group Corp ("Soldino" and the "Soldino Audit") and the year-end November 30, 2017 financial statements of Vado Corp. ("Vado" and the "Vado Audit"). Pickard was, at all relevant times, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

[2] Section 105(c)(2) of the Act provides that litigated disciplinary proceedings shall not be public, "unless otherwise ordered by the Board for good cause shown, with the consent of the parties." Although the Board found good cause for making the proceedings public, Respondent did not consent to making the hearing public, as permitted by Section 105(c)(2) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5203.

[3] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other persons or entities in this or any other proceeding.

[4] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

B. Relevant Entity

2. AJ Robbins CPA, LLC ("AJR" or "Firm") is a professional corporation organized under the laws of the state of Colorado and headquartered in Denver, Colorado. It is licensed by the Colorado State Board of Accountancy (license no. FRM.5000243). The Firm was, at all relevant times, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. The Firm performed the Soldino and Vado Audits as those issuers' independent auditor.

C. Issuers

3. Soldino, at all relevant times, was a Nevada corporation headquartered in Treviso, Italy. Its public filings disclosed that, at the time of the Soldino Audit, it intended to commence operations in the business of work wear distribution, sewing and embroidery services. Soldino filed a Form S-1 registration statement with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") on June 14, 2017, which contained AJR's audit report for the Soldino Audit (dated May 31, 2017) and a consent from AJR (dated June 12, 2017) for that audit report to be included in the Form S-1 registration statement. With AJR's consent, Soldino also included the audit report in amended Forms S-1, including an amended Form S-1 filed on August 21, 2017. From the time that it filed its Form S-1, and at all relevant times thereafter, Soldino was an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

4. Vado, at all relevant times, was a Nevada corporation headquartered in Nitra, Slovakia. Its public filings disclosed that, at the time of the Vado Audit, it was developing an embroidery business. Vado filed a Form S-1 registration statement with the Commission on January 18, 2018, which contained AJR's audit report for the Vado Audit (dated January 8, 2018) and a consent from AJR (dated January 16, 2018) for that audit report to be included in the Form S-1 registration statement. From the time that it filed its Form S-1, and at all relevant times thereafter, Vado was an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

D. Summary

5. This matter concerns Respondent's violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Soldino and Vado Audits. While serving as the engagement quality reviewer for those audits, Pickard failed to comply with AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review. Pickard also failed to document his engagement quality reviews ("EQRs") as required by PCAOB standards.

6. In July 2018, after the documentation completion date for both the Soldino and Vado Audits, Pickard documented his EQRs by completing and signing two work papers that the Firm sent to Pickard for each audit. Pickard completed that documentation at the request of the audits' engagement partner, because of an upcoming PCAOB inspection of the Firm. When documenting his EQRs, Pickard falsely indicated that he had performed all of the procedures required by AS 1220. Pickard also backdated his signature on the forms to dates during or near the time of his EQRs. Although Pickard completed the forms well after the documentation completion date for both audits, Pickard did not document in the forms the date that he added information to the forms, or the reason for doing so after the documentation completion date, as required by AS 1215, Audit Documentation, and AS 1220.

E. Pickard Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the Soldino and Vado Audits

7. PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[5] An EQR is required for all audits and reviews conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards.[6] The EQR is intended to "serve as a meaningful check on the work performed by the engagement team."[7]

8. In an audit, the engagement quality reviewer is responsible for evaluating the significant judgments made by the engagement team and the related conclusions reached in forming the overall conclusion on the engagement and in preparing the engagement report.[8] Among other things, the engagement quality reviewer should: (1) evaluate the significant judgments that relate to engagement planning; (2) evaluate the engagement team's assessment of, and audit responses to, significant risks identified by the engagement team or the engagement quality reviewer; (3) review the engagement team's evaluation of the firm's independence in relation to the engagement; and (4) review the engagement completion document.[9] AS 1220 further provides that the engagement quality reviewer should evaluate whether appropriate matters have been communicated, or identified for communication, to the audit committee, management, and other parties, such as regulatory bodies.[10] The engagement quality reviewer should also evaluate whether the engagement documentation that he or she reviewed indicates that the engagement team responded appropriately to significant risks and supports the conclusions reached by the engagement team with respect to the matters reviewed.[11]

9. The engagement quality reviewer may provide concurring approval of issuance of an audit report only if, after performing the EQR with due professional care, he or she is not aware of a significant engagement deficiency.[12] "Due professional care requires the auditor to exercise professional skepticism. Professional skepticism is an attitude that includes a questioning mind and a critical assessment of audit evidence."[13]

10. Documentation of an EQR should be included in the engagement documentation.[14] That documentation should contain sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement, to understand the procedures performed by the engagement quality reviewer, including, but not limited to, the documents reviewed by the engagement quality reviewer.[15]

11. AS 1215's requirements related to retention of, and subsequent changes to, audit documentation apply to documentation of the engagement quality review.[16] For an audit, a complete and final set of audit documentation should be assembled for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date (i.e., the "documentation completion date").[17] "Audit documentation must not be deleted or discarded after the documentation completion date, however, information may be added. Any documentation added must indicate the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding it."[18]

12. As described below, Pickard failed to comply with the foregoing rules and standards in connection with the Soldino and Vado Audits.

i. Soldino Audit

13. The Firm engaged Pickard to perform the EQR for the Soldino Audit on or about August 1, 2017—almost seven weeks after the Firm issued its audit report and permitted Soldino to include that report in a Form S-1 that it filed with the Commission on June 14, 2017. By the time Pickard performed the EQR on August 1, Soldino had already included the Firm's audit report in three Form S-1 registration statements and amendments filed with the Commission.

14. When performing his EQR in August 2017, Pickard received and reviewed only a draft copy of Soldino's financial statements and a signed copy of the audit report dated May 31, 2017. He did not receive any other documents related to the Soldino Audit.

15. Pickard failed to perform the EQR for the Soldino Audit with due professional care.[19] When performing his EQR, Pickard:

a. did not receive or review any planning documentation, and he failed to evaluate the significant judgments that related to engagement planning;[20]

b. did not receive or review any risk assessment documentation relating to the audit, and failed to evaluate the engagement team's assessment of, and responses to, significant risks identified by the engagement team;[21]

c. did not receive or review any documentation concerning the engagement team's evaluation of the Firm's independence, and failed to review the engagement team's evaluation of the Firm's independence;[22]

d. did not receive or review the engagement completion document, and failed to confirm with the engagement partner that there were no significant unresolved matters;[23] and

e. did not receive or review documentation of any audit communications, and failed to evaluate whether appropriate matters were communicated, or identified for communication, to the audit committee, management, and other parties.[24]

16. Nevertheless, on August 1, 2017, Pickard provided concurring approval of issuance of the audit report for the Soldino Audit. On August 21, 2017, Soldino filed an amended Form S-1 registration statement containing the Firm's audit report for the Soldino Audit.

ii. Vado Audit

17. Pickard performed the EQR for the Vado Audit on or about January 16, 2018.

18. When performing his EQR for the Vado Audit, Pickard received a draft copy of Vado's financial statements. Pickard also received a general ledger document with some brief annotations from the audit engagement team, indicating that the engagement team had "traced" the transactions in that document to client-provided bank statements. Pickard did not receive any other documents related to the Vado Audit.

19. Pickard failed to perform the EQR for the Vado Audit with due professional care.[25] When performing his EQR for the Vado Audit, Pickard:

a. did not receive or review any planning documentation, and he failed to evaluate the significant judgments that related to engagement planning;[26]

b. did not receive or review any risk assessment documentation relating to the audit, and failed to evaluate the engagement team's assessment of, and responses to, significant risks identified by the engagement team;[27]

c. did not receive or review any documentation concerning the engagement team's evaluation of the Firm's independence, and failed to review the engagement team's evaluation of the Firm's independence;[28]

d. did not receive or review the engagement completion document, and failed to understand the significant findings and issues from the audit or confirm with the engagement partner that there were no significant unresolved matters;[29]

e. did not review the audit report;[30] and

f. did not receive or review documentation of any audit communications, and failed to evaluate whether appropriate matters were communicated, or identified for communication, to the audit committee, management, and other parties.[31]

20. Nevertheless, on or about January 16, 2018, Pickard provided concurring approval of issuance of the audit report for the Vado Audit. On January 18, 2018, Vado filed a Form S-1 registration statement containing the Firm's audit report for the Vado Audit.

iii. Documentation of the Soldino and Vado Audits

21. Pickard failed to document his EQRs for the Soldino and Vado Audits as required by AS 1220 before the documentation completion date.[32] Although Pickard sent comments on the issuers' financial statements to the Firm via email at the time he performed the EQRs, he failed to document the EQRs with sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement, to understand the procedures he performed to comply with AS 1220, including the documents he reviewed and the date he provided concurring approval of issuance.[33]

22. On July 14, 2018, Allan Jeffrie Robbins, CPA ("Robbins") the engagement partner for the Soldino and Vado Audits, sent Pickard an email, asking Pickard to document his EQRs for those audits. In his email to Pickard, Robbins explained that he needed the documentation for an upcoming inspection of the Firm by the PCAOB, which was scheduled for early August 2018. Pickard knew that he was being asked to document his EQRs several months after the documentation completion dates for both audits.

23. For each audit, Robbins sent Pickard two forms to complete to document his EQRs. The first was a "Supervision, Review and Approval Form," which contained a checklist for the engagement quality reviewer to complete, indicating whether he or she performed various steps required by AS 1220, and containing a space for the engagement quality reviewer's signature. The second was the "Engagement Completion Document," which also contained a space for the engagement quality reviewer's signature. Pickard had not previously received those forms from the Firm or completed them for either EQR.

24. Pickard knew that PCAOB standards required that audit documentation indicate the procedures performed and the date that they were completed.[34] Pickard also knew that, when adding information to audit documentation after the documentation completion date for an audit, PCAOB standards required that the documentation reflect the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding it.[35]

25. On July 26, 2018, Pickard completed the forms that Robbins had sent to him to document his EQRs, and returned those forms to the Firm via email. When completing the forms, Pickard backdated his signatures on the completed forms to dates contemporaneous with his EQRs (August 1, 2017 for the Soldino Audit, and January 21, 2018, for the Vado Audit), and failed to include any indication in the forms of the date he added his information to the forms or why the information was added. Pickard also falsely indicated in the forms that, at the time of the Soldino and Vado Audits, he had performed various procedures that he, in fact, had not performed, including:

a. evaluating the engagement team's assessment of, and responses to, significant risks, including fraud risks;

b. reviewing the engagement team's evaluation of the Firm's independence in relation to the audit engagements;

c. reviewing the engagement completion documents; and

d. evaluating whether appropriate matters had been communicated on a timely basis (or identified for communication) prior to the issuance of the audit reports to the audit committee, management, and other parties such as regulatory bodies.

Pickard also falsely documented that, for the Vado Audit, he had reviewed the audit report.

26. As a result of the foregoing, Pickard violated AS 1220 and AS 1215.

III.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Kevin F. Pickard, CPA, is barred from being an "associated person of a registered public accounting firm," as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[36]

[36] As a consequence of the bar, the provisions of Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act will apply with respect to Pickard. Section 105(c)(7)(B) provides: "It shall be unlawful for any person that is suspended or barred from being associated with a registered public accounting firm under this subsection willfully to become or remain associated with any issuer, broker, or dealer in an accountancy or a financial management capacity, and for any issuer, broker, or dealer that knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of such suspension or bar, to permit such an association, without the consent of the Board or the Commission."

B. After two years from the date of this Order, Kevin F. Pickard may file a petition, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm;

C. If Kevin F. Pickard is permitted to associate again with a registered public accounting firm, pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(C) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(3), for a period of one year from the date his bar is terminated, his role in any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(a)(v), shall be restricted as follows: Pickard shall not (1) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement partner," as that term is used in AS 1201, Supervision of the Audit Engagement; (2) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as an "engagement quality reviewer," as that term is used in AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review; (3) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as a member of an engagement team; (4) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, in any role that is equivalent to engagement partner, engagement quality reviewer, or engagement team member, but differently denominated (such as "lead partner," "practitioner-in-charge," "concurring partner," or "staff"); (5) exercise authority, or supervise the work of another person exercising authority, either to sign a registered public accounting firm's name to an audit report, or to consent to the use of a previously issued audit report, for any issuer, broker, or dealer; (6) serve, or supervise the work of another person serving, as the "other auditor," or "another auditor," as those terms are used in AS 1205, Part of the Audit Performed by Other Independent Auditors; or (7) serve, or supervise the work of another individual serving, as a professional practice director;

D. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), civil money penalty in the amount of $30,000 is imposed on Kevin F. Pickard. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of these civil money penalties will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Respondent shall pay the foregoing civil money penalty as follows: Respondent shall pay $10,000 within ten days of the issuance of this Order, an additional $6,667 by December 31, 2022, an additional $6,667 by June 30, 2023, and the remaining $6,666 by December 31, 2023, making each payment by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the entity or person as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006. Respondent understands that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may alone be grounds to deny any petition, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm; and

E. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(F) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(6), Kevin F. Pickard is required to complete, before filing a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered firm, 25 hours of professional education and training relating to PCAOB auditing standards and covering, among other topics, professional ethics, audit documentation in accordance with AS 1215, Audit Documentation, and the performance of engagement quality reviews in accordance with AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review (such hours shall be in addition to, and shall not be counted in, the continuing professional education he is required to obtain in connection with any professional license).

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of KPMG Samjong Accounting Corp.,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-012

August 16, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring KPMG Samjong Accounting Corp. ("KPMG Korea," the "Firm," or "Respondent");

(2) imposing a $350,000 civil money penalty upon the Firm; and

(3) requiring the Firm to undertake and certify the completion of certain improvements to its system of quality control.

In ordering these sanctions, the Board took into account the Firm's extraordinary cooperation in this matter, specifically the substantial assistance it provided to the PCAOB's investigation and the disciplinary action it took against individuals it determined had committed misconduct.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that: (1) KPMG Korea failed to comply with PCAOB standards after learning that certain procedures may not have been performed and certain evidence may not have been obtained in connection with an issuer audit; and (2) KPMG Korea's system of quality control failed to provide reasonable assurance that audit documentation would be appropriately assembled for retention and safeguarded from improper alteration.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. KPMG Samjong Accounting Corp. is a limited liability corporation organized under the laws of the Republic of Korea and headquartered in Seoul, Republic of Korea. The Firm is licensed to practice public accountancy by the Korean Financial Services Commission (Registration No. 83). The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. The Firm is a member of the KPMG International Limited network of firms. KPMG Korea audited the financial information for five Korean components of Issuer A for the fiscal year ended September 30, 2017 ("Component Audit").

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

B. Relevant Entities and Individuals

2. The "Component Lead Partner" is a former partner of KPMG Korea. He was the partner responsible for the Firm's work on the Component Audit.[2]

3. The "Engagement Manager" was formerly employed as a director by KPMG Korea. He served as the engagement manager for the Component Audit.[3]

4. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, a Delaware corporation headquartered in Arizona. Issuer A's public filings disclose that it was a specialty materials manufacturer. At all relevant times, Issuer A was an issuer as defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

5. This matter concerns KPMG Korea's failure to take required steps after learning that certain audit procedures may not have been performed and sufficient audit evidence may not have been obtained in connection with an issuer audit. Specifically, after the Component Audit had been completed and the Firm was preparing for a PCAOB inspection, senior KPMG Korea personnel learned that the engagement team for the Component Audit may have failed to perform certain planned procedures for accounts receivable and may have failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence. Indeed, senior members of the Firm learned that significant portions of the engagement team's documentation related to accounts receivable for the Component Audit consisted primarily of prior-year work papers, indicating that audit procedures may not have been performed, evidence may not have been obtained, or appropriate conclusions may not have been reached in the Component Audit. However, the Firm failed to take reasonable steps at the time to determine and demonstrate that sufficient procedures were performed, sufficient evidence was obtained, and appropriate conclusions were reached with respect to relevant assertions for accounts receivable. The Firm thereby violated PCAOB auditing standards.

6. This matter also concerns KPMG Korea's failure to establish and implement appropriate policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that: (1) personnel would assemble for retention ("archive") a complete and final set of audit documentation in connection with each issuer audit; and (2) archived audit documentation would be protected against improper alteration. In particular, the Firm failed to establish appropriate policies and procedures to address the risk that hard-copy work papers might be improperly added to previously archived audit documentation.

D. Respondent Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

i. Background

7. KPMG LLP ("KPMG US") performed an integrated audit of Issuer A for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2017. KPMG US instructed its Korean affiliate, KPMG Korea, to audit the financial information for five Korean components of Issuer A.[4] The Korean components constituted 27% of Issuer A's reported revenue and 23% of Issuer A's reported assets for fiscal year 2017.

8. KPMG US instructed KPMG Korea that, for the Component Audit, audit procedures should be performed and audit documentation should be prepared and retained in accordance with PCAOB standards. KPMG US further instructed the Firm that the five Korean components of Issuer A were, collectively, financially significant and identified revenue as a significant account for the Component Audit. In addition, KPMG US informed the Firm that there was a risk of fraud related to revenue cutoff.

9. At the conclusion of the Component Audit, KPMG Korea sent to KPMG US an interoffice report, which stated that the Component Audit was conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards. It also stated the engagement team had addressed the fraud risk related to revenue cutoff by performing accounts receivable confirmation procedures.

ii. The Firm Failed to Comply with PCAOB Auditing Standards

standards further require the auditor to document procedures performed, evidence obtained, and conclusions reached with respect to relevant financial statement assertions.[7]

11. PCAOB standards also provide that if, after the documentation completion date for an audit,[8] "the auditor becomes aware, as a result of a lack of documentation or otherwise, that audit procedures may not have been performed, evidence may not have been obtained, or appropriate conclusions may not have been reached, the auditor must determine, and if so demonstrate, that sufficient procedures were performed, sufficient evidence was obtained, and appropriate conclusions were reached with respect to the relevant financial statement assertions."[9]

12. On or around September 20, 2018, KPMG Korea's Department of Professional Practice ("DPP") learned that the PCAOB would inspect the Firm and the inspection would include a review of the Component Audit. On or around October 4, 2018, the DPP learned that revenue and accounts receivable would be focus areas for the review of the Component Audit.

13. In preparing for the inspection, members of the DPP and the engagement team reviewed the archived audit documentation for the Component Audit. In the course of the review, members of the DPP learned that audit procedures may not have been performed, evidence may not have been obtained, or appropriate conclusions may not have been reached in connection with the Component Audit. Specifically, DPP members, including multiple partners, learned that, for three of the five Korean components of Issuer A, the accounts receivable documentation consisted primarily of prior-year work papers. The accounts receivable balance for these three components of Issuer A constituted 73% of accounts receivable recorded by the Korean components as of September 30, 2017. The leader of the Firm's DPP ("DPP Leader") was among those who were informed that accounts receivable work papers for the wrong year had been archived in the electronic audit documentation for the Component Audit.

14. Upon becoming aware of the lack of documentation related to accounts receivable, the DPP understood that the Firm needed to determine and, if so, demonstrate that sufficient procedures had been performed, sufficient evidence had been obtained, and appropriate conclusions had been reached with respect to accounts receivable during the Component Audit (the "Determination and Demonstration"). Rather than participating in or monitoring the Determination and Demonstration, however, the DPP relied on the Component Audit engagement team to evaluate the sufficiency of the procedures and evidence, and did not adequately follow up with the engagement team. As a result, the DPP did not learn until after the PCAOB inspection that: (1) the Component Audit engagement team did not conduct an appropriate Determination and Demonstration; and (2) sufficient procedures had not been performed and sufficient audit evidence had not been obtained for accounts receivable during the Component Audit.[10]

15. Given the significance of the issues raised by the Component Audit engagement team's inclusion of prior-year work papers in the audit documentation, the DPP's decision to rely on the team to conduct the Determination and Demonstration, without adequate oversight and follow-up, was unreasonable. The Firm, therefore, violated PCAOB standards.[11]

iii. The Firm Failed to Comply with PCAOB Quality Control Standards

16. PCAOB rules require registered public accounting firms to comply with the Board's quality control standards.[12] PCAOB quality control standards, in turn, require each registered firm to effectively design, implement, and maintain a system of quality control for the firm's accounting and auditing practice.[13] The quality control system should include policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality.[14] Among other areas, a firm's policies and procedures should address the documentation of each engagement in accordance with applicable professional standards.[15]

17. PCAOB standards require an auditor to assemble for retention a complete and final set of audit documentation as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release

[10] The Firm ultimately completed the requisite determination after the Component Audit engagement team's document alterations (described below) came to light during the Board inspection.

date.[16] PCAOB standards also provide that "[a]udit documentation must not be deleted or discarded after the documentation completion date, however, information may be added. Any documentation added must indicate the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding it."[17]

18. At the time of the Component Audit and the PCAOB's 2018 inspection, the Firm lacked sufficient policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that personnel would comply with PCAOB audit documentation requirements. In particular, the Firm's system of quality control failed to provide reasonable assurance that hard-copy work papers, once assembled for retention, would not be improperly altered. As described below, the Component Lead Partner and Engagement Manager exploited the deficiencies in the Firm's system of quality control and improperly added numerous hard-copy work papers to the documentation for the Component Audit shortly in advance of the PCAOB inspection.

19. Specifically, from October 15, 2018 through November 22, 2018, members of the Component Audit engagement team checked out various portions of the hard-copy work papers for the Component Audit on three separate occasions. While the hard-copy work papers were checked out, the Component Lead Partner and Engagement Manager improperly added documents to the archived audit documentation, including documents gathered by Component Audit engagement team members acting at their direction. The late-added documentation included work papers that described accounts receivable testing that was not performed at the time of the Component Audit and a management representation letter. The Component Lead Partner and Engagement Manager also created an independence confirmation that they, and other Component Audit engagement team members acting at the Component Lead Partner's direction, executed in a manner that made it appear as if the independence confirmation had been completed during the Component Audit. These documents were added to the audit documentation shortly before the inspection and more than ten months after the documentation completion date for the Component Audit. In violation of PCAOB standards, these documents did not indicate the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, or the reason for adding it.[18]

20. The Firm's quality control system failed to provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel met applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the Firm's standards of quality. Despite warning signs that document manipulation might occur, including the multiple requests by the Component Audit engagement team to "check out" the hard-copy work papers shortly in advance of the PCAOB inspection, and the previously identified deficiencies in the accounts receivable documentation for the Component Audit, the Firm's system of quality control failed to detect or prevent this misconduct. Accordingly, the Firm violated PCAOB quality control standards.[19]

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer.

In ordering these sanctions, the Board took into account the Firm's extraordinary cooperation in this matter. Specifically, the Firm: (a) provided assistance to the PCAOB's investigation, including by conducting its own internal investigation and sharing the results of that internal investigation with Board staff; and (b) separated from the Firm certain personnel identified by the Firm as responsible for the misconduct. Absent that extraordinary cooperation, the sanctions imposed on the Firm would have been greater.

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), KPMG Korea is censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), the Board imposes a civil money penalty in the amount of US $350,000 upon KPMG Korea. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. KPMG Korea shall pay this civil money penalty within twenty days of the issuance of this Order by: (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter that identifies KPMG Korea as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB Release Number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to the Office

C. Pursuant to Sections 105(c)(4)(F) and (G) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 5300(a)(6) and (9), KPMG Korea is required:

1. within 30 days from the date of this Order, to provide an electronic or paper copy of this Order, together with a Korean language translation, to each of its associated persons;

2. within 90 days from the date of this Order, to establish, revise, or supplement, as necessary, policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that personnel comply with applicable audit documentation requirements and cooperate with PCAOB inspections;

3. within 90 days from the date of this Order, to ensure that all Firm professionals involved in any "audit," as that term is defined in Section 110(1) of the Act, have received 4 hours of additional training concerning compliance with: (i) AS 1215, Audit Documentation; and (ii) PCAOB Rule 4006, Duty to Cooperate with Inspectors;

4. Within 120 days from the date of this Order, to provide a certification, signed by the CEO and the DPP Leader of KPMG Korea, to the Director of the PCAOB's Division of Enforcement and Investigations, stating that the Firm has complied with paragraphs IV.C.1-.3, above. The certification shall identify the actions undertaken to satisfy the conditions specified above (including any remedial actions taken prior to the date of this Order), provide written evidence of compliance in the form of a narrative, and be supported by exhibits sufficient to demonstrate compliance. KPMG Korea shall also submit such additional evidence of, and information concerning, compliance as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request;

5. For two years from the date of this Order, to promptly report to the Board any allegation of improper document alterations in connection with (i) the Firm's system of quality control, (ii) any audit subject to the PCAOB's jurisdiction, or (iii) any PCAOB inspection or investigation; and

6. For two years from the date of this Order, within one week after being notified that the PCAOB will inspect the Firm, to notify its personnel of the inspection and specifically instruct its personnel of their obligation to cooperate with PCAOB inspections, including by not preparing or making available to the PCAOB's inspectors documents containing misleading information, and by not making misleading statements to the PCAOB's inspectors.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Jin Tae Kim,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-013

August 16, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) barring Jin Tae Kim ("Kim" or "Respondent") from being associated with a registered public accounting firm;[1] and

(2) imposing a $50,000 civil money penalty upon Kim.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Kim: (a) violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the audit of an issuer; and (b) failed to cooperate with a Board inspection.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to [1] Kim may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after three (3) years from the date of this Order.

accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Kim and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[2]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[3]

A. Respondent

1. Jin Tae Kim is a member of the Korean Institute of Certified Public Accountants (registration no. 5358). Until March 8, 2019, and at all relevant times, Kim was a partner of KPMG Samjong Accounting Corp. ("KPMG Korea" or "Firm"). Kim was the lead partner for the audit of five Korean components of Issuer A for the fiscal year ended September 30, 2017 ("Component Audit"). At all relevant times, Kim was an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Relevant Entities and Individuals

2. KPMG Korea is a limited liability corporation organized under the laws of the Republic of Korea and headquartered in Seoul, Republic of Korea.[4] The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

[2] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[3] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

[4] See KPMG Samjong Accounting Corp., PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-012 (Aug. 16, 2022).

3. The "Engagement Manager" was formerly employed as a director by KPMG Korea. He served as the engagement manager for the Component Audit.[5]

4. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, a Delaware corporation headquartered in Arizona. Issuer A's public filings disclose that it was a specialty materials manufacturer. At all relevant times, Issuer A was an issuer as defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

5. This matter concerns Kim's violations of PCAOB rules and auditing standards in connection with the Component Audit, and the Board's subsequent review of portions of that audit as part of its 2018 inspection of KPMG Korea. First, Kim failed to properly plan, perform, and supervise the Component Audit. As a result, Kim did not identify that, for three of the five Korean components of Issuer A, the audit documentation that his engagement team prepared relating to accounts receivable confirmations consisted primarily of prior-year work papers.

6. Second, after learning that the complete and final set of audit documentation did not support the existence of accounts receivable and revenue for the three components, Kim failed to determine whether sufficient procedures were performed, sufficient evidence was obtained, and appropriate conclusions were reached with respect to accounts receivable.

7. Third, in advance of the Board's 2018 inspection, Kim, and others acting at his direction, improperly added documentation to the Component Audit work papers in an effort to mislead the Board's inspectors about the work performed at the time of the Component Audit.

8. Finally, Kim also provided misleading information to the Board's inspectors during inspection field work.

D. Respondent Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the Component Audit

9. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[6] Among other things, PCAOB standards require an auditor to exercise due professional care, exercise professional skepticism, and plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the auditor's opinion.[7] As described below, Kim violated these and other PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Component Audit and the Board's subsequent inspection of KPMG Korea.

i. Kim Failed to Properly Plan, Perform, and Supervise the Component Audit

10. KPMG LLP ("KPMG US") performed an integrated audit of Issuer A for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2017. KPMG US instructed its Korean affiliate, KPMG Korea, to audit the financial information for five Korean components of Issuer A.[8] The Korean components constituted 27% of Issuer A's reported revenue and 23% of Issuer A's reported assets for fiscal year 2017. Kim was the partner responsible for KPMG Korea's audit work on the Korean components of Issuer A.

11. KPMG US instructed Kim that audit procedures should be performed and audit documentation for the Component Audit should be prepared and retained in accordance with PCAOB standards. KPMG US further instructed Kim that the five Korean components of Issuer A were, collectively, financially significant and identified revenue as a significant account for the Component Audit. In addition, KPMG US informed Kim that there was a fraud risk related to revenue cutoff.

12. Kim was responsible for the proper supervision of the work of the Component Audit engagement team members and for compliance with PCAOB standards.[9] In fulfilling his responsibilities, Kim could seek assistance from appropriate engagement team members.[10] Kim—along with other engagement team members acting at his direction—was responsible for: informing engagement team members of their responsibilities; directing engagement team members to bring significant accounting and auditing issues to his attention; and reviewing the work of engagement team members to evaluate whether the work was performed and documented, the objectives of the procedures were achieved, and the results of the work supported the conclusions reached.[11] Kim's performance and supervision of the Component Audit failed to comply with PCAOB standards.

13. Kim documented that the engagement team performed accounts receivable confirmation procedures to address the fraud risk related to revenue cutoff. Kim instructed the Engagement Manager to supervise that testing. The Engagement Manager and other engagement team members, however, failed to perform and document procedures sufficient to evaluate the existence of accounts receivable and revenue. In fact, the audit documentation for accounts receivable for three of the five Korean components of Issuer A consisted primarily of work papers from the prior year. The accounts receivable balance for these three components constituted 73% of accounts receivable recorded by Issuer A's Korean components as of September 30, 2017.

14. During the Component Audit, multiple engagement team members signed off as having prepared the accounts receivable audit documentation, and the Engagement Manager signed off as having reviewed that documentation, despite the documentation consisting of prior-year work papers. Kim did not review the engagement team's accounts receivable work, even though that work was intended to address a fraud risk in a significant account.

15. At the conclusion of the Component Audit, Kim sent to KPMG US an interoffice report, which stated that the Component Audit was conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards. It also stated Kim had addressed the fraud risk related to revenue cutoff by performing accounts receivable confirmation procedures. Because Kim and his engagement team had failed to perform the planned confirmation procedures and failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support the Korean components' accounts receivable balances, those statements were inaccurate.

16. In his role as lead partner for the Component Audit, Kim failed to "plan and perform the audit to obtain appropriate audit evidence that is sufficient to support the opinion expressed in the auditor's report."[12] Kim also failed "to evaluate the results of the audit to determine whether the audit evidence obtained [wa]s sufficient and appropriate to support the opinion to be expressed in the auditor's report."[13] Finally, Kim failed to supervise the Component Audit to ensure that work was performed as directed, and supported the conclusions reached.[14]

ii. Kim Failed to Make Required Determinations After Learning that Work May Not Have Been Performed

17. PCAOB standards provide that if, after the documentation completion date for an audit,[15] "the auditor becomes aware, as a result of a lack of documentation or otherwise, that audit procedures may not have been performed, evidence may not have been obtained, or appropriate conclusions may not have been reached, the auditor must determine, and if so demonstrate, that sufficient procedures were performed, sufficient evidence was obtained, and appropriate conclusions were reached with respect to the relevant financial statement assertions."[16]

18. On or around September 20, 2018, Kim learned that the PCAOB had selected the Component Audit as one of the engagements it would review as part of the 2018 inspection of KPMG Korea. On or around October 4, 2018, Kim learned that revenue and accounts receivable would be focus areas for the inspectors' review of the Component Audit.

19. In preparing for the inspection, Kim reviewed the complete and final set of audit documentation for the Component Audit. In the course of that review, he realized that, for three of the five Korean components of Issuer A, the accounts receivable documentation consisted primarily of prior-year work papers. After discovering the issue, Kim failed to take any steps to determine whether, during the Component Audit, sufficient procedures had been performed, sufficient evidence had been obtained, and appropriate conclusions had been reached with respect to accounts receivable. Accordingly, he violated PCAOB standards.[17]

iii. Kim Improperly Altered Audit Documentation and Failed to Cooperate with the Board's Inspection

20. PCAOB Rule 4006 states, in part: "Every registered public accounting firm, and every associated person of a registered public accounting firm, shall cooperate with the Board

15 See AS 1215.15, Audit Documentation (defining documentation completion date as a date not more than 45 days after auditor releases an audit report).

17 See id.

in the performance of any Board inspection."[18] "Implicit in this cooperation requirement is that auditors provide accurate and truthful information" to the Board's inspectors.[19]

21. PCAOB standards require an auditor to assemble for retention a complete and final set of audit documentation as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date.[20] PCAOB standards also provide that "[a]udit documentation must not be deleted or discarded after the documentation completion date, however, information may be added. Any documentation added must indicate the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding it."[21]

22. As noted above, Kim conducted a review of the work papers for the Component Audit after learning that the engagement would be reviewed during the PCAOB inspection. As a result of that review, Kim noted the issue with the accounts receivable work; he also came to understand that the audit documentation did not include a management representation letter or an independence confirmation.

23. In response to those discoveries, Kim and the Engagement Manager improperly added work papers to the documentation for the Component Audit. First, with Kim's knowledge and approval, the Engagement Manager: (a) created work papers documenting accounts receivable testing that was not performed at the time of the Component Audit; and (b) improperly added those work papers to the audit documentation. Second, the Engagement Manager, acting at Kim's direction, improperly added a management representation letter to the audit documentation. Third, Kim and the Engagement Manager created an independence confirmation and executed it in a manner that made it appear as if the independence confirmation had been completed during the Component Audit. Kim then directed other available engagement team members to execute the independence confirmation and, to the extent that other engagement team members were unavailable, Kim and the Engagement Manager added signatures appearing to be from the unavailable engagement team members. Kim and the Engagement Manager improperly added the newly created independence confirmation to the audit documentation.

24. None of these documents, which were added to the audit documentation shortly before the inspection and more than ten months after the documentation completion date for the Component Audit, indicated the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, or the reason for adding it, in violation of PCAOB standards.[22]

25. The Board's inspectors began field work in early December 2018. During field work, the inspectors met with Kim and other KPMG Korea auditors and asked about certain aspects of the audit documentation, including audit documentation that appeared to be for procedures performed in connection with the prior-year audit.

26. In response, Kim represented to the inspectors that additional accounts receivable work was documented and included in hard-copy work papers that had not yet been provided to the inspectors. Neither Kim nor anyone else on the engagement team, however, disclosed to the inspectors that they had improperly added accounts receivable work papers to the audit documentation shortly before the inspection.

27. Kim's actions—including instructing others to improperly add newly created and backdated work papers to the complete and final set of audit documentation, and providing misleading information to the Board's inspectors—violated PCAOB audit documentation standards and constituted a failure to cooperate with a PCAOB inspection.[23]

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Kim is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[24]

Respondent shall pay this civil money penalty within twenty days of the issuance of this Order by: (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter that identifies Kim as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB Release Number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to the Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006. Respondent understands that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may alone be grounds to deny any petition, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Se Woon Jung,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-014

August 16, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) barring Se Woon Jung ("Jung" or "Respondent") from being associated with a registered public accounting firm;[1] and

(2) imposing a $40,000 civil money penalty upon Jung.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Jung: (a) violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the audit of an issuer; and (b) failed to cooperate with a Board inspection.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to [1] Jung may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after three (3) years from the date of this Order.

accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Jung and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[2]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[3]

A. Respondent

1. Se Woon Jung is a member of the Korean Institute of Certified Public Accountants (registration no. 10540). Until March 8, 2019, and at all relevant times, Jung was a director employed by KPMG Samjong Accounting Corp. ("KPMG Korea" or "Firm"). Jung served as the engagement manager for the audit of five Korean components of Issuer A for the fiscal year ended September 30, 2017 ("Component Audit"). At all relevant times, Jung was an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Relevant Entities and Individuals

2. KPMG Korea is a limited liability corporation organized under the laws of the Republic of Korea and headquartered in Seoul, Republic of Korea.[4] The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

[2] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[3] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

[4] See KPMG Samjong Accounting Corp., PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-012 (Aug. 16, 2022).

3. The "Component Lead Partner" is a former partner of KPMG Korea. He was the partner responsible for the Firm's work on the Component Audit.[5]

4. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, a Delaware corporation headquartered in Arizona. Issuer A's public filings disclose that it was a specialty materials manufacturer. At all relevant times, Issuer A was an issuer as defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

5. This matter concerns Jung's violations of PCAOB rules and auditing standards in connection with the Component Audit and the Board's subsequent review of portions of that audit as part of its 2018 inspection of KPMG Korea. First, during the Component Audit, Jung failed to properly perform and supervise the Firm's audit work on accounts receivable. As a result, Jung did not identify that, for three of the five Korean components of Issuer A, the audit documentation that the engagement team prepared related to accounts receivable confirmations consisted primarily of prior-year work papers.

6. Second, in advance of the Board's 2018 inspection, Jung improperly added documentation to the Component Audit work papers in an effort to mislead the Board's inspectors about the work performed at the time of the Component Audit.

7. Finally, Jung also provided misleading information to the inspectors during inspection field work.

D. Respondent Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the Audit Procedures for Accounts Receivable

8. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[6] Among other things, PCAOB standards require an auditor to exercise due professional care, exercise professional skepticism, and plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the auditor's opinion.[7] As described below, Jung violated these and other PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Component Audit and the Board's subsequent inspection of KPMG Korea.

i. Jung Failed to Properly Perform and Supervise the Audit Procedures for Accounts Receivable

9. KPMG LLP ("KPMG US") performed an integrated audit of Issuer A for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2017. KPMG US instructed its Korean affiliate, KPMG Korea, to audit the financial information for five Korean components of Issuer A.[8] The Korean components constituted 27% of Issuer A's reported revenue and 23% of Issuer A's reported assets for fiscal year 2017. KPMG Korea's engagement team was led by the Component Lead Partner. Jung served as the engagement manager on the KPMG Korea engagement team.

10. KPMG US instructed KPMG Korea that audit procedures should be performed and audit documentation for the Component Audit should be prepared and retained in accordance with PCAOB standards. KPMG US further instructed KPMG Korea that the five Korean components of Issuer A were, collectively, financially significant and identified revenue as a significant account for the Component Audit. In addition, KPMG US informed KPMG Korea that there was a fraud risk related to revenue cutoff. Jung was aware of these instructions at the time of the Component Audit.

11. Engagement team members, including Jung, who assisted the Component Lead Partner with supervision of the work of other engagement team members, were required to comply with the supervision requirements of PCAOB standards with respect to their assigned responsibilities.[9] In the areas Jung was responsible for supervising, he was required to review the work of engagement team members to evaluate whether the work was performed and documented, the objectives of the procedures were achieved, and the results of the work supported the conclusions reached.[10] Jung's supervision of the audit procedures for accounts receivable failed to comply with PCAOB standards.

12. KPMG Korea documented that it performed accounts receivable confirmation procedures to address the fraud risk related to revenue cutoff. The Component Lead Partner instructed Jung to supervise that testing. Jung and other engagement team members acting under his supervision, however, failed to perform and document procedures sufficient to evaluate the existence of accounts receivable and revenue. In fact, the audit documentation for accounts receivable for three of the five Korean components of Issuer A consisted primarily of work papers from the prior year. The accounts receivable balance for these three components constituted 73% of accounts receivable recorded by Issuer A's Korean components as of September 30, 2017.

13. During the Component Audit, multiple engagement team members working under Jung's supervision signed off as having prepared the accounts receivable audit documentation, and Jung signed off as having reviewed that documentation, despite the documentation consisting of prior-year work papers. Jung's acceptance of prior-year work papers to support current-year accounts receivable balances constituted a failure to exercise due professional care, a failure to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence, and a failure to appropriately fulfill his supervision responsibilities, in violation of PCAOB standards.[11]

14. At the conclusion of the Component Audit, Jung assisted in finalizing KPMG Korea's interoffice report. Jung then sent to KPMG US an interoffice report, which stated that the Component Audit was conducted in accordance with PCAOB standards. It also stated that the engagement team had addressed the fraud risk related to revenue cutoff by performing accounts receivable confirmation procedures. In light of Jung's violation of PCAOB standards, those statements were inaccurate.

ii. Jung Improperly Altered Audit Documentation and Failed to Cooperate with the Board's Inspection

15. PCAOB Rule 4006 states, in part: "Every registered public accounting firm, and every associated person of a registered public accounting firm, shall cooperate with the Board

[11] See AS 1015.01 and .07; AS 1105.04; AS 1201.05; see also AS 2810.33, Evaluating Audit Results (as part of evaluating audit results, the auditor must conclude on whether sufficient appropriate audit evidence has been obtained to support the audit opinion).

in the performance of any Board inspection."[12] "Implicit in this cooperation requirement is that auditors provide accurate and truthful information" to the Board's inspectors.[13]

16. PCAOB standards require an auditor to assemble for retention a complete and final set of audit documentation as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date.[14] PCAOB standards also provide that "[a]udit documentation must not be deleted or discarded after the documentation completion date, however, information may be added. Any documentation added must indicate the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding it."[15]

17. In late September 2018, Jung learned that the Component Audit would be inspected by the PCAOB. On or around October 4, 2018, Jung learned that revenue and accounts receivable would be focus areas for the inspectors' review of the Component Audit.

18. To prepare for the inspection, Jung participated in a review of the work papers for the Component Audit. As a result of that review, Jung noted the issue with the accounts receivable work; he also came to understand that KPMG Korea's documentation for the Component Audit did not include a management representation letter or an independence confirmation.

19. In response to those discoveries, Jung and the Component Lead Partner improperly added work papers to the documentation for the Component Audit. First, Jung: (a) created work papers documenting accounts receivable testing that was not performed at the time of the Component Audit; and (b) improperly added those work papers to the audit documentation. Second, Jung improperly added a management representation letter to the audit documentation. Third, Jung and the Component Lead Partner created an independence confirmation and executed it in a manner that made it appear as if the independence confirmation had been completed during the Component Audit. The Component Lead Partner then directed other available engagement team members to execute the independence confirmation and, to the extent that other engagement team members were unavailable, Jung and the Component Lead Partner added signatures appearing to be from the unavailable engagement team members. Jung and the Component Lead Partner improperly added the newly created independence confirmation to the audit documentation.

20. None of these documents, which were added to the audit documentation shortly before the inspection and more than ten months after the documentation completion date for the Component Audit, indicated the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, or the reason for adding it, in violation of PCAOB standards.[16]

21. The Board's inspectors began field work in early-December 2018. During field work, the inspectors met with Jung and other KPMG Korea auditors and asked about certain aspects of the audit documentation, including audit documentation that appeared to be for procedures performed in connection with the prior-year audit.

22. In response, Jung represented to the inspectors that additional accounts receivable work was documented and included in hard-copy work papers that had not yet been provided to the inspectors. Neither Jung nor anyone else on the engagement team, however, disclosed to the inspectors that they had improperly added accounts receivable work papers to the audit documentation shortly before the inspection.

23. Jung's actions—including improperly adding newly created and backdated work papers to the complete and final set of audit documentation, and providing misleading information to the Board's inspectors—violated PCAOB audit documentation standards, and constituted a failure to cooperate with a PCAOB inspection.[17]

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of KPMG Inc., Cornelis Van Niekerk, and Coenraad Basson,

Respondents.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-015

August 29, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) imposing civil money penalties in the amounts of $200,000 on KPMG Inc. ("KPMG-SA"), $50,000 on Cornelis Van Niekerk ("Van Niekerk"),[1] and $25,000 on Coenraad Basson ("Basson");

(2) requiring KPMG-SA to undertake and certify the completion of certain improvements to its system of quality control;

(3) barring Van Niekerk from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm;[2] and

(4) suspending Basson from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm for a period of one year from the date of this Order.

In this Order, KPMG-SA, Van Niekerk, and Basson are collectively referred to as "Respondents." The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of Respondents' conduct in connection with KPMG-SA's use of audit work performed by KPMG Chartered Accountants Zimbabwe ("KPMG-Zimbabwe"), a firm that was not registered with the Board and played a substantial role in KPMG-SA's 2015 through 2017 audits of Issuer A. Specifically, the Board finds that KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk failed to reasonably supervise KPMG-Zimbabwe under the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and that Respondents violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the audits of Issuer A.

[1] Based on his conduct, Van Niekerk's civil money penalty in this settlement would have been $100,000. The Board determined to accept Van Niekerk's offer of settlement and impose a lower penalty after considering Van Niekerk's financial resources.

[2] Van Niekerk may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Respondents pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 5200(a)(1) and (2).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have each submitted an Offer of Settlement (collectively, the "Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Respondents each consent to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[3]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds[4] that:

A. Respondents

1. KPMG Inc. is an incorporated company organized under the laws of the Republic of South Africa with headquarters in Johannesburg, South Africa. KPMG-SA is a member firm of

[3] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[4] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

the KPMG global organization of independent member firms affiliated with KPMG International Limited ("KPMG International Network"). KPMG-SA registered with the Board on May 19, 2004.

2. Cornelis Van Niekerk was, at all relevant times, a partner of KPMG-SA and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). He served as the engagement partner for KPMG-SA's audits of Issuer A's 2015, 2016, and 2017 financial statements.

3. Coenraad Basson was, at all relevant times, a partner of KPMG-SA and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). He served as the engagement quality reviewer for KPMG-SA's audits of Issuer A's 2015, 2016, and 2017 financial statements.

B. Other Relevant Entities

4. KPMG Chartered Accountants Zimbabwe is a firm organized under the laws of Zimbabwe and headquartered in Harare, Zimbabwe. KPMG-Zimbabwe is a member firm in the KPMG International Network. KPMG-Zimbabwe has never been registered with the Board. At all relevant times, KPMG-Zimbabwe was a public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(11) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(iii), and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). At all relevant times, KPMG-Zimbabwe was also the statutory auditor of Subsidiary X (as defined below).

5. Issuer A was a Channel Islands corporation and an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). Issuer A's largest subsidiary ("Subsidiary X") represented 100% of Issuer A's consolidated revenues and approximately 85-95% of its consolidated assets from 2015 through 2017.

C. Summary

6. KPMG-SA's use of an unregistered firm, KPMG-Zimbabwe, during the 2013 and 2014 audits of Issuer A was the subject of a U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") enforcement order against the firm, dated March 13, 2018. Despite being on notice that KPMG-Zimbabwe's participation in the Issuer A audits potentially implicated regulatory issues, Respondents failed to take appropriate steps to assure that KPMG-Zimbabwe's participation in the 2015 through 2017 audits of Issuer A would be consistent with PCAOB registration requirements.

7. Moreover, when it came to Respondents' attention near the end of the 2017 audit that KPMG-Zimbabwe's audit hours may have exceeded the threshold requiring registration with the Board, they responded by using a series of unreasonable adjustments to reduce KPMG-Zimbabwe's hours by 77%. KPMG-SA relied on the downward-adjusted hours to conclude that KPMG-Zimbabwe had not exceeded the PCAOB registration threshold.

8. KPMG-SA then reported KPMG-Zimbabwe's audit hours as 17% of the total audit hours in its Form AP filing with respect to the firm's 2017 Issuer A audit report.

9. Due to their failures to adequately supervise, plan, and review KPMG-Zimbabwe's participation in the 2015 through 2017 audits, Respondents failed to reasonably supervise an associated person under the Act and violated PCAOB rules and standards.

D. Background Concerning the Audits of Issuer A

10. KPMG-SA served as Issuer A's auditor for the 2013 through 2017 fiscal years. During those same years, KPMG-Zimbabwe served as the statutory auditor for certain subsidiaries of Issuer A, including Subsidiary X. KPMG-SA used KPMG-Zimbabwe's audit work with respect to Subsidiary X during its audits of Issuer A's 2013 through 2017 financial statements.

i. The 2013 and 2014 Audits

11. During the 2013 and 2014 Issuer A audits, KPMG-SA used the work and inter-firm reporting of KPMG-Zimbabwe, which audited the financial statements of Subsidiary X pursuant to AS 1205, Part of Audit Performed by Other Independent Auditors (formerly AU § 543).[5] KPMG-SA issued its 2013 and 2014 audit reports for Issuer A on May 15, 2014, and March 27, 2015, respectively.

12. In the months following its issuance of the 2014 audit report, KPMG-SA and KPMG-Zimbabwe learned that the Commission had commenced an investigation into the 2013

[5] As of December 31, 2016, the PCAOB reorganized its auditing standards using a topical structure and a single, integrated numbering system. See Reorganization of PCAOB Auditing Standards and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards and Rules, PCAOB Release No. 2015- 002 (Mar. 31, 2015); see also PCAOB Auditing Standards Reorganized and Pre-Reorganized Numbering (January 2017). The reorganization did not impose additional requirements on auditors or change substantively the requirements of PCAOB standards. While Respondents' conduct occurred both before and after the reorganization, the reorganized standards are cited herein for purposes of clarity.

and 2014 audits of Issuer A. KPMG-SA and KPMG-Zimbabwe ultimately submitted offers of settlement in connection with the Commission's investigation in late 2017.

13. On March 13, 2018, the Commission issued: (1) an order sanctioning KPMG-SA for, inter alia, failing to comply with AS 1205 and AS 1015, Due Professional Care in the Performance of Work (formerly AU § 230),[6] in using the audit work of an unregistered firm, KPMG-Zimbabwe, that played a substantial role in the 2013 and 2014 audits of Issuer A;[7] and (2) an order sanctioning KPMG-Zimbabwe for playing a substantial role, without being registered with the Board (in violation of Section 102 of the Act), in the preparation of KPMG-SA's 2013 and 2014 Issuer A audit reports.[8]

ii. The 2015 Through 2017 Audits

14. KPMG-SA changed its approach to the audit of Issuer A beginning with the 2015 fiscal year.

15. KPMG-SA continued serving as Issuer A's auditor for the 2015 through 2017 fiscal years, and KPMG-Zimbabwe continued to be responsible for the statutory audit of Subsidiary X. KPMG-SA also continued to use KPMG-Zimbabwe's audit work with respect to Subsidiary X. However, KPMG-SA began supervising KPMG-Zimbabwe's work under AS 1201, Supervision of the Audit Engagement (formerly AS No. 10), instead of using the work and inter-firm reporting of KPMG-Zimbabwe under AS 1205.

16. With respect to the 2015 and 2016 audits, KPMG-SA's work papers documented that "KPMG Zimbabwe performed the audit of [Subsidiary X] under the direction and supervision of [KPMG-SA]." With respect to the 2017 audit, KPMG-SA documented that "KPMG Zimbabwe was engaged to assist [KPMG-SA] with the performance of the audit field work as part of KPMG Zimbabwe's engagement to audit the statutory annual financial statements as at 31 December 2017."

17. KPMG-SA's work papers further documented that engagement partner Van Niekerk and the KPMG-Zimbabwe engagement partner for the statutory audits of Subsidiary X ("Zimbabwe Partner") were the "responsible partner[s]" for the 2015 through 2017 Subsidiary X audits. In addition to the Zimbabwe Partner, a manager and several junior audit staff from KPMG-Zimbabwe also worked on the 2015 through 2017 Subsidiary X audits, along with certain KPMG-SA personnel.

18. During each of these audits, KPMG-Zimbabwe prepared and reviewed most of the work papers with respect to the Subsidiary X audit. At least one KPMG-SA partner or manager then reviewed nearly all of the work papers prepared by KPMG-Zimbabwe.

19. KPMG-SA issued audit reports on Issuer A's 2015, 2016, and 2017 financial statements on March 30, 2016, March 30, 2017, and March 29, 2018, respectively. These audit reports were included in Form 20-Fs that Issuer A filed with the Commission.

a. KPMG-Zimbabwe's Substantial Role in the 2015 and 2016 Audits

20. KPMG-SA's 2015 and 2016 work paper files each included a memorandum, reviewed by Van Niekerk, that noted KPMG-Zimbabwe was not registered with the PCAOB and "if a component auditor plays a substantial role in the performance of the group [Issuer A] audit, that component auditor is required to be registered with the PCAOB."[9] The memorandum went on to state that KPMG-SA would perform "additional reviews" of KPMG-Zimbabwe's work and be involved in the "direction/planning, supervision and performance of [9] Section 102(a) of the Act requires an accounting firm that "prepare[s] or issue[s], or [that] participate[s] in the preparation or issuance of, any audit report with respect to any issuer, broker, or dealer" to register with the Board. 15 U.S.C. § 7212(a). Section 106(a)(2) of the Act provides that "[t]he Board may, by rule, determine that a foreign public accounting firm (or a class of such firms) . . . plays such a substantial role in the preparation and furnishing of such reports for particular issuers, brokers, or dealers, that it is necessary or appropriate, in light of the purposes of this Act and in the public interest or for the protection of investors, that such firm (or class of firms) should be treated as a public accounting firm (or firms) for purposes of registration under, and oversight by the Board in accordance with, this subchapter." 15 U.S.C. § 7216(a)(2). PCAOB Rule 2100, Registration Requirements for Public Accounting Firms, requires an accounting firm that "plays a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an audit report with respect to any issuer" to register with the Board. Thus, by virtue of Section 106(a)(2) and Rule 2100, Section 102(a) is applicable to foreign accounting firms that play a substantial role in an issuer audit.

PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(ii) defines the phrase "play a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an audit report" to include, among other things, the performance of "material services that a public accounting firm uses or relies on in issuing all or part of its audit report." See PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(ii)(1). Note 1 to the rule defines "material services" to mean "services, for which the engagement hours or fees constitute 20% or more of the total engagement hours or fees, respectively, provided by the principal auditor in connection with the issuance of all or part of its audit report."

the [Subsidiary X] audit." The memorandum further stated that KPMG-SA would "take responsibility of the [Subsidiary X] audit file."

21. While they changed KPMG-SA's audit approach to supervise KPMG-Zimbabwe's work, KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk failed during the 2015 and 2016 audits to perform adequate analysis in support of their view that KPMG-SA's supervision of the Subsidiary X audit work performed by KPMG-Zimbabwe would obviate any substantial role issue.[10]

22. Specifically, during the 2015 and 2016 audits, KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk did not document any consideration of the "substantial role" definition in PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(ii) or the note thereto indicating that a firm plays a substantial role if it incurs more than 20% of the total audit hours or fees.

23. KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk also failed to adequately perform planning to ensure that KPMG-Zimbabwe's 2015 or 2016 audit hours and fees would be less than 20% of the total hours and fees. KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk failed to perform any analysis of the hours or fees that they expected to be, or that actually were, incurred by KPMG-Zimbabwe during the 2015 and 2016 audits.

24. KPMG-Zimbabwe's audit hours and fees in connection with the 2015 and 2016 audits of Issuer A ultimately exceeded 20% of the total audit hours and fees, respectively.

b. KPMG-Zimbabwe's Substantial Role in the 2017 Audit

25. On December 14, 2017, Basson sent Van Niekerk an excerpt of guidance concerning the 20% hours and fees threshold for substantial role purposes.

26. Van Niekerk forwarded Basson's email to the Zimbabwe Partner and stated that, in connection with the upcoming 2017 Issuer A audit, "the audit fees/hours of KPMG Zimbabwe should NOT exceed 20%." Van Niekerk proposed that KPMG-SA and KPMG-Zimbabwe should revise how they split the Issuer A audit fee such that KPMG-Zimbabwe's fee would fall below the 20% substantial role threshold.

27. KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk, however, did not take additional steps to estimate or project KPMG-Zimbabwe's expected audit hours. KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk did not otherwise perform specific planning procedures to ensure that KPMG-Zimbabwe's hours would remain below the 20% substantial role threshold.

28. On March 13, 2018, the Commission issued its orders sanctioning KPMG-SA and KPMG-Zimbabwe. The same day, Basson requested that Van Niekerk "prepare a final memo to conclude that KPMG Zim[babwe] did not play a substantial role on the [Issuer A] audit." Basson stated the "key criteria" was that KPMG-Zimbabwe's fees or hours could not exceed the 20% substantial role threshold. Basson further stated: "This is important as the AP forms are due soon after signing of the opinion and will require this year that the hours of all participating offices, ie KPMG Zim[babwe] be disclosed."

29. Three days later, Van Niekerk asked the Zimbabwe Partner to "provide us with the hours spent on [Subsidiary X], split between group reporting and statutory audit." The term "group reporting" referred to the consolidated Issuer A audit that was required to be performed in accordance with PCAOB standards, as opposed to the Subsidiary X statutory audit that was not performed under PCAOB standards.

30. At the time of Van Niekerk's March 16 email, the majority of the 2017 Issuer A audit had been completed.

31. On March 19, the Zimbabwe Partner sent Van Niekerk a spreadsheet showing an estimated allocation of 30% of KPMG-Zimbabwe's hours to the Issuer A audit and 70% to the Subsidiary X statutory audit, with minor adjustments made for certain individuals. The Zimbabwe Partner's spreadsheet resulted in an allocation of 463 hours to the Issuer A audit and 1,270 hours to the statutory audit. The Zimbabwe Partner's spreadsheet stated that the statutory audit allocation "reflect[ed] the hour[s] to complete the statutory audit," while the Issuer A hours allocation reflected "an incremental amount considered to be relevant for additional documentation" for the Issuer A audit. Thus, the Zimbabwe Partner's spreadsheet excluded from KPMG-Zimbabwe's Issuer A audit hours any work performed for the statutory audit, even though some of the statutory audit work also was used for the Issuer A audit.

32. On March 22, Van Niekerk sent the Zimbabwe Partner an email advising him that "[w]e are faced with a significant problem in that the hours worked by the Zimbabwe team members far exceed the 20% threshold even if we assume that only 30% of their time was spent on group reporting."

33. Later that same day, a KPMG-SA engagement team member sent Van Niekerk a new analysis, distinct from the hours allocation in the spreadsheet previously sent by the Zimbabwe Partner. The new analysis reduced KPMG-Zimbabwe's total hours based on several factors, including KPMG-SA's own estimates of time that KPMG-Zimbabwe spent on statutory audit work that was outside the scope of the Issuer A audit and of purported "non-productive" time included in KPMG-Zimbabwe's recorded hours. This new analysis showed KPMG-Zimbabwe's hours at 26%, and the engagement team member told Van Niekerk that he would "work on it tomorrow morning and see if I can work out the last 6%."

34. The engagement team member next excluded time that he estimated KPMG-Zimbabwe had spent on audit procedures that were not required for the Issuer A audit. The engagement team member then updated Van Niekerk that he was "finding it difficult now, I have reduced the ZIM hours to 24% as it stands."

35. On March 26, Van Niekerk sent KPMG-SA's hours analysis to the Zimbabwe Partner, noting that KPMG-Zimbabwe's hours "should not be more than 20% (Currently 24%)." He noted that "[w]e are still 69 hours short."

36. Van Niekerk also advised the Zimbabwe Partner that he had adjusted KPMG-Zimbabwe's hours based on "the following arguments": (1) a reduction for statutory audit work on Issuer A affiliates that were "not relevant for group reporting"; (2) a reduction for all of the Zimbabwe Partner's non-tax hours; (3) a reduction for the "excess time" recorded by KPMG-Zimbabwe based on the difference in average time per work paper recorded by KPMG-Zimbabwe and the average time per work paper recorded by KPMG-SA; and (4) a reduction for "[c]ertain activities" that were completed only for purposes of the Subsidiary X statutory audit.

37. KPMG-SA subsequently removed the time charged by a KPMG-Zimbabwe manager who worked on the Subsidiary X statutory audit. On March 27, Van Niekerk sent the "updated" hours analysis to the Zimbabwe Partner. Van Niekerk wrote that "[w]e are within the 20% threshold based on the calculation . . . Can you please review and let me have you[r] approval."

38. On March 28, Van Niekerk emailed the KPMG-SA hours analysis to Basson. Van Niekerk told Basson that the Zimbabwe Partner "wants to discuss" because he "cannot seem to agree with the non-productive hours." The "non-productive hours" were calculated based on the assumption that it should have taken KPMG-Zimbabwe the same amount of time to prepare a work paper as KPMG-SA, regardless of the amount of testing performed or documentation involved in the preparation of each work paper.[11]

[11] KPMG-SA justified this assumption, in part, on the belief that the KPMG-Zimbabwe team had charged all of its weekend hours while located onsite at the client, potentially including hours that they may not have actually been working on the audit.

39. That same day, Van Niekerk, Basson, and the Zimbabwe Partner participated in a conference call concerning KPMG-SA's hours analysis. KPMG-SA issued its audit report for Issuer A the following day.

40. About two weeks later, on April 11, Van Niekerk emailed the Zimbabwe Partner, copying Basson, and asked that he "[p]lease let me have the [Subsidiary X] hours following your review and analysis as was resolved on the conference call. We need to submit the AP form by Tuesday next week."

41. The Zimbabwe Partner sent Van Niekerk a revised analysis that reclassified a portion of the non-productive hours adjustment to a new adjustment for KPMG-Zimbabwe's travel time in connection with the audit. The Zimbabwe Partner also attempted to justify the non-productive hours adjustment by noting that KPMG-Zimbabwe personnel were subject to "delays in receiving information" from Subsidiary X.

42. Based on the approach agreed to by Van Niekerk, Basson, and the Zimbabwe Partner on March 28 and the revised analysis provided by the Zimbabwe Partner, the KPMG-SA engagement team ultimately prepared a work paper calculating KPMG-Zimbabwe's percentage of the Issuer A audit hours. The work paper documented six categories of downward adjustments that Respondents used to effect a three-quarters reduction in the number of hours originally recorded by KPMG-Zimbabwe (from 1,733 hours to 402 hours).

43. Absent these adjustments, KPMG-Zimbabwe's audit hours would have significantly exceeded 20% of the total audit hours.

44. Respondents lacked an objectively reasonable basis for or means of calculating the adjustments that they used to reduce KPMG-Zimbabwe's audit hours.

45. Nevertheless, the KPMG-SA engagement team prepared, and Van Niekerk signed off on, a work paper concluding that KPMG-Zimbabwe did not perform material services, and thus did not "trigger the 'substantial role' definition," based on KPMG-SA's calculation that KPMG-Zimbabwe's adjusted hours and fees each fell below the 20% substantial role threshold.

46. On April 19, 2018, KPMG-SA filed a Form AP with respect to its 2017 Issuer A audit report and reported that KPMG-Zimbabwe had incurred 17% of the total 2017 Issuer A audit hours.[12]

E. KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk Failed to Reasonably Supervise KPMG-Zimbabwe and Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards During the 2015 Through 2017 Audits of Issuer A

47. During the 2015 and 2016 audits of Issuer A, KPMG-Zimbabwe incurred hours and fees that exceeded 20% of the total audit hours and fees. During the 2017 audit of Issuer A, KPMG-Zimbabwe again exceeded 20% of the total audit hours. Accordingly, KPMG-Zimbabwe played a substantial role in each of the 2015 through 2017 audits without being registered with the Board, in violation of Section 102(a) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 2100.

48. KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk failed to reasonably supervise or plan KPMG-Zimbabwe's participation in the 2015 through 2017 audits in a manner designed to avoid violations of Section 102(a) and PCAOB Rule 2100. Moreover, during his engagement quality review, Basson failed to appropriately evaluate the failure to adequately plan the 2017 audit, despite being aware of the reductions made to KPMG-Zimbabwe's hours. Their conduct fell short of their obligation to reasonably supervise KPMG-Zimbabwe and violated PCAOB rules and standards.

i. KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk Failed to Reasonably Supervise KPMG-Zimbabwe

49. Section 105(c)(6) of the Act provides that the Board may impose sanctions on a registered accounting firm or upon the firm's supervisory personnel, if the Board finds that (1) the firm has failed to reasonably supervise an associated person, either as required by the rules of the Board relating to auditing or quality control standards, or otherwise, with a view to preventing violations of the Act or the rules of the Board; and (2) such associated person commits a violation of the Act or Board rules.

50. Under Section 2(a)(9) of the Act, the term "person associated with a registered public accounting firm" includes "any . . . entity that, in connection with the preparation or issuance of any audit report—(i) shares in the profits of, or receives compensation in any other form from, that firm; or (ii) participates as agent or otherwise on behalf of such accounting firm in any activity of that firm." Because it performed audit work at the direction, and under the supervision, of KPMG-SA, KPMG-Zimbabwe acted as an "entity that, in connection with the preparation or issuance of [the Issuer A] audit report[,] . . . participate[d] as agent or otherwise on behalf of [KPMG-SA]." Accordingly, KPMG-Zimbabwe was an "associated person" of KPMG-SA during the 2015 through 2017 audits.

51. KPMG-SA had a responsibility to reasonably supervise its associated persons during the 2015 through 2017 Issuer A audits. Likewise, Van Niekerk, as the engagement partner, had supervisory responsibility and was a supervisory person of KPMG-SA for those audits. KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk knew that the Commission was investigating KPMG-Zimbabwe's participation in the 2013 and 2014 audits.

52. KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk failed to reasonably supervise KPMG-Zimbabwe during the 2015 and 2016 audits of Issuer A with a view to preventing violations of the mandatory registration requirement set forth in Section 102(a) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 2100. Rather, they allowed KPMG-Zimbabwe, while unregistered, to play a substantial role in the 2015 and 2016 audits without performing an analysis of the mandatory registration requirement or taking adequate steps to ensure that KPMG-Zimbabwe's participation in the audit would not constitute a substantial role.

53. By the time of the 2017 audit of Issuer A, KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk knew that KPMG-SA had submitted an offer of settlement to the Commission that included sanctions against the firm for its reliance on KPMG-Zimbabwe's work in the 2013 and 2014 audits. During the 2017 audit, they also became aware that the Commission had issued an order accepting KPMG-SA's offer of settlement and imposing the sanctions. Yet KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk failed to reasonably supervise KPMG-Zimbabwe during the 2017 audit with a view to preventing violations of the registration requirement.

54. Specifically, KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk allowed KPMG-Zimbabwe to play a substantial role in the 2017 audit without taking adequate steps to conduct the audit in a manner that ensured KPMG-Zimbabwe would not violate PCAOB registration requirements. Moreover, upon becoming aware that KPMG-Zimbabwe's recorded hours exceeded the 20% substantial role threshold, KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk engaged in an outcome-driven exercise that yielded unreasonable downward adjustments to KPMG-Zimbabwe's hours.

55. Because KPMG-Zimbabwe incurred more than 20% of the total audit hours and fees during the 2015 and 2016 audits, and more than 20% of the total audit hours during the 2017 audit, KPMG-Zimbabwe performed material services used by KPMG-SA in issuing its audit reports. KPMG-Zimbabwe therefore violated Section 102(a) and Rule 2100 by playing a substantial role in the 2015 through 2017 audits without being registered with the Board.

56. Accordingly, KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk failed to reasonably supervise KPMG-Zimbabwe under Section 105(c)(6) of the Act with respect to the nature of KPMG-Zimbabwe's participation in the 2015 through 2017 audits of Issuer A.

ii. KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

57. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[13]

58. PCAOB standards provide that, as part of audit planning, the auditor should establish an overall audit strategy.[14] The auditor should take into account "[t]he factors that are significant in directing the activities of the engagement team" and "[t]he nature, timing, and extent of resources necessary to perform the engagement."[15] "The auditor should modify the overall audit strategy and the audit plan as necessary if circumstances change significantly during the course of the audit."[16] PCAOB standards require that "[d]ue professional care is to be exercised in the planning and performance of the audit and the preparation of the report."[17]

59. In establishing the overall audit strategy for the 2015 through 2017 audits, KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk failed to adequately take into account: (1) the significant fact that KPMG-Zimbabwe was an unregistered firm that was being investigated by the Commission for or had just been identified as having improperly played a substantial role for the same client; and (2) the nature of the resources necessary to perform the audit, insofar as those resources included the involvement of an unregistered firm. As a result of these failures, KPMG-SA and Van Nierkerk did not engage in adequate planning to ensure that KPMG-Zimbabwe would not violate PCAOB registration requirements.

60. When the extent of KPMG-Zimbabwe's participation came to light near the end of the 2017 audit, KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk exacerbated their initial planning failures by not modifying the audit strategy and audit plan to ensure compliance with the relevant regulatory requirements.[18] Instead, they made unreasonable downward adjustments to KPMG-Zimbabwe's audit hours.

61. Accordingly, KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk violated AS 2101. KPMG-SA and Van Niekerk also violated AS 1015 by failing to exercise due professional care in planning KPMG-Zimbabwe's participation in the 2015 through 2017 Issuer A audits.

F. Basson Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards During the 2017 Audit of Issuer A

62. PCAOB standards provide that the engagement quality reviewer should "[e]valuate the significant judgments that relate to engagement planning."[19] Thus, the engagement quality reviewer should evaluate "[t]he consideration of the firm's recent engagement experience with the company."[20] The engagement quality reviewer must perform his or her responsibilities with due professional care.[21]

63. During the 2017 Issuer A audit, Basson knew that the Commission had issued a settled enforcement order sanctioning KPMG-SA for its use of KPMG-Zimbabwe's work in the 2013 and 2014 audits. Basson also knew or should have known that Van Niekerk and the engagement team had responded to hours calculations indicating that KPMG-Zimbabwe had played a substantial role in the 2017 audit by making unreasonable downward adjustments to KPMG-Zimbabwe's audit hours.

64. Basson failed to appropriately evaluate whether Van Niekerk and the engagement team had adequately planned to conduct the 2017 audit in a manner such that KPMG-Zimbabwe would not violate PCAOB registration requirements. Basson likewise failed to evaluate whether Van Niekerk and the engagement team appropriately responded during the course of the audit to circumstances indicating that KPMG-Zimbabwe had played a substantial role in the 2017 audit.

65. By failing to adequately evaluate these significant judgments relating to engagement planning, and by providing a concurring approval of issuance without performing his engagement quality review with due professional care as to such significant judgments, Basson violated AS 1220.

G. KPMG-SA Violated PCAOB Quality Control Standards

66. PCAOB quality control standards require that a firm "shall have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice" and describes "elements of quality control and other matters essential to the effective design, implementation, and maintenance of the system."[22] As part of this requirement, "[p]olicies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality."[23]

67. KPMG-SA failed to establish adequate policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel met applicable regulatory requirements when using other accounting firms. As discussed above, KPMG-SA's lack of adequate policies and procedures related to the use of other accounting firms' work resulted in KPMG-Zimbabwe's participation in the 2015 through 2017 audits of Issuer A exceeding the substantial role threshold, despite the firm and engagement team's knowledge that KPMG-Zimbabwe's participation in the audits presented a potential registration issue.

68. As demonstrated by its failure to remedy, in any of three subsequent audits, the regulatory violations caused by KPMG-Zimbabwe's participation in the 2013 and 2014 Issuer A audits, KPMG-SA failed to establish adequate policies to provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel would meet applicable regulatory requirements when using other accounting firms. Accordingly, KPMG-SA violated QC § 20 during the period of the 2015 through 2017 audits.

H. KPMG-SA Violated the Form AP Filing Rule

69. PCAOB Rule 3211(a) provides that, "[f]or each audit report it issues for an issuer, a registered public accounting firm must file with the Board a report on Form AP in accordance with the instructions to that form." The Form AP Instructions for "Part IV – Responsibility for the Audit Is Not Divided" provide that "[a]ctual audit hours should be used if available. If actual audit hours are unavailable, the Firm may use a reasonable method to estimate the components of this calculation."

70. On April 19, 2018, KPMG-SA filed a Form AP disclosing that KPMG-Zimbabwe had incurred 17% of the total 2017 Issuer A audit hours. KPMG-SA's disclosure was based on the unreasonable downward adjustments to KPMG-Zimbabwe's audit hours discussed above.

71. Because KPMG-SA's disclosure of the audit hours incurred by KPMG-Zimbabwe was based on unreasonable calculation methods, KPMG-SA violated Rule 3211.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of these civil money penalties will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. In addition, KPMG Inc. shall submit any additional information and evidence concerning the Report, the information in the Report, and KPMG Inc.'s compliance with this Order as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request.

3. Certificate of Implementation. Within twelve months of the date of this Order, KPMG Inc.'s head of quality assurance shall certify in writing ("Certificate of Implementation") to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations that KPMG Inc. has implemented all of the modifications and additions to its policies and procedures that were described in the Report. KPMG Inc. shall also submit such additional evidence of, and information concerning, implementation as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request.

4. Noncompliance. KPMG Inc. understands that a failure to satisfy these undertakings may constitute a violation of Rule 5000 and could provide a basis for the imposition of additional sanctions in a subsequent disciplinary proceeding.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Hay & Watson and Essop Mia, CPA

Respondents.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-017

September 13, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Hay & Watson (the "Firm"), a registered public accounting firm, and Essop Mia, CPA ("Mia");

(2) revoking the registration of Hay & Watson;

(3) barring Mia from being associated with a registered public accounting firm; and

(4) imposing a $50,000 civil money penalty jointly and severally upon the Firm and Mia (collectively, "Respondents").

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Respondents violated PCAOB rules and standards by improperly altering work papers and then providing them to Board inspectors in connection with a Board inspection.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have each submitted an Offer of Settlement (collectively, "Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[2]

A. Respondents

1. Hay & Watson is the business name of three entities, including Essop Mia Limited, a public accounting firm headquartered in Vancouver, British Columbia. Essop Mia Limited (d/b/a Hay & Watson) is licensed to practice public accounting in, among other places, British Columbia, Canada (license no. C026186). The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

2. Essop Mia, CPA is the owner and managing partner of Essop Mia Limited, a Chartered Professional Accountant under the laws of British Columbia, Canada (license no. C026186), and, at all relevant times was, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). Mia served as the engagement partner on the Firm's audits and reviews of Issuer A for the fiscal years ended August 31, 2018 through August 31, 2021.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (a) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (b) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

B. Issuer

3. Issuer A is an Ontario, Canada corporation headquartered in Sherman Oaks, California. According to public filings, Issuer A is a holding company engaged in various aspects of the oil and gas industry. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). Issuer A was, at all relevant times, the Firm's only issuer audit client.

C. Summary

4. This matter concerns Respondents' failure to comply with PCAOB rules and standards related to audit documentation and the obligation to cooperate with a Board inspection.

5. Mia and the Firm failed to assemble a final set of audit documentation as of the documentation completion date in connection with the Firm's audit of Issuer A's August 31, 2019 financial statements ("2019 Audit"). Instead, Mia, and others acting at his direction, continued to improperly alter, add to, and backdate work papers months after the documentation completion date.

6. Respondents subsequently violated PCAOB Rule 4006, Duty to Cooperate with Inspectors, by providing the altered work papers to the Board's inspectors without disclosing that they had been altered.

D. Respondents Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

7. PCAOB rules require that associated persons of registered public accounting firms comply with applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.[3] As set out below, Respondents failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards.

i. Documentation Violations

a. Alterations

8. PCAOB auditing standards require that an auditor assemble for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date ("documentation completion date") a complete and final set of audit documentation.[4] While information may be added to the work papers after the documentation completion date, the new documentation must disclose the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding the information to the work papers after the documentation completion date.[5]

9. The Firm issued its audit report for the 2019 Audit on December 15, 2019, which was included in Issuer A's Form 10-K filed on December 16, 2019. As a result, the 45-day period for the Firm to complete its documentation for the 2019 Audit ended no later than January 29, 2020.

10. Mia and the Firm, however, did not assemble a complete and final set of audit documentation for retention within 45 days following the report release date for the 2019 Audit. Instead, at Mia's direction, members of the Firm continued to modify the 2019 Audit work papers after the documentation completion date.

11. Mia, and members of the Firm acting at his direction, created or modified at least 68 documents after the documentation completion date for the 2019 Audit, including 42 in September 2020 and 18 in October 2020. Of these 68 documents, at least four documents were created after January 29, 2020 and added to the 2019 Audit file.

12. Notwithstanding the modifications and additions to the 2019 Audit file, Respondents failed to properly document who added the information to the work papers after the documentation completion date, as well as when and why the information was added.

b. Backdating

13. PCAOB rules require that audit documentation "contain sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement," to understand, among other things, the timing of the procedures performed, evidence obtained, and conclusions reached, and to determine not just who performed and reviewed the work but also "the date such work was completed" and "the date of such review."[6]

14. Members of the Firm, at Mia's direction, improperly backdated at least 30 work papers in the 2019 Audit file by adding signoffs in the Firm's audit documentation software during September and October 2020 that incorrectly indicated the work papers were prepared or completed before issuance of the 2019 Audit report. Also, although he did not backdate his own signoffs, Mia signed off on a total of 339 work papers in the 2019 Audit file after the documentation completion date, including 326 that were signed off on October 24, 2020, such that an experienced auditor would not understand when Mia completed his review.

ii. Noncooperation with a Board Inspection

15. PCAOB rules require that registered public accounting firms and associated persons "shall cooperate with the Board in the performance of any Board inspection."[7] This cooperation obligation includes an obligation not to provide misleading documents or information in connection with, or otherwise to interfere with, the Board's inspection processes.[8] An auditor provides misleading information if he or she fails to disclose that documentation presented to inspectors as having existed at the time of the audit was, in fact, subsequently altered or created.[9]

16. On August 3, 2020, Board inspectors contacted Mia, the Firm's designated Board contact, to inform him that the Firm had been identified for inspection as part of the Board's triennial inspection program. A few days later, Board inspectors informed Mia that the 2020 inspection of the Firm would take place remotely during the week of November 2, 2020, and that Mia should plan to make audit work papers available to Board inspectors the week of October 26, 2020.

17. Respondents received formal notice of the inspection on August 14, 2020, in a letter reiterating that field work would begin on November 2, 2020. On October 13, 2020, Board inspectors informed Mia that they had selected Issuer A (the Firm's only issuer client) for inspection and identified the areas of focus for that engagement.

During the inspection, Board inspectors identified that the 2019 Audit file contained work paper modifications after the documentation completion date, and Mia provided inspectors with a written explanation, prepared during the inspection, for why the changes had occurred. Mia's explanation addressed changes made to the 2019 Audit file between January 29, 2020 and May 11, 2020, but failed to address the changes made in September and October 2020.

Nor did Mia inform Board inspectors that signoffs on numerous work papers had been backdated in September and October 2020 to falsely indicate that the signoffs had occurred prior to issuance of the audit report.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Liebman Goldberg & Hymowitz LLP,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-022

October 4, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (the "Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Liebman Goldberg & Hymowitz LLP, a registered public accounting firm (the "Firm" or "Respondent");

(2) imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $20,000 upon the Firm; and

(3) requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial measures to establish policies and procedures directed toward ensuring future compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that the Firm failed to timely file required Form APs, in violation of PCAOB Rule 3211, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. Liebman Goldberg & Hymowitz LLP is a limited liability partnership located in Garden City, New York. At all relevant times, the Firm was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

B. Respondent Failed to Timely File Form APs in Violation of PCAOB Rule 3211

2. PCAOB Rule 3211, which took effect for issuer audit reports issued on or after January 31, 2017, provides that each registered public accounting firm must provide information about engagement partners and other accounting firms that participate in audits of issuers by filing a Form AP, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants, for each audit report issued by the firm for an issuer. Form APs must be filed by the 35th day after the date the audit report is first included in a document filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC),[2] subject to a shorter filing deadline that applies when the audit report is first included in a registration statement filed under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended.[3]

3. The Firm audited the financial statements of RetinalGenix Technologies Inc. ("RetinalGenix") as of and for the years ended December 31, 2019, 2020, and 2021. For RetinalGenix's 2019 and 2020 financial statements, the Firm issued an audit report dated June 24, 2021, which was included in RetinalGenix's Form S-1 filed with the SEC on August 5, 2021, Form S-1/A filed with the SEC on October 1, 2021, Form S-1 filed with the SEC on January 21, 2022, and Form S-1/A filed with the SEC on January 26, 2022. For RetinalGenix's 2020 and 2021

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to the Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] See Rule 3211(b)(1).

[3] In that instance, a firm is required to file the Form AP by the tenth day after the date the audit report is first included in a document filed with the Commission. See Rule 3211(b)(2).

financial statements, the Firm issued an audit report dated April 15, 2022, which was included in RetinalGenix's Form 10-K filed with the SEC on April 15, 2022.

4. The Firm audited the financial statements of Fuel Doctor Holdings, Inc. as of and for the year ended December 31, 2021, for which the Firm issued an audit report dated April 18, 2022, which was included in Fuel Doctor Holdings, Inc.'s Form 10-K filed with the SEC on April 18, 2022.

5. The Firm failed to file the required Form AP for the above Form S-1 and S-1/A filings by the 10th day after the date the audit report was first included with the filings made with the SEC, in violation of PCAOB Rule 3211. The Firm also failed to file the two required Form APs for the above Form 10-K filings by the 35th day after the date the audit reports were first included with the filing made with the SEC, in violation of PCAOB Rule 3211.

6. The Firm belatedly filed the aforementioned Form APs on June 14, 2022, July 7, 2022, and July 28, 2022, after receiving notice of deficiencies from the Division of Enforcement and Investigations.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), the Firm is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $20,000 is imposed upon the Firm. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. The Firm shall pay this civil money penalty within ten (10) days of the issuance of this Order by: (1) wire transfer pursuant to instructions provided by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the Firm as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting

Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006. Respondent understands that its failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may result in summary suspension of the Firm's registration, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5304(a);

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), the Firm is required:

1. within ninety (90) days from the date of this Order, to establish policies and procedures, or revise and/or supplement existing policies and procedures, for the purpose of providing the Firm with reasonable assurance of compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements, including PCAOB Rule 3211 and that Form APs are filed in a timely and complete manner;

2. within ninety (90) days from the date of this Order, to establish policies to ensure training concerning PCAOB reporting requirements, including PCAOB Rule 3211, at least annually, of any Firm personnel who participate in the Firm's PCAOB reporting process; and

3. within one hundred twenty (120) days from the date of this Order, to certify in writing to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, the Firm's compliance with paragraphs C(1) and C(2) above. The certification shall identify the undertakings, provide written evidence of compliance in the form of a narrative, and be supported by exhibits sufficient to demonstrate compliance. The Firm shall also submit such additional evidence of and information concerning compliance as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request. The Firm understands that the failure to satisfy these undertakings may constitute a violation of PCAOB Rule 5000 that could provide a basis for the imposition of additional sanctions in a subsequent disciplinary proceeding.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Spielman Koenigsberg & Parker, LLP,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-024

October 18, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Spielman Koenigsberg & Parker, LLP ("SKP" or "Respondent"), a registered public accounting firm;

(2) revoking SKP's registration;[1]

(3) imposing on SKP a $150,000 civil money penalty; and

(4) requiring SKP to undertake remedial measures concerning quality control and training directed toward satisfying requirements applicable to audits and reviews of issuers before filing, and to provide evidence of such measures with, any future registration application.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on SKP on the basis of its findings that SKP violated PCAOB rules and standards, including quality control standards, in connection with the audits of two issuer audit clients from 2018 to 2021.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

[1] SKP may reapply for registration after five years from the date of this Order.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[2]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[3]

A. Respondent

1. Spielman Koenigsberg & Parker, LLP is a partnership organized under the laws of the state of New York and located in New York, New York. At all relevant times, SKP was registered with the state of New York (Certified Public Accountancy Partnership No. 041869). SKP registered with the Board, pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules, on May 30, 2006.

B. Issuers

2. PVH Associates Investment Plan and PVH Associates Investment Plan for Residents of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico (collectively, the "PVH Plans") are defined contribution plans covering certain salaried and hourly employees of PVH Corp., a Delaware

---

[2] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[3] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (a) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (b) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

corporation headquartered in New York, New York. The PVH Plans were each, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). SKP's audits of the PVH Plans included audits of their financial statements as of and for the years ended December 31, 2017, 2018, 2019, and 2020 (respectively, the "2017 Audits," "2018 Audits," "2019 Audits," and "2020 Audits"). The PVH Plans are the only issuer clients that SKP has ever audited.

C. Relevant Person

3. Jonathan B. Taylor, CPA ("Taylor"), is a partner of SKP. Taylor served as the engagement partner for SKP's audits of the financial statements of the PVH Plans as of and for the years ended December 31, 2017 through 2020. At all relevant times, Taylor also served as SKP's partner in charge of technical and quality review.[4]

D. Summary

4. This matter concerns SKP's failure to comply with PCAOB quality control standards during 2018-2021, including with respect to audit documentation. Among other failures, SKP's system of quality control failed to prevent or detect efforts by Taylor and other SKP personnel to improperly alter approximately half of the work papers for the 2019 Audits after they learned of an upcoming PCAOB inspection (the "Inspection"). These improperly altered work papers were then provided to the inspectors.

5. SKP also failed to obtain engagement quality reviews ("EQRs") of its audits of the PVH Plans for multiple years. Moreover, the firm failed to timely file several Form APs, and filed several materially inaccurate Form 2s, with the PCAOB.

E. SKP Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

6. PCAOB rules require that registered public accounting firms comply with applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.[5] As set out below, SKP failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards.

[4] See Jonathan B. Taylor, CPA, PCAOB Rel. No. 105-2022-025 (Oct. 18, 2022).

[5] See PCAOB Rule 3100, Compliance with Auditing and Related Professional Practice Standards; PCAOB Rule 3200, Auditing Standards; PCAOB Rule 3400T, Interim Quality Control Standards.

i. Quality Control

7. PCAOB rules require that a registered firm comply with PCAOB quality control standards, which require that a firm "shall have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice" and describe "elements of quality control and other matters essential to the effective design, implementation, and maintenance of the system."[6] As part of this requirement, "[p]olicies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality."[7]

8. PCAOB quality control standards recognize that "[t]he elements of quality control are interrelated,"[8] and that monitoring procedures are necessary "to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the policies and procedures related to each of the other elements of quality control are suitably designed and are being effectively applied."[9] Under PCAOB standards, monitoring involves an ongoing consideration and evaluation of, among other things, compliance with the firm's policies and procedures.[10]

9. As noted above, the PVH Plans are the only issuer clients the firm has ever audited. Having decided to perform audits of issuers, however, SKP was obligated to design and implement policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, to provide reasonable assurance of compliance with regulatory requirements applicable to issuer audits. SKP failed to do so.

10. Prior to 2020, SKP documented its audit quality control policies and procedures using a questionnaire received by the firm in connection with an audit peer review program. Taylor populated that questionnaire with certain cursory descriptions of SKP's audit practice. As implemented by SKP, the policies and procedures described in the completed questionnaire did not comply with PCAOB quality control standards. In 2020, SKP put into place a set of "SKP Quality Control Policies and Procedures," assembled by Taylor, which were also deficient and failed to provide the necessary reasonable assurance.

10 See QC § 20. 20.c-.d; QC § 30.02.c-.d.

11. Significantly, SKP's quality control policies and procedures in 2018-2021 were not suitably designed and effectively applied to provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by its engagement personnel met PCAOB audit documentation requirements. For example, SKP's quality control policies and procedures did not address whether or how its engagement personnel could add, modify, or delete audit documentation following the documentation completion date.[11] SKP's quality control policies and procedures did not address the need to retain records relevant to the audit for a seven-year period after conclusion of an issuer audit.[12] SKP also failed to design or implement other policies and procedures to prevent or detect improper alterations of audit documentation after the documentation completion date.[13] These quality control failures increased the risk that work papers might be improperly altered after the documentation completion date.[14]

12. In anticipation of the Inspection and after the documentation completion date, Taylor coordinated an extensive effort involving several SKP professionals to improperly alter and backdate the work papers for the 2019 Audits before providing them to the PCAOB inspectors. This effort, which lasted over a period of months in 2020 and 2021, and which directly interfered with the integrity of the PCAOB's Inspection, involved substantial revisions to multiple work papers—including changes to existing key work papers and the addition of audit programs and other work papers—in violation of PCAOB audit documentation requirements.

[11] See AS 1215.15-.16, Audit Documentation ("A complete and final set of audit documentation should be assembled for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date (documentation completion date). . . . Circumstances may require additions to audit documentation after the report release date. Audit documentation must not be deleted or discarded after the documentation completion date, however, information may be added. Any documentation added must indicate the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding it." (italics in original)).

[12] Regulation S-X, Rule 2-06, 17 C.F.R. § 210.2-06.

[13] Starting with the 2018 Audits, SKP personnel prepared, assembled, and kept the work papers for audits of the PVH Plans in electronic form as part of a software database file. Though the software database file had a feature that, when activated, made the database file "read-only"—allowing it to be opened and viewed but not modified—SKP audit personnel did not routinely use that software feature, and did not activate that feature for the work papers assembled for the 2018-2020 Audits.

[14] See Galaz, Yamazaki, Ruiz Urquiza, S.C., PCAOB Rel. No. 105-2016-044 (Dec. 5, 2016) at 7 ("Not only did those failures to timely archive work papers for PCAOB Audits violate AS3 [AS 1215], they also increased the risk that the work papers might be improperly altered after the documentation completion date.").

13. As part of this effort, Taylor contacted members of management at PVH Corp. to request and obtain additional audit evidence related to the 2019 Audits. Taylor, as well as the other SKP professionals whose efforts he was coordinating, documented the additional client information that they obtained, and the results of additional procedures performed—without complying with PCAOB audit documentation requirements—before making work papers available to the inspectors. Taylor and the other SKP professionals improperly added or altered approximately half of the work papers for the 2019 Audits in anticipation of the inspection, without ever disclosing those changes to the inspectors

14. SKP's failure to detect this extensive effort to improperly alter and backdate audit documentation reflects the deficient nature of SKP's quality control monitoring policies and procedures.

15. SKP's quality control policies and procedures with respect to EQRs in 2018-2021 were also deficient. Specifically, those policies and procedures failed to provide reasonable assurance that EQRs were performed for the audits of the PVH Plans in multiple consecutive years (see below section E.ii, "Engagement Quality Reviews"). SKP's failure to identify the repeated failure over several years to obtain EQRs reflects the deficient nature of SKP's quality control monitoring policies and procedures.

16. In addition, SKP's repeated failure to ensure timely filed Form APs and accurately filed Form 2s (see below section E.iii, "PCAOB Reporting") demonstrates that the firm lacked adequate policies and procedures to obtain reasonable assurance of compliance with regulatory requirements.[15] Once again, SKP's failure to identify the repeated failure to timely and accurately file required Form APs and Form 2s, respectively, reflects the deficient nature of SKP's quality control monitoring policies and procedures.

17. Accordingly, SKP failed to comply with QC §§ 20-30.

[15] See WWC, P.C., PCAOB Rel. No. 105-2022-006 (Apr. 19, 2022) at 13 ("WWC's repeated Form AP and annual report violations—which ranged from the omission of required information to late filings and failures to file at all—demonstrate that the firm lacked sufficient policies and procedures to ensure that these forms would be accurate and timely filed, in compliance with applicable regulatory requirements.").

ii. Engagement Quality Reviews

18. PCAOB standards require that EQRs be performed on all audits.[16] A firm "may grant permission to the client to use the engagement report only after the engagement quality reviewer provides concurring approval of issuance."[17]

19. SKP failed to obtain EQRs in the 2017-2020 Audits of the PVH Plans. In each instance, SKP improperly permitted the issuance of its audit reports without obtaining concurring approval of issuance. As a result, SKP violated AS 1220.

iii. PCAOB Reporting

20. SKP has repeatedly failed to timely file Form APs with the PCAOB and, moreover, has filed several materially inaccurate Form 2s with the PCAOB.

a. Form APs

21. PCAOB rules require that a registered firm file a Form AP for "each audit report it issues for an issuer."[18] A Form AP is timely filed if the form is "filed by the 35th day after the date the audit report is first included in a document filed with the Commission."[19]

22. SKP's audit reports for the 2019 Audits were first included in documents filed with the Commission on June 24, 2020, when the PVH Plans filed their Form 11-Ks for 2019. SKP accordingly was required to file Form APs for the 2019 Audits by July 29, 2020, but failed to file them until February 4, 2021—more than six months late—and only after PCAOB inspectors alerted the firm to the fact those forms had not been filed.

23. SKP's audit reports for the 2017 Audits and 2018 Audits were first included in documents filed with the Commission on June 29, 2018, and June 27, 2019, respectively. SKP accordingly was required to file Form APs by August 3, 2018, for the 2017 Audits and by August 1, 2019, for the 2018 Audits. But SKP failed to file Form APs for those audits until February 16, 2022—over three-and-half years late for the 2017 Audits and over two-and-a-half years late for the 2018 Audits.

17 AS 1220.13.

18 PCAOB Rule 3211(a), Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants.

19 PCAOB Rule 3211(b).

24. As a result, SKP violated PCAOB Rule 3211.

b. Form 2s

25. PCAOB rules require that a registered firm "file with the Board an annual report on Form 2 by following the instructions to that form."[20] The Form 2 Instructions for "Part V – Offices and Affiliations" require that a registered firm state in response to Item 5.2.a.1. of Form 2 whether it has any "Membership or affiliation in or with any network, arrangement, alliance, partnership or association that licenses or authorizes . . . the use of a name in connection with the provision of audit services or accounting services."[21]

26. SKP has filed a Form 2 each year for several years, including in 2018-2021. In each of the Form 2s that SKP filed in 2018-2021, SKP answered "No" in response to Item 5.2.a.1.

27. SKP knew or should have known that answer was inaccurate. SKP, since January 2015, has been a member of Russell Bedford International ("RBI"), which publicly describes itself—and is described by SKP—as a network of independent or independently owned firms. SKP entered into an agreement with RBI in January 2015 that, among other things, licensed SKP to use the RBI name in connection with SKP's audit and accounting services. SKP understood that RBI not only authorized, but encouraged, use of the RBI name and branding in connection with those services.

28. As a result, SKP violated PCAOB Rule 2200.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Spielman Koenigsberg & Parker, LLP is hereby censured;

Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006. By consenting to this Order, Spielman Koenigsberg & Parker, LLP acknowledges that a failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may alone be grounds to deny any reapplication for registration pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2101. Spielman Koenigsberg & Parker, LLP shall not seek or accept, directly or indirectly, reimbursement or indemnification from any source including, but not limited to, any current or former affiliated firm or professional(s) or any payment made pursuant to any insurance policy, with regard to any amounts that Spielman Koenigsberg & Parker, LLP shall pay pursuant to this Order.

2. to provide with any future registration application a written certification of compliance with the above undertakings, written evidence of compliance in the form of a narrative, exhibits sufficient to demonstrate compliance, and such additional evidence of and information concerning compliance as the staff of the Division of Registration and Inspections may reasonably request.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Jonathan B. Taylor, CPA,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-025

October 18, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Jonathan B. Taylor, CPA ("Taylor" or "Respondent");

(2) barring Taylor from being associated with a registered public accounting firm; and

(3) imposing a $150,000 civil money penalty on Taylor.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on Taylor on the basis of its findings that Taylor violated PCAOB rules and standards, including ethics standards, in connection with two PCAOB inspections, a PCAOB investigation, and several audits of two issuers. Taylor also directly and substantially contributed to violations by a registered public accounting firm of PCAOB reporting requirements and quality control standards.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) and (3) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[2]

A. Respondent

1. Jonathan B. Taylor, CPA is, and at all relevant times was, a certified public accountant licensed by the state of New York (license no. 072733). Taylor is a partner at registered public accounting firm Spielman Koenigsberg & Parker, LLP ("SKP") and served as the engagement partner for SKP's audits of the financial statements of PVH Associates Investment Plan and PVH Associates Investment Plan for Residents of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico (collectively, the "PVH Plans"). At all relevant times, Taylor also served as SKP's partner in charge of technical and quality review. Taylor is, and at all relevant times was, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Relevant Entity

2. Spielman Koenigsberg & Parker, LLP is a partnership organized under the laws of the state of New York and located in New York, New York. At all relevant times, SKP was registered with the state of New York (Certified Public Accountancy Partnership No. 041869). The firm registered with the Board, pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules, on May 30, 2006.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (a) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (b) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

C. Issuers

3. PVH Associates Investment Plan and PVH Associates Investment Plan for Residents of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico are defined contribution plans covering certain salaried and hourly employees of PVH Corp., a Delaware corporation headquartered in New York, New York. The PVH Plans were each, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). SKP's audits of the PVH Plans included audits of their financial statements as of and for the years ended December 31, 2015, 2016, 2017, 2018, 2019, and 2020 (respectively, the "2015 Audits," "2016 Audits," "2017 Audits," "2018 Audits," "2019 Audits," and "2020 Audits"). At all relevant times, the PVH Plans were SKP's only issuer clients.[3]

D. Summary

4. In anticipation of a PCAOB inspection in 2021 ("2021 Inspection"), Taylor coordinated a months-long effort involving other SKP professionals to alter and backdate audit work papers, and then made those work papers available to the inspectors. Taylor made false statements to the inspectors about whether those work papers had been improperly altered, even after they pointed out modification dates appearing in the firm's audit software that suggested the contrary. Following commencement of a PCAOB investigation regarding this conduct, Taylor provided false and misleading information to PCAOB investigators. Taylor misled investigators regarding whether engagement quality reviews ("EQRs") were performed, when and what kinds of alterations were made to work papers, and whether SKP had certain documents in its possession. Taylor also represented that his productions on SKP's behalf in response to document demands from the investigators were complete—while withholding thousands of responsive documents, including documents that evidenced Taylor's misconduct.

5. This matter also concerns misconduct by Taylor in the audits reviewed by the inspectors, as well as in earlier and later audits of the PVH Plans. Taylor knew that EQRs of those audits had not been performed, yet repeatedly authorized the issuance of audit reports without concurring approval. Taylor also misrepresented to inspectors during the 2021 Inspection, as well as during a separate PCAOB inspection three years earlier, that EQRs had been performed.

6. In addition, Taylor was responsible for audit quality control at SKP. Yet SKP's audit quality control policies and procedures were deficient in a number of respects, including with respect to monitoring, audit documentation, EQRs, and compliance with regulatory requirements. Taylor directly and substantially contributed to SKP's failure to maintain an adequate quality control system with respect to issuer audits.

E. Taylor Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

7. PCAOB rules require that associated persons of registered public accounting firms comply with applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.[4] As set out below, Taylor failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards.

i. Audit Documentation

a. Alterations

8. PCAOB standards state that "[a] complete and final set of audit documentation should be assembled for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date (documentation completion date)."[5] They also state that audit documentation "must not be deleted or discarded after" that date, and that documentation added after that date "must indicate the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding it."[6]

9. The audit report dates and report release dates for the 2019 Audits were June 23, 2020. The documentation completion date for the 2019 Audits was August 7, 2020. Consequently, SKP and Taylor were required to assemble a final set of audit documentation by August 7, 2020, and, thereafter, could not add audit documentation without disclosing in writing why, when, and by who each addition was made, and could not delete audit documentation for any reason.

10. Though the 2019 Audits consisted of two individual audits, one for each of the PVH Plans, SKP personnel assembled a single set of documentation for the two audits. They did so because a significant portion of the audit planning and procedures was common to both audits. SKP personnel prepared, assembled, and kept the work papers for the 2019 Audits in electronic form as part of a software database file. Though the software database file had a feature that, when activated, made the database file "read-only"—allowing it to be opened and viewed but not modified—Taylor and other SKP audit personnel did not routinely use that software feature, and did not activate that feature for the work papers assembled for the 2018-2020 Audits.[7]

11. Taylor improperly altered the work papers for the 2019 Audits after the documentation completion date in violation of AS 1215. He and other SKP professionals did so during three separate periods of time. The first occurred between late August 2020 and October 2020, when an SKP audit staff person working with Taylor ("SKP Professional #1") added key work papers to the database file, including a "Supervision, Review and Approval" form, engagement acceptance and continuance forms, and work papers reflecting materiality calculations and internal control walkthroughs. SKP Professional #1 also took 13 completed audit programs from an entirely unrelated audit and, after swapping the name of that unrelated client with one or both of the names of the PVH Plans, replaced text in those programs with descriptions of purported work related to the 2019 Audits.

12. Taylor knew that the documentation for the 2019 Audits was not complete and that SKP Professional #1 continued to make additions and modifications to the audit file after the documentation completion date. On September 3, 2020, for example, Taylor emailed SKP Professional #1, writing, "Please let me know what you are working [on]. How much is left for PVH AIP plans[?]" Taylor, appreciating the extent of the alteration work, reminded SKP Professional #1 that the two of them needed to start work on a different audit engagement the following week. These alterations and communications occurred almost a month after the August 7, 2020 documentation completion date.

13. On December 7, 2020, the PCAOB's Division of Registration and Inspections ("DRI") notified Taylor that it would inspect SKP's issuer audit practice. Between that date and February 2021—when the PCAOB inspectors completed their fieldwork—Taylor and other SKP professionals communicated with, answered queries from, and made documentation available to PCAOB inspectors. It was during this period that Taylor and other SKP personnel undertook a second series of alterations, and that Taylor coordinated a sustained effort over a period of months to add and modify work papers for the 2019 Audits. Those alterations included extensive revisions to multiple work papers, including changes to the 13 audit programs added in the first period of alterations; the addition of other key work papers, such as a going concern checklist and a signed management representation letter obtained from the client for the first time in February 2021; the addition of work papers to reflect the performance of additional testing, including in audit areas identified by the inspectors as focus areas; and the addition of preparation and completion signoffs by SKP Professional #1 and review signoffs by Taylor.

14. During this second period, Taylor contacted members of management at PVH Corp. to request and obtain additional audit evidence. That evidence included the signed management representation letter, management explanations for certain variances in plan investment income and plan participant payments, and access to a PVH Corp. database so that SKP professionals could perform additional testing. Taylor and the SKP professionals incorporated certain of these client-supplied items into the audit work papers, and used others to perform and document new audit procedures, so that they could then make available the recently prepared documentation to PCAOB inspectors. On February 1, 2021, for example, after a telephone call with management at PVH Corp., Taylor prepared a written summary of management's explanations for the variances in income and participant payments, emailed that summary to an SKP professional ("SKP Professional #2"), and directed SKP Professional #2 to "document [it] in the workpapers" as SKP's "analytical review."

15. Taylor coordinated this effort to transform the audit work papers in advance of the PCAOB inspection. He frequently requested updates and participated in numerous email exchanges and discussions with other SKP personnel about the alterations. Taylor also sent emails directing next steps—at times to all the participating personnel in a group message, and at other times to specific individuals about specific tasks.

16. The improper alterations made following notification of the PCAOB inspection were so extensive that the work papers provided to the inspectors effectively reflected a different audit than the one originally performed. As these efforts came to a close, an SKP professional ("SKP Professional #3") emailed Taylor: "There are a lot of changes being made but I think we are as good as were [sic] are going to get without redoing the entire audit." Taylor replied by emphasizing that SKP Professional #3 and the other professionals should take the time needed to complete the alterations: "Based on my discussions with the PCAOB, I think we can get through Wednesday if we need additional time." In all, Taylor and the other SKP professionals improperly added or altered approximately half of the work papers for the 2019 Audits.

17. In the third period, following inspection fieldwork, eight more workpapers were added or modified on two occasions. The first involved one work paper and occurred in April 2021, around the time SKP was arranging for and submitting work papers for a peer review of its audits by another firm. The second involved seven work papers and occurred in September 2021, just before SKP provided the work papers to the PCAOB's Division of Enforcement and Investigations ("DEI") in response to a request to produce the final set of audit documentation for the 2019 Audits.

18. Following the alterations over all three periods, approximately 76 of 145 total work papers had been added after the documentation completion date, and approximately 12 other work papers that had existed as of the documentation completion date had been modified after that date.

19. As a result, Taylor violated AS 1215.

b. Backdating

20. PCAOB rules require that audit documentation "contain sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement," to understand, among other things, the timing of the procedures performed, evidence obtained, and conclusions reached, and to determine not just who performed and reviewed the work but also "the date such work was completed" and "the date of such review."[8] PCAOB ethics standards also require that, in the performance of any professional service, an associated person maintain integrity and "not knowingly misrepresent facts," which includes any instance in which such a person "[s]igns, or permits or directs another to sign, a document containing materially false and misleading information."[9]

21. Taylor and other SKP professionals backdated multiple work papers for the 2019 Audits in violation of AS 1215 and PCAOB ethics standards. Even though Taylor and other SKP professionals created or modified most of the work papers for the 2019 Audits between late August 2020 and September 2021, approximately 80 of the 145 work papers bear false signoffs indicating that they were prepared or completed before the June 23, 2020 report date, and approximately 79 bear false signoffs indicating that they were reviewed before that date. The backdated documentation include dates on a database index page ("Index Page") indicating when SKP Professional #1 and Taylor, respectively, had prepared and reviewed each work paper, as well as dates typed as part of the text in certain work papers indicating when the two professionals had completed and reviewed the work papers.

22. Taylor and other SKP professionals backdated many of these signoffs in February 2021, as they knew the work papers would soon be provided to the PCAOB inspectors. On Signs, or permits or directs another to sign, a document containing materially false and misleading information.").

February 8, 2021, for example, SKP Professional #3 emailed Taylor, "I may need you to sign off on some workpapers mostly 7000.01, 7000.05, and the internal control section with the narrative/walkthroughs." Taylor subsequently did so.

23. As a result, Taylor violated AS 1215 and ET § 102.

ii. Inspection Noncooperation

24. PCAOB rules require that "every associated person of a registered public accounting firm, shall cooperate with the Board in the performance of any Board inspection."[10] "Implicit in this cooperation requirement is that auditors provide accurate and truthful information" to the PCAOB's inspectors.[11] In violation of that cooperation obligation, as well as PCAOB ethics standards, Taylor provided false and misleading information to the PCAOB's inspectors in connection with two different inspections.

25. In 2018, DRI conducted an inspection of SKP and reviewed the 2016 Audits. Taylor stated in an "Issuer Information Form" submitted to DRI that EQRs had been performed for the 2016 Audits, when he knew no EQR had been performed for either of the 2016 Audits. In the same form, Taylor identified another SKP partner as having performed the two EQRs and, where the form called for the number of hours spent performing those EQRs, falsified time increments to indicate that the EQRs had been performed.

26. During the 2021 Inspection, Taylor again provided false information to PCAOB inspectors about EQRs. Taylor prepared and provided to DRI six different documents wherein he stated falsely that EQRs had been performed for the 2019 Audits: an Issuer Information Form, two successively revised versions of that form, a "Data Request Form," a response to a comment form issued by the inspectors, and a different version of a Supervision, Review and Approval form for the 2019 Audits than the one contained in the assembled work papers. Five of those six documents falsely named another SKP partner as having performed EQRs, and three of them contained fabricated time increments supposedly spent by that partner in performing the EQRs.

27. Later during the 2021 Inspection, Taylor submitted to the inspectors an Additional Information Form that contained the same false statements about EQRs, but this time about the 2018 Audits. As with the 2019 Audits, Taylor falsely stated that EQRs had been performed in the 2018 Audits, that the same other SKP partner had performed them, and that this partner had spent a specified number of hours performing each of them.

28. During the 2021 Inspection, Taylor repeatedly provided other false and misleading information to the PCAOB's inspectors. As noted above, Taylor knew the work papers for the 2019 Audits had been improperly altered and backdated. But he made those work papers available to the inspectors without disclosing the alterations or backdating. Indeed, on February 23, 2021, Taylor supplied screenshots of the Index Page to the inspectors that showed the backdated signoffs, yet failed to inform them that those signoffs had been backdated.

29. In addition, Taylor made or supplied several false statements to the inspectors about the integrity of the work papers for the 2019 Audits and the signoff dates they contained. Taylor signed and made available to inspectors the Supervision, Review and Approval form for the 2019 Audits, which stated (emphasis added): "The audit documentation evidences which elements of the audit work I reviewed and when my review occurred." Taylor also completed and submitted to the inspectors on SKP's behalf a Data Request Form stating that there had been no "changes made to the audit documentation subsequent to the documentation completion date." Similarly, Taylor stated during a quality control interview with the inspectors that no modifications had been made to the work papers for the 2019 Audits after the documentation completion date.

30. Moreover, when the inspectors reviewed the Index Page, they saw that it displayed not only the dates on which each work paper was purportedly prepared and reviewed, but also the date on which each work paper was "Last Modified." They also noted that many of these Last Modified dates fell after the August 7, 2020 documentation completion date. In a separate discussion with Taylor following the quality control interview, the inspectors asked Taylor why that was so. They also asked him, specifically, whether the corresponding work papers had been altered after that date. Taylor told the inspectors that he did not know why any of the Last Modified dates post-dated the documentation completion date and that none of the work papers had been altered after August 7, 2020.

31. Furthermore, Taylor made false and misleading statements to the inspectors about SKP's failure to timely file Form APs (see below section F.ii, "PCAOB Reporting"). Taylor told the inspectors that SKP had prepared and kept a Form AP for the 2019 Audits but merely never filed it, and that SKP "was relying on an administrative professional to timely file the Form AP" but that "this administrator did not properly file the form." In fact, SKP's records at the time did not contain a copy of any Form AP for the 2019 Audits, nor had SKP tasked any administrative professional—or anyone other than Taylor—with filing Form APs.

32. As a result, Taylor violated PCAOB Rule 4006 and ET § 102.

iii. Enforcement Noncooperation

33. PCAOB rules state that the Board may institute a disciplinary proceeding if it appears that an associated person "may have failed to comply with an accounting board demand," "may have knowingly made any false material declaration or made or used any other information, including any book, paper, document, record, recording, or other material, knowing the same to contain any false material declaration," "may have abused the Board's processes for the purpose of obstructing an investigation," or "may otherwise have failed to cooperate with an investigation."[12]

34. Taylor repeatedly provided false and misleading information to PCAOB investigators about improper alterations to the work papers for the 2019 Audits. In response to questions in an accounting board demand ("ABD"), he stated that no work papers had been added—and that no "material/significant adjustments" had been made—to the final set of work papers for the 2019 Audits after August 7, 2020.

35. Taylor also provided false and misleading information to PCAOB investigators about what documents SKP maintained and how it maintained them. Taylor told investigators that SKP did not maintain any location where work papers were saved or stored other than the audit software database, when in fact Taylor knew that he and other audit personnel regularly saved, stored, worked with, and communicated with each other about large numbers of work papers on a computer drive at SKP known as the N Drive. Moreover, Taylor told investigators that draft work papers for the 2019 Audits did not exist, when in fact they did exist on the N Drive, which Taylor knew or should have known when he made that misrepresentation.

36. Taylor also provided false and misleading information to PCAOB investigators about EQRs. In the investigation, he identified another partner at SKP as having performed the EQRs of the 2019 Audits, when he knew that partner had never done any work concerning the PVH Plans. He also told the investigators that he had asked that same partner if he had documents responsive to an ABD, when—at the time Taylor made those statements—that partner was not even aware of a PCAOB investigation concerning SKP.

37. Taylor also identified another accounting firm as having performed EQRs for the 2017 and 2020 Audits, when he knew that firm (the "Inspecting Firm") had performed post-issuance inspections as part of a peer review program and not EQRs for the purpose of providing concurring approval of issuance in accordance with PCAOB requirements. Faced with an ABD that called for documents and information concerning EQRs, when he knew none had been performed, Taylor contacted the Inspecting Firm, obtained from the Inspecting Firm what he knew were post-issuance inspection documents for the 2015 and 2020 Audits of the PVH Plans, and produced these to PCAOB investigators claiming they were documents evidencing EQRs for, respectively, the 2017 and 2020 Audits.

[12] PCAOB Rule 5110, Noncooperation with an Investigation.

38. In addition, Taylor made misrepresentations to PCAOB investigators about the Form APs for the 2019 Audits substantially similar to those he had made to PCAOB inspectors. Specifically, he asserted that although Form APs for the 2019 Audits had not been submitted, "there was a copy of the form in the SKP records," and that the reason for SKP's failure to file Form APs was "the misunderstanding of the specific filing procedures by the administrative professional that was tasked with filing the form."

39. Moreover, Taylor failed to produce thousands of emails related to the PVH Plans and the 2021 Inspection that were responsive to an ABD. Those emails included many that made clear the scope of the effort to alter work papers in advance of the 2021 Inspection. Even after PCAOB investigators asked Taylor why the only inspection-related emails he had produced on SKP's behalf were ones for which he was a sender or recipient, and asked him to search for additional inspection-related communications, Taylor represented to the investigators that "SKP has completed a search of all communications and not found any additional correspondence or electronic communications other than what was . . . previously provided to the PCAOB."

40. In February 2022, having still failed to produce thousands of emails and relevant time entries called for by an ABD, Taylor provided investigators with a false written certification that SKP had produced all responsive documents in its possession.

41. As a result, Taylor violated PCAOB Rule 5110 and ET § 102.

F. Taylor Contributed to SKP's Violations of PCAOB Rules and Standards

42. In addition to Taylor's improper actions in connection with the PCAOB's inspections and investigation of SKP, Taylor also directly and substantially contributed to various violations by SKP of PCAOB requirements concerning EQRs, reporting, and quality control.

i. Engagement Quality Reviews

43. PCAOB standards require that EQRs be performed on all audits.[13] A firm "may grant permission to the client to use the engagement report only after the engagement quality reviewer provides concurring approval of issuance."[14] PCAOB rules also state that an associated person of a registered firm "shall not take or omit to take an action knowing, or recklessly not knowing, that the act or omission would directly and substantially contribute to a violation" by that firm of applicable law, rules, or professional standards.[15]

44. SKP failed to obtain EQRs of its audits of the PVH Plans, including the 2017-2020 Audits. In each instance, SKP released its audit report for use by one of the PVH Plans without concurring approval of issuance. As a result, SKP repeatedly violated AS 1220.

45. Taylor knew in connection with each of the 2017-2020 Audits that he had taken no steps to arrange for an EQR and that he had authorized the issuance of SKP's audit report without concurring approval of issuance. Accordingly, Taylor took and omitted to take actions knowing that those acts and omissions would directly and substantially contribute to violations by SKP of AS 1220. As a result, Taylor violated PCAOB Rule 3502.

ii. PCAOB Reporting

46. Taylor repeatedly violated PCAOB Rule 3502 by directly and substantially contributing to SKP's repeated failures to timely file Form APs, and to the firm's repeated filings of materially inaccurate Form 2s, with the PCAOB.

a. Form APs

47. PCAOB rules require that a registered firm file a Form AP for "each audit report it issues for an issuer."[16] A Form AP is timely filed if the form is "filed by the 35th day after the date the audit report is first included in a document filed with the Commission."[17]

48. SKP's audit reports for the 2019 Audits were first included in documents filed with the Commission on June 24, 2020. But Taylor did not file Form APs for the 2019 Audits on SKP's behalf until February 4, 2021, more than six months late, and only after PCAOB inspectors alerted Taylor to the fact those forms had not been filed.

49. Similarly, Taylor, on SKP's behalf, filed Form APs for the 2017 Audits more than three-and-a-half years late and for the 2018 Audits more than two-and-a-half years late. He did so only after receiving from DEI an ABD addressed to SKP calling for a written statement of whether SKP intended to file Form APs for the 2017 and 2018 Audits.

50. As a result, SKP repeatedly violated PCAOB Rule 3211, and Taylor directly and substantially contributed to those violations. Taylor knew of the Form AP requirement, having signed and caused SKP to timely file Form APs for the 2016 Audits. Indeed, Taylor prepared or caused to be prepared, signed on SKP's behalf, and caused SKP to file, every form filed by SKP with the PCAOB since the firm's registration. Moreover, Taylor was SKP's only partner with audits subject to Form AP filing requirements and bore responsibility for PCAOB form filings by virtue of his role as engagement partner.[18] Accordingly, Taylor knowingly or recklessly caused SKP's violations, and thus violated PCAOB Rule 3502.

b. Form 2s

51. PCAOB rules require that a registered firm "file with the Board an annual report on Form 2 by following the instructions to that form."[19] The Form 2 Instructions for "Part V – Offices and Affiliations" require that a registered firm state in response to Item 5.2.a.1. of Form 2 whether it has any "Membership or affiliation in or with any network, arrangement, alliance, partnership or association that licenses or authorizes . . . the use of a name in connection with the provision of audit services or accounting services."[20]

52. In each of the Form 2s that Taylor filed on SKP's behalf in 2018-2021, SKP answered "No" in response to Item 5.2.a.1. SKP and Taylor knew or should have known that

[18] Quality control policies and procedures in place at SKP since January 1, 2020, impose responsibility for complying with "applicable legal and regulatory requirements" in connection with audit engagements on the engagement partner—and thus Taylor, with respect to audits of the PVH Plans. Furthermore, an inspection comment form response prepared and submitted by Taylor to inspection staff that described remedial actions purportedly adopted by SKP as of March 2021 identified the "Engagement Partner" as responsible for monitoring "the applicable due date" of Form APs and for reviewing Form APs before filing.

answer was inaccurate. Since January 2015, SKP has been a member of Russell Bedford International ("RBI"), which publicly describes itself—and is described by SKP—as a network of independent or independently owned firms. SKP entered into an agreement with RBI in January 2015 that, among other things, licensed and authorized SKP to use the RBI name in connection with SKP's audit and accounting services. SKP understood that RBI not only authorized, but encouraged, use of the RBI name and branding in connection with those services.

53. As a result, SKP repeatedly violated PCAOB Rule 2200, and Taylor directly and substantially contributed to those violations. As noted above, Taylor prepared, signed on SKP's behalf, and caused SKP to file every form—including every Form 2—filed by SKP with the PCAOB since the firm's registration. Accordingly, Taylor knowingly or recklessly caused SKP's violations, and thus violated PCAOB Rule 3502.

iii. Quality Control

54. Taylor directly and substantially contributed to SKP's violations of PCAOB quality control standards from 2018 to 2021.

55. PCAOB rules require that a registered firm comply with PCAOB quality control standards, which require that a firm "shall have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice" and describe "elements of quality control and other matters essential to the effective design, implementation, and maintenance of the system."[21] As part of this requirement, "[p]olicies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality."[22]

56. PCAOB quality control standards recognize that "[t]he elements of quality control are interrelated,"[23] and that monitoring procedures are necessary "to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the policies and procedures related to each of the other elements of quality control are suitably designed and are being effectively applied."[24] Under

23 QC § 20.08.

24 Id.; QC § 30.02, Monitoring a CPA Firm's Accounting and Auditing Practice; see also QC § 20.20.

PCAOB standards, monitoring involves an ongoing consideration and evaluation of, among other things, compliance with the firm's policies and procedures.[25]

57. Prior to 2020, SKP documented its audit quality control policies and procedures using a questionnaire received by the firm in connection with an audit peer review program. Taylor populated that questionnaire with certain cursory descriptions of SKP's audit practice. As implemented by SKP, the policies and procedures described in the completed questionnaire did not comply with PCAOB quality control standards. In 2020, SKP put into place a set of "SKP Quality Control Policies and Procedures" assembled by Taylor, which were also deficient and failed to provide the necessary reasonable assurance.

58. Significantly, SKP's quality control policies and procedures in 2018-2021 were not suitably designed and effectively applied to provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by its engagement personnel met PCAOB audit documentation requirements. For example, SKP's quality control policies and procedures did not address whether or how its engagement personnel could add, modify, or delete audit documentation following the documentation completion date.[26] SKP's quality control policies and procedures did not address the need to retain records relevant to the audit for a seven-year period after conclusion of an issuer audit.[27] SKP also failed to design or implement other policies and procedures to prevent or detect improper alterations of audit documentation after the documentation completion date. These quality control failures increased the risk that work papers might be improperly altered after the documentation completion date.[28]

59. Moreover, SKP's failure to detect multiple rounds of improper work paper alterations by Taylor and other SKP professionals, including an effort lasting several weeks in advance of a PCAOB inspection and encompassing the performance and documentation of additional procedures months after the documentation completion date, reflects the deficient nature of SKP's quality control monitoring policies and procedures.

60. SKP's quality control policies and procedures with respect to EQRs in 2018-2021 were also deficient. Specifically, those policies and procedures failed to provide reasonable assurance that EQRs were performed for the audits of the PVH Plans in multiple consecutive years (see above section F.i, "Engagement Quality Reviews"). SKP's failure to identify the repeated failure over several years to obtain EQRs reflects the deficient nature of SKP's quality control monitoring policies and procedures.

61. In addition, SKP's repeated failure to ensure timely filed Form APs and accurately filed Form 2s (see above section F.ii, "PCAOB Reporting") demonstrates that the firm lacked adequate policies and procedures to obtain reasonable assurance of compliance with regulatory requirements.[29] Once again, SKP's failure to identify the repeated failure to timely and accurately file required Form APs and Form 2s reflects the deficient nature of SKP's quality control monitoring policies and procedures.

62. As the firm's partner in charge of technical and quality review, Taylor was responsible for audit quality control and knew or should have known of SKP's obligations under PCAOB quality control standards. That role, as described in the questionnaire that addressed SKP's pre-2020 quality control policies and procedures, included "providing guidance, answering questions, monitoring compliance, and resolving matters with respect to independence, integrity, and objectivity." Notwithstanding his responsibilities, Taylor failed to take steps to design and implement an adequate system of quality control for SKP's issuer audits. As a result, Taylor knowingly or recklessly caused SKP's quality control violations, and thus violated PCAOB Rule 3502.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of KPMG S.p.A. (Italy),

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-026

October 19, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring KPMG S.p.A. ("KPMG Italy," the "Firm," or "Respondent"); and

(2) imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $75,000 upon the Firm.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that the Firm failed to file an accurate Form AP concerning the Firm's audit of Natuzzi S.p.A. ("Natuzzi") for the fiscal year ended December 31, 2017, in violation of PCAOB Rule 3211, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Respondent pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, KPMG Italy has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. KPMG S.p.A. (Italy) is a corporation headquartered in Milan, Italy. It is a member firm of the KPMG International Limited global network of firms ("KPMG Global"). At all relevant times, KPMG Italy was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. During the period covered by this Order, the Firm annually served as the principal auditor for one issuer client—Natuzzi.

B. Issuer

2. Natuzzi S.p.A. ("Natuzzi") is an Italian corporation headquartered in Santeramo in Colle, Italy. Its public filings disclose that it is a producer and designer of luxury furniture. Natuzzi was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). KPMG Italy issued audit reports that Natuzzi included in its Form 20-Fs filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") for fiscal years ended December 31, 2017, 2018 and 2019 (the "Natuzzi Audits").

C. Other Relevant Entities

3. KPMG Romania SRL ("KPMG Romania") is a limited liability company headquartered in Bucharest, Romania. It is a member firm of KPMG Global. At all relevant times, KPMG Romania was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. At all relevant times, it was licensed by the Romanian Chamber of Chartered Accountants (Lic. No. 000151/26.01.2000), but not licensed to perform local statutory audits in Romania.

4. KPMG Audit SRL ("KPMG Audit") is a limited liability company headquartered in Bucharest, Romania. It is also a member firm of KPMG Global. At all relevant times, KPMG Audit was the sole KPMG-affiliated firm that performed statutory and non-statutory audits in Romania, including international engagements pursuant to PCAOB standards. At all relevant times, it was registered with the Camera Auditorilor Financiari Din Romania

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to KPMG Italy's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

(autorizatie/certificat No. 9). KPMG Audit is not now, and never has been, registered with the Board.

D. Respondent Failed to File an Accurate Form AP in Violation of PCAOB Rule 3211

5. PCAOB Rule 3211, which took effect for issuer audit reports issued on or after January 31, 2017, provides that each registered public accounting firm must provide information about engagement partners and other accounting firms that participate in audits of issuers by filing a Form AP, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants, for each audit report issued by the firm for an issuer.

6. In particular, Rule 3211(a) provides that, "[f]or each audit report it issues for an issuer, a registered public accounting firm must file with the Board a report on Form AP in accordance with the instructions to that form."

7. The Form AP Instructions for "Part IV – Responsibility for the Audit Is Not Divided" require that an auditor who uses an "other accounting firm" that incurs more than 5% of the total audit hours "[s]tate the legal name of other accounting firms and the extent of participation in the audit" in its Form AP.[2]

8. During the Natuzzi Audits, KPMG Italy used the work of KPMG Audit each year to perform a portion of the audit. Following each of the Natuzzi Audits, KPMG Italy filed a Form AP pursuant to Rule 3211.

9. In the Form AP for the FY 2017 Natuzzi audit, KPMG Italy failed to identify KPMG Audit as a participant in the audit. Instead, KPMG Italy incorrectly identified PCAOB registrant KPMG Romania as an other participating accounting firm even though KPMG Romania played no role in the audit.

[2] In the adopting release for Rule 3211, the Board indicated that information provided on Form AP was intended to "help investors understand how much of the audit was performed by the accounting firm signing the auditor's report and how much was performed by other accounting firms," and allow investors to "research publicly available information about the firms identified in the form, such as whether a participating firm is registered with the PCAOB, whether it has been inspected and, if so, what the results were and whether it has any publicly available disciplinary history." See Improving the Transparency of Audits: Rules to Require Disclosure of Certain Audit Participants on a New PCAOB Form and Related Amendments to Auditing Standards, PCAOB Rel. No. 2015-008, at 4 (Dec. 15, 2015).

10. Accordingly, KPMG Italy violated PCAOB Rule 3211 in connection with the FY 2017 Natuzzi audit.

11. Ten months later, in March 2019, in connection with the FY 2018 Natuzzi audit, KPMG Italy made inquiries of KPMG Audit in connection with its upcoming Form AP filing. In response to those inquiries, KPMG Italy was informed that although KPMG Romania was registered with the PCAOB, it had not used its PCAOB registration in ten years and was not performing any audit work. Further, KPMG Italy was informed that KPMG Audit was the operational entity in Romania and had, in fact, provided the services in connection with the FY 2018 Natuzzi audit.

12. Consequently, KPMG Italy correctly identified KPMG Audit as the participating other accounting firm in the Form AP for the FY 2018 Natuzzi audit, and again the following year in connection with the FY 2019 Natuzzi audit.

13. KPMG did not, however, promptly correct its earlier Form AP filing for the FY 2017 Natuzzi Audit in which it has misidentified KPMG Romania as an other participating accounting firm. It was not until February 15, 2021, nearly two years after being informed that KPMG Romania had not used its PCAOB registration for ten years, that KPMG Italy filed an amended Form AP for the FY 2017 Natuzzi audit and identified the unregistered firm KPMG Audit as the participating other accounting firm in Romania.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), the Firm is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $75,000 is imposed upon the Firm. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. The Firm shall pay this civil money penalty within ten (10) days of the issuance of this Order by: (1) wire transfer pursuant to instructions provided by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight

Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the Firm as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of KPMG Accountants N.V. (Netherlands),

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-027

October 19, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring KPMG Accountants N.V. ("KPMG Netherlands," the "Firm," or "Respondent"); and

(2) imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $50,000 upon the Firm.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that the Firm failed to file an accurate Form AP concerning the Firm's audit of ING Groep N.V. ("ING") for fiscal year ended December 31, 2018, in violation of PCAOB Rule 3211, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Respondent pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, KPMG Netherlands has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. KPMG Accountants N.V. (Netherlands) is a limited liability corporation headquartered in Amstelveen, Noord-Holland, Netherlands. It is a member firm of the KPMG International Limited global network of firms ("KPMG Global"). At all relevant times, KPMG Netherlands was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. During the period covered by this Order, the Firm annually served as the principal auditor for six issuer clients.

B. Issuer

2. ING Groep N.V. ("ING") is a Dutch public limited liability company headquartered in Amsterdam, Netherlands. Its public filings disclose that it provides retail and wholesale banking services. ING was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). KPMG Netherlands issued an audit report that ING included in its Form 20-F filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") for the year ended December 31, 2018 ("FY 2018").

C. Other Relevant Entities

3. KPMG Audyt Sp. z o.o. ("KPMG Audyt ZOO") is a limited liability corporation company headquartered in Warsaw, Poland. It is a member firm of KPMG Global. At all relevant times, KPMG Audyt ZOO was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

4. KPMG Audyt spółka z ograniczoną odpowiedzialnością sp.k. ("KPMG Audyt SPK") is a limited liability partnership headquartered in Warsaw, Poland. It is also a member firm of KPMG Global. KPMG Audyt SPK is not now, and never has been, registered with the Board.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to KPMG Netherlands' Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

D. Respondent Failed to File an Accurate Form AP in Violation of PCAOB Rule 3211

5. PCAOB Rule 3211, which took effect for issuer audit reports issued on or after January 31, 2017, provides that each registered public accounting firm must provide information about engagement partners and other accounting firms that participate in audits of issuers by filing a Form AP, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants, for each audit report issued by the firm for an issuer.

6. In particular, Rule 3211(a) provides that, "[f]or each audit report it issues for an issuer, a registered public accounting firm must file with the Board a report on Form AP in accordance with the instructions to that form."

7. The Form AP Instructions for "Part IV – Responsibility for the Audit Is Not Divided" require that an auditor who uses an "other accounting firm" that incurs more than 5% of the total audit hours "[s]tate the legal name of other accounting firms and the extent of participation in the audit" in its Form AP.[2]

8. During the FY 2018 ING audit, KPMG Netherlands used the work of unregistered firm KPMG Audyt SPK to perform a portion of the audit. Following the audit, KPMG Netherlands filed a Form AP pursuant to Rule 3211.

9. In the Form AP for the FY 2018 ING audit, KPMG Netherlands failed to identify KPMG Audyt SPK as a participant in the audit. Instead, KPMG Netherlands incorrectly identified PCAOB registrant KPMG Audyt ZOO as an other participating accounting firm, even though KPMG Audyt ZOO played no role in the audit.

10. Accordingly, KPMG Netherlands violated PCAOB Rule 3211 in connection with the FY 2018 ING audit.

11. KPMG Netherlands eventually corrected the above-described error by filing an amended Form AP on April 7, 2020 for the FY 2018 ING audit, but not until nearly a year after

---

[2] In the adopting release for Rule 3211, the Board indicated that information provided on Form AP was intended to "help investors understand how much of the audit was performed by the accounting firm signing the auditor's report and how much was performed by other accounting firms," and allow investors to "research publicly available information about the firms identified in the form, such as whether a participating firm is registered with the PCAOB, whether it has been inspected and, if so, what the results were and whether it has any publicly available disciplinary history." See Improving the Transparency of Audits: Rules to Require Disclosure of Certain Audit Participants on a New PCAOB Form and Related Amendments to Auditing Standards, PCAOB Rel. No. 2015-008, at 4 (Dec. 15, 2015).

its original Form AP filing. The amended filing identified the unregistered firm KPMG Audyt SPK as an other participating accounting firm on the audit.[3]

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), the Firm is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $50,000 is imposed upon the Firm. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. The Firm shall pay this civil money penalty within ten (10) days of the issuance of this Order by: (1) wire transfer pursuant to instructions provided by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the Firm as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of KPMG LLP (Canada),

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-028

October 19, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring KPMG LLP ("KPMG Canada," the "Firm," or "Respondent"); and

(2) imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $150,000 upon the Firm.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that the Firm failed to file accurate Form APs concerning the Firm's audits of Celestica Inc. ("Celestica") for fiscal years ended December 31, 2017, 2018, and 2019, in violation of PCAOB Rule 3211, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants. Specifically, in its Form AP submissions relating to its audits of Celestica for those years, the Firm misidentified a component auditor that performed 5% or more of the work on the relevant audits.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Respondent pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, KPMG Canada has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. KPMG LLP (Canada) is a limited liability partnership headquartered in Toronto, Ontario, Canada. It is a member firm of the KPMG International Limited global network of firms ("KPMG Global"). At all relevant times, KPMG Canada was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. During the period covered by this Order, the Firm annually served as the principal auditor for more than 65 issuer clients.

B. Issuer

2. Celestica Inc. ("Celestica") is a Canadian corporation headquartered in Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Its public filings disclose that it is a manufacturer and supply chain service provider in various industry sectors, including aerospace, defense, and communications. Celestica was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). KPMG Canada issued audit reports that Celestica included in its Form 20-Fs filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") for fiscal years 2017, 2018 and 2019.

C. Other Relevant Entities

3. KPMG Romania SRL ("KPMG Romania") is a limited liability company headquartered in Bucharest, Romania. It is a member firm of KPMG Global. At all relevant times, KPMG Romania was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. At all relevant times, it was licensed by the Romanian Chamber of Chartered Accountants (Lic. No. 000151/26.01.2000), but not licensed to perform local statutory audits in Romania.

4. KPMG Audit SRL ("KPMG Audit") is a limited liability company headquartered in Bucharest, Romania. It is also a member firm of KPMG Global. At all relevant times, KPMG Audit was the sole KPMG-affiliated firm that performed statutory and non-statutory audits in Romania, including international engagements pursuant to PCAOB standards. At all relevant times, it was registered with the Camera Auditorilor Financiari Din Romania (autorizatie/certificat No. 9). KPMG Audit is not now, and never has been, registered with the Board.

D. Respondent Failed to File Accurate Form APs in Violation of PCAOB Rule 3211

5. PCAOB Rule 3211, which took effect for issuer audit reports issued on or after January 31, 2017, provides that each registered public accounting firm must provide information about engagement partners and other accounting firms that participate in audits of issuers by filing a Form AP, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants, for each audit report issued by the firm for an issuer.

6. In particular, Rule 3211(a) provides that, "[f]or each audit report it issues for an issuer, a registered public accounting firm must file with the Board a report on Form AP in accordance with the instructions to that form."

7. The Form AP Instructions for "Part IV – Responsibility for the Audit Is Not Divided" require that an auditor who uses an "other accounting firm" that incurs more than 5% of the total audit hours "[s]tate the legal name of other accounting firms and the extent of participation in the audit" in its Form AP.[2]

8. In connection with KPMG Canada's audits of Celestica's 2017, 2018, and 2019 financial statements (the "Celestica Audits"), KPMG Canada used the work of KPMG Audit each year to perform a portion of the audit. Following each of the Celestica Audits, KPMG Canada filed a Form AP pursuant to Rule 3211.

9. In each Form AP filing for the Celestica Audits, KPMG Canada failed to identify KPMG Audit as a participant in the audits. Instead, KPMG Canada incorrectly identified PCAOB registrant KPMG Romania as an other participating accounting firm, even though KPMG Romania played no role in any of the Celestica Audits.

[2] In the adopting release that included proposed Rule 3211, the Board indicated that information provided on Form AP was intended to "help investors understand how much of the audit was performed by the accounting firm signing the auditor's report and how much was performed by other accounting firms," and allow investors to "research publicly available information about the firms identified in the form, such as whether a participating firm is registered with the PCAOB, whether it has been inspected and, if so, what the results were and whether it has any publicly available disciplinary history." See Improving the Transparency of Audits: Rules to Require Disclosure of Certain Audit Participants on a New PCAOB Form and Related Amendments to Auditing Standards, PCAOB Rel. No. 2015-008, at 4 (Dec. 15, 2015).

10. Accordingly, KPMG Canada repeatedly violated PCAOB Rule 3211 in connection with the Celestica Audits.

11. On March 18, 2021, nearly three years after making its first incorrect Form AP filing for the Celestica Audits, KPMG Canada filed three amended Form APs (on Form AP/A)—one for each of the Celestica Audits. Each Form AP/A identified the unregistered firm KPMG Audit as the participating other accounting firm in Romania.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), the Firm is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $150,000 is imposed upon the Firm. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. The Firm shall pay this civil money penalty within ten (10) days of the issuance of this Order by: (1) wire transfer pursuant to instructions provided by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the Firm as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Hall & Company Certified Public Accountants & Consultants, Inc. and Anthony J. Price, CPA,

Respondents.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-029

November 3, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Hall & Company Certified Public Accountants & Consultants, Inc. ("Hall & Co." or "Firm") and Anthony J. Price, CPA ("Price") (collectively, "Respondents");

(2) imposing civil money penalties in the amounts of $30,000 on Hall & Co.[1] and $25,000 on Price;

(3) in the event Hall & Co. submits any future registration application[2] and as a condition to the Board granting such an application, requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial measures, including that it establish quality control policies and procedures to give the Firm reasonable assurance that issuer audits and reviews are conducted in accordance with applicable professional standards; and

(4) limiting Price's activities, for a period of two years from the date of this Order, by prohibiting him from administering a registered firm's system of quality control, including responsibilities for the design and maintenance of its policies and procedures.

[1] Based on its conduct, Hall & Co.'s civil money penalty in this settlement would have been $150,000. The Board determined to accept the Firm's offer of settlement and impose a lower penalty after considering the Firm's financial resources, and the fact that it ceased operations as of December 31, 2020.

[2] The Firm has filed a Form 1-WD seeking leave to withdraw from registration with the Board, which the Board has determined to grant as of the date of this Order.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that: (1) the Firm violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards by failing to implement and maintain quality control procedures to ensure that its personnel complied with applicable professional standards; and (2) Price violated PCAOB Rule 3502 by directly and substantially contributing to the Firm's violations of PCAOB rules and quality control standards.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Respondents pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have each submitted Offers of Settlement (collectively, the "Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for the purpose of these proceedings and any other proceeding brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents each consent to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[3]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[4]

A. Respondents

1. Hall & Company Certified Public Accountants & Consultants, Inc., is an S Corporation organized under the laws of the State of California, and headquartered in Irvine,

[3] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[4] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

California. At all relevant times, the Firm was licensed in the State of California (License No. 5034). At all relevant times, the Firm was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

2. Anthony J. Price, CPA, is a certified public accountant licensed by the State of California (License No. 82793). At all relevant times, Price was Director of Audit and Quality Control for the Firm, a member of its client acceptance and continuance committee, and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). He also served as the engagement quality review partner for Hall & Co.'s audits of The Crypto Company, as described below.

B. Issuer

3. The Crypto Company ("TCC") was, at all relevant times, a Nevada corporation headquartered in California. TCC's public filings disclose that it created products to facilitate investing in digital assets, such as cryptocurrencies, and also that it invested and traded in cryptocurrencies. At all relevant times, TCC was an issuer as defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).[5]

C. Summary

4. This matter concerns the Firm's failure to comply with PCAOB rules and quality control standards requiring the Firm to establish appropriate quality control policies and procedures with respect to acceptance and continuance of clients and engagements, personnel management, and engagement performance. Specifically, the Firm's system of quality control did not provide reasonable assurance that: (1) the Firm undertook only those engagements that the Firm could reasonably expect to be completed with professional competence, and appropriately considered the risks associated with providing professional services in the particular circumstances; (2) work was assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances, and Firm personnel participated in general and industry-specific continuing professional education and other professional development activities that enabled them to fulfill responsibilities assigned; and (3) the work performed by engagement personnel met applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the Firm's standards of quality.

5. This matter also concerns Price's direct and substantial contribution to the Firm's violations of PCAOB rules and quality control standards. As the partner in charge of the audit department and the partner responsible for quality control, Price had primary responsibility for maintaining quality control policies and procedures applicable to the Firm's accounting and auditing practice. Price also had a direct role in the client acceptance and continuance approval process for TCC and in the assignment of personnel to the audit of TCC.

D. Background

6. The Firm registered with the Board in September 2013, but did not issue a public company audit opinion until March 2016. In February 2016, staff from another audit firm, including Price, joined Hall & Co. to build its public issuer audit practice, whereupon the Firm had approximately ten issuer audit clients. During 2017, the Firm accepted four new issuer audit clients, including TCC, and had approximately fourteen issuer audit clients in total.

7. Upon his arrival at Hall & Co. in February 2016, Price was responsible for developing the Firm's quality control manual applicable to issuer audits. He prepared the documentation of the Firm's quality control policies and procedures, merging policies and procedures from his old firm with those existing at Hall & Co. Although the stated approach of the Firm was to be selective and accept issuer audit clients for which the Firm would be able to perform quality audits, Hall & Co. failed to have policies and procedures sufficient to provide reasonable assurance that the Firm undertook only those engagements that it could reasonably expect to complete with professional competence. In addition, although the Firm's quality control policies and procedures noted the Firm's use of certain standardized practice aids, the policies did not adequately address circumstances, such as in audits requiring specialized skills and knowledge, where relevant practice aids did not exist or needed to be supplemented.

8. On June 9, 2017, Croe, Inc., an issuer that was a fitness apparel manufacturer, completed a reverse merger with TCC, which had been a private company. In late July 2017, Hall & Co. accepted TCC as an audit client, and on August 25, 2017, the Firm consented to the inclusion of its audit report on TCC's pre-merger financial statements for the period from March 9, 2017 to June 7, 2017 in a Form 8-K filing with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC" or "Commission"). On September 20, 2017, TCC engaged Hall & Co. to audit TCC's post-merger financial statements for the period ending December 31, 2017 ("2017 Audit"). On April 2, 2018, Hall & Co. issued an audit report containing its unqualified opinion on TCC's financial statements for the period ended December 31, 2017, in TCC's Form 10-K filing with the Commission. At that time, TCC was one of the Firm's largest audit engagements.

9. At the time of the 2017 Audit's acceptance and continuance, TCC's only business operations related to the acquisition, holding, and trading of a portfolio of cryptocurrency. Digital assets, including cryptocurrencies, and distributed ledgers were emerging technologies.

Cryptocurrency ownership, and parties to its transfer, were relatively anonymous, and organizations providing cryptocurrency services were largely unregulated.[6]

10. TCC, whose market capitalization was, at one point, approximately $12 billion,[7] reported in its post-merger financial statements that it held more than eleven different cryptocurrencies, which were significant to its assets and revenue, and that its mission was to provide investors with a diversified exposure to cryptocurrency markets. These cryptocurrencies were purchased or traded using various types of software and hardware-based wallets on various unregulated cryptocurrency trading platforms, often called cryptocurrency "exchanges." TCC did not maintain accounting records of its cryptocurrency transactions, and instead relied on a third-party service website that maintained records of all transactions carried out on unregulated cryptocurrency exchange trading platforms. In late December 2017, the SEC suspended trading of TCC's stock due to, among other things, questions concerning potentially manipulative transactions in TCC's stock.[8]

E. The Firm Violated PCAOB Rules and Quality Control Standards

11. PCAOB rules require a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons to comply with PCAOB quality control standards.[9] These standards require that a registered public accounting firm have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice.[10] A firm's system of quality control provides a critical foundation and infrastructure for a firm's audit quality as it should "ensure that services are competently delivered and adequately supervised."[11] "A system of quality control is broadly defined as a process to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its personnel comply with applicable professional standards and the firm's standards of quality."[12]

12. As described below, the Firm failed to meet the quality control standards that required policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance concerning competence and proficiency in client acceptance and continuance, personnel management, and engagement performance.

i. Hall & Co.'s System of Quality Control Failed to Provide Reasonable Assurance with Respect to Acceptance and Continuance of Clients and Engagements

13. PCAOB quality control standards require that a registered public accounting firm establish quality control policies and procedures for deciding whether to accept or continue a client relationship and whether to perform a specific engagement for that client.[13] Such policies and procedures should provide reasonable assurance that the firm undertakes only those engagements that the firm can reasonably expect to be completed with professional competence, and appropriately considers the risks associated with providing professional services in the particular circumstances.[14]

14. Throughout the relevant time period, the Firm failed to have in place adequate policies and procedures to decide whether to accept or continue a client relationship and whether to perform a specific engagement for that client. Specifically, the Firm's policies and procedures failed to provide reasonable assurance that the Firm undertook only those engagements that it could reasonably expect to be completed with professional competence. In addition, the Firm's policies and procedures failed to provide reasonable assurance that it appropriately considered the risks associated with providing professional services in the particular circumstances.

15. The Firm executed an engagement letter with TCC in connection with the 2017 Audit in September 2017, more than two months prior to the approval of continuance of that specific engagement by the Firm's client acceptance and continuance committee and in violation of the Firm's quality control procedures and policies. Price learned about this within two days of the execution of the engagement letter with TCC—months before the committee, on which he served, decided in December 2017 to perform the 2017 Audit of TCC's post-merger financial statements.

12 QC § 20.03.

14 QC § 20.15.

16. In addition, the Firm's engagement acceptance procedures appeared perfunctory and failed to appropriately demonstrate that it considered the risks associated with providing professional services in these particular circumstances. For example, to support its acceptance and continuance decision for the 2017 Audit, the Firm documented the factors it considered in a standardized client acceptance evaluation form. The factors to be addressed in the form included whether the Firm could reasonably expect the 2017 Audit to be completed with professional competence. Although the Firm checked the boxes and provided "yes" or "no" responses to the standard questions in the form, the Firm did not consider the risks associated with providing professional services to TCC in light of the fact that cryptocurrencies were significant to TCC's assets and revenue. There was no indication that the Firm considered whether it could reasonably expect to complete the TCC engagement with professional competence, or the risks associated with providing audit services to TCC in the specific circumstances despite the complex issues that would require specialized skills and knowledge to audit. Instead, the Firm summarily concluded it had the required technical skills and expertise in TCC's business model and that it had sufficient competent professional staff available to perform the engagement, even though it did not.

17. The Firm therefore violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards by failing to have adequate policies and procedures related to (1) client acceptance and continuance sufficient to provide reasonable assurance that it undertook only those engagements that it could reasonably expect to be completed with professional competence, and (2) appropriately considering the risks associated with providing professional services in the particular circumstances. These failures resulted in, or contributed to, the Firm's acceptance of a client relationship with TCC, an issuer engaged in a new, complex business, even though the Firm's public auditing practice was relatively new and its personnel lacked prior experience or training in audits involving similarly complex, unusual, or unfamiliar transactions.

ii. Hall & Co.'s System of Quality Control Failed to Provide Reasonable Assurance with Respect to Personnel Management

18. A registered public accounting firm should establish quality control policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that work is assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances, and its personnel participate in general and industry-specific continuing professional education and other professional development activities that enable them to fulfill responsibilities assigned.[15] A firm's quality control policies and procedures should ordinarily address certain competencies

for the practitioner-in-charge of an engagement, including technical proficiency, familiarity with the industry, and understanding of the organization's information technology ("IT") systems.[16]

19. At all relevant times, the Firm failed to maintain effective policies and procedures to provide it with reasonable assurance that work was assigned to personnel with the required technical training and proficiency, or that personnel assigned to the engagement would develop appropriate proficiency in relevant matters to fulfill their assigned responsibilities.

20. These failures resulted in, or contributed to, the Firm's failure during the acceptance and continuance process regarding the 2017 TCC Audit to assess whether any of its audit personnel had experience auditing digital assets, including cryptocurrencies or cryptography, or adequate knowledge concerning the cryptocurrency exchange trading platforms for these types of digital assets or the distributed ledger technology, itself.

21. Despite the known risks concerning the TCC engagement, Price and the Firm assigned an engagement partner and other personnel to the 2017 Audit, including Price as the engagement quality review partner, all of whom did not have the requisite degree of technical training and proficiency required under the circumstances. Moreover, the engagement partner had limited experience as an engagement partner on issuer audits prior to the 2017 Audit. Under these circumstances, it was not reasonable for the Firm and Price to assign an engagement partner to this audit who also had little previous experience serving as the practitioner-in-charge of issuer audits.

22. The engagement team also lacked expertise relevant to gaining an understanding of cryptocurrency transactions, or to gaining an understanding of organizations' IT systems, in order to adequately perform audit services for a company like TCC with substantial investments in cryptocurrency. The only personnel assigned to the 2017 Audit who had any cryptocurrency experience was the engagement team's most junior staff member, an individual who was not a certified public accountant and had minimal public company audit experience. That staff member's experience with cryptocurrencies was limited to internet-based searches and personal trading of cryptocurrencies that he commenced during the 2017 Audit.

23. The Firm's policies and procedures also failed to provide it with reasonable assurance that personnel participated in general and industry-specific continuing professional education and other professional development activities that enabled them to fulfill responsibilities assigned.[17] As a result, the engagement team for the 2017 Audit did not participate in any specific training or professional development activities related to cryptocurrency. Moreover, the personnel assigned to the 2017 Audit neither obtained adequate training nor developed sufficient proficiency related to cryptocurrency before issuing the audit report for TCC's 2017 financial statements.

[16] QC § 40.08, The Personnel Management Element of a Firm's System of Quality Control-Competencies Required by a Practitioner-in-Charge of an Attest Engagement.

iii. Hall & Co.'s System of Quality Control Failed to Provide Reasonable Assurance with Respect to Engagement Performance

24. A registered public accounting firm should also establish quality control policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality.[18] Quality control policies and procedures for engagement performance encompass all phases of the design and execution of an engagement.[19] Such policies and procedures provide reasonable assurance that personnel refer to appropriate authoritative literature or other sources and consult, on a timely basis, with individuals within or outside the firm, including when dealing with complex, unusual, or unfamiliar issues.[20]

25. At all relevant times, the Firm failed to establish policies and procedures sufficient to provide it with reasonable assurance that the work performed by its engagement personnel met applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the Firm's standards of quality. These failures resulted in, or contributed to, the Firm not meeting applicable professional standards and not consulting when appropriate with individuals within or outside the Firm during the 2017 Audit.

26. The engagement team for the 2017 Audit identified many risks of material misstatement in TCC's financial statements.[21] The engagement team documented fraudulent financial reporting opportunities arising from the unregulated nature of cryptocurrency exchanges and the lack of formal policies or procedures on recording gains or losses, along with traders' ability to adjust transaction records. It further identified fraud risks from an entity (such as TCC) recording in its financial statements cryptocurrency that it did not own, and trading cryptocurrency "off-exchange" without generating any records of such transactions. As a result, the engagement team identified fraud risks for the amount recorded from realized and unrealized gains and losses on sales and holdings of cryptocurrency. It also identified significant risks relating to whether TCC's investments in cryptocurrency existed, were owned, and were properly valued.

27. However, the flaws in the Firm's quality control policies and procedures resulted in, or contributed to, the engagement team not establishing an overall audit strategy and developing an audit plan in the 2017 Audit to obtain a sufficient understanding of TCC and its environment in order to design sufficient audit responses to address the significant and fraud risks it had identified. For example, the Firm's audit methodology did not sufficiently consider circumstances requiring specialized skills and knowledge; thus, the engagement team's efforts to understand the business were limited to obtaining an article giving a general overview of the evolution of cryptocurrency and a TCC-prepared market research presentation. The engagement team also determined that no consultation outside of the Firm was required with respect to planning and performing procedures in the 2017 Audit, notwithstanding the Firm's lack of experience in auditing issuers engaged in cryptocurrency transactions.

28. Furthermore, the engagement team's planning documentation and related communications to the audit committee for the 2017 Audit concluded no specialized skills or knowledge were needed, despite being aware that TCC's investment activities in cryptocurrencies, which relied on new technology, required specialized skills. In addition, notwithstanding the engagement team's identification of significant risks of material misstatement related to the digital nature of cryptocurrency, and its lack of experience in auditing cryptocurrencies, the engagement team unreasonably concluded no specialized IT skills were needed to address those risks.[22] Consequently, the engagement team inappropriately concluded no service organization's services were a part of TCC's information system to account for its cryptocurrency despite TCC's use of exchange trading platforms to provide custodial services and its reliance on the third-party website to maintain its records. The engagement team also failed to gain a sufficient understanding of TCC's internal control over financial reporting to appropriately plan its audit, including TCC's use of service organizations for cryptocurrency investments.[23]

F. Price Directly and Substantially Contributed to Hall & Co.'s Violations

29. A person associated with a registered public accounting firm shall not take or omit to take an action knowing, or recklessly not knowing, that the act or omission would directly and substantially contribute to a violation by that registered public accounting firm of the Act, the rules of the Board, the provisions of the securities laws relating to the preparation and issuance of audit reports and the obligations and liabilities of accountants with respect thereto, including the rules of the Commission issued under the Act, or professional standards.[24]

30. As described above, Price directly and substantially contributed to the Firm's violations of PCAOB rules and quality control standards. As the Director of Audit and Quality Control for the Firm, Price was principally responsible for developing and maintaining quality control policies and procedures applicable to the Firm's auditing practice. At the time of the 2017 Audit, Price knew or was reckless in not knowing that his role, which involved leading the quality control function for a new and inexperienced public auditing practice, required greater attention to the risks inherent in performing engagements involving complex, unusual, or unfamiliar issues outside the Firm's prior experience or professional competence.

31. Price had a central role in the Firm's approval of TCC as a client and in the Firm's decision to perform the 2017 Audit, failing to identify and evaluate the risks of undertaking the audit, and assigning to the audit personnel without requisite technical training and experience. Specifically, Price learned within two days that the Firm had executed an engagement letter for the 2017 Audit in September 2017, long before the Firm's client acceptance and continuance committee, on which he served, approved the continued engagement of TCC to perform the 2017 Audit. Thus, Price was on notice that the Firm had executed the engagement letter without having performed the evaluation called for by the Firm's policies and procedures. Price also contributed to accepting TCC as an audit client, despite having failed to implement or maintain effective quality control procedures, as Director of Audit and Quality Control, to ensure the Firm had personnel with sufficient technical training and proficiency to complete the audit. Indeed, Price assigned the engagement partner and himself as the engagement quality reviewer to the 2017 Audit, although neither he nor the assigned engagement partner had any experience relevant to auditing issuers transacting in cryptocurrencies. Price also failed to understand whether engagement team personnel had participated in professional development activities that could enable them to fulfill the responsibilities he assigned to them.

32. In connection with these responsibilities, Price took, or omitted to take, actions knowing, or recklessly not knowing, that those acts or omissions would directly and substantially contribute to the Firm's violations of PCAOB rules and quality control standards for its issuer auditing practice, in violation of PCAOB Rule 3502.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Hall & Co. and Anthony J. Price are hereby censured.

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), the Board imposes a civil money penalty in the amount of $30,000 on Hall & Co., and a civil money penalty on Anthony J. Price of $25,000. All funds collected by the PCAOB as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act.

C. Respondents shall each pay the civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (a) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by PCAOB staff; or (b) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (i) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (ii) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (iii) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies Hall & Co. or Anthony J. Price as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

1. With respect to any civil money penalty amounts that Respondents shall pay pursuant to this Order, Respondents shall not, directly or indirectly, (a) seek or accept reimbursement or indemnification from any source including, but not limited to, any current or former affiliated firm or professional or any payment made pursuant to any insurance policy; (b) claim, assert, or apply for a tax deduction or tax credit in connection with any federal, state, local, or foreign tax; nor (c) seek or benefit by any offset or reduction of any award of compensatory damages in any private action brought against any Respondent based on substantially the same facts as set out in the findings in this Order.

2. By consenting to this Order, Hall & Co. understands that failure to pay the civil money penalty imposed upon it may alone be grounds to deny any application, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2106, for registration with the Board.

3. By consenting to this Order, Anthony J. Price understands that failure to pay the civil money penalty imposed upon him may result, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5304(b), in summary suspension, following written notice to Respondent at the address on file with the PCAOB at the time of the issuance this Order, and a summary bar, if the civil money penalty is not paid within 90 days of such notice.

D. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), Hall & Co. is required:

1. before filing with the Board any future registration application, to (a) establish policies and procedures, or revise and/or supplement existing policies and procedures, for the purpose of providing Hall & Co. with reasonable assurance of compliance with regulatory requirements applicable to audits and reviews of issuers, brokers, and dealers;[25] (b) to establish a policy of ensuring training of personnel, whether internal or external, on an annual or more frequent regular basis, concerning requirements applicable to audits and reviews of issuers; and (c) to ensure training pursuant to that policy on at least one occasion; and

2. to provide with any future registration application a written certification of compliance with the above requirements, written evidence of compliance in the form of a narrative, exhibits sufficient to demonstrate compliance, and such additional evidence of and information concerning compliance as the staff of the Division of Registration and Inspections may reasonably request.

E. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(C) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(3), for a period of two years from the date of this Order, Anthony J. Price will not have responsibilities for the design or maintenance of a registered firm's quality control policies and procedures under PCAOB standards, including, but not limited to, (1) deciding whether to accept or continue a client relationship and whether to perform a specific engagement for that client; and (2) assigning personnel to particular engagements.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of KPMG LLP (United Kingdom),

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-031

December 6, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring KPMG LLP ("KPMG UK," the "Firm," or "Respondent");

(2) imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $600,000 on KPMG UK; and

(3) requiring KPMG UK to undertake and certify the completion of certain improvements to its system of quality control.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that, in connection with four audits of an issuer from 2017 through 2020, KPMG UK used audit work performed by KPMG Audit SRL, a Romanian KPMG affiliate that was not registered with the Board yet played a substantial role in each of the four audits. Specifically, the Board finds that KPMG UK failed to reasonably supervise KPMG Audit SRL, failed to comply with the Board's requirements for communicating with audit committees, and violated the Board's quality control standards. In addition, in connection with audits of multiple issuers, the Firm made numerous inaccurate Form AP filings with the Board, several of which indicated that PCAOB-registered firms had participated in KPMG UK audits when in fact unregistered firms had participated.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Respondent pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rules 5200(a)(1) and (2).

I.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, KPMG UK has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

D. Summary

14. This matter concerns KPMG UK's repeated violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with its use of, and reporting on, the work of other accounting firms.

---

[2] KPMG Audit submitted a registration application to the Board in late 2021, which was subsequently disapproved by Board order. See In re Registration Application of KPMG Audit SRL, PCAOB Rel. No. 101-2022-002 (July 7, 2022). In the order, the Board found that the firm had violated Section 102(a) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 2100 by playing a substantial role in the Endava Audits. The Board's order provided that with respect to any new application for registration after the longer of one year from the date of the order, or a six-month period following the date upon which a cooperative agreement is entered into between the PCAOB and Autoritatea pentru Supravegherea Publica a Activitatii de Audit Statutar ("ASPAAS") (or any relevant Romanian regulator) that allows for PCAOB inspections in Romania, the Board will not issue a notice of hearing to determine whether to approve or disapprove such application based solely on the violations that are the subject of the findings in the order.

15. First, KPMG UK improperly allowed its unregistered Romanian affiliate, KPMG Audit, to play a substantial role in four consecutive audits of the financial statements of issuer client Endava from 2017 through 2020. KPMG UK knew that KPMG Audit was required to register with the Board before it played a substantial role in any issuer audits. KPMG UK, however, failed to take adequate steps to ensure that KPMG Audit's participation in the Endava Audits was consistent with PCAOB registration requirements, that is, that KPMG Audit did not "play a substantial role" in the Endava Audits.[3]

16. KPMG Audit's participation in the Endava Audits far exceeded the substantial role threshold each year from 2017 through 2020, including one year in which KPMG Audit incurred 74% of the total audit hours. Due to its inadequate planning and oversight of KPMG Audit's participation in the Endava Audits, KPMG UK failed to reasonably supervise an associated person pursuant to Section 105(c)(6) of the Act and failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards concerning due professional care and audit planning.

17. Second, in each audit year at issue, KPMG UK failed to communicate to Endava's audit committee that KPMG Audit had played a substantial role in the Endava Audits despite not being registered with the PCAOB. In fact, during the FY 2020 audit of Endava, KPMG UK incorrectly communicated to Endava's audit committee that KPMG Romania, not KPMG Audit, had participated in the audit. Due to its inaccurate communications, KPMG UK violated PCAOB standards governing communications with audit committees.

18. Third, the repeated violations described above demonstrate that, from 2017 through 2020, KPMG UK failed to establish and implement adequate quality control policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, concerning the use of the work of other accounting firms, in violation of PCAOB quality control standards.

19. Finally, KPMG UK failed to file accurate Form APs in connection with audits of multiple issuers from 2017 through 2020, in violation of PCAOB rules. Specifically, the Firm failed to report KPMG Audit's participation in the FY 2017 through FY 2019 audits of Endava and its FY 2019 BAT audit. Instead, in violation of PCAOB Rule 3211, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants, KPMG UK incorrectly reported that PCAOB-registered firm KPMG Romania, not KPMG Audit, had participated in those audits.[4] In addition, KPMG UK's Form APs for its FY 2018 Endava and FY 2019 Barclays Bank and Barclays PLC audits identified KPMG India, a PCAOB-registered firm, as having participated in the audits when it had not done so. Further, in its Form AP for the FY 2020 Micro Focus audit, KPMG UK incorrectly attributed to PCAOB registrant B S R & Co. work that was in fact performed by B S R & Associates, a firm not registered with the PCAOB. KPMG UK ultimately corrected these errors by filing amended Form APs.

[4] With respect to the FY 2020 audit of Endava, KPMG UK identified KPMG Audit as the other participating accounting firm in its 2020 Form AP, filed October 15, 2020, at a 30% to 40% level.

E. Requirements Related to Playing a Substantial Role in an Audit

20. Section 102(a) of the Act makes it "unlawful" for an accounting firm that is not registered with the Board "to prepare or issue, or to participate in the preparation or issuance of, any audit report with respect to any issuer, broker, or dealer."[5]

21. In addition, Section 106(a)(2) of the Act states:

> The Board may, by rule, determine that a foreign public accounting firm (or a class of such firms) that does not issue audit reports nonetheless plays such a substantial role in the preparation and furnishing of such reports for particular issuers, brokers, or dealers, that it is necessary or appropriate, in light of the purposes of this Act and in the public interest or for the protection of investors, that such firm (or class of firms) should be treated as a public accounting firm (or firms) for purposes of registration under, and oversight by the Board in accordance with, this subchapter.[6]

22. In furtherance of these provisions, the Board adopted Rule 2100, Registration Requirements for Public Accounting Firms, which requires any accounting firm, foreign or domestic, that "plays a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an audit report with respect to any issuer, broker, or dealer" to register with the Board.

23. PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(ii) defines the phrase "play a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an audit report" to mean, among other things, "perform[ing] material services that a public accounting firm uses or relies on in issuing all or part of its audit report." The phrase "material services" means "services, for which the engagement hours or fees constitute 20% or more of the total engagement hours or fees, respectively, provided by the principal auditor in connection with the issuance of all or part of its audit report."[7]

6 15 U.S.C. § 7216(a)(2).

7 Rule 1001(p)(ii), at Note 1.

F. Background

24. In connection with each of the Endava Audits, KPMG UK and KPMG Audit entered into a Multi-Firm Engagement ("MFE") agreement that governed KPMG Audit's participation in those audits. The MFE agreements made clear both the identity of the Romanian firm that would be participating in the Endava Audits and the significance of that participation.

25. For example, an MFE agreement, dated November 8, 2018, detailed that KPMG Audit personnel who would work on the FY 2019 Endava audit included an audit partner, director, manager, senior in charge, and any other personnel deemed necessary by KPMG UK. That MFE agreement also expressly stated that KPMG Audit "is performing [the] audit of significant elements of the Endava Limited group consolidated accounts" and estimated that KPMG Audit would receive €175,000 in fees for its work.

26. The MFE agreements between KPMG UK and KPMG Audit did not indicate that any Romanian affiliate of KPMG other than KPMG Audit would participate in the Endava Audits.

27. Pursuant to the MFE agreements, KPMG Audit participated in the Endava Audits and invoiced KPMG UK for services rendered. For the FY 2017, 2018, and 2019 audits of Endava, KPMG Audit exceeded the 20% substantial role threshold in terms of both total hours and total fees. For the FY 2020 Endava audit, KPMG Audit exceeded the 20% substantial role threshold for total hours. As shown in the table below, KPMG Audit's hours incurred on the Endava Audits ranged from 36% to 74% of the total audit hours and KPMG Audit's fees ranged from 16% to 34% of the total audit fees.[8]

[8] During the Endava Audits, KPMG UK structured the Endava Audits so that its engagement team was required to directly supervise the work of KPMG Audit pursuant to AS 1201, Supervision of the Audit Engagement.

Substantial Role Audit	% Total Audit Hours Incurred by KPMG Audit	% Total Audit Fees Apportioned to KPMG Audit
Audit of Endava's FY 2017 financial statements	63%	34%
Audit of Endava's FY 2018 financial statements	74%	22%
Audit of Endava's FY 2019 financial statements	61%	21%
Audit of Endava's FY 2020 financial statements	36%	16%

28. With respect to the Endava Audits, KPMG UK failed to take adequate steps to plan or supervise the audits in a manner that would ensure that only firms registered with the PCAOB played a substantial role in the audits. To the extent any personnel at KPMG UK believed that KPMG Romania, a PCAOB-registered firm, was the entity providing services in connection with the Endava Audits, any such belief was contradicted by the MFE agreements that KPMG UK had entered into with KPMG Audit, by the invoices that KPMG Audit sent to KPMG UK for its work, and by various other communications between the two firms. Moreover, even after KPMG Audit personnel put KPMG UK on notice in October 2019 that KPMG UK had been identifying the wrong Romanian affiliate in its Form AP filings with the PCAOB, KPMG UK still failed to take any steps to determine whether KPMG Audit was eligible to play a substantial role on the Endava Audits.

G. KPMG UK Failed to Reasonably Supervise KPMG Audit and Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

29. During each of the Endava Audits, KPMG Audit incurred more than 20% of the total engagement hours. KPMG Audit's fees also amounted to more than 20% of the total engagement fees in the FY 2017, 2018, and 2019 audits of Endava. Accordingly, KPMG Audit played a substantial role in each of the Endava Audits without being registered with the Board, in violation of Section 102(a) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 2100.

30. KPMG UK failed to reasonably supervise KPMG Audit's participation in the Endava Audits in a manner designed to avoid violations of Section 102(a) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 2100, and KPMG UK likewise failed to properly plan the audits.

i. KPMG UK Failed to Reasonably Supervise KPMG Audit

31. Section 105(c)(6) of the Act provides that the Board may impose sanctions on a registered public accounting firm if the Board finds that (1) the firm has failed reasonably to supervise an associated person, either as required by the rules of the Board relating to auditing or quality control standards, or otherwise, with a view to preventing violations of the Act or the rules of the Board; and (2) such associated person commits a violation of the Act or Board rules.

32. Under Section 2(a)(9) of the Act, the term "person associated with a registered public accounting firm" includes "any . . . entity that, in connection with the preparation or issuance of any audit report—(i) shares in the profits of, or receives compensation in any other form from, that firm; or (ii) participates as agent or otherwise on behalf of such accounting firm in any activity of that firm."

33. KPMG Audit invoiced KPMG UK for the services it provided in connection with the Endava Audits. Thus, KPMG Audit "receive[d] compensation" from KPMG UK in connection with the preparation and issuance of KPMG UK's audit reports. In addition, because it performed audit work at the direction, and under the supervision, of KPMG UK, KPMG Audit acted as an "entity that, in connection with the preparation or issuance of [KPMG UK's] audit report[s,] . . . participate[d] as agent or otherwise on behalf of [KPMG UK]." Accordingly, KPMG Audit was an "associated person" of KPMG UK during the FY 2017 to 2020 Endava Audits.

34. KPMG UK had a responsibility to reasonably supervise its associated persons during its issuer audits. It failed to do so.

35. During the Endava Audits, KPMG UK knew that PCAOB standards required substantial role participants to be registered. Indeed, Firm guidance specifically stated: "Any public accounting firm that prepares or issues the auditors' report with respect to any issuer (including foreign private issuers), broker, or dealer, or 'plays a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of the auditors' report' with respect to any issuer, broker, or dealer, must register with the PCAOB." Related Firm guidance also provided the relevant definitions contained in PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(ii). Firm guidance for completing Form AP templates during the FY 2019 and 2020 audits of Endava similarly indicated that for "significant component auditors [KPMG UK is] required to use registered audit firms."

36. Despite this guidance, KPMG UK failed to take adequate steps to ensure that the Romanian affiliate it used to play a substantial role in the Endava Audits was registered with the Board. As noted above, KPMG UK knew, or should have known, from its MFEs, KPMG Audit's invoices, and other communications with KPMG Audit that KPMG Audit was the other accounting firm in Romania under KPMG UK's supervision. KPMG UK also knew or should have known from readily available public information, such as the PCAOB website, that KPMG Audit was not registered with the Board. However, KPMG UK failed to accurately determine throughout the Endava Audits which KPMG affiliate firm in Romania it was supervising, information that was necessary to ensure compliance with applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the Firm's standards of quality.

37. That failure continued even after personnel from KPMG Audit in October 2019 informed a member of the KPMG UK Endava engagement team that KPMG Audit was not registered, that it was the only KPMG-affiliated entity conducting audits in Romania, and that KPMG Romania was "more of a holding company." Despite having been provided that information, KPMG UK continued to use KPMG Audit to play a substantial role in the FY 2020 Endava audit.

38. Because KPMG Audit incurred more than 20% of the total audit hours during the Endava Audits and accounted for more than 20% of the total audit fees in the FY 2017 to 2019 audits of Endava, it performed material services used by KPMG UK in issuing KPMG UK's audit reports. KPMG Audit therefore violated Section 102(a) of the Act and Rule 2100 by playing a substantial role in the Endava Audits without being registered with the Board.

39. As detailed above, KPMG UK failed to reasonably supervise KPMG Audit under Section 105(c)(6) of the Act with a view to preventing KPMG Audit's violations of the registration requirements.

ii. KPMG UK Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

40. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[9]

41. PCAOB standards provide that, as part of audit planning, the auditor should establish an overall audit strategy.[10] The auditor should take into account "[t]he factors that are significant in directing the activities of the engagement team" and "[t]he nature, timing, and extent of resources necessary to perform the engagement."[11] PCAOB standards also require that "[d]ue professional care . . . be exercised in the planning and performance of the audit and the preparation of the report."[12]

42. In establishing the overall audit strategy for the Endava Audits, KPMG UK failed to adequately take into account: (1) the fact that KPMG Audit was an unregistered firm whose substantial role participation in the Endava Audits would constitute a violation of PCAOB rules, as KPMG UK knew or should have known; (2) the nature of the resources necessary to perform the audits, insofar as those resources included the involvement of an unregistered firm; and (3) for the FY 2020 audit, the fact that, prior to the execution of the FY 2020 MFE, KPMG Audit had communicated to certain KPMG UK personnel that it was not registered with the PCAOB, that it was the only KPMG-affiliated operational entity in Romania conducting audits, and that the PCAOB-registered firm KPMG Romania was merely a holding company.[13] As a result of these failures, KPMG UK did not engage in adequate planning to ensure that KPMG Audit would not violate PCAOB registration requirements.

43. Accordingly, KPMG UK violated AS 2101. KPMG UK also violated AS 1015 by failing to exercise due professional care in planning the Endava Audits.

H. KPMG UK Failed to Make Required Audit Committee Communications

44. AS 1301, Communications with Audit Committees, requires the auditor to communicate certain matters related to the conduct of an audit to the issuer's Audit Committee.[14] Among the matters that the auditor must communicate, as part of communicating the overall audit strategy, are: "The names, locations, and planned responsibilities of other independent public accounting firms or other persons, who are not employed by the auditor, that perform audit procedures in the current period audit."[15]

45. In adopting AS 1301, the Board explained the rationale for the provision governing identification of other independent public accounting firms:

> The audit committee should be aware of all the participants in the audit. This communication regarding other participants in the audit would enable the audit committee to inquire or otherwise determine, for example, whether the other participants are registered with the Board and are subject to PCAOB inspections and whether they have disciplinary history with the Board or other regulators . . . [T]he amount of detail the auditor generally would communicate to the audit committee regarding the participation of other auditors would be greater for participants that perform a significant portion of the audit or that perform procedures related to significant risks.[16]

46. During the Endava Audits, KPMG UK failed to inform Endava's Audit Committee that KPMG Audit, an unregistered firm, had participated in each of the audits. During the FY 2020 Endava audit, KPMG UK also incorrectly communicated to Endava's audit committee that KPMG Romania would be participating in the audit. For example, in a slide deck presentation dated January 29, 2020, KPMG UK indicated that "KPMG UK and KPMG Romania SRL work as one team on the same audit file. This slide sets out split of work between the UK and Romania which is crucial to the audit."

47. As a result of the omissions and errors in KPMG UK's communications to Endava's Audit Committee, KPMG UK violated AS 1301 and AS 1015 during the Endava Audits.

I. KPMG UK Violated PCAOB Quality Control Standards

48. PCAOB rules require that a registered firm comply with PCAOB quality control standards.[17] Those standards require a firm to "have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice."[18] As part of this requirement, "[p]olicies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality."[19]

49. PCAOB quality control standards also recognize that monitoring procedures are necessary "to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the policies and procedures relating to each of the other elements of quality control are suitably designed and are being effectively applied."[20] Under PCAOB standards, monitoring involves an ongoing consideration and evaluation of, among other things, compliance with the firm's policies and procedures.[21]

21 See QC § 20.20.d; QC § 30.02.d.

50. KPMG UK failed to establish and implement adequate policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel met applicable regulatory requirements related to using the work of other accounting firms.

51. Although KPMG UK had certain quality control policies and procedures in those areas, the Firm failed to implement and monitor them in an adequate manner. As a result, KPMG UK repeatedly used an unregistered firm to play a substantial role in the Endava Audits.

52. Accordingly, KPMG UK failed to comply with QC § 20 and QC § 30.

J. KPMG UK Failed to File Accurate Form APs in Violation of PCAOB Rule 3211

i. KPMG UK Failed to Make Accurate Form AP Filings for the FY 2017, 2018, and 2019 Audits of Endava

53. PCAOB Rule 3211, which took effect for issuer audit reports issued on or after January 31, 2017, provides that each registered public accounting firm must provide information about engagement partners and other accounting firms that participate in audits of issuers by filing a Form AP, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants, for each audit report issued by the firm for an issuer.

54. In particular, Rule 3211(a) provides that, "[f]or each audit report it issues for an issuer, a registered public accounting firm must file with the Board a report on Form AP in accordance with the instructions to that form."

55. The Form AP Instructions for "Part IV – Responsibility for the Audit Is Not Divided" require that an auditor who uses an "other accounting firm" that incurs more than 5% of the total audit hours "[s]tate the legal name of other accounting firms and the extent of participation in the audit" in its Form AP.[22]

[22] In the adopting release for Rule 3211, the Board indicated that information provided on Form AP was intended to "help investors understand how much of the audit was performed by the accounting firm signing the auditor's report and how much was performed by other accounting firms," and allow investors to "research publicly available information about the firms identified in the form, such as whether a participating firm is registered with the PCAOB, whether it has been inspected and, if so, what the results were and whether it has any publicly available disciplinary history." See Improving the Transparency of Audits: Rules to Require Disclosure of Certain Audit Participants on a New PCAOB Form and Related Amendments to Auditing Standards, PCAOB Rel. No. 2015-008, at 4 (Dec. 15, 2015).

56. As described above, in connection with the Endava Audits, KPMG UK used the work of KPMG Audit each year to perform a portion of the audit. Following each of the Endava Audits, KPMG UK filed a Form AP pursuant to Rule 3211.

57. KPMG UK did not accurately report KPMG Audit's participation in its Form AP filings for the FY 2017, 2018, or 2019 audits of Endava. Instead, KPMG UK incorrectly indicated in those filings that KPMG Romania was the other participating accounting firm in its audits of Endava.

58. With respect to the Form AP filing for the FY 2019 Endava audit, KPMG UK's erroneous identification of KPMG Romania as playing a substantial role in the audit occurred just two days after KPMG Audit had informed certain KPMG UK personnel that KPMG Romania was not an operating entity and that KPMG Audit was not registered with the PCAOB. In fact, KPMG Audit shared that information with KPMG UK specifically in response to inquiries the Endava engagement team had made in connection with KPMG UK's upcoming Form AP filing. Despite being put on notice that KPMG Romania was not the entity that had played a substantial role in the FY 2019 audit, KPMG UK continued to misidentify it as having done so in its 2019 Form AP filing.

59. KPMG UK's Form AP filing for the FY 2018 Endava audit also incorrectly identified KPMG India, a PCAOB-registered firm, as participating at a 10% to less than 20% level in the audit. KPMG India did not, however, participate in the FY 2018 Endava audit. Rather, another India-based entity, KPMG India Private, which has never been registered with the PCAOB, did.

60. KPMG UK's failure to accurately report KPMG Audit's substantial role participation in the FY 2017, 2018, and 2019 audits of Endava, as well as its incorrect identification of KPMG Romania (for FY 2017 through 2019) and KPMG India (for FY 2018) as participating in the audits, constituted violations of PCAOB Rule 3211.

61. On February 17, 2021, nearly three years after making its first incorrect Form AP filing related to the Endava Audits, KPMG UK filed amended Form APs (using Form AP/A) for the FY 2017, 2018, and 2019 audits of Endava. Each Form AP/A correctly identified the unregistered firm KPMG Audit as the participating other accounting firm in Romania. KPMG UK failed to correct its identification of KPMG India as a participating other accounting firm in the FY 2018 audit of Endava until more than three years after making its original Form AP filing for that audit, when it filed another Form AP/A on August 4, 2022.

ii. KPMG UK Failed to Make Accurate Form AP Filings for its FY 2019 Barclays Bank and Barclays PLC Audits, FY 2019 BAT Audit, and FY 2020 Micro Focus Audit

62. KPMG UK also filed incorrect Form APs in connection with its FY 2019 Barclays Bank and Barclays PLC audits, its FY 2019 BAT audit, and its FY 2020 Micro Focus audit.

63. KPMG UK's Form AP filing for its FY 2019 Barclays Bank audit incorrectly identified KPMG India as participating in the audit when it did not. Instead, B S R & Co. had participated in the audit.

64. KPMG UK's Form AP filing for its FY 2019 Barclays PLC audit incorrectly identified KPMG India as participating in the audit when it did not. Instead, B S R & Co. had participated in the audit.

65. In the Form AP for its FY 2019 BAT audit, KPMG UK incorrectly identified KPMG Romania as having participated in the audit when it had not. Instead, unregistered KPMG Audit had participated in the audit.

66. In connection with the FY 2020 Micro Focus audit, KPMG UK used the work of two India-based firms, B S R & Co., which is registered with the PCAOB, and B S R & Associates, which is not. The participation of each of the India-based firms was at a level that required reporting on Form AP. In its Form AP for the FY 2020 Micro Focus audit, however, KPMG UK incorrectly identified B S R & Co. as the only India-based firm that participated, failing to identify B S R & Associates' participation.

67. KPMG UK eventually corrected the above-described errors by filing amended Form APs for its FY 2019 Barclays Bank, Barclays PLC, and BAT audits and its FY 2020 Micro Focus audit, but not until February 17, 2021, 10 months after the original filing in the case of BAT, March 28, 2022, 12 months after the original filing in the case of Micro Focus, and August 4, 2022, more than two years after the original filing in the cases of Barclays Bank and Barclays PLC.

68. Accordingly, KPMG UK also violated PCAOB Rule 3211 in connection with its Form AP filings for its FY 2019 Barclays Bank, Barclays PLC, and BAT audits and its FY 2020 Micro Focus audit.

III.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 5300(a)(5), KPMG LLP is censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), the Board imposes a civil money penalty of $600,000 on KPMG LLP. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Respondent shall pay this civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the entity or person as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006.

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), the Board orders that:

1. Review by KPMG LLP. Within three months of the date of this Order, KPMG LLP shall review and evaluate its quality control policies and procedures to assess whether those policies and procedures provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its personnel and other associated persons comply with applicable regulatory requirements (a) when the firm uses audit work performed or supervised by other accounting firms and (b) when the firm makes required regulatory filings.

2. Reporting. Within three months of the date of this Order, KPMG LLP shall submit a written report to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations summarizing the review and evaluation of the areas specified in paragraph C.1 above ("Report"). The Report shall describe any modified or additional policies or procedures adopted or to be adopted by KPMG LLP or, if KPMG LLP concludes no such modifications or additions should be adopted, a detailed and satisfactory explanation of why the firm believes changes are not warranted. In addition, KPMG LLP shall submit any additional information and evidence concerning the Report, the information in the Report, and KPMG LLP's compliance with this Order as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request.

3. Certificate of Implementation. Within six months of the date of this Order, KPMG LLP's managing partner shall certify in writing ("Certificate of Implementation") to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations that KPMG LLP has implemented all of the modifications and additions to its policies and procedures that were described in the Report. The Certificate of Implementation shall provide written evidence of KPMG LLP's adoption of such modifications and additions in narrative form, identify the actions taken to implement such modifications and additions, and be supported by exhibits sufficient to demonstrate implementation. KPMG LLP shall also submit such additional evidence of, and information concerning, implementation as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request.

4. Noncompliance. KPMG LLP understands that a failure to satisfy these undertakings may constitute a violation of PCAOB Rule 5000 and could provide a basis for the imposition of additional sanctions in a subsequent disciplinary proceeding.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of KPMG LLP(United Kingdom),

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-032

December 6, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is imposing sanctions upon KPMG LLP ("KPMG UK," the "Firm," or "Respondent"). The Board is:

(1) censuring the Firm;

(2) imposing a $2 million civil money penalty on the Firm; and

(3) requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial actions as described in Section IV of this Order.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that KPMG UK violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards over several years in connection with the Firm's internal training program.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. KPMG LLP is a limited liability partnership organized under the laws of the United Kingdom and headquartered in London, United Kingdom. It is a member firm of the KPMG International Limited global network of firms ("KPMG Global"). At all relevant times, KPMG UK was registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. During the period covered by this Order, the Firm annually served as the principal auditor for 13 or more issuer audit clients.

B. Summary

2. From at least 2018 until March 2021, KPMG UK violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards related to integrity and personnel management by failing to establish appropriate policies and procedures for administering and overseeing internal training tests, including tests designed to help the Firm's audit professionals satisfy the requirements for maintaining their professional certifications. Those quality control failures prevented the Firm from identifying that hundreds of Firm professionals, including personnel from an entity based in India that provides support for KPMG UK's issuer audit work, KPMG Resource Centre Private Limited ("KRC"), were involved in improper answer sharing—either by providing answers, or receiving answers without reporting such sharing—in connection with tests for mandatory internal training courses covering topics that included auditing, accounting, and professional independence. All of these professionals performed work for the Firm's Assurance practice.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

C. KPMG UK Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

i. Applicable PCAOB Rules and Quality Control Standards

3. PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm comply with the Board's quality control standards,[2] which provide that a registered firm "shall have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice."[3]

4. As part of a firm's system of quality control, "[p]olicies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that personnel . . . perform all professional responsibilities with integrity."[4] In addition, PCAOB quality control standards related to personnel management state that "policies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that . . . [w]ork is assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances."[5] Moreover, "policies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that . . . [p]ersonnel participate in general and industry-specific continuing professional education and other professional development activities that enable them to fulfill responsibilities assigned, and satisfy applicable continuing professional education requirements of . . . regulatory agencies."[6]

5. PCAOB quality control standards recognize that "[t]he elements of quality control are interrelated,"[7] and that monitoring procedures are necessary "to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the policies and procedures related to each of the other elements of quality control are suitably designed and are being effectively applied."[8] Under PCAOB standards, monitoring involves an ongoing consideration and evaluation of, among other things, the effectiveness of professional development activities and compliance with the firm's policies and procedures.[9]

ii. KRC's Support of KPMG UK's Issuer Audits

6. KRC is a service delivery center not registered with the PCAOB. KRC is half-owned by KPMG UK and provides issuer audit support services to various member firms of the KPMG Global network. Employees of KRC are assigned to support a specific KPMG Global network firm, so KRC employees assigned to support KPMG UK in its audits of issuers principally perform professional services on behalf of KPMG UK. Such KRC employees perform limited audit procedures on KPMG UK issuer audits under the direction of the KPMG UK audit engagement teams. These KRC employees perform professional services for which KPMG UK is responsible.

7. KPMG UK has an obligation to establish policies and procedures to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that, among other things, these KRC employees perform all professional responsibilities with integrity, the employees have the degree of technical training and proficiency required to perform the work assigned to them, and the employees participate in general and industry-specific continuing professional education and other professional development activities that enable them to fulfill responsibilities assigned, and satisfy applicable continuing professional education requirements of regulatory agencies.[10]

iii. Training Requirements for KPMG UK and KRC Personnel

8. As part of KPMG UK's and KRC's personnel management systems, KPMG UK and KRC administer internal training programs for all of their professionals. KPMG UK and KRC designed their training programs to serve multiple purposes, including to provide personnel with technical instruction, to further their professional development, and to help employees satisfy some of the continuing professional education requirements imposed by the accountancy boards that license KPMG UK's and KRC's auditors. KPMG UK's and KRC's training requirements are intended to be relevant to, among other things, the independence of their personnel, the audit work they perform, and the integrity with which they carry out their professional responsibilities. However, the training requirements can vary by a professional's position, role, and industry practice area. Both KPMG UK's and KRC's internal trainings often include a testing component.

9. Since at least 2018, KPMG UK and KRC have utilized online platforms to offer training to their personnel. The platforms enable KPMG UK and KRC to deliver, track, and record completion of mandatory training and testing. The platforms record the dates and times when personnel access and complete mandatory training and testing. For training courses with [10] See supra at nn. 4-6; see also footnote 4 to QC § 20.03 (providing that "[t]he term personnel refers to all individuals who perform professional services for which the firm is responsible, whether or not they are CPAs").

a testing component, the firms do not credit personnel with completing the training until they satisfactorily pass the related test.

10. Since at least 2018, KPMG UK and KRC have required all personnel to take certain online courses, including courses containing content regarding professional independence and performing professional responsibilities with integrity. These courses include a testing component at the end. During the same period, KPMG UK and KRC also have administered a number of online courses related to auditing and accounting. The particular courses KPMG UK and KRC auditors must take vary based on their experience levels. Many of these audit-related courses include a testing component and are mandatory for the KPMG UK and KRC audit personnel.

iv. Failures by KPMG UK to Establish Adequate Quality Control Policies and Procedures Related to Integrity and Personnel Management

11. Between 2018 and March 2021, KPMG UK had in place certain quality control policies and procedures intended to address integrity and personnel management. For example, with respect to integrity, the Firm's Code of Conduct generally advised personnel that the Firm does not "tolerate behavior . . . that is . . . unethical." However, those policies were not specifically designed to provide reasonable assurance that Firm personnel acted with integrity when taking internal training tests. With respect to only a limited set of exams administered in this period, KPMG UK formally advised its audit personnel that they should perform training tests on their own. But the Firm failed to communicate this expectation to KPMG UK or KRC personnel in connection with other training tests during this period. During this time period, KPMG UK also employed certain monitoring procedures related to internal training, but those procedures were limited to tracking completion of courses and related tests. The monitoring procedures were not designed to detect other compliance issues, such as answer sharing.

12. As described below, these policies and procedures were inadequate to prevent or detect the extensive answer sharing on training tests that occurred among KPMG UK and KRC personnel over multiple years.

v. Sharing of Answers to Training Tests at KPMG UK and KRC

13. From at least 2018 to March 2021, hundreds of KPMG UK personnel and KRC personnel assigned to support KPMG UK issuer audits were involved in improper answer sharing related to training tests. They shared answers primarily through emails attaching documents that contained answers to training test questions.

14. Instances of improper answer sharing primarily occurred in connection with tests that were a part of KPMG UK's and KRC's mandatory training. At KPMG UK, individuals engaged in answer sharing in connection with tests for trainings entitled Update for Auditors, IFRS, US Auditing Standards Periodic Update, and SEC Baseline. At KRC, individuals engaged in answer sharing in connection with tests for trainings entitled Audit Foundations, Update for Auditors, IT Auditing, US GAAP/ICOFR, and IFRS.

15. As illustrated by the misconduct described above, from at least 2018 to March 2021, KPMG UK failed to establish policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that (1) KPMG UK personnel, and KRC personnel assigned to support KPMG UK audits of issuers, performed all professional responsibilities with integrity; (2) KPMG UK and KRC personnel to whom work was assigned for KPMG UK had the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances; and (3) KPMG UK personnel, and KRC personnel assigned to support KPMG UK audits of issuers, participated in general and industry-specific continuing professional education that enabled them to fulfill responsibilities assigned and satisfy applicable continuing professional education requirements of regulatory agencies. Accordingly, the Firm violated PCAOB quality control policies related to integrity and personnel management.[11]

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), KPMG LLP is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $2 million is imposed on KPMG LLP. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. KPMG LLP shall pay this civil money penalty within ten (10) days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service postal money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board; (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public

Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006. With respect to any civil money penalty amounts that KPMG LLP shall pay pursuant to this Order, KPMG LLP shall not, directly or indirectly, (a) seek or accept reimbursement or indemnification from any source including, but not limited to, any current or former affiliated firm or professional or any payment made pursuant to any insurance policy; (b) claim, assert, or apply for a tax deduction or tax credit in connection with any federal, state, local, or foreign tax; nor (c) seek or benefit by any offset or reduction of any award of compensatory damages, by the amount of any part of KPMG LLP's payment of the civil money penalty pursuant to this Order, in any private action brought against KPMG LLP based on substantially the same facts as set out in the findings in this Order; and

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), KPMG LLP is required:

1. Within 90 days of the entry of this Order, to establish, revise, or supplement, as necessary, policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that (a) personnel perform all internal training and tests associated with such training with integrity; (b) personnel to whom work has been assigned have the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances; (c) personnel participate in general and industry-specific continuing professional education that enable them to fulfill responsibilities assigned and satisfy applicable continuing professional education requirements of regulatory agencies; and (d) the above-described policies and procedures are suitably designed and are being effectively applied.

2. Within 120 days of the entry of this Order, to provide a certification, signed by its CEO, to the Director of the PCAOB's Division of Enforcement and Investigations, stating that the Firm has complied with paragraph IV.C.1. above. The certification shall identify the actions undertaken to satisfy the conditions specified above (including any remedial actions taken prior to the date of this Order), provide written evidence of compliance in the form of a narrative, and be supported by exhibits sufficient to demonstrate compliance. KPMG LLP shall also submit such additional evidence of, and information concerning, compliance as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP and Sagar Pravin Lakhani,

Respondents.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-033

December 6, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP ("KPMG India" or the "Firm"), a registered public accounting firm, and Sagar Pravin Lakhani ("Lakhani" and, together with KPMG India, "Respondents");

(2) suspending Lakhani from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm for a period of one year from the date of this Order;

(3) imposing civil money penalties in the amounts of $1,000,000 on KPMG India and $75,000 on Lakhani; and

(4) requiring KPMG India to undertake and certify the completion of certain improvements to its system of quality control.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the bases that, in connection with an issuer audit, (1) KPMG India violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards concerning audit documentation; and (2) Lakhani violated PCAOB rules and standards when he and certain other engagement team members signed off on blank placeholder work papers in the Firm's electronic audit software.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Respondents pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have each submitted an Offer of Settlement (together, the "Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, and except as provided herein in Section IV, Respondents each consent to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[2]

A. Respondents

1. KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP is a partnership organized under the laws of India and headquartered in Mumbai, India. KPMG India is a member firm of the KPMG global organization of independent member firms affiliated with KPMG International Limited. KPMG India registered with the Board on January 18, 2005.

2. Sagar Pravin Lakhani was, at all relevant times, a partner of KPMG India and an "associated person of a registered public accounting firm" as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). He served as the engagement partner for KPMG India's integrated audit of the financial statements and internal control over financial reporting ("ICFR") of Issuer A for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2017.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that Lakhani's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

B. Issuer

3. Issuer A is a company organized under the laws of India with headquarters in Mumbai, India. Issuer A is a banking company whose principal business activities are retail banking, wholesale banking, and treasury services. At all relevant times, Issuer A was an "issuer" as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

4. This matter concerns KPMG India's violation of PCAOB quality control standards by failing to implement, communicate, and monitor adequate policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that Firm personnel would: (1) comply with PCAOB standards concerning appropriately documenting and dating their completion and review of work papers; (2) include all hard copy audit work papers in the complete and final set of audit documentation assembled for retention ("archived"); and (3) appropriately document any changes to archived hard copy work papers after the documentation completion date.[3]

5. In addition, this matter concerns Lakhani and certain other members of the Issuer A engagement team having signed off on blank electronic work papers during the 2017 Issuer A audit. After Lakhani or another member of the engagement team signed off as a preparer or reviewer on a blank work paper, that work paper subsequently could be replaced or modified without the sign-off date changing. In fact, many of the blank work papers on which Lakhani and his engagement team signed off during the 2017 Issuer A audit were replaced with completed versions of those work papers after KPMG India released its audit report and before the documentation completion date.

6. By signing off on blank work papers, Lakhani violated AS 1215, which requires that audit documentation for an engagement enable an experienced auditor, with no prior connection to the engagement, to determine the date on which audit work was completed and reviewed.[4] In addition, Lakhani violated AS 1201, Supervision of the Audit Engagement, by failing to adequately supervise the engagement team with respect to the use of blank work papers. As a result of this conduct, Lakhani also violated AS 1015, Due Professional Care in the Performance of Work, which requires an auditor to exercise due professional care in performing an audit.

D. Background

7. KPMG India served as Issuer A's auditor for the 2017 fiscal year, and Lakhani served as the Firm's engagement partner for the 2017 Issuer A audit.

8. On July 31, 2017, KPMG India issued an audit report expressing an unqualified opinion on Issuer A's 2017 financial statements and ICFR. The Firm's audit report was included in a Form 20-F that Issuer A filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission on July 31, 2017.

i. KPMG India's eAudIT Software

9. At the time of the 2017 Issuer A audit, KPMG India's audit engagement teams used both hard copy work papers and electronic work papers to document their work.

10. Hard copy work papers were maintained in a paper binder, while electronic work papers were maintained in the Firm's proprietary audit software, called "eAudIT." Each member of a KPMG India audit engagement team had a copy of the Firm's eAudIT software on his or her laptop.

11. Work papers for the 2017 Issuer A audit were organized into four sections within eAudIT, each of which was maintained locally by a member of the engagement team on his or her respective laptop in a so-called "Master File." Each Master File remained on the applicable engagement team member's laptop until the documentation completion date, at which point it was uploaded to KPMG India's central eAudIT server.

12. To prepare or review electronic work papers, an engagement team member would connect his or her laptop to the laptop containing the Master File. Alternatively, both the laptop containing the Master File and the preparer or reviewer's laptop had to be connected to the internet for the preparer or reviewer to connect to the Master File.

13. The holder of the Master File also could extract selected work papers from the Master File and send those work papers to a preparer or reviewer via email in a so-called "eAudIT package." The recipient of the eAudIT package could create, review, edit, and/or sign off on work papers in the package; the recipient then could email the eAudIT package back to the holder of the Master File to be re-imported into the Master File.

14. The sign off date reflected for work papers prepared or reviewed in an eAudIT package was the date that the recipient of the package signed off on them, regardless of when the eAudIT package was re-imported into the Master File.

15. Once a preparer or reviewer's sign off on a work paper was electronically recorded in eAudIT—whether by connecting directly to the Master File or importing an eAudIT package—the Firm's eAudIT software allowed engagement team members to replace, modify, rename, and move that work paper without updating the sign off date to reflect the date it was replaced or modified.

16. KPMG India's Audit Manual ("KAM") contemplated that, "in limited circumstances, it may not be efficient or practicable to review audit documentation within eAudIT. In such circumstances, a reviewer may indicate review by signing or initialing and dating the audit documentation, either manually or through electronic sign-off (i.e. digital signature or a picture of the reviewer's manual signature)." KAM provided that the manual or electronic signature then would be "attached into the eAudIT file by a team member at a later date."

17. KAM also provided that there may be "certain time sensitive circumstances" in which work papers were reviewed via email and "it may not be practical to provide a manual or electronic sign-off (e.g. not having access to one's computer, scanning capabilities or an internet connection, and cell phones do not support the electronic sign-off process). In these limited situations an individual may document his or her review of the audit documentation in an email message sent to the engagement partner, manager or associate." The email documenting sign off would be "attached to the [eAudIT] file by a team member at a later date."

18. Aside from these "limited" and "time sensitive" circumstances, KAM did not contemplate review and sign off on audit documentation outside of eAudIT. Under no circumstances did KAM permit KPMG India personnel to sign off on blank work papers.

ii. The 2017 Issuer A Audit

19. During the 2017 Issuer A audit, engagement team members signed off on dozens of blank eAudIT work papers that served as placeholders.

20. Lakhani knew during the 2017 Issuer A audit that certain engagement team members had signed off on blank work papers in eAudIT, and he personally signed off on ten blank work papers.

21. Lakhani also knew that, when an engagement team member signed off as preparer or reviewer on a blank work paper in eAudIT, the sign off date would remain the same even if the blank work paper was later replaced by a draft or completed work paper. In other words, eAudIT would continue to reflect the date the blank work paper was signed off, not the date that the completed work paper was inserted into eAudIT.

22. For example, on July 12, 2017, an engagement team member emailed Lakhani an eAudIT package containing work papers on which other engagement team members had previously signed off. On July 13, Lakhani added his sign off to certain work papers in the package—including six blank work papers—and emailed the package back to its sender to be imported into the Master File.

23. The blank work papers on which Lakhani signed off subsequently were replaced in eAudIT with completed versions of those work papers, but Lakhani's sign off date remained July 13 based on the eAudIT package that he returned on July 13.

24. Lakhani's general practice was to sign off on a work paper after reviewing the information and conclusions documented therein. However, Lakhani did not document reviewing any draft or completed version of the blank work papers outside of eAudIT in the manner contemplated by the Firm's internal guidance concerning the "limited circumstances" in which work papers were reviewed outside of eAudIT—i.e., via a manual, electronic, or email sign off on the underlying work paper.

25. The July 12, 2017 eAudIT package contained, in addition to the blank work papers, five other blank documents with filenames ending in "Extra 1.docx" or "Extra 2.docx." While Lakhani did not sign off on these "Extra" documents, the "Extra" documents contained sign offs of other engagement team members and were included in the eAudIT package returned by Lakhani on July 13.

26. Notwithstanding his awareness of the engagement team's use of the blank work papers and "Extra" documents, Lakhani did not have any specific discussions with the team about their use.

27. In late August 2017, several weeks after KPMG India issued its 2017 audit report for Issuer A on July 31, 2017, Lakhani performed an additional review of the work papers in eAudIT. Lakhani's August review occurred prior to the end of the documentation completion date of September 14, 2017.

28. In emails Lakhani sent to engagement team members concerning his August review, Lakhani identified dozens of eAudIT work papers as "blank." For example, in an email dated August 26, 2017, Lakhani wrote "IT'S A BLANK DOC – I NEED TO REVIEW THIS" with respect to fourteen work papers. Indeed, Lakhani's August 26 email identified as still "BLANK" four of the blank work papers on which he had signed off as part of the July 12-13 eAudIT package.

29. Contemporaneous documentation indicates that drafts, some in near-final form, existed of at least some of the work papers that Lakhani identified as blank or missing during his August review. However, there was no manual, electronic, or email sign off evidencing when the work papers were completed and reviewed outside of eAudIT.

30. The eAudIT work papers that Lakhani identified as blank during his August review were replaced in eAudIT with completed versions of those work papers prior to the documentation completion date. No documents with an "Extra" filename ultimately were included in the final version of work papers that was uploaded to KPMG India's central eAudIT server as of the documentation completion date. The preparer and reviewer sign off dates on each of the replaced workpapers remained the same as it had been prior to replacement.

E. Lakhani Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

31. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[5]

i. Lakhani Violated PCAOB Audit Documentation Standards

32. PCAOB standards require that "[a]udit documentation must contain sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement . . . [t]o determine who performed the work and the date such work was completed as well as the person who reviewed the work and the date of such review."[6]

33. As discussed above, Lakhani signed off on blank eAudIT placeholder work papers. The sign off dates on the blank work papers were not updated when they were subsequently modified or replaced with completed versions of the work papers. Nor did Lakhani document his review of any partially or fully completed versions of the blank work papers outside of eAudIT.

[5] PCAOB Rule 3100, Compliance with Auditing and Related Professional Practice Standards; PCAOB Rule 3200, Auditing Standards.

[6] AS 1215.06.

34. Accordingly, because an experienced auditor, with no prior connection to the 2017 Issuer A engagement, would be unable to determine the date on which Lakhani reviewed the work that was ultimately reflected in the completed versions of the blank work papers, Lakhani violated AS 1215.

ii. Lakhani Failed to Adequately Supervise the Engagement Team

35. PCAOB standards provide that "the engagement partner is responsible for the proper supervision of the work of the engagement team members and for compliance with PCAOB standards."[7]

36. As part of his supervisory responsibilities, the engagement partner should "[r]eview the work of engagement team members to evaluate whether: (1) The work was performed and documented; (2) The objectives of the procedures were achieved; and (3) The results of the work support the conclusions reached."[8]

37. As discussed above, Lakhani knew during the 2017 Issuer A audit that (1) engagement team members were signing off on blank work papers and "Extra" documents in eAudIT; and (2) engagement team members could replace, rename, or move the blank work papers and "Extra" documents without updating the corresponding sign off dates.

38. However, Lakhani failed to exercise adequate supervision in light of the engagement team's use of the blank work papers and "Extra" documents. For example, Lakhani failed to take appropriate steps to ensure that the audit documentation would appropriately reflect the dates on which the engagement team had actually completed and reviewed its audit work.[9] Nor did he ensure compliance with KPMG India's internal guidance providing for the use of manual, electronic, or email sign offs in the "limited circumstances" in which a review of work papers occurred outside of eAudIT.

39. Accordingly, Lakhani violated AS 1201 by failing to supervise and review the engagement team's audit work in a manner sufficient to evaluate whether the work was appropriately performed and documented.

8 AS 1201.05(c).

9 See AS 1215.06.

iii. Lakhani Failed to Exercise Due Professional Care

40. PCAOB standards provide that "[d]ue professional care is to be exercised in the planning and performance of the audit and the preparation of the report."[10]

41. In violating AS 1215 by signing off on blank work papers, and in violating AS 1201 by failing to adequately supervise the use of blank work papers and "Extra" documents by members of the engagement team, Lakhani failed to exercise due professional care. Accordingly, Lakhani also violated AS 1015.

F. KPMG India Violated PCAOB Rules and Quality Control Standards

42. PCAOB rules require registered public accounting firms to comply with the Board's quality control standards.[11] PCAOB quality control standards, in turn, require each registered firm to effectively design, implement, and maintain a system of quality control to provide reasonable assurance that its personnel comply with applicable professional standards.[12] As part of this requirement, the firm should establish quality control policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality.[13] Among other areas, a firm's policies and procedures should address the documentation of each engagement in accordance with applicable professional standards.[14] In addition, a firm "should communicate its quality control policies and procedures to its personnel in a manner that provides reasonable assurance that those policies and procedures are understood and complied with."[15]

43. PCAOB quality control standards also provide that policies and procedures for monitoring "should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the policies and procedures established by the firm for each of the other elements of quality control . . . are suitably designed and are being effectively applied,"[16] and that "its system of quality control is effective."[17]

44. As noted above, PCAOB standards require audit documentation to reflect "who performed the work and the date such work was completed as well as the person who reviewed the work and the date of such review."[18] PCAOB standards further require an auditor to archive a complete and final set of audit documentation as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date (i.e., the documentation completion date).[19] Any documentation added after the documentation completion date "must indicate the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding it."[20]

45. KAM provided guidance to KPMG India's associated persons about how to document their work in the "limited circumstances" where they reviewed work papers outside of eAudIT. However, the Firm failed to adequately communicate those restrictions to its personnel, as demonstrated by the Issuer A engagement team members' widespread use of and signing off on blank work papers in eAudIT and their failure to appropriately document their review of work papers outside of eAudIT.

46. In addition, notwithstanding the limitations of its eAudIT software, KPMG India failed to establish adequate safeguards that would have prevented (or detected) certain Issuer A engagement team members from modifying, replacing, or moving a work paper without appropriately updating the sign off date to reflect the dates on which the work was completed and reviewed.

47. KPMG India also failed to establish adequate policies and procedures concerning the archiving of hard copy work papers and the documentation of changes made to hard copy audit files after the documentation completion date.

48. As noted above, at the time of the 2017 Issuer A audit, KPMG India maintained work papers both in eAudIT and in hard copy. The engagement team failed to archive the hard copy work papers for the 2017 Issuer A audit by the end of the 45-day documentation completion period, in part because the Firm's policies and procedures did not require hard copy work papers to be maintained in a centralized location after the document completion date. As a result, engagement teams could modify or add hard copy work papers after the documentation completion date without appropriately documenting the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding it.

49. Indeed, certain members of the Issuer A engagement team made such modifications after the documentation completion date. Specifically, without Lakhani's knowledge, these engagement team members added at least four hard copy work papers to the Issuer A audit file after the documentation completion date, including one work paper that was prepared after the documentation completion date. The engagement team members added those hard copy work papers to the audit file in November 2017, shortly in advance of the PCAOB's inspection of the Firm, which included a review of the 2017 Issuer A audit engagement.

50. In addition, KPMG India's monitoring procedures were not sufficient to identify the use of blank work papers in eAudIT, the failure to timely archive hard copy work papers, or the failure to appropriately document changes to hard copy work papers after the documentation completion date, all in connection with the 2017 Issuer A audit.

51. The Firm's monitoring procedures also failed to provide the Firm with a means of identifying and communicating to its personnel circumstances or practices—such as the use of blank work papers—that may have necessitated changes to its documentation policies and procedures.[21]

52. Accordingly, KPMG India violated QC § 20 and QC § 30 by failing to implement, communicate, and monitor adequate policies and procedures to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that its personnel complied with PCAOB audit documentation standards—including standards concerning documentation of the date audit work was completed, of the date audit work was reviewed, and of any changes to the work papers after the documentation completion date.

[21] See QC § 30.03 ("Procedures that provide the firm with a means of identifying and communicating circumstances that may necessitate changes to or the need to improve compliance with the firm's policies and procedures contribute to the monitoring element.").

IV.

53. KPMG India has represented to the Board that, since the events described in this Order, the Firm has disciplined certain of its personnel and has established and implemented the following changes to its quality control policies and procedures:

a. Transitioned all electronic audit work paper master files to an online KPMG server (as opposed to hosting them on individual engagement team members' laptops);

b. Implemented a Firm requirement that a complete and final set of audit documentation must be assembled for retention within 14 days of the report release date for all issuer audits;

c. Prohibited the use of hard copy workpapers for all audit engagements performed after December 31, 2018;

d. Sent guidance to all associated persons concerning the scope of permissible activities between the release of an audit report and the documentation completion date; and

e. Instituted additional training on audit documentation for associated persons who perform audits under PCAOB standards.

V.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP and Sagar Pravin Lakhani are hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Sagar Pravin Lakhani is suspended, for one year from the date of this Order, from being an "associated person of a registered public accounting firm," as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[22]

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $1,000,000 is imposed on KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP, and a civil money penalty in the amount of $75,000 is imposed on Sagar Pravin Lakhani.

1. All funds collected by the PCAOB as a result of the assessment of these civil money penalties will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act.

2. Each Respondent shall pay the respective civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (a) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by PCAOB staff; or (b) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (i) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (ii) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (iii) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the entity or person as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

3. If timely payment is not made, interest shall accrue at the federal debt collection rate set for the current quarter pursuant to 31 U.S.C. § 3717. Payments shall be applied first to interest.

[22] As a consequence of the suspension, the provisions of Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act will apply with respect to Lakhani. Section 105(c)(7)(B) provides: "It shall be unlawful for any person that is suspended or barred from being associated with a registered public accounting firm under this subsection willfully to become or remain associated with any issuer, broker, or dealer in an accountancy or a financial management capacity, and for any issuer, broker, or dealer that knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of such suspension or bar, to permit such an association, without the consent of the Board or the Commission."

4. With respect to any civil money penalty amounts that KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP shall pay pursuant to this Order, KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP shall not, directly or indirectly, (a) seek or accept reimbursement or indemnification from any source including, but not limited to, any current or former affiliated firm or professional or any payment made pursuant to any insurance policy; (b) claim, assert, or apply for a tax deduction or tax credit in connection with any federal, state, local, or foreign tax; nor (c) seek or benefit by any offset or reduction of any award of compensatory damages, by the amount of any part of KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP's payment of the civil money penalty pursuant to this Order, in any private action brought against KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP based on substantially the same facts as set out in the findings in this Order.

5. KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP understands that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may result in summary suspension of its registration, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5304(a), following written notice to it at the address on file with the PCAOB at the time of the issuance of this Order.

D. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), the Board orders that:

1. Review by KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP. Within 90 days of the date of this Order, KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP shall review and evaluate its quality control or other policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its personnel and other associated persons comply with applicable PCAOB audit documentation standards and requirements.

2. Reporting. Within 120 days of the date of this Order, KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP shall submit a written report to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations summarizing the review and evaluation of the area specified in paragraph D.1 above ("Report"). The Report shall describe any modified or additional policies or procedures adopted or to be adopted by KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP or, if KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP concludes no such modifications or additions should be adopted, a detailed and satisfactory explanation of why the firm believes changes are not warranted. In addition,

KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP shall submit any additional information and evidence concerning the Report, the information in the Report, and KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP's compliance with this Order as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request.

3. Certificate of Implementation. Within six months of the date of this Order, KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP's head of quality assurance shall certify in writing ("Certificate of Implementation") to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations that KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP has implemented all of the modifications and additions to its policies and procedures, if any, that were described in the Report. The Certificate of Implementation shall provide written evidence of KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP's adoption of such modifications and additions in narrative form, identify the actions taken to implement such modifications and additions, and be supported by exhibits sufficient to demonstrate implementation. KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP shall also submit such additional evidence of, and information concerning, implementation as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request.

4. Noncompliance. KPMG Assurance and Consulting Services LLP understands that a failure to satisfy these undertakings may constitute a violation of PCAOB Rule 5000 and could provide a basis for the imposition of additional sanctions in a subsequent disciplinary proceeding.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of KPMG S.A.S.,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-034

December 6, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is imposing sanctions on KPMG S.A.S. ("KPMG Colombia," the "Firm," or "Respondent"). The Board is:

(1) censuring the Firm;

(2) imposing a $4,000,000 civil money penalty on the Firm;

(3) requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial actions as described in Section IV of this Order; and

(4) requiring the Firm to engage an independent consultant as specified in Section IV of this Order.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that KPMG Colombia (1) violated PCAOB rules and standards by failing to cooperate with the Board's 2016 inspection of the Firm by, among other actions, providing PCAOB inspectors with improperly altered work papers involving two issuers; and (2) violated PCAOB rules and quality controls standards over several years in connection with (a) the Firm's audit and quality control documentation, and (b) the Firm's internal training program.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Respondent pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement (the "Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for the purpose of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board or in which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings contained in the Order, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings (which is admitted) and the facts, findings, and violations in paragraphs 1-8, 19-28, 30-32, 37-39, 41-44, 49-55, and 57-62 (which are admitted), Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[2]

A. Respondent

1. KPMG Colombia is a simplified stock company headquartered in Bogotá, Republic of Colombia. KPMG Colombia is a member of the KPMG international network of firms ("KPMG Global"). The Firm registered with the Board on April 27, 2010, and is a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(12) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(r)(i). During the period relevant to this matter, the Firm performed referred audit work on Colombian components of "Issuer A" and "Issuer B," which were audited principally by other member firms of KPMG Global.

B. Issuers and Other Relevant Individuals

2. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, an issuer within the meaning of Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the condition set out in Section 105(c)(5)(A) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5)(A), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

3. Issuer B was, at all relevant times, an issuer within the meaning of Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

4. The "Lead Partner" was formerly a partner of KPMG Colombia. He served as the lead partner for the Firm's audit work on the Colombian components of Issuer A (the "Issuer A Component Audit").[3]

5. "Manager A" was formerly an employee of KPMG Colombia. He served as the manager for the Issuer A Component Audit.[4]

6. The "Senior" was formerly an employee of KPMG Colombia. He served as the senior for the Issuer A Component Audit.[5]

7. The "Managing Director" was formerly an employee of KPMG Colombia. He served as the managing director for the Firm's audit work on the Colombian component of Issuer B (the "Issuer B Component Audit").

8. "Manager B" was formerly an employee of KPMG Colombia. He served as the manager for the Issuer B Component Audit.

C. Summary

9. During the period covered by this Order, KPMG Colombia engaged in two courses of misconduct that violated PCAOB rules and standards, including quality control standards, and that resulted in additional violations by the Firm's personnel.

10. First, KPMG Colombia failed to cooperate with the Board's 2016 inspection of the Firm. After learning that the Board's Division of Registration and Inspections ("DRI") would be inspecting the Firm's audit work for the Issuer A Component Audit and Issuer B Component Audit, KPMG Colombia personnel improperly modified work papers and backdated those work papers to conceal from DRI that they had been modified. As a result, and as further described below, the Firm violated PCAOB Rule 4006, Duty to Cooperate with Inspectors; AS 3, Audit Documentation; and ET § 102, Integrity and Objectivity.[6]

11. These violations stemmed from deficiencies in the Firm's system of quality control related to, among other areas, audit documentation. At the time of the 2016 inspection, the Firm (a) did not have an effective system in place to provide reasonable assurance that a complete and final set of work papers were timely assembled for retention ("archived"),[7] and that, once archived, work papers were retained and protected against improper alteration;[8] (b) failed to maintain control over administrative passwords that could be used to backdate alterations to work papers; and (c) did not have an effective system in place to ensure that the Firm provided PCAOB inspectors with the appropriate versions of the Firm's audit work papers for purposes of the inspection (i.e., an accurately dated set of work papers prepared and retained in accordance with AS 3 without improper alterations after the documentation completion date). As a result, the Firm violated QC § 20, System of Quality Control for a CPA Firm's Accounting and Auditing Practice, and QC § 30, Monitoring a CPA Firm's Accounting and Auditing Practice.

12. Although the Firm took steps to address quality control deficiencies concerning the timely archiving and preservation of audit documentation prior to the Board's next inspection of the Firm in 2019, those steps did not adequately address the risks that modified audit documentation could be improperly backdated and provided to PCAOB inspectors. In 2019, KPMG Colombia's system of quality control still did not provide reasonable assurance that audit documentation modified or created after the audit report date and prior to archiving was accurately dated in the final archived audit documentation. Nor did it provide reasonable assurance that audit consultation memos residing in the files of its Department of Professional Practice, which were intended to document compliance with the Firm's quality control policies and procedures, were timely completed, appropriately dated, and protected against improper alteration. As a result, the Firm continued to violate QC § 20 through 2019.

13. Second, from at least 2016 until 2020, KPMG Colombia violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards related to integrity and personnel management by failing to establish appropriate policies and procedures for administering and overseeing internal training tests, including tests designed to help the Firm's audit professionals satisfy the requirements for maintaining their accounting certifications. Those quality control failures prevented the Firm from identifying cheating in connection with tests for mandatory training courses covering topics that were relevant to compliance with PCAOB rules and standards. As a result, the Firm violated QC § 20, QC § 30, and QC § 40, The Personnel Management Element of a Firm's System of Quality Control—Competencies Required by a Practitioner-in-Charge of an Attest Engagement.

14. Although the Firm took steps since 2020 to improve its quality control policies and procedures related to its internal training program, the Firm subsequently identified instances where personnel have cheated on internal training exams. As a result, as set forth in the undertakings below, KPMG Colombia will conduct an investigation to identify and determine the extent of exam cheating by its associated persons since January 1, 2020, and will take such further employment actions and remedial steps as may be appropriate. The Firm will also engage an independent consultant to review and assess whether the Firm has taken appropriate employment actions or other remedial steps and whether the Firm has designed and implemented quality controls that reasonably assure compliance with all professional standards relating to ethics and integrity in connection with its training program.

D. KPMG Colombia Violated PCAOB Rules, Auditing Standards, and Ethics Standards in Connection with the PCAOB's 2016 Inspection

15. PCAOB Rule 4006 requires that "[e]very registered public accounting firm, and every associated person of a registered public accounting firm . . . cooperate with the Board in the performance of any Board inspection."[9] "Implicit in this cooperation requirement is that auditors provide accurate and truthful information."[10]

16. PCAOB rules also require registered public accounting firms to comply with applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.[11] Among other requirements, registered firms must comply with the auditing, ethics, and quality control standards adopted by the Board.[12]

17. The Board's audit documentation standard states, in part: "A complete and final set of audit documentation should be assembled for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date (documentation completion date). . . . Audit documentation must not be deleted or discarded after the documentation completion date, however, information may be added. Any documentation added must indicate the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding it."[13]

18. PCAOB ethics standards provide, in part, that a registered firm "shall maintain objectivity and integrity" and "shall not knowingly misrepresent facts" in the performance of professional services.[14] A registered firm knowingly misrepresents facts in violation of ET § 102 when, for example, it knowingly: (i) makes, or permits or directs another to make, materially false and misleading entries in an entity's records; or (ii) signs, or permits or directs another to sign, a document containing materially false and misleading information.[15]

i. The Firm Improperly Modified the Audit Work Papers for Both the Issuer A Component Audit and Issuer B Component Audit After the Documentation Completion Date and in Anticipation of a PCAOB Inspection

a. Issuer A Component Audit

19. KPMG Colombia sent its interoffice report for its audit work on the Colombian component of Issuer A to the principal auditor by no later than February 25, 2016. The principal auditor released its audit report for the Issuer A audit by no later than February 26, 2016. As a result, the documentation completion date for all audit work performed for the Issuer A audit was no later than April 11, 2016.

15 See ET §§ 102.02(a), (c).

20. On September 7, 2016, DRI informed KPMG Colombia that it would inspect the Firm's work on the Issuer A Component Audit. DRI identified (a) net sales and accounts receivable, and (b) property, plant, and equipment as the focus areas for the inspection.

21. After learning that DRI would inspect the Firm's work on the Issuer A Component Audit, the Lead Partner for the Firm's work on the Issuer A Component Audit instructed Manager A and the Senior to perform a review of the audit documentation for that engagement, with assistance from the other members of the engagement team. The Lead Partner further instructed Manager A and the Senior to provide him with comments from that review.

22. After receiving the engagement team's initial review comments, the Lead Partner informed Manager A and the Senior that the engagement team needed to revise the audit work papers ahead of the inspection. Manager A and the Senior, together with other members of the engagement team and Firm staff, then began making changes to the work papers to address the comments that had been provided to the Lead Partner.

23. After the engagement team began making changes, the Lead Partner personally performed a review of the audit work papers, including a review of some of the changes that the engagement team had already made pursuant to his instructions. The Lead Partner also enlisted the help of multiple other Firm audit professionals to review specific areas of the audit work papers. From September 21 to October 2, 2016, the Lead Partner sent Manager A and the Senior a series of emails providing detailed comments from his review for the engagement team to address through further revisions to the work papers. The other professionals whom the Lead Partner enlisted to help with the review also provided comments to the engagement team.

24. In some of the emails, the Lead Partner noted that it was possible to see in the revised version of the work papers that some of the changes had been made in September 2016, and he instructed Manager A and the Senior to alter those dates. When providing that instruction, the Lead Partner intended to hide the fact that alterations were being made to the work papers after the documentation completion date. At least one other Firm professional also noted to the engagement team that some of the work papers she reviewed included dates reflecting that changes had been made in September 2016, which the engagement team addressed through additional backdating.

25. Pursuant to the Lead Partner's instructions, the engagement team altered and backdated multiple work papers between September 7, 2016, and the start of DRI's inspection of the Firm's work on the Issuer A Component Audit. In making those changes, the engagement team did not indicate the date they made the changes, who made the changes, or the reasons why the changes were made. To the contrary, the engagement team backdated the changes to dates before the documentation completion date, and concealed the actual revision dates, by improperly changing the date on a computer clock using an administrative passcode.

26. KPMG Colombia, through its personnel, improperly altered and backdated work papers for the Issuer A Component Audit so the improperly modified and backdated work papers appeared to constitute the complete and final set of timely archived audit documentation. Numerous individuals at KPMG Colombia, including but not limited to the Lead Partner and the other members of the engagement team involved in the modifications and backdating, knew or were reckless in not knowing that KPMG Colombia provided improperly modified and backdated work papers for the Issuer A Component Audit to DRI during the inspection fieldwork, which took place from October 10 to October 21, 2016.

27. During the PCAOB inspection, KPMG Colombia personnel did not inform DRI or anyone else at the PCAOB that the Issuer A Component Audit work papers provided to DRI had been improperly modified and backdated, or provide DRI with information about the actual dates the work papers were modified and the reasons they were modified after the documentation completion date. KPMG Colombia also never provided DRI with copies of the work papers as they actually appeared on the documentation completion date.

28. As a result of the above-described conduct, KPMG Colombia violated PCAOB Rule 4006 and AS 3 in connection with the Board's 2016 inspection of the Firm and DRI's review of the Firm's work on the Issuer A Component Audit.

29. As a result of the above-described conduct, KPMG Colombia also violated ET § 102 in connection with the Board's 2016 inspection of the Firm and DRI's review of the Firm's work on the Issuer A Component Audit.

b. Issuer B Component Audit

30. KPMG Colombia sent its interoffice report for its audit work on the Colombian component of Issuer B to the principal auditor by no later than April 15, 2016. The principal auditor released its audit report for the Issuer B audit by no later than April 22, 2016. As a result, the documentation completion date for all audit work performed for the Issuer B audit was no later than June 6, 2016.

31. On September 7, 2016, DRI informed KPMG Colombia that it would also inspect the Firm's work on the Issuer B Component Audit. DRI identified (a) net sales and accounts receivable, and (b) property, machinery, and equipment as the focus areas for the inspection.

32. On September 8, 2016, the lead partner for the Firm's work on the Issuer B Component Audit informed the Managing Director and Manager B of the impending inspection. The Managing Director and Manager B thereafter assembled a team to prepare for the inspection; the team included both individuals who had worked on the audit and others who had not.

33. The Managing Director and Manager B instructed the team to review the work papers for the Issuer B Component Audit to determine if there were any deficiencies.

34. At the instruction of the Managing Director and Manager B, the work papers were then modified to address certain deficiencies and inconsistencies identified by the reviewers and backdated to a date during the audit.

35. As a result of this review, KPMG Colombia personnel modified numerous work papers, including, but not limited to, documents related to (a) net sales and accounts receivable, and (b) property, machinery, and equipment, i.e., the focus areas for the inspection. In each case, the modified work paper did not reflect the date the document was modified, the person who modified it, or the reason it was modified.

36. On occasion, rather than modifying existing work papers, a reviewer created new work papers that did not exist as of the documentation completion date. Where the new work papers were created by a reviewer who had not been a member of the engagement team during the audit, the new work papers nevertheless falsely reflected that they were prepared by someone who had served on the Issuer B Component Audit engagement team, rather than by the reviewer. Additionally, the reviewer dated the newly created work papers with a date during the audit, rather than the date the work papers were actually created.

37. KPMG Colombia, through its personnel, improperly altered and backdated work papers for the Issuer B Component Audit so the improperly modified and backdated work papers appeared to constitute the complete and final set of timely archived audit documentation. The Firm then provided those improperly altered and backdated work papers to the PCAOB's inspectors during inspection fieldwork.

38. During the PCAOB inspection, KPMG Colombia personnel did not inform DRI or anyone else at the PCAOB that the Issuer B Component Audit work papers provided to DRI had been improperly modified and backdated, or provide DRI with information about the actual dates the work papers were modified and the reasons they were modified after the documentation completion date. KPMG Colombia also never provided DRI with copies of the work papers as they actually appeared on the documentation completion date.

39. As a result of the above-described conduct, KPMG Colombia violated PCAOB Rule 4006 and AS 3 in connection with the Board's 2016 inspection of the Firm and DRI's review of the Firm's work on the Issuer B audit.

40. As a result of the above-described conduct, KPMG Colombia also violated ET § 102 in connection with the Board's 2016 inspection of the Firm and DRI's review of the Firm's work on the Issuer B audit.

ii. KPMG Colombia Violated PCAOB Rule 4006 and ET § 102 by Providing Materially False and Misleading Certifications to DRI

41. In connection with the 2016 inspection, KPMG Colombia, through its personnel, made materially false and misleading statements to DRI. Specifically, the Firm represented that no modifications had been made to the audit documentation for either the Issuer A Component Audit or the Issuer B Component Audit after the documentation completion date.

42. In connection with the 2016 inspection, the Firm completed and submitted to DRI separate "engagement profiles" for its work on the Issuer A and Issuer B component audits. Both engagement profiles inaccurately represented that no changes had been made to the audit documentation after the documentation completion date. Specifically, on the engagement profile for both components, the Firm answered "No" to the question: "Have there been any changes to the audit documentation subsequent to the documentation completion date?"

43. However, before submitting the final engagement profiles to DRI, multiple Firm personnel knew improper changes had been made to the audit documentation for both component audits after the respective documentation completion dates and in anticipation of the inspection. At no time did anyone at KPMG Colombia inform DRI that either of those engagement profile responses was false.

44. Through these actions, KPMG Colombia committed additional violations of PCAOB Rule 4006.

45. Through these actions, KPMG Colombia also committed additional violations of ET § 102.

E. KPMG Colombia Violated PCAOB Rules and Quality Control Standards Concerning Integrity, Audit and Quality Control Documentation, and Complying with Regulatory Requirements

46. PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm comply with the Board's quality control standards,[16] which provide that a registered firm "shall have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice."[17]

47. Pursuant to PCAOB quality control standards, firms should establish policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that, among other things: (a) "personnel . . . perform all professional responsibilities with integrity;"[18] (b) "the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality," including with respect to "planning, performing, supervising, reviewing, documenting, and communicating the results of each engagement;"[19] and (c) the firm's quality control policies and procedures "are suitably designed and are being effectively applied."[20]

48. A firm should communicate its quality control policies and procedures to its personnel in a manner that provides reasonable assurance that those policies and procedures are understood and complied with.[21] A firm should also prepare appropriate documentation to demonstrate compliance with its policies and procedures for the quality control system, and should retain that documentation for a period of time sufficient to enable those performing monitoring procedures to evaluate the extent of the firm's compliance with its quality control policies and procedures.[22]

i. Quality Control Deficiencies Related to Audit Documentation and the Firm's Non-cooperation with the 2016 Inspection

49. The Firm's non-cooperation with the 2016 inspection resulted in large part from deficiencies in its system of quality control relating to audit documentation and compliance with regulatory requirements.

50. At the time of the 2016 inspection, KPMG Colombia permitted engagement teams to archive electronic audit documentation on an engagement team member's local computer hard drive, which rendered the audit documentation susceptible to both premature destruction and improper alteration.

51. During the 2015/2016 time period, audit engagement teams typically stored electronic work papers on engagement team members' laptops while the audit was performed. After an engagement was completed and the team's documentation was supposed to be finalized, Firm policy dictated that the engagement team run a program that would produce an archived version of the electronic documentation for the engagement. Once the electronic audit documentation was archived, Firm policy required the engagement team to store that archived documentation on a particular server that the Firm maintained.

52. During the 2015/2016 timeframe, however, the Firm did not take steps to monitor whether engagement teams were appropriately archiving electronic audit documentation on or before an engagement's documentation completion date, or whether archived documentation was being stored on the designated server. As a result, archiving of electronic work papers during the 2015/2016 timeframe sometimes occurred after the relevant documentation completion date, or not at all. Further, archived electronic documentation was sometimes not stored on the designated server, so the location of the documentation for an engagement was not always known.

53. Additionally, because electronic work papers were locally maintained and archived by engagement teams during the 2015/2016 timeframe, engagement teams could create multiple, different versions of the electronic work paper files for the same engagement.

54. As a result of the foregoing deficiencies in its system for archiving electronic work papers, KPMG Colombia had to rely on the individual engagement teams to identify and provide the correct copy of the electronic work papers for the PCAOB inspection in 2016. However, KPMG Colombia lacked sufficient quality control policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that the engagement teams acted with integrity and provided DRI with the appropriate work papers for an engagement (i.e., an accurately dated set of work papers prepared and retained in accordance with AS 3 without improper alterations after the documentation completion date).

55. Moreover, other deficiencies in KPMG Colombia's system of quality control in 2016 increased the risk that engagement teams could provide improperly altered and backdated work papers to PCAOB inspectors.

56. Prior to and through at least the 2016 PCAOB inspection period, KPMG Colombia did not allocate enough time for engagement teams to complete documentation at the time of the audits. As a result, Firm personnel responded by developing methods to complete and backdate work papers well after the documentation completion date if an audit was selected for inspection.

57. Specifically, during the 2015/2016 time period, it was common practice for KPMG Colombia audit personnel to insert and sign off as preparers and reviewers on blank work papers in the electronic audit files. This allowed audit personnel to later substitute new work papers in place of the blank ones, while maintaining the original sign-off dates on the work papers. Although the Firm was aware of this practice, it did not take appropriate or timely steps to prevent it.

58. KPMG Colombia also did not maintain appropriate control over IT administrative passwords during the 2015/2016 timeframe. Certain engagement team staff gained access to those passwords, which allowed them to reset clocks on their computers to prior dates and times. Engagement teams used the administrative passwords to modify and backdate copies of audit work papers, including for the 2016 PCAOB inspection.

ii. Continuing Quality Control Deficiencies Related to Documentation at the Time of the 2019 Inspection

59. In the period between the PCAOB's 2016 and 2019 inspections of the Firm, KPMG Colombia took steps to improve its system of quality control surrounding audit documentation, including steps to monitor whether engagement teams were timely archiving work papers and appropriately storing the archived work papers on the designated server. However, certain other deficiencies in its system of quality control persisted through 2019.

60. In 2019, it was still possible for engagement teams both to create new audit documentation in KPMG Colombia's electronic work papers and to substantially alter existing audit documentation between the time the Firm released its audit report and the documentation completion date for an engagement, in a manner that was inconsistent with AS 3. Specifically, engagement teams could create or modify work papers while making it appear that the audit documentation was completed and reviewed before the audit report was issued—including by signing off on blank work papers and later substituting them with modified work papers. KPMG Colombia was aware, by 2019, of its personnel's practice of inserting and signing off on blank work papers and later substituting other work papers in their place. However, the Firm did not take adequate steps to prevent the practice or effectively communicate to its personnel that it was improper and should be stopped.

61. Although KPMG Colombia had taken steps to ensure the timely archiving and preservation of electronic audit work papers, it did not implement sufficient quality controls around files within its Department of Professional Practice ("DPP"), which were also subject to inspection by the PCAOB, peer review, and other monitoring procedures. Specifically, the Firm's system of quality control did not provide reasonable assurance that its documentation of consultations between engagement teams and the Firm's DPP professionals was timely prepared and protected from improper alteration. As a result, at least one consultation with DPP that was the subject of review by PCAOB inspectors was not formally documented by DPP, and could only be substantiated during the 2019 inspection through a search of Firm emails. Additionally, two consultation memos in DPP's files were revised during the inspection and did not receive final sign-off until several months after the documentation completion date for the relevant audit. Yet those two revised memos in DPP's files continued to be dated as though they were completed before the audit report was issued.[23]

* * * * *

62. As a result of the deficiencies described in paragraphs 49 to 61, above, from at least 2015 through 2019, KPMG Colombia violated QC § 20 and QC § 30 because its quality control policies and procedures did not provide reasonable assurance that: (a) its personnel performed all professional responsibilities with integrity; (b) the work performed by engagement personnel met applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the Firm's standards of quality; and (c) the quality control policies and procedures established by the Firm were suitably designed and being effectively applied.[24] The Firm also violated QC § 20 by failing to communicate its quality control policies and procedures to its personnel in a manner that provided reasonable assurance that those policies and procedures were understood and complied with, and by failing to prepare and retain appropriate documentation to demonstrate compliance with its policies and procedures for the quality control system.[25]

F. KPMG Colombia Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with Its Internal Training

i. Applicable PCAOB Quality Control Standards

63. In addition to the areas described above, PCAOB quality control standards address personnel management and state that "policies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that . . . [w]ork is assigned to personnel having the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances."[26] Moreover, "policies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that . . . [p]ersonnel participate in general and industry-specific continuing professional education and other professional development activities that enable them to fulfill responsibilities assigned, and satisfy applicable continuing professional education requirements of . . . regulatory agencies."[27]

64. PCAOB quality control standards recognize that "[t]he elements of quality control are interrelated,"[28] and that, as explained above, monitoring procedures are necessary.[29] Under PCAOB standards, monitoring involves an ongoing consideration and evaluation of, among other things, the effectiveness of professional development activities and compliance with the firm's policies and procedures.[30]

ii. Training Requirements for KPMG Colombia Personnel

65. As part of KPMG Colombia's personnel management system, the Firm administers an internal training program for all of its professionals. The Firm has designed its training program to serve multiple purposes, including to provide Firm personnel with technical instruction, to further their professional development, and to satisfy some of the continuing professional education requirements imposed by authorities that licensed some of the Firm's auditors. The Firm's training requirements vary by each professional's position, role, and industry practice area, and are intended to be relevant to, among other things, the independence of its personnel, the audit work they perform, and the integrity with which they carry out their professional responsibilities. The Firm's internal training often includes a testing component.

66. Since at least 2016, the Firm required audit personnel to take certain online training courses that are relevant to compliance with PCAOB rules and standards. The particular courses the Firm's auditors must take vary based on their experience levels. These audit-related courses include a testing component and are mandatory for audit personnel.

iii. Failures by KPMG Colombia to Establish Adequate Quality Control Policies and Procedures Related to Integrity and Personnel Management

67. Between 2016 and 2020, KPMG Colombia had in place certain quality control policies and procedures intended to address integrity and personnel management. Those policies and procedures, however, did not provide reasonable assurance that Firm personnel acted with integrity when taking internal training tests. Among other things, the monitoring procedures were not designed to effectively detect, deter, or prevent cheating through answer sharing.

iv. Sharing of Answers to Training Tests at KPMG Colombia

68. Between 2016 and 2020, KPMG Colombia personnel were involved in improper answer sharing. That conduct included sharing answers by sending emails with answers to training test questions, by providing screenshots of training questions and answers, or by discussing answers when taking tests in the presence of others.

69. A preliminary internal investigation by the Firm revealed that the misconduct included improper answer sharing in connection with tests that were a part of the Firm's mandatory assurance training, including among individuals who performed work on audits governed by PCAOB standards.

70. As illustrated by the misconduct described above, from at least 2016 until 2020, KPMG Colombia, failed to establish policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that (1) Firm personnel performed all professional responsibilities with integrity; (2) personnel to whom work was assigned had the degree of technical training and proficiency required in the circumstances; and (3) personnel participated in general and industry-specific continuing professional education that enabled them to fulfill responsibilities assigned and satisfy applicable continuing professional education requirements of regulatory agencies. Accordingly, the Firm violated PCAOB quality control standards related to integrity and personnel management.[31]

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer.

In ordering sanctions, the Board took into account the Firm's extraordinary cooperation in one part of this matter, specifically its response to discovering improper answer sharing on internal trainings. During the PCAOB staff's investigation into audit documentation and non-cooperation issues, the Firm voluntarily and timely self-reported to PCAOB staff the answer sharing misconduct it had discovered. The Firm then provided substantial assistance to the PCAOB's investigation by conducting, and providing to the PCAOB the results of, a preliminary internal investigation, including evidence relating to the Firm's interviews of personnel it suspected of engaging in improper answer sharing. Absent this extraordinary cooperation, the civil money penalty imposed would have been significantly larger, and the Board may have imposed additional sanctions.

Additionally, since both the audit documentation and answer sharing misconduct occurred, the Firm has implemented remedial measures aimed at preventing future similar violations. Those remedial efforts include, but are not limited to: (1) changes to the Firm's audit documentation systems and archiving policies and procedures that are intended to provide reasonable assurance that (a) audit procedures are completed and audit documentation is prepared and reviewed prior to the release of the audit report; (b) the Firm detects and reviews significant or unexpected changes to audit documentation between the date of the audit report and the archiving of the audit documentation; (c) audit documentation is timely archived, appropriately retained, and protected from improper alteration; (d) PCAOB inspectors are provided the timely archived audit documentation during inspections; and (e) DPP files are timely prepared and maintained with integrity; (2) changes to Firm training and other personnel management policies and procedures to promote professional integrity, especially as it relates to audit documentation and training examinations; (3) employment actions and other disciplinary actions with respect to certain individuals that engaged in the misconduct described in this Order; and (4) changes to Firm leadership.

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

making available to the Board's inspectors documents containing misleading information.

c. No later than thirty days after the issuance of this Order, the Firm shall provide an electronic or paper copy of this Order to all of its associated persons.

D. Undertakings related to improper answer sharing violations—Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), KPMG S.A.S. shall complete the following undertakings:

1. Within 360 days of the issuance of this Order, a committee composed of KPMG S.A.S. or KPMG Advisory, Tax & Legal S.A.S. professionals acceptable to the DEI staff (the "Special Committee") shall complete the steps reasonably necessary to: (i) determine the extent to which audit professionals violated ethics and integrity requirements in connection with training examinations since January 1, 2020, (ii) identify the professionals who committed or were otherwise responsible for such violations, and (iii) recommend any employment actions or other remedial steps, to KPMG S.A.S.'s Disciplinary Committee that the Special Committee deems appropriate ("Special Committee Investigation").

2. Within 90 days of completing the Special Committee Investigation, the Special Committee shall deliver to KPMG S.A.S.'s Executive Committee and Country Senior Partner a detailed report ("Special Committee Report of Investigation") summarizing the investigative steps it has taken, and any employment actions or other remedial steps it recommends be taken.

E. Independent Consultant—Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(8) and (9):

1. Within 60 days of the issuance of this Order, KPMG S.A.S. shall retain an independent consultant ("Independent Consultant"), not unacceptable to the PCAOB DEI staff. The Independent Consultant shall have, at a minimum, the following qualifications: (i) demonstrated expertise conducting ethics and integrity investigations; (ii) experience designing or reviewing compliance policies, procedures, and controls relating to ethics and integrity; and (iii) knowledge concerning PCAOB quality control standards. The Firm may not retain as Independent Consultant any person who has been employed by or had a professional relationship with the Firm, any other KPMG Global member or affiliate firm, or any audit client of the Firm in the previous two years; and the Firm shall require the Independent Consultant to agree not to enter into any employment or other professional relationship with the Firm, any other KPMG Global member or affiliate firm, or any audit client of the Firm for two years following the expiration of the consultancy.

2. KPMG S.A.S. shall provide to the PCAOB DEI staff a copy of the engagement letter detailing the scope of the Independent Consultant's responsibilities. The Special Committee shall deliver to the Independent Consultant the Special Committee Report of Investigation at the same time as it provides such report to KPMG S.A.S.'s Executive Committee and Country Senior Partner as specified in paragraph IV.D.2., above. KPMG S.A.S. shall require that the Independent Consultant:

    a. perform a review (the "IC Review of Quality Controls") of KPMG S.A.S.'s policies and procedures relating to training to determine whether they are designed and being implemented in a manner that provides reasonable assurance of compliance with all professional standards, including whether (i) the Firm's ethics and integrity training and guidance is adequate and sufficient; and (ii) the Firm is deploying proper resources and oversight for compliance with ethics and integrity requirements; and

    b. review and assess (the "IC Review of Investigation") the Special Committee Investigation (including, without limitation, by reviewing the Special Committee Report of Investigation) and whether KPMG S.A.S. (i) has taken reasonable steps to identify, and to determine the extent to which, those audit professionals who engaged in improper exam sharing since January 1, 2020, and (ii) has followed the Special Committee's recommended employment actions or other remedial steps.

3. To ensure the independence of the Independent Consultant, the Firm (i) shall not have the authority to terminate the Independent Consultant or substitute another independent consultant for the initial Independent Consultant, without the prior written approval of the PCAOB DEI staff; and (ii) shall compensate the Independent Consultant and persons engaged to assist the Independent Consultant for services rendered pursuant to this Order at their reasonable and customary rates.

4. KPMG S.A.S. shall cooperate fully with the Independent Consultant and shall provide reasonable access to information and records as the Independent Consultant may reasonably request, subject to KPMG S.A.S.'s right to withhold from disclosure any information or records protected by any applicable protection or privilege, such as the attorney-client privilege or the attorney work product doctrine. The Independent Consultant shall have the right to interview any partner, employee, agent, or consultant of KPMG S.A.S. concerning any matter within or relating to the IC Review of Quality Controls or the IC Review of Investigation.

5. After the IC Review of Quality Controls and the IC Review of Investigation are completed, but no later than 90 days after receiving the Special Committee Report of Investigation, the Independent Consultant shall issue a written report (the "IC Report") to KPMG S.A.S.: (i) summarizing its work; (ii) making recommendations, as the Independent Consultant deems appropriate, reasonably designed to ensure that KPMG S.A.S.'s policies and procedures relating to the topics discussed in paragraph IV.E.2.a., above, are adequate and sufficient to provide reasonable assurance of compliance with all relevant professional standards relating to training; (iii) describing its review of KPMG S.A.S.'s training and making additional recommendations, as the Independent Consultant deems appropriate, regarding ethics and integrity training; (iv) making recommendations, as the Independent Consultant deems appropriate, reasonably designed to ensure that the Special Committee has taken reasonable steps to identify, and to determine the extent to which, audit professionals who engaged in improper exam conduct since January 1, 2020, including recommending additional investigative steps for the Special Committee to take; and (v) making recommendations, as the Independent Consultant deems appropriate, reasonably designed to ensure that KPMG S.A.S. has taken appropriate employment actions or other remedial steps in light of the findings of the Special Committee Investigation.

6. After receiving the IC Report, the Firm shall implement any recommendations contained therein as soon as practicable, except that the Firm may notify the Independent Consultant within 30 days of receiving the IC Report of any recommendations that the Firm believes to be unnecessary, impractical, unduly burdensome, or outside the scope of this Order, and the bases of the Firm's objection(s). In connection with that notification, the Firm may propose alternative policies and procedures that it believes will achieve the objectives of the recommendations contained in the IC Report. The Firm and the Independent Consultant shall engage in good-faith negotiations concerning any objection raised by the Firm, but if the Firm and the Independent Consultant are unable to come to agreement within 45 days, the Firm shall be required to adopt the Independent Consultant's recommendations to which it objects.

7. At the conclusion of the negotiation process described in paragraph IV.E.6, above, KPMG S.A.S. shall require the Independent Consultant to provide a copy of the IC Report to the PCAOB DEI staff.

F. For good cause shown, the PCAOB DEI staff may extend any of the deadlines contained in Sections IV.C., IV.D., and IV.E. of this Order. The time periods in Sections IV.C., IV.D., and IV.E. of this Order shall be determined in accordance with PCAOB Rule 1002, Time Computation.

G. The Firm agrees that DEI may petition the Board to reopen this matter to determine whether additional sanctions or findings are appropriate if DEI believes that the Firm has not satisfied any provision in Section IV of this Order.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of José Daniel Meléndez Giménez,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-035

December 6, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring José Daniel Meléndez Giménez ("Meléndez" or "Respondent");

(2) barring Meléndez from being associated with a registered public accounting firm;[1] and

(3) imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $25,000 on Meléndez.[2]

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Meléndez failed to cooperate with the Board's 2016 inspection of KPMG S.A.S. ("KPMG Colombia" or the "Firm"), including by directing the improper alteration of work papers for an issuer audit that was subject to inspection.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c)

[1] Meléndez may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after three (3) years from the date of this Order.

[2] Based on his conduct, Meléndez's civil money penalty in this settlement would have been $50,000. The Board determined to accept Meléndez's offer of settlement and impose a lower penalty after considering Meléndez's financial resources.

of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement (the "Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for the purpose of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board or in which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings contained in the Order, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings (which is admitted) and the facts, findings, and violations in paragraphs 1 and 13-30 (which are admitted), Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[3]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[4]

A. Respondent

1. José Daniel Meléndez Giménez was, at all relevant times, a KPMG Colombia partner and the lead partner for the audit procedures the Firm performed over certain Colombian subsidiaries of Issuer A in connection with the audit of Issuer A's financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2015 (the "Component Audit"). Melendez is a certified public accountant under the laws of Lara, Venezuela (registration no. 45.193). At all relevant times, Meléndez was an "associated person of a registered public accounting firm" as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Relevant Entities and Individuals

2. KPMG Colombia is a simplified stock company headquartered in Bogotá, Republic of Colombia.[5] KPMG Colombia is a member of the KPMG international network of

[3] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[4] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the condition set out in Section 105(c)(5)(A) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5)(A), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

firms ("KPMG Global"). The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

3. The "Manager" was formerly an employee of KPMG Colombia. He served as the manager for the Component Audit.[6]

4. The "Senior" was formerly an employee of KPMG Colombia. He served as the audit senior for the Component Audit.[7]

5. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, an "issuer" within the meaning of Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). Another member firm of KPMG Global served as the principal auditor for Issuer A's financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2015, and instructed KPMG Colombia to conduct the Component Audit.

C. Summary

6. This matter involves Respondent's failure to cooperate with the PCAOB's 2016 inspection of KPMG Colombia, and Respondent's related violations of PCAOB audit documentation standards and ethics rules and standards. After the completion of the Component Audit and the expiration of the applicable documentation completion date, Respondent learned that the PCAOB's Division of Registration and Inspections ("DRI") would be inspecting the Component Audit. Respondent then led a wide-ranging review of the audit work papers, and instructed members of the engagement team to improperly make changes to the work papers and to backdate those changes.

7. Additionally, shortly before the inspection, Respondent signed a written certification, which he knew would be submitted to DRI, stating that no changes had been made to the work papers after the documentation completion date for the Component Audit. Respondent later revised the document containing that certification, after all of the changes described in this Order had taken place, without correcting that certification. Respondent knew that the revised certification would also be submitted to DRI.

7 See Marco Alexander Rodríguez Ramírez, PCAOB Rel. No. 105-2022-037 (Dec. 6, 2022).

8. As a result, and as further described below, Respondent violated PCAOB Rule 4006, Duty to Cooperate with Inspectors, AS 3, Audit Documentation, and ET § 102, Integrity and Objectivity.[8]

D. Respondent Violated PCAOB Rules, Auditing Standards, and Ethics Standards in Connection with the PCAOB's 2016 Inspection

i. Rules and Standards

9. PCAOB Rule 4006 requires that "[e]very registered public accounting firm, and every associated person of a registered public accounting firm . . . cooperate with the Board in the performance of any Board inspection."[9] "Implicit in this cooperation requirement is that auditors provide accurate and truthful information."[10]

10. PCAOB rules also require that associated persons of registered public accounting firms comply with applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.[11] Among other requirements, registered firms and their associated persons must comply with the auditing, ethics, and quality control standards adopted by the Board.[12]

11. The Board's audit documentation standard states, in part: "A complete and final set of audit documentation should be assembled for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date (documentation completion date). . . . Audit documentation must not be deleted or discarded after the documentation completion date, however, information may be added. Any documentation added must indicate the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding it."[13]

12. PCAOB ethics standards provide, in part, that an associated person "shall maintain objectivity and integrity" and "shall not knowingly misrepresent facts" in the performance of professional services.[14] An associated person knowingly misrepresents facts in violation of ET § 102 when, for example, he or she knowingly: (i) makes, or permits or directs another to make, materially false and misleading entries in an entity's records; or (ii) signs, or permits or directs another to sign, a document containing materially false and misleading information.[15]

ii. Respondent Improperly Modified the Component Audit Work Papers After the Documentation Completion Date and in Anticipation of a PCAOB Inspection

13. After completing the Component Audit, KPMG Colombia sent an interoffice report to the principal auditor by no later than February 25, 2016. The principal auditor released its audit report for the Issuer A audit by no later than February 26, 2016. As a result, the documentation completion date for all audit work performed for the Issuer A audit was no later than April 11, 2016.

14. On September 7, 2016, DRI informed KPMG Colombia that it would inspect the Firm's work on the Component Audit. DRI identified (a) net sales and accounts receivable, and (b) property, plant, and equipment as the focus areas for the inspection. The Firm provided that same information to Meléndez on or about that same day.

15. After learning that DRI would inspect the Component Audit, Meléndez informed the Manager and Senior of that selection. Meléndez also instructed the Manager and Senior to perform a review of the audit documentation for the engagement, with assistance from the other members of the engagement team, and to provide Meléndez with comments from that review.

16. The Manager, Senior, and other members of the engagement team thereafter performed the review as Meléndez directed. On September 19, the Manager assembled the comments he received from the engagement team's review of the Component Audit work papers, including comments from the Senior, and forwarded them to Meléndez as an attachment to an email with the subject "To do PCAOB."

17. After receiving the engagement team's initial review comments, Meléndez informed the Manager and Senior that the engagement team needed to revise the audit work papers ahead of the inspection, including to address the comments from the engagement team's review. At the time he gave that instruction, Meléndez planned to make only the revised versions of any modified workpapers available to DRI during the inspection.

18. The Manager, the Senior, and other members of the engagement team began revising the Component Audit work papers shortly after receiving Meléndez's instruction.

19. After the engagement team began making changes, Meléndez personally performed a review of the audit work papers, including a review of some of the changes that the engagement team had already made pursuant to his recent instructions. From September 21 to October 2, Meléndez sent the Manager and Senior a series of emails providing detailed comments from his review for the engagement team to address through further revisions to the work papers.

20. Meléndez also enlisted others at KPMG Colombia to help review certain select areas of the audit work papers. Those individuals, at Meléndez's request, likewise provided comments to the engagement team for consideration.

21. In some of the emails he sent to the Manager and Senior, Meléndez noted that it was possible to see in the revised version of the work papers that some of the changes had been made in September 2016, and he instructed the Manager and Senior to alter those dates. When providing that instruction, Meléndez intended to hide the fact that alterations were being made to the work papers after the documentation completion date.

22. Pursuant to Meléndez's instructions, the engagement team altered and backdated multiple work papers between September 7, 2016, and the start of DRI's inspection of the Firm's work on the Component Audit. In making those changes, the engagement team members did not indicate the date they made the changes, who made the changes, or the reasons why the changes were made. To the contrary, the engagement team backdated the changes to dates before the documentation completion date, and concealed the actual revision dates, by improperly changing the date on a computer clock using an administrative passcode.

23. Meléndez was aware that the engagement team members did not document the reason(s) they were modifying the work papers after the documentation completion date.

Meléndez also knew that the engagement team had backdated the revised work papers, per his instructions, before the Firm provided the work papers to DRI.

24. Meléndez knew that DRI received the improperly modified and backdated work papers during the inspection fieldwork that took place from October 10, 2016, to October 21, 2016.

25. When taking the actions described in paragraphs 6 to 24, above, Meléndez intended to create the false appearance that the improperly modified and backdated work papers constituted the complete and final set of audit documentation assembled for retention for the Component Audit prior to the documentation completion date.

26. As a result of the above-described conduct, Meléndez violated PCAOB Rule 4006, AS 3, and ET § 102 in connection with the Board's 2016 inspection of the Firm and DRI's review of the Firm's work on the Component Audit.

iii. Meléndez Provided a Materially False and Misleading Certification to DRI

27. Prior to the start of the fieldwork for the inspection, Meléndez signed an engagement profile for the Component Audit, which he knew the Firm would provide to DRI in connection with the inspection. In that engagement profile, Meléndez represented that no modifications had been made to the audit documentation for the Component Audit. Meléndez dated his signature September 19, 2016, which was the same day that the Manager sent Meléndez the "To do PCAOB" email.

28. Despite his involvement in the modifications described above, and despite having previously signed the engagement profile indicating that no changes had been made to the audit documentation subsequent to the documentation completion date, Meléndez did not inform DRI or anyone else at the PCAOB that the work papers provided to DRI had been improperly modified and backdated, or provide DRI with information about the actual dates the work papers were modified and the reasons they were modified after the documentation completion date.

29. On or about October 20, 2016, Meléndez also revised the engagement profile, knowing that the revised engagement profile would also be provided to DRI in connection with the inspection. By that time, Meléndez knew that the engagement team had made improper revisions to a substantial number of work papers for the Component Audit after the documentation completion date and in anticipation of the inspection. Nevertheless, Meléndez continued to certify in the revised engagement profile that no changes had been made to the audit documentation for the Component Audit after the documentation completion date.

30. As a result of the above-described conduct, Meléndez further violated PCAOB Rule 4006 and ET § 102 in connection with the Board's 2016 inspection of the Firm and DRI's review of the Firm's work on the Component Audit.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), José Daniel Meléndez Giménez is hereby censured.

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), José Daniel Meléndez Giménez is barred from being an "associated person of a registered public accounting firm," as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).[16]

C. Pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), José Daniel Meléndez Giménez may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after three years from the date of this Order.

D. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $25,000 is imposed on José Daniel Meléndez Giménez.

    1. All funds collected by the PCAOB as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act.

[16] As a consequence of the bar, the provisions of Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act will apply with respect to Meléndez. Section 105(c)(7)(B) provides: "It shall be unlawful for any person that is suspended or barred from being associated with a registered public accounting firm under this subsection willfully to become or remain associated with any issuer, broker, or dealer in an accountancy or a financial management capacity, and for any issuer, broker, or dealer that knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of such suspension or bar, to permit such an association, without the consent of the Board or the Commission."

2. Respondent shall pay the civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (a) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by PCAOB staff; or (b) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (i) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (ii) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (iii) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies José Daniel Meléndez Giménez as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

3. If timely payment is not made, interest shall accrue at the federal debt collection rate set for the current quarter pursuant to 31 U.S.C. § 3717. Payments shall be applied first to interest.

4. With respect to any civil money penalty amounts that Respondent shall pay pursuant to this Order, Respondent shall not, directly or indirectly, (a) seek or accept reimbursement or indemnification from any source including, but not limited to, any current or former affiliated firm or professional or any payment made pursuant to any insurance policy; (b) claim, assert, or apply for a tax deduction or tax credit in connection with any federal, state, local, or foreign tax; nor (c) seek or benefit by any offset or reduction of any award of compensatory damages, by the amount of any part of Respondent's payment of the civil money penalty pursuant to this Order, in any private action brought against Respondent based on substantially the same facts as set out in the findings in this Order.

5. Respondent understands that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may alone be grounds to deny any petition, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm.

6. Respondent understands that the determination to accept Respondent's offer of a civil money penalty of $25,000 is contingent upon the accuracy and completeness of Respondent's financial information provided to the Division of Enforcement and Investigations (the "Division"). Respondent also understands that, if at any time following this settlement the Division obtains information indicating that any financial information provided by Respondent—including, but not limited to, any information concerning assets, income, liabilities, or net worth—was fraudulent, misleading, inaccurate, or incomplete in any material respect as of the time such information was provided, the Division may, at any time following entry of this Order, petition the Board to: (a) reopen this matter to consider whether Respondent provided accurate and complete financial information at the time such information was provided to the Division; and (b) seek an order directing payment of the maximum civil money penalty allowable under the law or any lesser amount determined to be appropriate. No other issue shall be considered in connection with this petition other than whether the financial information provided by Respondent was fraudulent, misleading, inaccurate, or incomplete in any material respect. Respondent may not, by way of defense to any such petition: (i) contest the findings in this Order; (ii) assert that payment of a civil money penalty should not be ordered; (iii) contest the amount of the civil money penalty to be ordered; or (iv) assert any defense to liability or remedy, including, but not limited to, any based on statute of limitations or any other time-related defense.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Edgar Mauricio Ramírez Rueda,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-036

December 6, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Edgar Mauricio Ramírez Rueda ("Ramírez" or "Respondent"); and

(2) barring Ramírez from being associated with a registered public accounting firm.[1]

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Ramírez failed to cooperate with the Board's 2016 inspection of KPMG S.A.S. ("KPMG Colombia" or the "Firm") by participating in the improper alteration of work papers for an issuer audit that was subject to inspection.[2]

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

---

[1] Ramírez may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two (2) years from the date of this Order.

[2] The Board determined to accept Ramírez's offer of settlement, which does not require him to pay a civil money penalty, after considering his financial resources. Based on Ramírez's conduct, the Board would have imposed a civil money penalty of $25,000 on him in this settlement, if it had not taken his financial resources into consideration.

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement (the "Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for the purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board or to which the Board is a Party, and without admitting or denying the findings contained in the Order, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings (which is admitted) and the facts, findings, and violations in paragraphs 1 and 14-24 (which are admitted), Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[3]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[4]

A. Respondent

1. Edgar Mauricio Ramírez Rueda was, at all relevant times, an audit manager at KPMG Colombia and the manager for the audit procedures the Firm performed over certain Colombian subsidiaries of Issuer A in connection with the audit of Issuer A's financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2015 (the "Component Audit"). Ramírez is licensed as an accountant by the Junta Central de Contadores in Bogota D.C., Colombia (professional card no. 116437-T). At all relevant times, Ramírez was an "associated person of a registered public accounting firm" as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Relevant Entities and Individuals

2. KPMG Colombia is a simplified stock company headquartered in Bogotá, Republic of Colombia.[5] KPMG Colombia is a member of the KPMG international network of

[3] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[4] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the condition set out in Section 105(c)(5)(A) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5)(A), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

firms ("KPMG Global"). The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

3. The "Lead Partner" was formerly a partner of KPMG Colombia. He served as the lead partner for the Component Audit.[6]

4. The "Senior" was formerly an employee of KPMG Colombia. He served as the audit senior for the Component Audit.[7]

5. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, an "issuer" within the meaning of Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). Another member firm of KPMG Global served as the principal auditor for Issuer A's financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2015, and instructed KPMG Colombia to conduct the Component Audit.

C. Summary

6. This matter involves Respondent's failure to cooperate with the PCAOB's 2016 inspection of KPMG Colombia, and Respondent's related violations of PCAOB audit documentation standards and ethics rules and standards. After the completion of the Component Audit and the expiration of the applicable documentation completion date, Respondent learned that the PCAOB's Division of Registration and Inspections ("DRI") would be inspecting the Component Audit. At the Lead Partner's direction, Respondent then improperly participated in and coordinated the Firm's improper modification and backdating of the electronic work papers for the Component Audit.

7. As a result, and as further described below, Respondent violated PCAOB Rule 4006, Duty to Cooperate with Inspectors, AS 3, Audit Documentation, and ET § 102, Integrity and Objectivity.[8]

D. Respondent Violated PCAOB Rules, Auditing Standards, and Ethics Standards in Connection with the PCAOB's 2016 Inspection

i. Rules and Standards

8. PCAOB Rule 4006 requires that "[e]very registered public accounting firm, and every associated person of a registered public accounting firm . . . cooperate with the Board in the performance of any Board inspection."[9] "Implicit in this cooperation requirement is that auditors provide accurate and truthful information."[10]

9. PCAOB rules also require that associated persons of registered public accounting firms comply with applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.[11] Among other requirements, registered firms and their associated persons must comply with the auditing, ethics, and quality control standards adopted by the Board.[12]

10. The Board's audit documentation standard states, in part: "A complete and final set of audit documentation should be assembled for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date (documentation completion date). . . . Audit documentation must not be deleted or discarded after the documentation completion date, however, information may be added. Any documentation added must indicate the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding it."[13]

11. PCAOB ethics standards provide, in part, that an auditor "shall maintain objectivity and integrity" and "shall not knowingly misrepresent facts" in the performance of professional services.[14] An auditor knowingly misrepresents facts in violation of ET § 102 when, for example, he or she knowingly: (i) makes, or permits or directs another to make, materially false and misleading entries in an entity's records; or (ii) signs, or permits or directs another to sign, a document containing materially false and misleading information.[15]

ii. Respondent Coordinated the Improper Modification of the Component Audit Work Papers After the Documentation Completion Date and in Anticipation of a PCAOB Inspection

12. After completing the Component Audit, KPMG Colombia sent an interoffice report to the principal auditor by no later than February 25, 2016. The principal auditor released its audit report for the Issuer A audit by no later than February 26, 2016. As a result, the documentation completion date for all audit work performed for the Issuer A audit was no later than April 11, 2016.

13. On September 7, 2016, DRI informed KPMG Colombia that it would inspect the Component Audit. DRI identified (a) net sales and accounts receivable, and (b) property, plant, and equipment as the focus areas for the inspection.

14. On or before September 16, 2017, after learning that DRI would inspect the Component Audit, the Lead Partner instructed Ramirez and the Senior to perform a review of the audit documentation for that engagement, with assistance from the other members of the engagement team. The Lead Partner further instructed Ramírez and the Senior to provide him with comments from that review.

15. On September 16, Ramírez sent an email to the Senior and other members of the Firm's engagement team for the Component Audit, directing them to perform the review that the Lead Partner had instructed the engagement team to undertake in anticipation of the inspection, and to send Ramírez their comments. Ramírez, the Senior, and the other members of the engagement team thereafter performed the review as directed.

16. On September 19, Ramírez assembled the comments he received from the engagement team's review of the Component Audit work papers, including comments from the Senior, and forwarded them to the Lead Partner as an attachment to an email with the subject "To do PCAOB." That same day, Ramírez also signed an engagement profile for the Component Audit, which was provided to DRI in connection with the inspection. In that engagement profile, Ramírez represented that no modifications had been made to the audit documentation for the Component Audit.

[15] See ET §§ 102.02(a), (c).

17. After receiving the engagement team's initial review comments from Ramírez, the Lead Partner informed Ramírez and the Senior that the engagement team needed to revise the audit work papers ahead of the inspection, including to address the comments from the engagement team's review. In response, on September 21, the Senior forwarded the "To do PCAOB" email to other members of the engagement team, copying Ramírez, indicating that they should make changes to the work papers to address the comments Ramírez had forwarded to the Lead Partner.

18. From September 21 to October 2, 2016, the Lead Partner also sent Ramírez and the Senior a series of emails providing additional detailed comments for the engagement team to address through further revisions to the work papers. During that same period, other professionals whom the Lead Partner enlisted to help review the Component Audit work papers also provided comments to Ramírez and the Senior for consideration.

19. In some of the emails, the Lead Partner noted that it was possible to see in the revised versions of the work papers that some of the changes had been made in September 2016, and he instructed Ramírez and the Senior to alter those dates.

20. Between September 19 and October 9, 2016, the engagement team, working under Ramírez's supervision, made changes to the work papers to address the comments that they, the Lead Partner and others had made during the reviews described in Paragraphs 14-19, above. Ramírez also enlisted the help of another KPMG Colombia staff member, who had not been part of the engagement team, to assist with making changes to the audit work papers.

21. Ramírez coordinated and reviewed the changes that members of the Firm's engagement team and staff performed pursuant to the instructions and emails that the Lead Partner and others sent. When doing so, Ramírez provided guidance, instructions, and assistance to the engagement team members to ensure that they made the changes that Lead Partner and others had instructed, and to ensure that the altered work papers were backdated. While doing so, Ramírez was specifically aware that the engagement team had obtained an administrative password to alter the clocks on the computers the team members were using to alter the work papers, so that they could backdate the revised work papers to a date that was prior to the documentation completion date. Ramírez was specifically aware that work papers that the engagement team revised after the documentation completion date, while acting under his supervision: (1) did not reflect the date they were changed or the reason(s) they were changed, and (2) had, in fact, been backdated.

22. Ramírez understood that altering and backdating the work papers, as described above, would create the false appearance that the improperly modified and backdated work papers constituted the complete and final set of timely archived audit documentation. Ramírez also knew or was reckless in not knowing that KPMG Colombia provided the improperly modified and backdated work papers to DRI during the inspection fieldwork, which took place from October 10 to October 21, 2016.

23. During the inspection, Ramírez participated in a preliminary kick-off meeting with DRI about the Component Audit. Despite his involvement in the modifications described above, and despite having previously signed the engagement profile indicating that no changes had been made to the audit documentation subsequent to the documentation completion date, Ramírez did not inform DRI or anyone else at the PCAOB that the work papers provided to DRI had been improperly modified and backdated, or provide DRI with information about the actual dates the work papers were modified and the reasons they were modified after the documentation completion date.

24. As a result of the above-described conduct, Ramírez violated PCAOB Rule 4006, AS 3, and ET § 102 in connection with the Board's 2016 inspection of the Firm and DRI's review of the Component Audit.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Edgar Mauricio Ramírez Rueda is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Edgar Mauricio Ramírez Rueda is barred from being an "associated person of a registered public accounting firm," as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[16]

[16] As a consequence of the bar, the provisions of Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act will apply with respect to Ramírez. Section 105(c)(7)(B) provides: "It shall be unlawful for any person that is suspended or barred from being associated with a registered public accounting firm under this subsection willfully to become or remain associated with any issuer, broker, or dealer in an accountancy or a financial management capacity, and for any issuer, broker, or dealer that knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of such suspension or bar, to permit such an association, without the consent of the Board or the Commission."

C. Pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), Edgar Mauricio Ramírez Rueda may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order; and

D. Respondent understands that the determination to accept Respondent's offer, without imposing a civil money penalty, is contingent upon the accuracy and completeness of Respondent's financial information provided to the Division of Enforcement and Investigations (the "Division"). Respondent also understands that, if at any time following this settlement the Division obtains information indicating that any financial information provided by Respondent—including, but not limited to, any information concerning assets, income, liabilities, or net worth—was fraudulent, misleading, inaccurate, or incomplete in any material respect as of the time such information was provided, the Division may, at any time following entry of this Order, petition the Board to: (a) reopen this matter to consider whether Respondent provided accurate and complete financial information at the time such information was provided to the Division; and (b) seek an order directing payment of the maximum civil money penalty allowable under the law or any lesser amount determined to be appropriate. No other issue shall be considered in connection with this petition other than whether the financial information provided by Respondent was fraudulent, misleading, inaccurate, or incomplete in any material respect. Respondent may not, by way of defense to any such petition: (i) contest the findings in this Order; (ii) assert that payment of a civil money penalty should not be ordered; (iii) contest the amount of the civil money penalty to be ordered; or (iv) assert any defense to liability or remedy, including, but not limited to, any defense based on statute of limitations or any other time-related defense.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Marco Alexander Rodríguez Ramírez,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-037

December 6, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Marco Alexander Rodríguez Ramírez ("Rodríguez" or "Respondent"); and

(2) barring Rodríguez from being associated with a registered public accounting firm.[1]

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Rodríguez failed to cooperate with the Board's 2016 inspection of KPMG S.A.S. ("KPMG Colombia" or the "Firm") by participating in the improper alteration of work papers for an issuer audit that was subject to inspection.[2]

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c)

---

[1] Rodríguez may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after one (1) year from the date of this Order.

[2] The Board determined to accept Rodríguez's offer of settlement, which does not require him to pay a civil money penalty, after considering his financial resources. Based on Rodríguez's conduct, the Board would have imposed a civil money penalty of $25,000 on him in this settlement, if it had not taken his financial resources into consideration.

of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement (the "Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for the purpose of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board or in which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings contained in the Order, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings (which is admitted) and the facts, findings, and violations in paragraphs 1 and 14-20 (which are admitted), Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[3]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[4]

A. Respondent

1. Marco Alexander Rodríguez Ramírez was, at all relevant times, an audit senior at KPMG Colombia and the audit senior for the audit procedures the Firm performed over certain Colombian subsidiaries of Issuer A in connection with the audit of Issuer A's financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2015 (the "Component Audit"). Rodríguez is licensed as an accountant by the Junta Central de Contadores in Bogota D.C., Colombia (professional card no. 149387). At all relevant times, Rodríguez was an "associated person of a registered public accounting firm" as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

[3] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[4] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the condition set out in Section 105(c)(5)(A) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5)(A), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

B. Relevant Entities and Individuals

2. KPMG Colombia is a simplified stock company headquartered in Bogotá, Republic of Colombia.[5] KPMG Colombia is a member of the KPMG international network of firms ("KPMG Global"). The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

3. The "Lead Partner" was formerly a partner of KPMG Colombia. He served as the lead partner for the Component Audit.[6]

4. The "Manager" was formerly an employee of KPMG Colombia. He served as the manager for the Component Audit.[7]

5. Issuer A was, at all relevant times, an "issuer" within the meaning of Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). Another member firm of KPMG Global served as the principal auditor for Issuer A's financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2015, and instructed KPMG Colombia to conduct the Component Audit.

C. Summary

6. This matter involves Respondent's failure to cooperate with the PCAOB's 2016 inspection of KPMG Colombia, and Respondent's related violations of PCAOB audit documentation standards and ethics rules and standards. After the completion of the Component Audit and the expiration of the applicable documentation completion date, Respondent learned that the PCAOB's Division of Registration and Inspections ("DRI") would be inspecting the Component Audit. At the Lead Partner's direction, Respondent then improperly modified the Firm's electronic work papers for the Component Audit and backdated those work papers to conceal that they had been modified. Rodríguez also provided instructions to other members of the Component Audit engagement team in connection with their efforts to make improper modifications to the work papers in anticipation of the inspection.

ii. Respondent Improperly Modified Component Audit Work Papers After the Documentation Completion Date and in Anticipation of a PCAOB Inspection

12. After completing the Component Audit, KPMG Colombia sent an interoffice report to the principal auditor by no later than February 25, 2016. The principal auditor released its audit report for the Issuer A audit by no later than February 26, 2016. As a result, the documentation completion date for all audit work performed for the Issuer A audit was no later than April 11, 2016.

14. On or before September 16, 2017, after learning that DRI would inspect the Component Audit, the Lead Partner instructed the Manager and Rodríguez to perform a review of the audit documentation for that engagement, with assistance from the other members of the engagement team. The Lead Partner further instructed the Manager and Rodríguez to provide him with comments from that review.

15. Rodríguez, the Manager, and the other members of the engagement team thereafter performed the review as directed. attachment to an email with the subject "To do PCAOB." The Manager copied Rodríguez on that email.

16. After receiving the engagement team's initial review comments from the Manager, the Lead Partner informed Rodríguez and the Manager that the engagement team needed to revise the audit work papers ahead of the inspection, including to address the comments from the engagement team's review. In response, on September 21, Rodríguez forwarded the "To do PCAOB" email to other members of the engagement team, copying the Manager, indicating that they should make changes to the work papers to address the comments the Manager had forwarded to the Lead Partner. In the email, Rodríguez also indicated that the engagement team members should make the changes outside of the existing electronic audit work paper database (the "eAudit database"). The purpose of revising the work papers outside of the eAudit database was to prevent certain software from capturing the actual dates the work papers were revised. At the time of his September 21 email, Rodríguez understood that work papers modified outside the eAudit database could later be substituted into the eAudit database or a local copy of the eAudit database in a manner that would conceal their modification date.

17. From September 21 to October 2, 2016, the Lead Partner also sent Rodríguez and the Manager a series of emails providing additional detailed comments for the engagement team to address through further revisions to the work papers. During that same period, other professionals whom the Lead Partner enlisted to help review the Component Audit work papers also provided comments to Rodríguez and the Manager for consideration.

18. In some of the emails, the Lead Partner noted that it was possible to see in the revised versions of the work papers that some of the changes had been made in September 2016, and he instructed Rodríguez and the Manager to alter those dates.

19. Between September 19 and October 9, 2016, Rodriguez made changes to the work papers to address certain of the comments that the Lead Partner and others had made during the reviews described in Paragraphs 14-18, above. Pursuant to the Lead Partner's instructions, Rodríguez personally altered and backdated multiple work papers between the date that he was made aware that KPMG Colombia's work on the Component Audit had been selected for inspection and the start of that inspection. Rodríguez knew he was making those changes after the documentation completion date for the Component Audit and that the revised audit documentation that would be provided to DRI, but he did not indicate the date he was making those changes or the reason(s) he was making them. To the contrary, Rodríguez backdated his changes to dates before the documentation completion date, and concealed the actual dates he made the changes, by improperly adjusting the date on a computer clock using an administrative passcode.

20. As a result of the above-described conduct, Rodríguez violated PCAOB Rule 4006, AS 3, and ET § 102 in connection with the Board's 2016 inspection of the Firm and DRI's review of the Component Audit.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Marco Alexander Rodríguez Ramírez is hereby censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Marco Alexander Rodríguez Ramírez is barred from being an "associated person of a registered public accounting firm," as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i);[16]

C. Pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), Marco Alexander Rodríguez Ramírez may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after one year from the date of this Order; and

D. Respondent understands that the determination to accept Respondent's offer, without imposing a civil money penalty, is contingent upon the accuracy and completeness of Respondent's financial information provided to the Division of Enforcement and Investigations (the "Division"). Respondent also understands that, if at any time following this settlement the Division obtains information indicating that any financial information provided by Respondent—including, but not limited to, any information concerning assets, income, liabilities, or net worth—was fraudulent, misleading, inaccurate, or incomplete in any material respect as of the time such information was provided, the Division may, at any time following entry of this Order, petition the Board to: (a) reopen this matter to consider whether Respondent provided accurate and complete financial information at the time such information was provided to the Division; and (b) seek an order directing payment of the maximum civil money penalty allowable under the law or any lesser amount determined to be appropriate. No other issue shall be considered in connection with this petition other than whether the financial information provided by Respondent was fraudulent, misleading, inaccurate, or incomplete in any material respect. Respondent may not, by way of defense to any such petition: (i) contest the findings in this Order; (ii) assert that payment of a civil money penalty should not be ordered; (iii) contest the amount of the civil money penalty to be ordered; or (iv) assert any defense to liability or remedy, including, but not limited to, any defense based on statute of limitations or any other time-related defense.

[16] As a consequence of the bar, the provisions of Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act will apply with respect to Rodríguez. Section 105(c)(7)(B) provides: "It shall be unlawful for any person that is suspended or barred from being associated with a registered public accounting firm under this subsection willfully to become or remain associated with any issuer, broker, or dealer in an accountancy or a financial management capacity, and for any issuer, broker, or dealer that knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of such suspension or bar, to permit such an association, without the consent of the Board or the Commission."

Respondents.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-038

December 20, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(3) barring James C. Budge, CPA ("Budge") from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm[3] and imposing a $25,000 civil money penalty upon Budge.[4]

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Respondents violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with two audits of an issuer.

---

[1] Reams may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order.

[2] Keyes may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after two years from the date of this Order.

[3] Budge may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after one year from the date of this Order.

[4] Reams, Keyes, and Budge are referred to in this Order, collectively, as the "Respondents."

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondents.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have each submitted an Offer of Settlement (collectively, "Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondents consent to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[5]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[6]

A. Respondents

1. Scott J. Reams was, at all relevant times, a certified public accountant licensed by the states of California (license no. 82008) and Utah (license no. 6814250-2601). Reams was, at all relevant times, a partner of WSRP, LLC ("WSRP"). Reams served as the engagement partner for WSRP's integrated audit of the March 31, 2019 consolidated financial statements and internal control over financial reporting of Freedom Holding Corp. ("Freedom") ("2019 Audit"). Reams was, at all relevant times, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

[5] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[6] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

2. Brandon R. Keyes was, at all relevant times, a certified public accountant licensed by the state of Utah (license no. 7780361-2601). Keyes was a senior manager at WSRP from December 2017 to 2019, and a partner of WSRP from 2020 to the present. Keyes served as a senior manager for the 2019 Audit and served as the engagement partner for WSRP's March 31, 2020 integrated audit of the consolidated financial statements and internal control over financial reporting of Freedom ("2020 Audit"). Keyes was, at all relevant times, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

3. James C. Budge was, at all relevant times, a certified public accountant licensed by the state of Utah (license no. 162679-2601). Budge was, at all relevant times, a partner of WSRP. Budge served as the engagement quality review ("EQR") partner for the 2019 and 2020 Audits. Budge was, at all relevant times, an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Relevant Entities

4. WSRP, LLC was, at all relevant times, a limited liability company organized under the laws of the state of Utah and headquartered in Salt Lake City, Utah. At all relevant times, WSRP was licensed by the state of Utah (license no. 109193-2603), among others. WSRP was, at all relevant times, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. WSRP performed an integrated audit of Freedom's 2019 and 2020 financial statements and internal control over financial reporting. WSRP issued unqualified opinions for both audits.

5. Freedom Holding Corp. was, at all relevant times, a Nevada corporation headquartered in Almaty, Kazakhstan, with supporting administrative offices in Russia, Cyprus, and the United States. Freedom's public filings disclose that it has several operating subsidiaries that engage in a broad range of activities in the securities industry, including retail securities brokerage, investment research, investment counseling, securities trading, and investment banking and underwriting services in Eastern Europe and Central Asia. At all relevant times, one individual served as the CEO, Chair, and the controlling (over 70%) shareholder of Freedom ("Freedom CEO"). Freedom was, at all relevant times, an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

6. In 2014, the Freedom CEO created a corporation ("the Belize Affiliate") that, at all relevant times, was registered and licensed as a broker dealer in Belize. The Belize Affiliate is an introducing broker, and its customers are retail investors many of whom are located in Eastern Europe. The Freedom CEO is the sole owner of the Belize Affiliate. Freedom and the Belize Affiliate were identified by Freedom as related parties under U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles ("U.S. GAAP").

C. Summary

7. This matter concerns Respondents' violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the 2019 and 2020 Audits. Reams authorized WSRP's issuance of audit reports containing unqualified opinions for the 2019 Audit, and Keyes authorized WSRP's issuance of audit reports containing unqualified opinions for the 2020 Audit. For both Audits, Budge provided concurring approval of issuance of WSRP's audit reports.

8. Reams and Keyes identified and knew there were risks of material misstatement with respect to revenues and margin loans receivable related to transactions with the Belize Affiliate. Reams and Keyes also knew that: (a) transactions with the Belize Affiliate constituted the majority of Freedom's reported revenue in 2019 and 2020; (b) the Belize Affiliate and Freedom were related parties, both of which were under control of the Freedom CEO; and (c) Reams and Keyes did not have access to the records and personnel of the Belize Affiliate needed to evaluate material portions of Freedom's financial statements.

9. Notwithstanding this knowledge, Reams and Keyes failed to adequately respond to risks of material misstatement. First, Reams and Keyes failed to comply with PCAOB auditing standards when evaluating Freedom's identification of and accounting for the relationship and transactions between Freedom and the Belize Affiliate. Second, Reams and Keyes failed to identify that Freedom's 2019 and 2020 financial statements did not contain necessary disclosures regarding its relationship with the Belize Affiliate. Third, Reams and Keyes failed to gather sufficient appropriate audit evidence to evaluate Freedom's reported margin loans to the Belize Affiliate. Fourth, Reams and Keyes failed to gather sufficient appropriate audit evidence to evaluate commission revenue from securities transactions processed by Freedom on behalf of the Belize Affiliate. Fifth, Reams and Keyes failed to evaluate whether the Belize Affiliate was a variable interest entity that, potentially, may have needed to be consolidated with Freedom.

10. In addition, Budge violated AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review, by providing his concurring approval for the issuance of the Firm's 2019 and 2020 audit reports without performing the required EQRs with due professional care.

D. Background: The Related Party Relationship Between Freedom and the Belize Affiliate

11. In 2014, Freedom's CEO created FFIN Securities, Inc. This company subsequently became Freedom in 2015, as a result of a reverse merger with an existing inactive issuer, BMB Munai, Inc. As noted previously, Freedom's CEO is also the majority shareholder of Freedom.

12. At all relevant times, the Belize Affiliate acted as an introducing broker to Freedom. The Belize Affiliate's retail customers requested trades from the Belize Affiliate, which the Belize Affiliate passed to Freedom. Freedom then passed these orders to a prime broker for execution. Funding for these transactions could be provided by margin loans from Freedom to the Belize Affiliate, which in turn were extended to the Belize Affiliate's retail customers. The margin loans were collateralized by the securities purchased for the Belize Affiliate's customers.

13. Freedom recorded these transactions in the name of the Belize Affiliate. Reams and Keyes understood at the time of the Audits, however, that these transactions were for the benefit of the Belize Affiliate's retail customers, not for the Belize Affiliate itself.

14. In 2019, the Belize Affiliate was responsible for 87% of Freedom's reported commission and fee revenue and 68% of margin loans receivable. In 2020, the Belize Affiliate was responsible for 81% of both Freedom's reported commission and fee revenue and margin loans receivable.

15. As discussed below, neither Reams nor Keyes took sufficient steps to understand the transactions between the Belize Affiliate and its retail customers. Neither engagement partner had any contact with the Belize Affiliate's retail customers, nor knew their identities. Also, neither engagement partner had access to the terms of the agreements between the Belize Affiliate and its retail customers.

E. Reams and Keyes Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards in Connection with the Audits

16. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[7] Among other things, PCAOB standards require an auditor to exercise due professional care, exercise professional skepticism, and plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the auditor's opinion.[8] As described below, Reams and Keyes (collectively, the "Engagement Partners") violated these and other PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the Audits.

i. Reams and Keyes Failed to Make Required Inquiries of Freedom

a. Business Purpose Inquiry

17. PCAOB standards require auditors to make certain inquiries of company management concerning related party transactions.[9] Auditors should perform procedures to obtain an understanding of the company's relationships and transactions with its related parties that might reasonably be expected to affect the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements.[10] An auditor should inquire of management regarding the business purpose for entering into a transaction with a related party versus an unrelated party.[11]

18. The Engagement Partners understood that the transactions between Freedom and the Belize Affiliate were significant to Freedom's 2019 and 2020 financial statements. The Engagement Partners also understood that the trade orders from the Belize Affiliate to Freedom were for the benefit of the Belize Affiliate's retail customers. The Engagement Partners needed to inquire of management to determine whether there was a valid business purpose for Freedom transacting with the Belize Affiliate as opposed to transacting directly with the retail customers of the Belize Affiliate, who were not related parties, and who were, in fact, the actual parties to the transactions with Freedom.

19. During the Audits, the Engagement Partners failed to inquire about the business purpose of these related party transactions. For example, they failed to inquire why the Belize Affiliate's retail customers could not have gone directly to Freedom with their trade orders, as opposed to placing their orders with the Belize Affiliate then passing those orders to Freedom.

20. Likewise, neither of the Engagement Partners learned why Freedom's CEO set up two separate entities—the Belize Affiliate and Freedom—and then funneled retail trade orders through the non-public, non-audited entity (the Belize Affiliate) on their way to processing by Freedom.

10 Id. at .03.

11 Id. at .05(e).

b. Financial Capability Inquiry

21. For related party transactions that are required to be disclosed in the financial statements or determined to be a significant risk, PCAOB auditing standards state that the auditor should "[e]valuate the financial capability of the related parties with respect to significant uncollected balances, loan commitments, supply arrangements, guarantees, and other obligations, if any."[12] As described below, the Engagement Partners failed to evaluate the financial capability of the Belize Affiliate, despite the fact the majority of Freedom's margin loans were receivable from the Belize Affiliate.

22. The Engagement Partners understood that the Belize Affiliate was placing trade orders for the benefit of the Belize Affiliate's retail customers. The Engagement Partners further understood that these transactions included trade orders funded by margin loans from Freedom. The retail customers of the Belize Affiliate, however, were not identified in the trade orders or the related Freedom records, and Reams and Keyes had no access to information on the financial capability of the Belize Affiliate's customers. The Belize Affiliate placed trade orders with Freedom for their customers in the Belize Affiliate's own name. And Freedom extended margin loans to the Belize Affiliate in the Belize Affiliate's own name. The Engagement Partners identified these margin loans as presenting a significant risk of material misstatement in both 2019 and 2020.

23. The securities purchased by the Belize Affiliate's retail customers, including securities that were collateralizing margin loans, were identified in Freedom's books and records as being owned by the Belize Affiliate. Nonetheless, the Engagement Partners understood that these securities were owned by the Belize Affiliate's retail customers.

24. In 2019, Freedom reported total margin lending receivables of $47 million and the Belize Affiliate was responsible for $32 million, or 68%, of that total. In 2020, Freedom reported total margin lending receivables of $108 million and the Belize Affiliate was responsible for $87 million, or 81%, of that total.

25. The Engagement Partners failed to obtain and evaluate information about the Belize Affiliate's retail customers, including any agreements between the Belize Affiliate and its retail customers. Freedom management advised the Engagement Partners that the Belize Affiliate's client information was proprietary to the Belize Affiliate and not readily available. The Engagement Partners did not know the terms of the agreements between the Belize Affiliate and its retail customers, including if such terms were consistent with the terms of the agreements between the Belize Affiliate and Freedom.

26. For example, the Engagement Partners failed to inquire about and to determine whether the commission and margin lending rates that Freedom was charging the Belize Affiliate were consistent with the rates that the Belize Affiliate was charging its retail customers. If Freedom was charging the Belize Affiliate higher commission rates than the Belize Affiliate was charging its own customers, that could have caused the Belize Affiliate, a privately held company, to incur losses for the benefit of Freedom's apparent financial performance as a public company.

27. Similarly, the Engagement Partners failed to inquire about and to determine whether the agreements between the Belize Affiliate and its retail customers required the customers to make securities purchased on margin available as collateral to Freedom in the event that the retail customers defaulted on their margin loans. As a result, the Engagement Partners did not know if Freedom had the right to seize collateral in the event of a default on the margin loans.

28. The Engagement Partners also lacked information about the stand-alone financial viability of the Belize Affiliate. At the time of the Audits, neither Reams nor Keyes had any information about the financial condition of the Belize Affiliate, and they were not able to evaluate the financial capability of the Belize Affiliate to perform on significant uncollected balances for the margin loans that Freedom extended to the Belize Affiliate. Likewise, the Engagement Partners were unable to determine whether the collateral purportedly securing Freedom's margin loans to the Belize Affiliate was, in fact, available to the Belize Affiliate in the event of a default by a retail customer of the Belize Affiliate.[13]

c. Reams and Keyes Failed to Adequately Evaluate Financial Statement Disclosures

29. PCAOB standards require an auditor to evaluate whether the financial statements are presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework.[14] "As part of the evaluation of the presentation of the financial statements, the auditor should evaluate whether the financial statements contain the information essential for a fair presentation of the financial statements in conformity with the applicable financial reporting framework."[15]

30. PCAOB auditing standards state that "[t]he auditor must evaluate whether related party transactions have been properly accounted for and disclosed in the financial statements."[16] During the Audits, however, the Engagement Partners failed to evaluate financial statement disclosures in compliance with PCAOB auditing standards.

31. The Engagement Partners understood that the Belize Affiliate was responsible for the majority of Freedom's revenue and margin loan balances for both 2019 and 2020. Also, the Engagement Partners understood that Freedom and the Belize Affiliate were related parties.

32. U.S. GAAP required Freedom to disclose certain information concerning its related party transactions.[17] The Engagement Partners, however, failed to evaluate whether Freedom's 2019 and 2020 financial statement disclosures complied with U.S. GAAP and included: (a) a description of the nature of the relationship between Freedom and the Belize Affiliate; (b) a description of the transactions between Freedom and the Belize Affiliate and the related amounts necessary for an understanding of the effects of these transactions on Freedom's financial statements; (c) a description of the terms and manner of the settlement of balances between Freedom and the Belize Affiliate; (d) the identification of the Belize Affiliate by name; and (e) disclosure of the Freedom CEO's control of both Freedom and the Belize Affiliate.[18]

33. The foregoing required disclosures were outlined in GAAP disclosure checklists that were reviewed by Reams in 2019 and Keyes in 2020. Nonetheless, the Engagement Partners failed to evaluate whether the 2019 and 2020 Freedom financial statements adequately disclosed the related party relationship between Freedom and the Belize Affiliate in conformity with U.S. GAAP.[19]

19 See AS 2810.30 and .31.

34. Reams and Keyes also failed to evaluate whether separate presentation on the face of the financial statements of the Belize Affiliate transactions and balances with Freedom was essential for a fair presentation of Freedom's financial statements in conformity with U.S. GAAP.[20]

d. Reams and Keyes Failed to Adequately Evaluate Freedom's Margin Loans to the Belize Affiliate

35. PCAOB standards state that "[t]he auditor must plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for his or her opinion."[21] "To be appropriate, audit evidence must be both relevant and reliable in providing support for the conclusions on which the auditor's opinion is based."[22]

36. In both 2019 and 2020, the Engagement Partners identified margin loans as presenting a significant risk of material misstatement. The Engagement Partners failed to gather sufficient appropriate audit evidence to evaluate margin lending between Freedom and the Belize Affiliate.

37. First, the Engagement Partners failed to gather sufficient appropriate audit evidence to confirm the amounts of Freedom's margin loans to the Belize Affiliate. These margin loans were not identified by either individual transactions or individual Belize Affiliate retail customers. Instead, they took the form of a rolling balance of total margin loans based on all Belize Affiliate transactions, all of which were recorded in the name of the Belize Affiliate. To evaluate the recorded amounts, Reams and Keyes obtained confirmation responses from the Belize Affiliate that purported to confirm, as of Freedom's fiscal year end date, the total margin loan balances receivable from the Belize Affiliate. The audit evidence resulting from this confirmation procedure was not appropriate, as it demonstrated no more than the fact that two related parties, both under the Freedom CEO's control, kept their books in agreement. These confirmation responses did not provide audit evidence that the total recorded amount of margin loans was the result of actual and valid individual margin loan transactions between Freedom and the Belize Affiliate. Because of the unreliability of the audit evidence obtained through the confirmation process, Reams and Keyes were required to, but did not, obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support the recorded amount of Freedom's margin loans to the Belize Affiliate.

[22] Id. at .06.

38. Second, Reams and Keyes failed to gather sufficient appropriate audit evidence to evaluate whether the margins loans to the Belize Affiliate, as recorded, were properly valued. Reams and Keyes had no information on the financial condition of the Belize Affiliate and thus could not evaluate its ability to repay amounts borrowed, absent reliance on collateral purportedly provided by the Belize Affiliate's customers. Reams and Keyes, however, failed to gather sufficient appropriate audit evidence to verify the existence of the securities that were supposedly serving as collateral for the margin loans to the Belize Affiliate. These securities were owned by the Belize Affiliate's retail customers, and Reams and Keyes failed to seek or obtain audit evidence that Freedom had the right to any such collateral in the event of a margin loan default.

39. Third, the Engagement Partners failed to gather sufficient appropriate audit evidence to evaluate the sufficiency of this collateral to support Freedom's loans to the Belize Affiliate. The Engagement Partners performed walk-throughs of certain controls that Freedom claimed it employed to evaluate collateral sufficiency. However, because the Engagement Partners identified margin lending as raising a significant risk of material misstatement, they needed to perform substantive procedures to test the existence and sufficiency of the collateral and could not rely solely on tests of controls, which they failed to do.[23]

40. Further, the controls on which the Engagement Partners relied could not determine if individual margin loans were sufficiently collateralized, as these controls simply compared total Belize Affiliate margin loan balances with total collateral value. The Engagement Partners failed to review the margin loan agreements between the Belize Affiliate and its retail clients, and therefore lacked knowledge as to how collateral applied to individual margin loans, including whether the securities owned by one Belize Affiliate client could serve as collateral for the margin loans of other Belize Affiliate clients.

41. As a result of the failures by the Engagement Partners to adequately evaluate Freedom's margin loans to the Belize Affiliate, they violated PCAOB standards in their audit of margin loans receivable.[24]

[23] See AS 2301.11, The Auditor's Responses to the Risks of Material Misstatement ("For significant risks, the auditor should perform substantive procedures, including tests of details, that are specifically responsive to the assessed risks.").

[24] See AS 1105.04 and .06; AS 2301.11.

ii. Reams and Keyes Failed to Adequately Evaluate Revenue from the Belize Affiliate

42. The Engagement Partners also failed to gather sufficient appropriate audit evidence to evaluate commission revenue that Freedom recognized on the Belize Affiliate trade orders.

43. First, the Engagement Partners failed to evaluate whether U.S. GAAP criteria governing revenue recognition were met, namely, whether "[t]he parties to the contract have approved the contract."[25] The Engagement Partners understood that the transactions Freedom processed in the name of the Belize Affiliate were, in fact, for the Belize Affiliate's retail customers. But the Engagement Partners failed to perform any procedures, or obtain any audit evidence, to evaluate whether the Belize Affiliate's customers requested these trades and authorized the Belize Affiliate to pay commissions to Freedom for the trades. Instead, the Engagement Partners assumed, without audit evidence, that the commissions paid to Freedom, which ultimately were borne by the Belize Affiliate's retail customers, were known to the Belize Affiliate customers and that they had agreed to pay these commissions.

44. Second, the Belize Affiliate paid certain fixed monthly fees to Freedom. There was a risk of material misstatement that the Belize Affiliate could make payments to Freedom for no purpose other than to create fictitious fee income for Freedom. The Engagement Partners, however, failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence concerning the nature of these fees and whether they had a legitimate business purpose. Further, the Engagement Partners failed to obtain and evaluate documentation supporting the business purpose, if any, of these fixed monthly fees. The Engagement Partners also did not seek to understand the source of the payment of these fees, including whether these fees were ultimately borne by the Belize Affiliate's retail customers. Finally, in the event that Belize Affiliate retail customer funds were used to pay these fees, the Engagement Partners did not know, and failed to determine, whether the Belize Affiliate's customers had authorized the payment of these fees.[26] Accordingly, the Engagement Partners violated PCAOB standards.[27]

a. Reams and Keyes Failed to Evaluate Whether the Belize Affiliate was a Variable Interest Entity and Needed to be Consolidated

45. PCAOB auditing standards required the Engagement Partners to evaluate whether Freedom's selection and application of accounting principles were appropriate for its business and consistent with the applicable financial reporting framework and accounting principles used in the industry.[28] Reams and Keyes, however, failed to evaluate, under U.S. GAAP, whether the Belize Affiliate was a variable interest entity ("VIE"), and whether the Belize Affiliate needed to be consolidated with Freedom.[29]

46. Although Reams and Keyes knew that Freedom provided the majority of the margin loans that supported the Belize Affiliate's operations, they failed to obtain any information concerning the financial condition of the Belize Affiliate. This information was necessary to determine if the Belize Affiliate was a VIE. More specifically, the Engagement Partners obtained no information and performed no evaluation of whether the Belize Affiliate was financially viable without the support that it received from Freedom in the form of margin loans.

47. As a result, the Engagement Partners failed to evaluate whether the Belize Affiliate was a VIE and failed to consider whether the Belize Affiliate needed to be consolidated with Freedom in violation of PCAOB standards.[30]

F. Budge Violated PCAOB Rules and Auditing Standards in Connection with his EQR of the Audits

48. An EQR is required for all audits and reviews conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards.[31] The EQR is intended to "serve as a meaningful check on the work performed by the engagement team."[32] The EQR partner is responsible for evaluating the significant judgments made by the engagement team and the related conclusions reached in forming the overall conclusion on the engagement and in preparing the engagement report.[33] Among other things, the EQR partner should evaluate the engagement team's assessment of, and audit responses to, significant risks identified by the engagement team or the EQR partner.[34] The EQR partner may provide concurring approval of issuance of an audit report only if, after performing the EQR with due professional care, he or she is not aware of a significant engagement deficiency.[35]

49. The engagement teams identified margin lending as presenting a significant risk of material misstatement for both 2019 and 2020. However, the EQR partner, Budge, failed to adequately evaluate the engagement teams' assessment of, and audit responses to, that risk.

50. Specifically, Budge failed to review the margin loan audit documentation for either year, nor did Budge know what the engagement team did to evaluate margin loans and related interest income during the Audits. In addition, Budge could not recall: (a) what the engagement teams did to evaluate margin lending to determine that receivables were fully collectible, (b) how the engagement teams tested the existence and valuation of the collateral securing the margin loans, or (c) whether the engagement teams were relying on confirmation responses to evaluate reported margin lending.

51. During the Audits, Budge also failed to evaluate properly the significant judgments made, and the related conclusions reached, by the engagement teams with respect to revenue.[36] Specifically, Budge failed to properly evaluate the engagement teams' assessment of, and audit responses to, significant risks identified by the engagement teams, including fraud risks related to revenue.[37] Budge knew that the engagement teams had identified revenue as a significant risk and a fraud risk. However, he failed to obtain an understanding of what, if any, procedures had been performed to evaluate revenue. Budge also failed to properly review the engagement teams' work performed, and documentation prepared, related to revenue.[38]

All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of these civil money penalties will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act. Each Respondent shall pay his civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the person as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006. With respect to any civil money penalty amounts that Respondents shall pay pursuant to this Order, Respondents shall not, directly or indirectly, (a) seek or accept reimbursement or indemnification from any source including, but not limited to, any current or former affiliated firm or professional or any payment made pursuant to any insurance policy; (b) claim, assert, or apply for a tax deduction or tax credit in connection with any federal, state, local, or foreign tax; nor (c) seek or benefit by any offset or reduction of any award of compensatory damages, by the amount of any part of Respondents' payment of the civil money penalties pursuant to this Order, in any private action brought against Respondents based on substantially the same facts as set out in the findings in this Order.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Alvarez & Associates, Inc., Certified Public Accountants, and Vicente Alvarez, CPA,

Respondents.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-039

December 21, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Alvarez & Associates, Inc., Certified Public Accountants ("Firm"), and Vicente Alvarez, CPA ("Alvarez");

(2) suspending the Firm's registration for two years from the date of this Order;

(3) suspending Alvarez from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm for two years from the date of this Order;

(4) imposing a $50,000 civil money penalty jointly and severally upon the Firm and Alvarez (collectively, "Respondents");

(5) requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial actions as described in Section IV of this Order; and

(6) requiring Alvarez to complete 40 hours of continuing professional education ("CPE"), in addition to any CPE required in connection with any professional license, within two years of the date of this Order.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that: (a) Respondents violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with the fiscal year ("FY") 2018 and FY 2019 audits of financial statements and accompanying supplemental information, and reviews of exemption reports (collectively, "Audits") for multiple "non-carrying" broker-dealers (i.e., a broker-dealer that does not maintain custody of customer funds and/or securities), (b) the Firm violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards, and (c) Alvarez substantially contributed to the Firm's violations of PCAOB rules and quality control standards.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Respondents pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondents have each submitted an Offer of Settlement (collectively, the "Offers") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondents and the subject matter of these proceedings, which are admitted, and except as provided herein in Section IV, Respondents each consent to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondents' Offers, the Board finds that:[2]

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondents' Offers and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that Respondents' conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

A. Respondents

1. Alvarez & Associates, Inc., Certified Public Accountants is a corporation organized under the laws of the state of California and headquartered in Northridge, California. The Firm was, at all relevant times, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules. The Firm is licensed to practice by the California Board of Accountancy (license no. 8127) and in additional states.[3]

2. Vicente "Vince" Alvarez, CPA is the Firm's 95% owner and managing partner, and a certified public accountant licensed by the California Board of Accountancy (license no. 101046) and in additional jurisdictions.[4] He is an associated person of a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). He was the engagement partner for each of the relevant Audits.

B. Broker-Dealers

3. This matter involves 43 Audits performed for 39 broker-dealers who were, at all relevant times, a "broker" or "dealer," as defined in Section 110(3) and (4) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(b)(iii) and (d)(iii). In addition, at all relevant times, the 39 broker-dealers were non-carrying brokers that claimed exemption from the requirements of Rule 15c3-3 under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Rule 15c3-3").[5]

C. Summary

4. This matter concerns the Firm's failure to comply with AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review ("AS 1220"),[6] with respect to the Audits of nine broker-dealers for FY 2019. With respect to each of these broker-dealer Audits, the Firm failed to document a concurring approval of issuance from the engagement quality reviewer, which was required pursuant to AS 1220.

---

[3] The Firm is also licensed in the following additional states: Utah, Oregon, Washington, and Kansas.

[4] Alvarez is also licensed in New York and Washington D.C.

[5] 17 C.F.R. § 240.15c3-3.

[6] All references to PCAOB rules and standards in this Order are to the versions of those rules and standards, and to their organization and numbering, in effect at the time of the relevant broker-dealer Audits.

5. The Firm and Alvarez also violated AS 1215, Audit Documentation ("AS 1215") by repeatedly failing to timely assemble a complete and final set of audit documentation assembled for retention ("archived") by the documentation completion date (i.e., within 45 days after the report release date) for 43 broker-dealer Audits for FY 2018 and FY 2019. The Firm and Alvarez further violated AS 1215 by repeatedly failing to document the information required by AS 1215 when audit documentation was changed after the documentation completion date for 25 broker-dealer Audits for FY 2018 and FY 2019.

6. The Firm violated QC § 20, System of Quality Control for a CPA Firm's Accounting and Auditing Practice ("QC § 20") because the Firm failed to establish an appropriate system of quality control to ensure that its engagement personnel complied with AS 1215 and AS 1220.

7. Finally, this matter concerns Alvarez's direct and substantial contribution to the Firm's violations of PCAOB rules and standards concerning the requirements for engagement quality reviews, audit documentation, and quality control. With respect to each of the Firm's audit and attestation violations and quality control violations, Alvarez took or omitted to take actions knowing, or recklessly not knowing, that his actions and omissions would directly and substantially contribute to the Firm's violations of AS 1220, AS 1215, and QC § 20. As a result, Alvarez violated PCAOB Rule 3502, Responsibility Not to Knowingly or Recklessly Contribute to Violations ("PCAOB Rule 3502").

D. The Firm Violated PCAOB Rules and Auditing Standards Relating to Engagement Quality Reviews

8. PCAOB rules provide that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[7]

9. AS 1220 requires that an engagement quality review be performed on all audits, and certain attestation engagements, including reviews of a broker-dealer's exemption report, that are conducted pursuant to PCAOB standards.[8] In addition, a firm may grant permission to a client to use an audit or attestation report only after an engagement quality reviewer provides concurring approval of issuance.[9]

[8] AS 1220.01.

[9] See id. at .13, .18C.

10. Documentation of an engagement quality review should contain sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement, to understand the procedures performed by the engagement quality reviewer, including information that identifies the date the engagement quality reviewer provided concurring approval of issuance, or if no concurring approval of issuance was provided, the reasons for not providing the approval.[10]

11. An engagement quality reviewer must be independent of the company, perform the engagement quality review with integrity, and maintain objectivity in performing the review.[11] To maintain objectivity, the engagement quality reviewer and others who assist the reviewer should not make decisions on behalf of the engagement team or assume any of the responsibilities of the engagement team.[12]

12. The Firm failed to document the engagement quality reviewer's concurring approval of issuance for nine FY 2019 Audits. In each instance, the documentation of the engagement quality review failed to contain sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor having no previous connection with the engagement to understand the date that engagement quality reviewer provided concurring approval of issuance. As a result, the Firm repeatedly violated AS 1220.19.

13. Two of the Firm's FY 2019 engagement quality reviews also failed to comply with AS 1220 when the engagement quality reviewer failed to maintain objectivity by becoming part of the engagement team. In the two FY 2019 Audits, the engagement quality reviewer assumed the role of an engagement team member by directly performing certain audit procedures and preparing work papers for those two broker-dealer audits. Specifically, in one engagement, the engagement quality reviewer performed the audit procedures and prepared a work paper related to, the evaluation of the exemption provisions under Rule 15c3-3 that the broker-dealer identified in its 2019 exemption report. In another engagement, the engagement quality reviewer performed procedures and prepared a work paper related to the substantive testing of a certain financial statement account, which represented 82% of the broker-dealer's total assets as of December 31, 2019. Nevertheless, the Firm granted permission to the clients to use the engagement reports even though the engagement quality reviewer failed to maintain objectivity in violation of AS 1220. 06 and .07.

E. The Firm and Alvarez Violated the Audit Documentation Standard by Failing to Archive Work Papers and Properly Document Modifications After the Documentation Completion Date

14. PCAOB standards require that "a complete and final set of audit documentation should be assembled for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date (documentation completion date)."[13] The standards also provide that documentation added after the documentation completion date must indicate the date the information was added, the name of the person who prepared the additional documentation, and the reason for adding it.[14]

15. As the engagement partner, Alvarez was responsible for ensuring that the engagement teams archived the final set of audit documentation by the documentation completion date. During FY 2018 and 2019, the Firm's engagement teams, led by Alvarez, failed to assemble a complete and final set of audit documentation for retention by the documentation completion date for 43 broker-dealer Audits. The Firm belatedly archived the work papers for these broker-dealer Audits between six and 19 months after the documentation completion date. As a result, the Firm and Alvarez repeatedly violated AS 1215.15.

16. The Firm's engagement teams also modified certain work papers for 25 broker-dealer Audits after the documentation completion date, but failed to document the information required by AS 1215.16. Specifically, without explanation, the engagement teams inserted certain work papers into the audit file and added electronic sign-offs after the relevant document completion dates. In some instances, Respondents acknowledged, in response to PCAOB inquiries, that modifications were made to the audit work papers, but could not identify what changes were made to the audit work papers. As a result, the Firm and Alvarez repeatedly violated AS 1215.16.

F. The Firm Violated the Quality Control Standards

17. PCAOB rules require registered public accounting firms to comply with the Board's quality control standards.[15] PCAOB quality control standards, in turn, require each registered firm to effectively design, implement, and maintain a system of quality control for 14 See id. at .16.

the firm's accounting and auditing practice.[16] The quality control system should include policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality.[17] Among other areas, a firm's policies and procedures should address the documentation of each engagement in accordance with applicable professional standards.[18] Further, PCAOB quality control standards also provide that policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its system of quality control was suitably designed and being effectively applied.[19]

18. Throughout the relevant period, the Firm lacked sufficient policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel met applicable professional standards and the Firm's standards of quality with regard to its engagement quality reviews. Specifically, the Firm's policies did not require that the engagement quality reviewer document his concurring approval of issuance as required by AS 1220. The Firm also failed to maintain policies and procedures providing reasonable assurance that the engagement quality reviewer would maintain his objectivity.[20]

19. Throughout the relevant period, the Firm also lacked sufficient policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel met applicable professional standards and the Firm's standards of quality with regard to audit documentation. Specifically, the Firm failed to have sufficient policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, to ensure that work papers were archived within the documentation completion period, or that modifications in the work papers after the documentation completion date be made in compliance with AS 1215.

20. Accordingly, the Firm violated QC § 20.17, .18 and .20.

20 AS 1220.04, Note.

G. Alvarez Contributed to the Firm's Violations of PCAOB Rules, Auditing Standards, and Quality Control Standards

21. PCAOB Rule 3502 states that "[a] person associated with a registered public accounting firm shall not take or omit to take an action knowing, or recklessly not knowing, that the act or omission would directly and substantially contribute to a violation by that registered public accounting firm of the Act, the Rules of the Board, the provisions of the securities laws relating to the preparation and issuance of audit reports and the obligations and liabilities of accountants with respect thereto, including the rules of the Commission issued under the Act, or professional standards."

22. Alvarez, the principal shareholder, owns 95% of the Firm and served as the Firm's managing and quality control partner for all relevant periods. He was also the engagement partner for all of the Firm's Audits during the relevant period. Accordingly, Alvarez was responsible for ensuring that the Firm complied with PCAOB rules and standards. Alvarez knew, or was reckless in not knowing, that his acts and omissions would directly and substantially contribute to the Firm's violations of AS 1220, AS 1215, and QC § 20, as described above. As a result, Alvarez violated PCAOB Rule 3502.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondents' Offers. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Alvarez & Associates, Inc., Certified Public Accountants and Vicente Alvarez, CPA are hereby censured;

Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006.

[21] As a consequence of the suspension, the provisions of Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act will apply with respect to Alvarez. Section 105(c)(7)(B) provides: "It shall be unlawful for any person that is suspended or barred from being associated with a registered public accounting firm under this subsection willfully to become or remain associated with any issuer, broker, or dealer in an accountancy or a financial management capacity, and for any issuer, broker, or dealer that knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of such suspension or bar, to permit such an association, without the consent of the Board or the Commission."

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Martin Lundie, CPA,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-040

December 22, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Martin Lundie ("Lundie" or "Respondent");

(2) barring Lundie from being associated with a registered public accounting firm, and allowing him, after one year, to file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered firm; and

(3) imposing a $65,000 civil money penalty on Lundie.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on Lundie on the basis of its findings that Lundie violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with an audit of an issuer by inadequately evaluating a credit loss estimate used by management to calculate the issuer's allowance for doubtful accounts, as well as by inadequately testing various controls over that estimate and by failing to communicate certain matters to the issuer's audit committee concerning that estimate.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[2]

A. Respondent

1. Martin Lundie, CPA, at all relevant times was a chartered professional accountant licensed in Ontario, Canada (public accountant license no. 1-21137). Lundie is a partner in the Toronto, Canada office of registered public accounting firm Ernst & Young LLP ("EY Canada") until his retirement, effective December 31, 2022. Lundie is, and at all relevant times was, an "associated person of a registered public accounting firm" as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).

B. Issuer

2. Just Energy Group Inc. ("Just Energy") is a Canadian Business Corporations Act corporation headquartered in Ontario, Canada. Just Energy was, at all relevant times, publicly traded on the Toronto Stock Exchange and the New York Stock Exchange and an "issuer" as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii). According to public filings, Just Energy provided retail energy to residential and commercial customers. As a corporation domiciled in Canada and with securities registered in the United States, Just Energy filed Forms 40-F with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"). Just Energy had a fiscal year-end of March 31 and prepared its financial statements in accordance with International

---

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5).

Financial Reporting Standards ("IFRS"). EY Canada has served as Just Energy's auditor since 2011.

C. Summary

3. Lundie served as the engagement partner for EY Canada's integrated audit of Just Energy's financial statements as of and for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2019 ("2019 Audit"), and authorized the issuance of EY Canada's audit reports expressing unqualified opinions on Just Energy's financial statements and the effectiveness of Just Energy's internal control over financial reporting ("ICFR").

4. Lundie knew during the 2019 Audit that Just Energy identified its allowance for doubtful accounts or receivables allowance as a significant accounting estimate. Moreover, he and the engagement team identified the receivables allowance as a significant accounting and auditing issue. Yet Lundie failed to adequately evaluate the reasonableness of the receivables allowance, including by failing to sufficiently test the assumptions underlying the estimate and by failing to sufficiently test the accuracy and completeness of data on which that estimate was based. Lundie failed to do those things notwithstanding indications warranting further scrutiny as to whether Just Energy's receivables allowance might have been materially understated. Lundie accordingly failed to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support EY Canada's audit opinion on Just Energy's March 31, 2019 financial statements.

5. Moreover, in connection with EY Canada's audit of Just Energy's ICFR as of March 31, 2019, Lundie failed to adequately test controls that related to the receivables allowance. Furthermore, Lundie failed to communicate to the audit committee the significant management assumptions used to calculate the receivables allowance, as well as the basis for EY Canada's conclusions regarding the reasonableness of the estimate.

6. After the issuance of the financial statements for the year ended March 31, 2019, management determined that Just Energy's receivables allowance was understated and should be restated. On August 19, 2019, Just Energy filed restated financial statements. Taking into consideration all information available at the time of the restatement, the restated financial statements reflected that Just Energy's receivables allowance was understated by $111.2 million (Canadian dollars or "CAD"). The restated financial statements reflected a 97% increase in the loss for the year ended March 31, 2019, as compared to the loss previously reported, an increase driven primarily by Just Energy's correction of its understated allowance.

D. Lundie Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

i. Background

7. Just Energy sold gas and electricity to residential and commercial customers in two regions: North America ("Just Energy NA") and the United Kingdom ("Just Energy UK"). The two largest markets within Just Energy NA were both located in Texas and known as "JE Texas" and "Fulcrum."

8. Just Energy recorded customer accounts receivable for amounts it had the right to invoice its customers, based on the number of units of gas and electricity consumed each month by each customer. Just Energy's policy for residential customers was, with certain exceptions, to write off those receivables that went unpaid for more than 120 days. Separately, Just Energy also recorded an allowance against its accounts receivable to reflect amounts not yet written off but not likely to be recovered.

9. As of March 31, 2019, customer accounts receivable constituted the largest asset category on Just Energy's balance sheet, representing more than 27% of Just Energy's total assets. More specifically, as of March 31, 2019, Just Energy reported total assets of CAD $1.75 billion, of which CAD $476.2 million were "trade account receivables, net," that is, gross customer accounts receivable less an allowance of CAD $71.2 million.

10. Before fiscal year 2019, Just Energy recorded its receivables allowance based on incurred losses, in accordance with the then-applicable IFRS accounting standard.[3] Starting with fiscal year 2019, Just Energy was required to—and did—adopt IFRS 9, Financial Instruments, which required loss recognition based on expected credit losses ("ECL"), versus incurred losses. Accordingly, for its receivables allowance, Just Energy was required to—and did—estimate the total credit losses expected to occur over the lifetime of the assets, and to recognize those expected lifetime losses at the time the assets were first recorded.

11. At the beginning of the 2019 fiscal year, Just Energy estimated its lifetime expected credit losses using an example methodology provided in IFRS 9 whereby credit losses are determined by applying estimated loss rates to each of the aging buckets in a company's period-end receivables balance (i.e., a provision matrix). On April 1, 2018, Just Energy recorded an additional allowance of CAD $23.6 million to reflect those expected lifetime credit losses.

[3] See International Accounting Standard ("IAS") 39, Financial Instruments: Recognition and Measurement.

12. At the end of the 2019 fiscal year, Just Energy did not determine its receivables allowance, recorded on its balance sheet, using a provision matrix. Instead, Just Energy chose to determine its receivables allowance by estimating its bad debt expense, recorded on its income statement, based on the application of a loss rate ("ECL Rate") to its current period revenue. Just Energy calculated the ECL Rate based on data indicating the percentage of revenue the company had historically written off. Lundie and the engagement team referred to Just Energy's method for determining its receivables allowance—estimating the bad debt expense recorded on its income statement rather than directly evaluating the credit risk of the receivables on its balance sheet as of year-end—as an "income statement approach."

13. Although Lundie preferred that Just Energy use a provision matrix to estimate its receivables allowance, Lundie understood that Just Energy chose to use the income statement approach because it lacked sufficiently reliable aging data on customer accounts receivable to calculate its ECL directly on its year-end receivables.

14. Just Energy in its filings with the SEC identified its receivables allowance as a critical accounting estimate, a critical accounting policy, and a significant accounting estimate. Just Energy also identified the adjustment of its receivables allowance to reflect previously recognized impairment loss—along with the write-off of receivables without a realistic prospect of future recovery—as significant accounting policies.

15. In connection with the 2019 Audit, Lundie and the engagement team identified the receivables allowance as a significant account and disclosure, a significant accounting and auditing issue, and an audit area requiring significant judgment. Lundie understood the receivables allowance to be a higher risk estimate, meaning it presented higher subjectivity, judgment, and/or inherent risk of material misstatement.

16. Moreover, Lundie and the engagement team identified Just Energy's impairment of financial assets—including its receivables allowance—as an "area of audit emphasis." Lundie communicated to Just Energy's audit committee (the "Audit Committee") that areas of audit emphasis included "those processes, accounts, contracts or transactions where we believe there is the greatest risk of material misstatement to the consolidated financial statements."

ii. Lundie Failed to Adequately Evaluate the Receivables Allowance and to Obtain Sufficient Appropriate Evidence to Support It

17. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that the associated persons of a registered public accounting firm comply with the

Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[4] An auditor may express an unqualified opinion on an issuer's financial statements when the auditor conducted an audit in accordance with PCAOB standards and concludes that the financial statements, taken as a whole, are presented fairly, in all material respects.[5]

18. PCAOB standards require that an auditor exercise due professional care in planning and performing an audit.[6] Auditors are required to plan and perform audit procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to provide a reasonable basis for the opinion expressed in the auditor's report, including obtaining reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement.[7] The higher the risk of material misstatement, the more evidence the auditor should obtain, and the more persuasive that evidence should be.[8]

19. In order to be appropriate, "audit evidence must be both relevant and reliable in providing support for the conclusions on which the auditor's opinion is based."[9] Moreover, "[w]hen using information produced by the company as audit evidence, the auditor should evaluate whether the information is sufficient and appropriate for purposes of the audit by performing procedures to . . . [t]est the accuracy and completeness of the information, or test the controls over the accuracy and completeness of that information; and . . . [e]valuate whether the information is sufficiently precise and detailed for purposes of the audit."[10]

20. With respect to any significant accounting estimate, the auditor's objective is "to obtain sufficient appropriate evidential matter to provide reasonable assurance" that the estimate is "reasonable in the circumstances," "presented in conformity with applicable accounting principles," and "properly disclosed."[11] In addition, when planning and performing procedures to evaluate accounting estimates, the auditor is required to consider, with an attitude of professional skepticism, both the subjective and objective factors on which the company's estimates are based.[12]

21. Audit evidence "consists of both information that supports and corroborates management's assertions regarding the financial statements" and "information that contradicts such assertions."[13] While an auditor may use inquiry to obtain information, "[i]nquiry alone does not provide sufficient appropriate evidence to support a conclusion about a relevant assertion."[14] Management representations "are not a substitute for the application of those auditing procedures necessary to afford a reasonable basis for an opinion regarding the financial statements under audit."[15] The auditor "should obtain corroboration for management's explanations regarding significant unusual or unexpected transactions, events, amounts, or relationships."[16]

22. If audit evidence obtained from one source is inconsistent with audit evidence obtained from another source, "the auditor should perform the audit procedures necessary to resolve the matter and should determine the effect, if any, on other aspects of the audit."[17] Moreover, if a representation made by management is contradicted by other audit evidence, the auditor "should investigate the circumstances," "consider the reliability of the representation made," and "consider whether his or her reliance on management's representations relating to other aspects of the financial statements is appropriate and justified."[18] In addition, if management's responses to the auditor's inquiries appear to be "inconsistent with other audit evidence, imprecise, or not at a sufficient level of detail to be useful," the auditor "should perform procedures to address the matter."[19]

23. When evaluating audit results, the auditor is required to "conclude on whether sufficient appropriate audit evidence has been obtained to support his or her opinion on the financial statements."[20]

24. In evaluating Just Energy's receivables allowance during the 2019 Audit, Lundie's objective was to obtain sufficient appropriate evidential matter to provide reasonable assurance that, among other things, Just Energy's receivables allowance was (A) reasonable in the circumstances and (B) presented in conformity with applicable accounting principles.[21]

25. In evaluating the reasonableness of the receivables allowance, Lundie was required to use one or a combination of the following approaches:

a. Review and test the process used by management to develop the estimate.
b. Develop an independent expectation of the estimate to corroborate the reasonableness of management's estimate.
c. Review subsequent events or transactions occurring prior to the date of the auditor's report.[22]

26. Lundie relied on the first two approaches: testing management's process and developing an independent expectation. Lundie failed, however, to obtain sufficient evidence to support the receivables allowance under either of these approaches.

27. Importantly, prior to the conclusion of the audit, as the engagement team performed procedures during the 2019 Audit to evaluate the reasonableness of the receivables allowance, Lundie had concerns about the accuracy and precision of the ECL Rate that Just Energy used in calculating the receivables allowance. Lundie also knew that management at Just Energy had "struggled to give" the engagement team "reliable loss data" during the audit.

28. In addition, Lundie was aware during the 2019 Audit that Just Energy's write-off practices needed improvement. He knew at the time that the company's write-offs were "lumpy," meaning they were not done on a regular basis with a systematic approach.

29. Just Energy was also unable to provide adequate support for its ECL Rate until a few days before issuance of the audit report. Indeed, just five days before authorizing EY Canada's issuance of an unqualified opinion on Just Energy's 2019 financial statements, Lundie informed the Audit Committee that the engagement team was still "[o]btaining certain audit support on critical areas of the audit including support for the rates used in Estimating Credit Losses."

30. Two days later, Lundie reported to the Audit Committee that, although "a significant deficiency was identified over the allowance for credit loss in accordance with the implementation of IFRS 9 Financial Instruments," he and the engagement team had "performed audit procedures over the accuracy and completeness of the data utilized in the [ECL Rate] calculation." Lundie and the engagement team, however, failed to perform adequate procedures over that data.

a. Failure to Adequately Test the Process Used by Management to Develop the ECL Estimate

31. Lundie's concerns about the company's ability to timely provide reliable data should have caused him to increase the rigor of his procedures to test management's process for developing the ECL Rate. But he failed to do so, and the procedures he performed were not adequate.

32. With respect to the ECL Rate for Just Energy NA, Lundie failed to sufficiently test management's assertion that Just Energy's more current collections experience was consistent with the write-off rates from the older historical periods used in its ECL Rate calculation. For example, for purposes of testing the allowance as of March 31, 2019, for JE Texas, Lundie and the engagement team obtained an ECL Rate calculation from management that showed that management calculated a historical write-off rate by using write-off data related to revenue recognized for the 18-month period April 2017 through September 2018.

33. As part of their testing, Lundie and the engagement team recalculated management's ECL Rate for JE Texas. Specifically, in recalculating the percentage of write-offs versus the revenue recognized by JE Texas each month from April 2017 through September 2018, Lundie and the engagement team weighted the write-off rates from the more recent 12-month period, showing they recognized the importance of using more recent data. Despite acknowledging the importance of recent write-off data versus older data, Lundie failed to adequately evaluate potential write-offs and aging information from the last six months of fiscal 2019 for JE Texas.

34. For Fulcrum, Lundie understood that Just Energy could not provide support for the write-offs after February 2017 used in the ECL Rate calculation. Lundie, therefore, relied instead on write-off data from the period from April 2015 through January 2017 to assess the reasonableness of Fulcrum's ECL Rate calculation. In other words, Lundie assessed the reasonableness of Just Energy's current ECL Rate calculation for Fulcrum by relying on write-off data that was more than two years old.

35. Moreover, Lundie and the engagement team failed to adequately test the completeness and accuracy of the write-off data that Just Energy did use for the ECL Rate for Just Energy NA. For example, with respect to JE Texas, Lundie and the engagement team failed to perform adequate procedures to test the completeness and accuracy of the write-off data for 17 of the 18 months in the period from April 2017 to September 2018. For the eighteenth month—September 2018—the engagement team received a report purporting to show the receivables required to be written off for that month, and performed some testing over that report, but failed to perform adequate procedures to test the completeness of the write-off amounts listed in the report.

36. With respect to Fulcrum, the engagement team obtained a summary report of write-offs from management and agreed the write-off amounts in the report to the amounts used for each month in the calculation. The engagement team performed insufficient procedures to test the completeness and accuracy of write-off or revenue amounts used in Just Energy's calculation of the ECL Rate for Fulcrum.

b. Failure to Adequately Develop an Independent Expectation of the ECL Estimate

37. With respect to Just Energy UK, the company calculated its receivables allowance in the same manner as it did for JE Texas and Fulcrum—by calculating an ECL Rate based on historical data and applying it to current period revenue. Lundie and the engagement team chose to evaluate Just Energy UK's ECL Rate by looking at loss rate information from a Just Energy competitor, British Gas. Specifically, Lundie and the engagement team compared British Gas's loss rates to the write-off rates the company used in the ECL Rate calculation for Just Energy UK and, after that comparison, proposed a CAD $6.4 million increase in the receivables allowance.

38. Lundie and the engagement team, however, failed to adequately evaluate or obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support their key assumption that the historical loss rates of British Gas were a reasonable proxy for Just Energy UK's potential future loss rates.

39. Lundie did not adequately test Just Energy UK's write-off data to determine whether British Gas's loss rate approximated Just Energy UK's historical or current loss rates or whether the use of British Gas's loss rate was more conservative than using Just Energy UK's ECL Rate. Lundie and the engagement team also failed to test or adequately evaluate the reliability of British Gas's loss rate information, which Just Energy management had provided.

iii. Indications that the Receivables Allowance May Have Been Materially Understated

40. Lundie's failure to adequately evaluate Just Energy's receivables allowance occurred despite his encountering certain indications warranting further scrutiny as to whether the receivables allowance may have been materially understated.

41. First, during the 2019 Audit, Just Energy's management provided the engagement team with a schedule reflecting the aging of customer receivables as of March 31, 2019. That schedule constituted management's support for a footnote to the financial statements that disclosed the aging of accounts receivable. The schedule showed that the balance for customer receivables that were past due more than 120 days (known as the "120+ days bucket") totaled CAD $85.1 million. In other words, Just Energy's customer receivables that were more than 120 days old, and therefore potentially at high risk of default, exceeded Just Energy's CAD $71.2 million receivables allowance by almost CAD $14 million—even before consideration of expected write-offs of overdue receivables not yet in the 120+ days bucket. Yet Lundie failed to adequately evaluate this potential understatement of Just Energy's receivables allowance.

42. Second, Lundie knew that the accuracy of the ECL Rate that Just Energy used to calculate its allowance was dependent on the completeness of the company's underlying write-off data, that is, whether the data included all amounts that Just Energy should have been writing off. Although Just Energy's policies did not require the write-off of all receivables aging past 120 days, the CAD $85 million in customer receivables in the 120+ days bucket as of March 31, 2019 may have indicated a risk that Just Energy may not have been consistently applying its policy of writing off most customer receivables that went unpaid for more than 120 days. Yet Lundie did not adequately respond to that risk and perform sufficient procedures to assess the completeness of the write-off data Just Energy used in its ECL calculation.

43. Finally, Lundie was aware of certain control deficiencies that called into question Just Energy's assertion that the data used in the ECL Rate calculation included all write-offs that should have been recorded. Indeed, one of the control deficiencies described "no timely write-off of uncollectable customer [receivables] currently in the North American Residential and the UK Markets."[23]

44. These factors should have caused Lundie to heighten his care and skepticism in planning and performing audit procedures concerning the receivables allowance. Lundie did not, however, respond appropriately to the risks he encountered, failed to adequately evaluate Just Energy's receivables allowance, and failed to obtain sufficient appropriate evidence to support his audit opinion.

* * *

45. As a result of the deficiencies described above in subsections III.D.ii and .iii, Lundie failed during the 2019 Audit to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to support Just Energy's receivables allowance and, in turn, its reported net customer receivables. Lundie therefore violated AS 1015, AS 1105, AS 2501, AS 2805, AS 2810, and AS 3101.

iv. Lundie Failed to Adequately Test and Evaluate Deficiencies in Just Energy's Controls Over the Receivables Allowance

46. PCAOB standards require the auditor to test the design effectiveness of a company's ICFR by determining whether the company's controls satisfy the control objectives and can effectively prevent or detect errors or fraud that could result in material misstatements in the financial statements.[24] PCAOB standards also require the auditor to test the operating effectiveness of a control by determining whether the control is operating as designed and whether the person performing the control possesses the necessary authority and competence to perform the control effectively.[25]

---

[23] See Section III.D.iv below for a description of the control deficiencies and Lundie's failures in evaluating those deficiencies and performing related audit procedures.

[24] AS 2201.42, An Audit of Internal Control Over Financial Reporting That Is Integrated with An Audit of Financial Statements.

[25] Id. at .44.

47. When control deficiencies come to an auditor's attention, the auditor must evaluate their severity to determine whether the deficiencies, individually or in combination with other deficiencies, are material weaknesses.[26] In doing so, the auditor should, among other things, "evaluate the effect of compensating controls."[27]

48. Lundie failed to sufficiently evaluate identified control deficiencies concerning Just Energy's receivables allowance estimation and write-off processes.

49. With respect to controls over Just Energy's receivables allowance estimation process, Lundie concluded during the 2019 Audit that those controls were designed and operating effectively as of March 31, 2019—with one exception. That exception was a control over the completeness, accuracy, and "reasonability" of the historical loss rates for customer receivables in the North American market ("ECL Rate Control"). Lundie identified a deficiency in the ECL Rate Control because the data used in the ECL Rate calculation for the North American market "had not been effectively reviewed for completeness and accuracy."

50. Lundie ultimately concluded that the deficiency in the ECL Rate Control was a significant deficiency and not a material weakness. Lundie lacked an adequate basis, however, for that determination. Though Lundie and the engagement team documented two assertions in connection with that determination—that the potential for a misstatement was remote because of a "redesigned" process, and that the magnitude of a potential misstatement resulting from failure of the control was less than material—neither of those propositions provided adequate support for Lundie's conclusion. With respect to the first proposition, Lundie and the engagement team failed to document their understanding of this "redesigned" process and failed to identify and test any controls over the process that purportedly reduced the risk of misstatement. With respect to the second, gross accounts receivable represented approximately 31% of Just Energy's total assets as of March 31, 2019, meaning that Lundie could not properly conclude that a misstatement that might result from a deficiency to which that amount was exposed was less than material.[28]

[26] Id. at .62.

[27] Id. at .68.

[28] See id. at .66 ("Factors that affect the magnitude of the misstatement that might result from a deficiency or deficiencies in controls include, but are not limited to, . . . [t]he financial statement amounts or total of transactions exposed to the deficiency . . . ."); id. at .67 ("In evaluating the magnitude of the potential misstatement, the maximum amount that an account balance or total of transactions can be overstated is generally the recorded amount, while understatements could be larger.").

51. With respect to Just Energy's controls over write-offs of receivables, Lundie identified a deficiency in a control over the calculation and review of write-offs in accordance with Just Energy policy. The deficiency identified was that "[t]here is no timely write-off of uncollectable customer [accounts receivable] currently in the North American Residential and the UK Market." Lundie determined that the deficiency had been remediated as of March 31, 2019, ostensibly based on the fact that management had "perform[ed] a year-end review of the write-offs in each market." Lundie and the engagement team, however, did not perform any testing of this purportedly remediated control. Accordingly, they failed to obtain sufficient evidence that there was an effective control ensuring that write-offs were being recorded timely in accordance with Just Energy policy as of fiscal year-end.

52. Furthermore, though Lundie concluded that the rest of the controls concerning the receivables allowance estimation process were designed and operating effectively, Lundie's testing with respect to one of those controls was deficient. Specifically, though Just Energy maintained a control over the historical loss rates for Just Energy UK, Lundie failed to test the completeness and accuracy of the write-off data used in the operation of that control or, alternatively, to test any control over the completeness and accuracy of such data.

53. As a result, Lundie violated AS 1015, AS 1105, and AS 2201.

v. Lundie Failed to Communicate to the Audit Committee Certain Matters Related to the Receivables Allowance

54. PCAOB standards require that the auditor make certain communications with the audit committee of an issuer. Lundie was required during the 2019 Audit to communicate to the Audit Committee, among other matters, "[m]anagement's significant assumptions used in critical accounting estimates that have a high degree of subjectivity."[29] Lundie was also required during the 2019 Audit to communicate to the Audit Committee the "basis for the auditor's conclusions regarding the reasonableness of the critical accounting estimates."[30]

55. As noted above, Just Energy identified the receivables allowance as a critical accounting estimate and a significant accounting estimate. Moreover, Lundie and the engagement team identified the receivables allowance as a significant account, a significant accounting and auditing issue, and an area of audit emphasis.

29 AS 1301.12.c(2), Communications with Audit Committees.

30 Id. at .13.c.

56. Accordingly, Lundie was required to communicate to the Audit Committee the significant management assumptions used in the receivables allowance estimate. Lundie was also required to communicate to the Audit Committee the basis for his conclusions regarding the reasonableness of the receivables allowance. Lundie failed to make either of those required communications during the 2019 Audit. While Lundie communicated to the Audit Committee certain aspects of management's process to develop the receivables allowance—including, for example, that management assessed the ECL Rate by region and consumer segment—that description did not satisfy these specific requirements. Significantly, Lundie's failure to make those communications meant that he failed to inform the Audit Committee that Just Energy was using an income statement approach to calculate the receivables allowance and assuming, without verifying, that current collection and write-off rates were consistent with those of earlier periods.

57. As a result, Lundie violated AS 1015 and AS 1301.

* * *

58. On August 19, 2019, Just Energy filed restated financial statements for the year ended March 31, 2019. The restated financial statements reflected an increase in the receivables allowance of CAD $111.2 million. Management had identified an understatement of the receivables allowance due to operational issues in customer enrollment and non-payment in the Texas residential market (resulting in additional required reserves of CAD $53.7 million) and operational and collection issues in the United Kingdom (requiring additional reserves of CAD $57.5 million).

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Martin Lundie is censured.

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(B) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(2), Martin Lundie is barred from being an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i).[31]

C. Pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), Martin Lundie may file a petition for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm after one year from the date of this Order.

D. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $65,000 is imposed on Martin Lundie.

1. All funds collected by the PCAOB as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act.

2. Respondent shall pay the civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (a) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by PCAOB staff; or (b) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (i) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (ii) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (iii) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies Martin Lundie as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

[31] As a consequence of the bar, the provisions of Section 105(c)(7)(B) of the Act will apply with respect to Lundie. Section 105(c)(7)(B) provides: "It shall be unlawful for any person that is suspended or barred from being associated with a registered public accounting firm under this subsection willfully to become or remain associated with any issuer, broker, or dealer in an accountancy or a financial management capacity, and for any issuer, broker, or dealer that knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, of such suspension or bar, to permit such an association, without the consent of the Board or the Commission."

3. If timely payment is not made, interest shall accrue at the federal debt collection rate set for the current quarter pursuant to 31 U.S.C. § 3717. Payments shall be applied first to post-Order interest.

4. Respondent understands that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may alone be grounds to deny any petition, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5302(b), for Board consent to associate with a registered public accounting firm.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Grant Thornton LLP,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-041

December 22, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Grant Thornton LLP ("Grant Thornton" or "Respondent");

(2) imposing a $40,000 civil money penalty on Grant Thornton; and

(3) requiring Grant Thornton to comply with its policies and procedures directed toward ensuring compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that Grant Thornton failed to disclose certain reportable events to the Board on PCAOB Form 3, Special Report, on a timely basis.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. Grant Thornton is a limited liability partnership organized under the laws of Illinois and headquartered in Chicago, Illinois. Grant Thornton has offices in multiple locations and is licensed under the laws of the state of Illinois (License No. 066-003295), among other states where it has offices, to engage in the practice of public accounting. Grant Thornton is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

B. Summary

2. This matter concerns Grant Thornton's failure to timely disclose to the Board on Form 3 three reportable events regarding two disciplinary proceedings brought against the firm by the Utah Division of Occupational and Professional Licensing of the Department of Commerce ("Utah DOPL") and the Pennsylvania Board of Accountancy ("Pennsylvania Board"). This matter also involves Grant Thornton's failure to timely disclose to the Board on Form 3 changes in its licensing status in a number of jurisdictions.

3. PCAOB rules require registered firms, including Grant Thornton, to complete and file with the PCAOB a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence. Among the events that Grant Thornton is required to report on Form 3 are its becoming aware that the firm has become a respondent in certain disciplinary proceedings, and the conclusion of such proceedings. Grant Thornton must also report on Form 3 when it obtains a license authorizing it to engage in the business of auditing or accounting which it has not previously disclosed to the Board.

4. In December 2016, the Utah DOPL simultaneously initiated and concluded disciplinary proceedings against Grant Thornton ("Utah Proceeding"). The Utah Proceeding concerned conduct that resulted in sanctions imposed on the firm by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission in a 2015 order.[2] The initiation and conclusion of the Utah Proceeding each constituted a reportable event under Form 3, but Grant Thornton failed to file a Form 3 reporting those events until May 8, 2020.

5. Additionally, in January 2020, the Pennsylvania Board initiated disciplinary proceedings against Grant Thornton ("Pennsylvania Proceeding"). The Pennsylvania Proceeding concerned conduct that resulted in sanctions imposed on the firm by a 2017 PCAOB order.[3] The initiation of the Pennsylvania Proceeding constituted a reportable event under Form 3, but Grant Thornton failed to file a Form 3 reporting it until May 8, 2020.

6. In its May 8, 2020 Form 3, Grant Thornton also belatedly disclosed that it had obtained twelve new, replacement, or additional licenses in eleven jurisdictions. Those changes in Grant Thornton's licensing status constituted reportable events under Form 3, but Grant Thornton failed to disclose them to the Board on a timely basis.

C. Respondent Failed to Timely Disclose Certain Reportable Events to the Board, in Violation of PCAOB Rules

7. PCAOB Rule 2203 provides that a registered public accounting firm must file a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence.[4] One such specified event occurs when a firm "has become aware that, in a matter arising out of the Firm's conduct in the course of providing professional services for a client, the Firm has become a defendant or respondent in a civil or alternative dispute resolution proceeding initiated by a governmental entity or in an administrative or disciplinary proceeding other than a Board disciplinary proceeding."[5] Another event requiring reporting on Form 3 occurs when a firm has become aware that a reportable proceeding (i.e., a reportable

A registered firm must also file a report on Form 3 when it "has obtained a license or certification authorizing the Firm to engage in the business of auditing or accounting and which has not been identified on any Form 1 or Form 3 previously filed by the Firm, or there has been a change in a license or certification number identified on a Form 1 or Form 3 previously filed by the Firm."[7]

In violation of PCAOB Rule 2203, Grant Thornton failed to timely file a Form 3 with the Board reporting the initiation and conclusion of the Utah Proceeding.

10. The Pennsylvania Proceeding was initiated in January 2020, and concerned professional services Grant Thornton provided for an issuer client. The Pennsylvania Board identified Grant Thornton as a respondent in the Pennsylvania Proceeding. In violation of PCAOB Rule 2203, Grant Thornton failed to timely file a Form 3 with the Board reporting the initiation of that proceeding.[9]

11. Additionally, Grant Thornton violated PCAOB Rule 2203 by failing to timely report to the Board on Form 3 twelve total changes to its licensing status in eleven states.

12. Grant Thornton's internal compliance and reporting systems failed to timely identify as being reportable to the PCAOB on Form 3: (i) the initiation and conclusion of the Utah Proceeding, (ii) the initiation of the Pennsylvania Proceeding, and (iii) the changes in the

13. Grant Thornton has represented to the Board that, since the events described in this Order, it has established and implemented the following changes to its policies and procedures for the purpose of providing Grant Thornton with reasonable assurance of compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements:

a. Grant Thornton has revised and supplemented its policies and procedures for the purpose of providing it with reasonable assurance of compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements, including policies and procedures providing reasonable assurance that reportable events are identified by Grant Thornton personnel who participate in the firm's PCAOB reporting process and that those events are reported on the applicable PCAOB form in a timely and complete manner;

b. Grant Thornton has established policies to ensure training concerning PCAOB reporting requirements, at least annually, of any personnel who participate in Grant Thornton's PCAOB reporting process; and

V.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), Grant Thornton is hereby censured.

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $40,000 is imposed upon Grant Thornton.

1. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act.

2. Grant Thornton shall pay this civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the firm as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K. Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006.

3. Respondent shall not seek or accept, directly or indirectly, reimbursement or indemnification from any source including, but not limited to, any current or former affiliated firm or professional(s) or any payment made pursuant to any insurance policy, with regard to any amounts that Respondent shall pay pursuant to this Order.

4. Respondent understands that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may result in summary suspension of Respondent's registration, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5304(a), following written notice to Respondent at the address on file with the PCAOB at the time of the issuance of this Order.

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), Grant Thornton is required to comply with its current PCAOB reporting policies and procedures, including:

1. those intended to provide reasonable assurance that reportable events are identified by Grant Thornton personnel who participate in Grant Thornton's PCAOB reporting process and that those events are reported on the applicable PCAOB form in a timely and complete manner;

2. those ensuring training concerning PCAOB reporting requirements, at least annually, of any Grant Thornton personnel who participate in Grant Thornton's PCAOB reporting process; and

3. those requiring assignment of the role of compliance with PCAOB reporting matters to an individual within Grant Thornton who possesses adequate knowledge and experience with PCAOB reporting requirements and sufficient authority within Grant Thornton to fulfill those requirements on behalf of Grant Thornton.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of KPMG Samjong Accounting Corp.,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-042

December 22, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring KPMG Samjong Accounting Corp. ("KPMG Samjong" or "Respondent");

(2) imposing a $30,000 civil money penalty on KPMG Samjong; and

(3) requiring KPMG Samjong to undertake certain remedial measures, including measures to establish policies and procedures directed toward ensuring compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that KPMG Samjong failed to disclose certain reportable events to the Board on PCAOB Form 3, Special Report, or to do so on a timely basis.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. KPMG Samjong is a limited liability corporation organized under the laws of the Republic of Korea and headquartered in Seoul, Republic of Korea. The firm is licensed to practice public accounting by the Korean Financial Services Commission, and is a member of the KPMG International Limited network of firms. KPMG Samjong is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

B. Summary

2. This matter concerns KPMG Samjong's failure to disclose to the Board on Form 3, or to do so on a timely basis, four reportable events concerning disciplinary proceedings brought against the firm and certain firm personnel by the Korean Securities and Futures Commission ("SFC") and the Korean Institute of Certified Public Accountants ("KICPA"). PCAOB rules require registered firms, including KPMG Samjong, to complete and file with the PCAOB a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence. Among the events that KPMG Samjong is required to report on Form 3 are its becoming aware that the firm and/or certain of its personnel have become respondents in certain disciplinary proceedings, and the conclusion of such proceedings.

3. On August 8, 2018, KPMG Samjong filed a Form 3 reporting the conclusion of an SFC proceeding ("2018 SFC Proceeding") and disclosing various sanctions imposed upon the firm. However, KPMG Samjong failed to timely report that the SFC also sanctioned an associated person of the firm whose involvement in the proceeding constituted a reportable event under Form 3 due to the nature and extent of his work for the firm.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

4. In 2019, KPMG Samjong became a respondent in a disciplinary proceeding initiated by the KICPA ("KICPA Proceeding"). The KICPA Proceeding concluded in April 2020. The initiation and conclusion of the KICPA Proceeding were reportable events under Form 3, but KPMG Samjong failed to file Forms 3 reporting either event.

5. Additionally, in October 2021, KPMG Samjong received an Advance Notice from the Korean Financial Supervisory Service ("FSS"), which triggered the initiation of a disciplinary proceeding by the SFC ("2021 SFC Proceeding"). The initiation of the 2021 SFC Proceeding was a reportable event under Form 3, but KPMG Samjong failed to file a Form 3 reporting the initiation of that proceeding.

C. Respondent Failed to Disclose Certain Reportable Events to the Board, or to do so on a Timely Basis, in Violation of PCAOB Rules

6. PCAOB Rule 2203 provides that a registered public accounting firm must file a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence.[2] One such specified event occurs when a firm "has become aware that, in a matter arising out of the Firm's conduct in the course of providing professional services for a client, the Firm has become a defendant or respondent in a civil or alternative dispute resolution proceeding initiated by a governmental entity or in an administrative or disciplinary proceeding other than a Board disciplinary proceeding."[3] To constitute a reportable event, the proceeding in question only has to relate to professional services the firm provided for a client, and does not necessarily have to involve an audit of an issuer, broker, or dealer, as those terms are defined under PCAOB rules.

7. Registered firms must also report when they become aware that "in a matter arising out of his or her conduct in the course of providing professional services for a client, a partner, shareholder, principal, owner, member, or audit manager of the Firm who provided at least ten hours of audit services for any issuer, broker, or dealer during the Firm's current fiscal year or its most recently completed fiscal year has become a defendant or respondent in a civil or alternative dispute resolution proceeding initiated by a governmental entity or in an administrative or disciplinary proceeding other than a Board disciplinary proceeding."[4]

8. Another reportable event occurs when a firm has become aware that a reportable proceeding (i.e., a reportable event under Items 2.4 – 2.9 of Form 3) has been concluded as to the firm or certain of its associated persons.[5]

9. The 2018 SFC Proceeding concluded on July 25, 2018, with the SFC imposing sanctions on KPMG Samjong and an associated person of the firm. KPMG Samjong filed a Form 3 on August 8, 2018, reporting the conclusion of the proceeding with respect to the firm and listing the sanctions imposed upon it. However, KPMG Samjong failed to report in that Form 3 the conclusion of the 2018 SFC Proceeding with respect to the associated person, who had performed at least ten hours of audit service for an issuer, broker, or dealer during the firm's current or most recently completed fiscal years. On August 5, 2022, after it had received notice of possible Form 3 filing deficiencies from the Division of Enforcement and Investigations, KPMG Samjong filed an amended Form 3 belatedly reporting the conclusion of the 2018 SFC Proceeding with respect to the individual. By failing to report that information on a timely basis, KPMG Samjong violated PCAOB Rule 2203.

10. In 2019, KPMG Samjong became aware that it had become a respondent in the KICPA Proceeding. The KICPA Proceeding concluded in April 2020. In violation of PCAOB Rule 2203, KPMG Samjong failed to file a Form 3 with the Board reporting either the initiation or conclusion of the KICPA Proceeding.

11. Additionally, the 2021 SFC Proceeding was initiated when the FSS sent KPMG Samjong an Advance Notice in October 2021. The 2021 SFC Proceeding concerned professional services KPMG Samjong provided for a firm client and resulted in sanctions being issued against KPMG Samjong. The initiation of the 2021 SFC Proceeding constituted a reportable event under Form 3, but KPMG Samjong failed to file a Form 3 reporting it to the Board in violation of PCAOB Rule 2203.[6]

12. KPMG Samjong's internal compliance and reporting systems failed to identify as reportable events: (i) the initiation and conclusion of the KICPA Proceeding; (ii) the conclusion of the 2018 SFC Proceeding with respect to the individual respondent; and (iii) the initiation of the 2021 SFC Proceeding. As a result, KPMG Samjong inappropriately failed to notify the PCAOB of the initiation and conclusion of relevant disciplinary proceedings, or to do so on a timely basis.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), KPMG Samjong is hereby censured.

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $30,000 is imposed upon KPMG Samjong.

1. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act.

2. KPMG Samjong shall pay this civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the firm as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K. Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006.

3. Respondent shall not seek or accept, directly or indirectly, reimbursement or indemnification from any source including, but not limited to, any current or former affiliated firm or professional(s) or any payment made pursuant to any insurance policy, with regard to any amounts that Respondent shall pay pursuant to this Order.

4. Respondent understands that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may result in summary suspension of Respondent's registration, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5304(a), following written notice to Respondent at the address on file with the PCAOB at the time of the issuance of this Order.

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), KPMG Samjong is required:

1. within 90 days from the date of this Order, to establish policies and procedures, or revise and/or supplement existing policies and procedures, for the purpose of providing KPMG Samjong with reasonable assurance of compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements, including policies and procedures providing reasonable assurance that reportable events are identified by KPMG Samjong personnel who participate in KPMG Samjong's PCAOB reporting process and that those events are reported on the applicable PCAOB form in a timely and complete manner;

2. within 90 days from the date of this Order, to establish policies to ensure training concerning PCAOB reporting requirements, at least annually, of any KPMG Samjong personnel who participate in KPMG Samjong's PCAOB reporting process;

3. within 90 days from the date of this Order, to assign the role of compliance with PCAOB reporting matters to an individual within KPMG Samjong who possesses adequate knowledge and experience with PCAOB reporting requirements and sufficient authority within KPMG Samjong to fulfill those requirements on behalf of KPMG Samjong; and

4. within 120 days from the date of this Order, to have the individual referenced in paragraph C.3 above certify in writing to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, KPMG Samjong's compliance with paragraphs C.1 through C.3 above. The certification shall identify the actions taken to satisfy the conditions specified above, provide written evidence of compliance in the form of a narrative, and be supported by exhibits sufficient to demonstrate compliance. KPMG Samjong shall also submit such additional evidence of and information concerning compliance as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request. KPMG Samjong understands that the failure to satisfy these conditions may constitute a violation of PCAOB Rule 5000 that could provide a basis for the imposition of additional sanctions in a subsequent disciplinary proceeding.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of BDO RCS Auditores Independentes,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-043

December 22, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring BDO RCS Auditores Independentes ("BDO RCS" or "Respondent");

(2) imposing a $30,000 civil money penalty on BDO RCS; and

(3) requiring BDO RCS to undertake certain remedial measures, including measures to establish policies and procedures directed toward ensuring compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that BDO RCS failed to disclose certain reportable events to the Board on PCAOB Form 3, Special Report.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. BDO RCS is a partnership organized under the laws of Brazil and headquartered in São Paulo, Brazil. BDO RCS is licensed to practice public accounting in Brazil, and is a member of the BDO International network of firms. BDO RCS is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

B. Summary

2. This matter concerns BDO RCS's failure to disclose to the Board on Form 3 seven reportable events regarding five disciplinary proceedings brought against BDO RCS and certain of its personnel by the Securities and Exchange Commission of Brazil (the Comissão de Valores Mobiliários ("CVM")). PCAOB rules require registered firms, including BDO RCS, to complete and file with the PCAOB a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence. Among the events that BDO RCS is required to report on Form 3 are its becoming aware that the firm and/or certain of its personnel have become respondents in certain disciplinary proceedings, and the conclusion of such proceedings.

3. Between July 2018 and December 2021, BDO RCS and various associated persons of the firm became respondents in five separate disciplinary proceedings initiated by the CVM. The initiation of each of these proceedings constituted a reportable event under Form 3. However, BDO RCS failed to file Forms 3 reporting the initiation of any of the proceedings.

4. Additionally, BDO RCS learned—in November 2021 and May 2022—that two of the proceedings initiated against it by the CVM had been concluded. The conclusion of those proceedings also constituted reportable events under Form 3. However, BDO RCS failed to file Forms 3 reporting the conclusion of those proceedings.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

C. Respondent Failed to Disclose Certain Reportable Events to the Board, in Violation of PCAOB Rules

5. PCAOB Rule 2203 provides that a registered public accounting firm must file a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence.[2] One such specified event occurs when a firm "has become aware that, in a matter arising out of the Firm's conduct in the course of providing professional services for a client, the Firm has become a defendant or respondent in a civil or alternative dispute resolution proceeding initiated by a governmental entity or in an administrative or disciplinary proceeding other than a Board disciplinary proceeding."[3] To constitute a reportable event, the proceeding in question only has to relate to professional services the firm provided for a client, and does not necessarily have to involve an audit of an issuer, broker, or dealer, as those terms are defined under PCAOB rules.

6. Another event requiring reporting on Form 3 occurs when a firm has become aware that a reportable proceeding (i.e., a reportable event under Items 2.4 – 2.9 of Form 3) has been concluded as to the firm or certain of its associated persons.[4]

7. Between 2018 and 2021, the CVM initiated disciplinary proceedings against BDO RCS and certain of its associated persons. Each of the proceedings named BDO RCS as a respondent and related to BDO RCS's provision of professional services to companies that were not issuers.[5] The proceedings were initiated on the following dates:

- Proceeding 1: July 6, 2018
- Proceeding 2: October 19, 2018

[2] See PCAOB Rule 2203, Special Reports. As the Board noted when adopting its rules on special reporting, "reportable events will sometimes occur, and the public interest, as well as the ability to consider whether prompt action is warranted by the Board's inspection staff or enforcement staff, will be served by contemporaneous reporting of the event." PCAOB Rel. No. 2008-004, at 17 (June 10, 2008).

[3] PCAOB Form 3, at Item 2.7 (italics in the original removed).

[4] Id., at Item 2.10.

[5] The term "issuer" means an issuer (as defined in Section 3 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act")), the securities of which are registered under Section 12 of the Exchange Act, or that is required to file reports under Section 15(d) of the Exchange Act, or that files or has filed a registration statement that has not yet become effective under the Securities Act of 1933, and that it has not withdrawn. See PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

- Proceeding 3: June 6, 2021
- Proceeding 4: December 22, 2021
- Proceeding 5: December 23, 2021

8. In violation of PCAOB Rule 2203, BDO RCS failed to file Forms 3 reporting the initiation of any of the CVM proceedings.

9. Additionally, the CVM issued judgments pertaining to Proceedings 3 and 5 that were dated November 22, 2021 and May 7, 2022, respectively. In violation of PCAOB Rule 2203, BDO RCS failed to file Forms 3 reporting the conclusion of those proceedings.

10. BDO RCS's internal compliance and reporting systems failed to identify the initiation of the CVM proceedings, and the conclusion of Proceedings 3 and 5, as being reportable to the PCAOB on Form 3. As a result, BDO RCS inappropriately failed to notify the PCAOB of the initiation and conclusion of relevant disciplinary proceedings.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), BDO RCS is hereby censured.

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $30,000 is imposed upon BDO RCS.

1. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act.

2. BDO RCS shall pay this civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the firm as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K. Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006.

3. Respondent shall not seek or accept, directly or indirectly, reimbursement or indemnification from any source including, but not limited to, any current or former affiliated firm or professional(s) or any payment made pursuant to any insurance policy, with regard to any amounts that Respondent shall pay pursuant to this Order.

4. Respondent understands that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may result in summary suspension of Respondent's registration, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5304(a), following written notice to Respondent at the address on file with the PCAOB at the time of the issuance of this Order.

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), BDO RCS is required:

1. within 90 days from the date of this Order, to establish policies and procedures, or revise and/or supplement existing policies and procedures, for the purpose of providing BDO RCS with reasonable assurance of compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements, including policies and procedures providing reasonable assurance that reportable events are identified by BDO RCS personnel who participate in BDO RCS's PCAOB reporting process and that those events are reported on the applicable PCAOB form in a timely and complete manner;

2. within 90 days from the date of this Order, to establish policies to ensure training concerning PCAOB reporting requirements, at least annually, of any BDO RCS personnel who participate in BDO RCS's PCAOB reporting process;

3. within 90 days from the date of this Order, to assign the role of compliance with PCAOB reporting matters to an individual within BDO

RCS who possesses adequate knowledge and experience with PCAOB reporting requirements and sufficient authority within BDO RCS to fulfill those requirements on behalf of BDO RCS; and

4. within 120 days from the date of this Order, to have the individual referenced in paragraph C.3 above certify in writing to the Director of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, BDO RCS's compliance with paragraphs C.1 through C.3 above. The certification shall identify the actions taken to satisfy the conditions specified above, provide written evidence of compliance in the form of a narrative, and be supported by exhibits sufficient to demonstrate compliance. BDO RCS shall also submit such additional evidence of and information concerning compliance as the staff of the Division of Enforcement and Investigations may reasonably request. BDO RCS understands that the failure to satisfy these conditions may constitute a violation of PCAOB Rule 5000 that could provide a basis for the imposition of additional sanctions in a subsequent disciplinary proceeding.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of MaloneBailey, LLP,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-044

December 22, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring MaloneBailey, LLP ("MaloneBailey" or "Respondent");

(2) imposing a $25,000 civil money penalty on MaloneBailey; and

(3) requiring MaloneBailey to comply with its policies and procedures directed toward ensuring compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that MaloneBailey failed to disclose certain reportable events to the Board on PCAOB Form 3, Special Report, on a timely basis.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. MaloneBailey is a limited liability partnership organized under the laws of Texas and headquartered in Houston, Texas. MaloneBailey is licensed to practice public accounting by the Texas State Board of Accountancy (License No. P05522), among other states, and is a member of the Nexia International network of firms. MaloneBailey is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

B. Summary

2. This matter concerns MaloneBailey's repeated failures since 2018 to timely disclose to the Board on Form 3 that multiple former clients had not filed required Forms 8-K with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") following the termination of MaloneBailey's relationship with those clients. This matter also involves MaloneBailey's failure to timely disclose to the Board on Form 3 a number of changes to its licensing status since 2020. By failing to make these disclosures as required, MaloneBailey violated PCAOB rules.

C. Respondent Failed to Timely Disclose Certain Reportable Events to the Board, in Violation of PCAOB Rules

3. PCAOB Rule 2203 provides that a registered public accounting firm must file a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence.[2] One such specified event occurs when a firm "has resigned, declined to stand for re-appointment, or been dismissed from an audit engagement as principal auditor . . .

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] See PCAOB Rule 2203, Special Reports. As the Board noted when adopting its rules on special reporting, "reportable events will sometimes occur, and the public interest, as well as the ability to consider whether prompt action is warranted by the Board's inspection staff or enforcement staff, will be served by contemporaneous reporting of the event." PCAOB Rel. No. 2008-004, at 17 (June 10, 2008).

and the issuer has failed to comply with a Commission requirement to make a report concerning the matter pursuant to Item 4.01 of Commission Form 8-K."[3]

4. Another such specified event occurs when a firm "has obtained a license or certification authorizing the Firm to engage in the business of auditing or accounting and which has not been identified on any Form 1 or Form 3 previously filed by the Firm, or there has been a change in a license or certification number identified on a Form 1 or Form 3 previously filed by the Firm."[4]

5. Beginning in the latter part of 2017, MaloneBailey began a "resignation project" designed to identify issuer clients of the firm that had not met the Commission's filing requirements over several reporting periods, and to formally terminate MaloneBailey's relationship with those clients. MaloneBailey identified a number of such clients and sent them resignation letters. However, some of MaloneBailey's former clients did not file required Forms 8-K with the Commission reporting the termination of the issuers' auditor-client relationship with MaloneBailey.[5] In violation of PCAOB Rule 2203, MaloneBailey failed to timely report to the Board that multiple former clients had not filed required Forms 8-K disclosing MaloneBailey's resignation. MaloneBailey did not make the necessary Form 3 filing with the Board until August 14, 2022, after it had received notice of possible deficiencies from the Division of Enforcement and Investigations.

6. Additionally, between January 2020 and May 2022, MaloneBailey obtained new licenses to practice public accounting in a number of states. In violation of PCAOB Rule 2203,

[3] PCAOB Form 3, at Item 2.1-C (italics in the original removed).

[4] Id., at Item 2.16.

[5] Item 4.01 of Form 8-K requires issuers to disclose certain information if "an independent accountant who was previously engaged as the principal accountant to audit the registrant's financial statements, or an independent accountant upon whom the principal accountant expressed reliance in its report regarding a significant subsidiary, resigns (or indicates that it declines to stand for re-appointment after completion of the current audit) or is dismissed." In such situations, issuers are required to disclose, among other things, (i) whether the former accountant resigned, declined to stand for re-election, or was dismissed; (ii) whether the principal accountant's report on the issuer's financial statements for either of the prior two years contained an adverse opinion or disclaimer of opinion, or was qualified or modified as to uncertainty, audit scope, or accounting principles; and (iii) whether the decision to change accountants was recommended or approved by an audit (or similar) committee or the issuer's board of directors. See 17 C.F.R. § 229.304.

MaloneBailey failed to timely report 8 of those changes in its licensing status to the Board on Form 3.[6]

7. MaloneBailey's internal compliance and reporting systems failed to identify its former clients' not filing required Forms 8-K and the changes to the firm's licensing status as being reportable to the PCAOB on Form 3. As a result, MaloneBailey inappropriately failed to notify the PCAOB of those events on a timely basis.

IV.

8. MaloneBailey has represented to the Board that, since the events described in this order, it has established and implemented the following changes to its policies and procedures for the purpose of providing MaloneBailey with reasonable assurance of compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements:

a. MaloneBailey has revised and supplemented its policies and procedures for the purpose of providing MaloneBailey with reasonable assurance of compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements, including policies and procedures providing reasonable assurance that reportable events are identified by MaloneBailey personnel who participate in MaloneBailey's PCAOB reporting process and that those events are reported on the applicable PCAOB form in a timely and complete manner;

b. MaloneBailey has established policies to ensure training concerning PCAOB reporting requirements, at least annually, of any MaloneBailey personnel who participate in MaloneBailey's PCAOB reporting process; and

c. MaloneBailey has assigned the role of compliance with PCAOB reporting matters to an individual within MaloneBailey who possesses adequate knowledge and experience with PCAOB reporting requirements and sufficient authority within MaloneBailey to fulfill those requirements on behalf of MaloneBailey.

[6] MaloneBailey reported the new state licenses it had obtained on a Form 3 filed with the Board on June 17, 2022, well after the 30-day deadline for reporting the majority of the new licenses referenced therein.

V.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), MaloneBailey is hereby censured.

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $25,000 is imposed upon MaloneBailey.

1. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act.

2. MaloneBailey shall pay this civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the firm as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K. Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006.

3. Respondent shall not seek or accept, directly or indirectly, reimbursement or indemnification from any source including, but not limited to, any current or former affiliated firm or professional(s) or any payment made pursuant to any insurance policy, with regard to any amounts that Respondent shall pay pursuant to this Order.

4. Respondent understands that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may result in summary suspension of Respondent's registration, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5304(a), following written notice to Respondent at the address on file with the PCAOB at the time of the issuance of this Order.

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), MaloneBailey is required to comply with its PCAOB reporting policies and procedures, including:

1. those intended to provide reasonable assurance that reportable events are identified by MaloneBailey personnel who participate in MaloneBailey's PCAOB reporting process and that those events are reported on the applicable PCAOB form in a timely and complete manner;

2. those ensuring training concerning PCAOB reporting requirements, at least annually, of any MaloneBailey personnel who participate in MaloneBailey's PCAOB reporting process; and

3. those requiring the assignment of the role of compliance with PCAOB reporting matters to an individual within MaloneBailey who possesses adequate knowledge and experience with PCAOB reporting requirements and sufficient authority within MaloneBailey to fulfill those requirements on behalf of MaloneBailey.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Grant Thornton Auditores Independentes Ltda.,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-045

December 22, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Grant Thornton Auditores Independentes Ltda. ("GT Brazil" or "Respondent");

(2) imposing a $20,000 civil money penalty on GT Brazil; and

(3) requiring GT Brazil to comply with its policies and procedures directed toward ensuring compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that GT Brazil failed to disclose certain reportable events to the Board on PCAOB Form 3, Special Report, on a timely basis.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. GT Brazil is a limited liability partnership organized under the laws of Brazil and headquartered in São Paulo, Brazil. GT Brazil is licensed to practice public accounting in Brazil, and is a member of the Grant Thornton International network of firms. GT Brazil is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

B. Summary

2. This matter concerns GT Brazil's failure to timely disclose to the Board on Form 3 two reportable events regarding a disciplinary proceeding brought against GT Brazil by the Securities and Exchange Commission of Brazil (the Comissão de Valores Mobiliários ("CVM")). PCAOB rules require registered firms, including GT Brazil, to complete and file with the PCAOB a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence. Among the events that GT Brazil is required to report on Form 3 are its becoming aware that the firm and/or certain of its personnel have become respondents in certain disciplinary proceedings, and the conclusion of such proceedings.

3. On December 15, 2017, the CVM initiated a proceeding against GT Brazil (and a former partner) related to professional services provided for a firm client ("CVM Proceeding"). The initiation of the CVM Proceeding was a reportable event under Form 3, but GT Brazil failed to file a Form 3 reporting the initiation of the CVM Proceeding until August 15, 2022, after it had received notice of possible deficiencies from the Division of Enforcement and Investigations.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

4. Additionally, on March 11, 2019, the CVM entered a settled disciplinary order that resolved the CVM Proceeding and imposed a fine on GT Brazil. The conclusion of the CVM Proceeding against GT Brazil constituted a reportable event under Form 3. However, GT Brazil failed to report the conclusion of the CVM Proceeding until its August 15, 2022 Form 3.

C. Respondent Failed to Timely Disclose Certain Reportable Events to the Board, in Violation of PCAOB Rules

5. PCAOB Rule 2203 provides that a registered public accounting firm must file a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence.[2] One such specified event occurs when a firm "has become aware that, in a matter arising out of the Firm's conduct in the course of providing professional services for a client, the Firm has become a defendant or respondent in a civil or alternative dispute resolution proceeding initiated by a governmental entity or in an administrative or disciplinary proceeding other than a Board disciplinary proceeding."[3] To constitute a reportable event, the proceeding in question only has to relate to professional services the firm provided for a client, and does not necessarily have to involve an audit of an issuer, broker, or dealer, as those terms are defined under PCAOB rules.

6. Another event requiring reporting on Form 3 occurs when a firm has become aware that a reportable proceeding (i.e., a reportable event under Items 2.4 – 2.9 of Form 3) has been concluded as to the firm or certain of its associated persons.[4]

7. The CVM Proceeding was initiated on December 15, 2017, and concerned professional services GT Brazil provided for a non-issuer client.[5] The CVM identified GT Brazil as

[5] The term "issuer" means an issuer (as defined in Section 3 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Exchange Act")), the securities of which are registered under Section 12 of the Exchange Act, or that is required to file reports under Section 15(d) of the Exchange Act, or that files or has filed a registration statement that has not yet become effective under the Securities Act of 1933, and that it has not withdrawn. See PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

a respondent in the CVM Proceeding. However, in violation of PCAOB Rule 2203, GT Brazil failed to timely file a Form 3 with the Board reporting the initiation of the CVM Proceeding.

8. The CVM Proceeding concluded on March 11, 2019, when the CVM entered a settled disciplinary order that imposed a fine on GT Brazil. However, in violation of PCAOB Rule 2203, GT Brazil failed to timely file a Form 3 with the Board reporting the conclusion of the CVM Proceeding.

9. GT Brazil belatedly reported the initiation and conclusion of the CVM Proceeding in a Form 3 filed on August 15, 2022, after GT Brazil received notice of possible deficiencies from the Division of Enforcement and Investigations.

10. GT Brazil's internal compliance and reporting systems failed to identify the initiation and conclusion of the CVM Proceeding as being reportable to the PCAOB on Form 3. As a result, GT Brazil inappropriately failed to timely notify the PCAOB of the initiation and conclusion of a relevant disciplinary proceeding.

IV.

11. GT Brazil has represented to the Board that, since the events described in this order, it has established and implemented the following changes to its policies and procedures for the purpose of providing GT Brazil with reasonable assurance of compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements:

a. GT Brazil has revised and supplemented its policies and procedures for the purpose of providing GT Brazil with reasonable assurance of compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements, including policies and procedures providing reasonable assurance that reportable events are identified by GT Brazil personnel who participate in GT Brazil's PCAOB reporting process and that those events are reported on the applicable PCAOB form in a timely and complete manner;

b. GT Brazil has established policies to ensure training concerning PCAOB reporting requirements, at least annually, of any GT Brazil personnel who participate in GT Brazil's PCAOB reporting process; and

c. GT Brazil has assigned the role of compliance with PCAOB reporting matters to an individual within GT Brazil who possesses adequate knowledge and experience with PCAOB reporting requirements and sufficient authority within GT Brazil to fulfill those requirements on behalf of GT Brazil.

V.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), GT Brazil is hereby censured.

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $20,000 is imposed upon GT Brazil.

1. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act.

2. GT Brazil shall pay this civil money penalty within ten days of the issuance of this Order by (1) wire transfer in accordance with instructions furnished by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies the firm as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K. Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20006.

3. Respondent shall not seek or accept, directly or indirectly, reimbursement or indemnification from any source including, but not limited to, any current or former affiliated firm or professional(s) or any payment made pursuant to any insurance policy, with regard to any amounts that Respondent shall pay pursuant to this Order.

4. Respondent understands that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may result in summary suspension of Respondent's registration, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5304(a), following written notice to Respondent at the address on file with the PCAOB at the time of the issuance of this Order.

C. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), GT Brazil is required to comply with its PCAOB reporting policies and procedures, including:

1. those intended to provide reasonable assurance that reportable events are identified by GT Brazil personnel who participate in GT Brazil's PCAOB reporting process and that those events are reported on the applicable PCAOB form in a timely and complete manner;

2. those ensuring training concerning PCAOB reporting requirements, at least annually, of any GT Brazil personnel who participate in GT Brazil's PCAOB reporting process; and

3. those requiring the assignment of the role of compliance with PCAOB reporting matters to an individual within GT Brazil who possesses adequate knowledge and experience with PCAOB reporting requirements and sufficient authority within GT Brazil to fulfill those requirements on behalf of GT Brazil.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of KCCW Accountancy Corporation,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2022-046

December 22, 2022

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring KCCW Accountancy Corporation ("KCCW" or "Respondent");

(2) imposing a $20,000 civil money penalty on KCCW; and

(3) requiring KCCW to comply with its policies and procedures directed toward ensuring compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that KCCW failed to disclose certain reportable events to the Board on PCAOB Form 3, Special Report.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:

A. Respondent

1. KCCW is a corporation organized under the laws of California and headquartered in Diamond Bar, California. KCCW is licensed to practice public accounting by the California Board of Accountancy (License No. 5813). KCCW is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

B. Summary

2. This matter concerns KCCW's failure to disclose to the Board on Form 3 four reportable events concerning a disciplinary proceeding brought by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") against a KCCW partner and a related disciplinary proceeding against the same partner brought by the California Board of Accountancy. PCAOB rules require KCCW to complete and file with the PCAOB a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence. Among the events that KCCW is required to report on Form 3 are its becoming aware that one of its partners had become a respondent in certain disciplinary proceedings, and the conclusion of such proceedings.

3. On July 1, 2019, the Commission issued an order sanctioning a KCCW partner for causing KCCW to violate auditor independence rules.[2] The initiation of the Commission's proceeding against the partner was a reportable event under Form 3, but KCCW failed to file a Form 3 reporting that the partner had become a respondent in a Commission proceeding.

4. In addition, the conclusion of the Commission's proceeding against the partner constituted a reportable event under Form 3, but KCCW also failed to file a report of the conclusion of the proceeding on Form 3.

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] Thomas Chang, CPA, Exchange Act Rel. No. 86252 (July 1, 2019).

5. KCCW and the KCCW partner reported the Commission's order to the California Board of Accountancy. On August 31, 2020, the California Board of Accountancy issued an order sanctioning the same KCCW partner for the same conduct underlying the Commission's July 1, 2019 order, and imposed a three year probation period. The initiation and conclusion of the proceeding against the partner by the California Board of Accountancy constituted reportable events under Form 3, but KCCW failed to report either event on Form 3.

C. Respondent Failed to Disclose Certain Reportable Events to the Board, in Violation of PCAOB Rules

6. PCAOB Rule 2203 provides that a registered public accounting firm must file a special report on Form 3 to report any event specified in that form within thirty days of the event's occurrence.[3] One such specified event occurs when a firm "has become aware that, in a matter arising out of his or her conduct in the course of providing audit services or other accounting services to an issuer, broker, or dealer, a partner, shareholder, principal, owner, member, or audit manager of the Firm has become a defendant or respondent in a civil or alternative dispute resolution proceeding initiated by a governmental entity or in an administrative or disciplinary proceeding other than a Board disciplinary proceeding."[4] Another such specified event occurs when a firm has become aware that a reportable proceeding (i.e., a reportable event under Items 2.4 – 2.9 of Form 3) has been concluded as to the firm or certain of its associated persons.[5]

7. No later than July 1, 2019, KCCW became aware that the Commission had initiated—and concluded—a disciplinary proceeding against the partner for causing KCCW to violate auditor independence rules. That proceeding arose out of the partner's provision of audit services to KCCW's issuer clients.[6]

8. No later than August 31, 2020, KCCW became aware that the California Board of Accountancy had initiated—and concluded—a disciplinary proceeding against the same partner based on the same underlying conduct as the Commission's proceeding.

9. In violation of PCAOB Rule 2203, KCCW failed to file a Form 3 with the Board with respect to the initiation or conclusion of either the Commission's proceeding against the partner or the California Board of Accountancy's proceeding against the partner.[7]

10. KCCW's internal compliance and reporting systems failed to identify the initiation and conclusion of the proceedings by the Commission and the California Board of Accountancy as being reportable to the PCAOB on Form 3. As a result, KCCW inappropriately failed to notify the PCAOB of the initiation and conclusion of two relevant disciplinary proceedings.

IV.

11. KCCW has represented to the Board that, since the events described in this Order, it has established and implemented the following changes to its policies and procedures for the purpose of providing KCCW with reasonable assurance of compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements:

a. KCCW has revised and supplemented its policies and procedures for the purpose of providing KCCW with reasonable assurance of compliance with PCAOB reporting requirements, including policies and procedures providing reasonable assurance that reportable events are identified by KCCW personnel who participate in KCCW's PCAOB reporting process and that those events are reported on the applicable PCAOB form in a timely and complete manner;

b. KCCW has established policies to ensure training concerning PCAOB reporting requirements, at least annually, of any KCCW personnel who participate in KCCW's PCAOB reporting process; and

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Friedman LLP,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2023-001

March 27, 2023

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Friedman LLP ("Friedman," the "Firm," or "Respondent"); and

(2) imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $100,000 on Friedman.[1]

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that: 1) pursuant to Section 105(c)(6) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), Friedman failed to reasonably supervise two accounting firms that were not registered with the Board, yet played a substantial role in 12 issuer audits for fiscal years 2017 and 2018, and 2) Friedman violated the Board's auditing and quality control standards.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Respondent pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 5200(a)(1) and (2).

I.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Friedman has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined

---

[1] Although the Board finds here that the Firm violated PCAOB quality control standards, the Board is not ordering that Friedman undertake and certify the completion of certain improvements to its system of quality control because Friedman's quality control policies and procedures were subsumed by those of Marcum LLP when that firm acquired substantially all of Friedman's assets as of September 1, 2022. Following the asset purchase, Friedman submitted a Form 1-WD to withdraw from PCAOB registration, which is pending.

to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[2]

II.

On the basis of Friedman's Offer, the Board finds that:

14. At all relevant times, each of these entities was an issuer as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Other Relevant Entities

15. Peking Certified Public Accountants a/k/a Peking CPAs ("Peking CPAs") is a special general partnership headquartered in Beijing, China. At all relevant times, Peking CPAs was a public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(11) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(iii), and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). Peking CPAs is not now, and never has been, registered with the Board.

16. Beijing Baijielai Financial Consulting Co., Limited ("Beijing Baijielai") is a limited liability company headquartered in Beijing, China. At all relevant times, Beijing Baijielai was a public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(11) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(iii), and an associated person of a registered public accounting firm, as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(9) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(i). Beijing Baijielai is not now, and never has been, registered with the Board.

D. Summary

17. This matter concerns Friedman's failure to reasonably supervise associated persons under the Act and its repeated violations of PCAOB rules and standards in connection with its use of the work of other accounting firms in China.

18. First, Friedman improperly allowed unregistered firms Peking CPAs and Beijing Baijielai (collectively, the "Unregistered Firms") to play a substantial role in audits of the financial statements of 12 issuer clients for FYEs 2017 and 2018 (collectively, the "Audits"). Friedman knew, or should have known, that the Unregistered Firms were required to register with the Board before the firms played a substantial role in any issuer audits. Friedman, however, failed to take any steps to ensure that the Unregistered Firms' participation in the Audits was consistent with PCAOB registration requirements and that the Unregistered Firms did not "play a substantial role" in the Audits.[4]

19. Participation by the Unregistered Firms in the Audits in many instances far exceeded the 20% substantial role threshold, including two audits in which Peking CPAs incurred 52% of the total audit hours. Due to its inadequate planning and oversight of the Unregistered Firms' participation in the Audits, Friedman failed to reasonably supervise its associated persons pursuant to Section 105(c)(6) of the Act and failed to comply with PCAOB rules and standards concerning due professional care and audit planning.

20. Moreover, the repeated violations described above demonstrate that, during the Audits, Friedman failed to establish and implement adequate quality control policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, concerning the use of work of other accounting firms, in violation of PCAOB quality control standards.

E. Requirements Related to Playing a Substantial Role in an Audit

21. Section 102(a) of the Act makes it "unlawful" for an accounting firm that is not registered with the Board "to prepare or issue, or to participate in the preparation or issuance of, any audit report with respect to any issuer, broker, or dealer."[5]

[4] See PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(ii), Play a Substantial Role in the Preparation or Furnishing of an Audit Report (defining "play a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an audit report" to mean, among other things, "perform[ing] material services that a public accounting firm uses or relies on in issuing all or part of its audit report"). "Material services" are further defined as "services, for which the engagement hours or fees constitute 20% or more of the total engagement hours or fees, respectively, provided by the principal auditor in connection with the issuance of all or part of its audit report." Id., Note 1.

[5] 15 U.S.C. § 7212(a).

22. In addition, Section 106(a)(2) of the Act states:

> The Board may, by rule, determine that a foreign public accounting firm (or a class of such firms) that does not issue audit reports nonetheless plays such a substantial role in the preparation and furnishing of such reports for particular issuers, brokers, or dealers, that it is necessary or appropriate, in light of the purposes of this Act and in the public interest or for the protection of investors, that such firm (or class of firms) should be treated as a public accounting firm (or firms) for purposes of registration under, and oversight by the Board in accordance with, this subchapter.[6]

23. In furtherance of these provisions, the Board adopted PCAOB Rule 2100, Registration Requirements for Public Accounting Firms, which requires any accounting firm, foreign or domestic, that "plays a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an audit report with respect to any issuer, broker, or dealer" to register with the Board.

24. As noted above, PCAOB Rule 1001(p)(ii) defines the phrase "play a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an audit report" to mean, among other things, "perform[ing] material services that a public accounting firm uses or relies on in issuing all or part of its audit report." The phrase "material services" means "services, for which the engagement hours or fees constitute 20% or more of the total engagement hours or fees, respectively, provided by the principal auditor in connection with the issuance of all or part of its audit report."[7]

F. Background

25. In 2015, in order to comply with a mandate by the China Ministry of Finance relating to cooperation between domestic Chinese accounting firms and overseas firms,[8] Friedman entered into a written agreement with a China-based PCAOB registrant (the "Registrant"). Friedman understood that the mandate required Friedman, as an accounting firm outside of China, to engage the cooperation of a domestic Chinese accounting firm in order to provide auditing services for overseas listings of China-based enterprises. Friedman's agreement with the Registrant governed, among other things, the participation of the Registrant in Friedman audits. Pursuant to that agreement, the Registrant began to participate in Friedman's audits of issuers.

26. Later that year, following the establishment of the practice of working with the Registrant, Friedman entered into a similar agreement with Peking CPAs. Unlike the Registrant, however, Peking CPAs was not registered with the PCAOB.

27. The agreement with Peking CPAs detailed Peking CPAs' ability, as a China Ministry of Finance-approved licensed full service public accounting firm registered with the China State Administration for Industry and Commerce, to conduct financial statement audits in China; allowed for the execution of detailed engagement letters between Friedman and Peking CPAs on a project-by-project basis; and also promoted referrals and joint work between the two entities.

28. The agreement's terms also provided Friedman with standardized hourly rates by title for Peking CPAs staff, and included a maximum percentage of 27% for the total audit fees to be apportioned to Peking CPAs for the firm's provision of audit services (above the 20% substantial role threshold), subject to final agreement by the respective engagement partners at each firm on a project-by-project basis.

29. The agreement further required each party to pay a 10% commission annually on referred work, and also required Friedman to provide training, to be paid for by Peking CPAs, to accountants at Peking CPAs at least annually on several topics, including, among other things, U.S. generally accepted accounting principles ("GAAP") and PCAOB standards.[9]

30. Several years later, in 2018, Beijing Baijielai, an affiliate of the Registrant, agreed with Friedman to provide services in connection with Friedman's audit of Jerash on terms similar to those set forth in Friedman's agreement with the Registrant. Like Peking CPAs, Beijing Baijielai was not registered with the PCAOB. Friedman did not execute a written agreement with Beijing Baijielai as it had done in 2015 with Peking CPAs, but Friedman personnel understood that the relationship between Friedman and Beijing Baijielai would be governed by the existing agreement with the Registrant and the engagement-specific agreement between Beijing Baijielai and Friedman for the Jerash audit.

31. During the Audits, Friedman utilized Peking CPAs in 11 of the Audits and utilized Beijing Baijielai in the Jerash audit.

32. In connection with each of the Audits, Friedman and the corresponding Unregistered Firm entered into a separate engagement-specific letter agreement that governed

[9] The agreement between the Firm and Peking CPAs contemplated Friedman's supervision of Peking CPAs personnel pursuant to AS 1201, Supervision of the Audit Engagement.

the Unregistered Firm's participation in the audit. The letter agreements each made clear that the Unregistered Firm would be participating in the relevant audit and the significance of that participation.[10]

33. For example, a letter agreement concerning China Xiangtai, dated July 9, 2018, confirmed, among other things, Peking CPAs' independence, familiarity with PCAOB standards and SEC reporting requirements, and detailed that Friedman intended to place reliance on the audit procedures performed by Peking CPAs staff relative to China Xiangtai's consolidated financial statements as of and for the year ended June 30, 2018.

34. Following each of the Audits, the relevant Unregistered Firm then invoiced Friedman with the staff names, amount of hours worked, hourly rate, and amount owed in U.S. dollars for the particular engagement. Friedman subsequently paid the Unregistered Firm invoices via wire transfer.

35. Friedman did not adequately consider the relevant PCAOB rules relating to playing a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an audit report when the change was made from working with the Registrant to the unregistered firms Peking CPAs and Beijing Baijielai.

36. In 11 of the Audits, Peking CPAs exceeded the 20% substantial role threshold in either total hours, total fees, or both. In the Jerash audit, Beijing Baijielai exceeded the 20% substantial role threshold in total hours and total fees. As shown in the table below, the Unregistered Firms' hours incurred on the Audits ranged from 25% to 52% of the total audit hours and fees ranged from 12% to 34% of the total audit fees.

[10] The engagement-specific letter agreements also contemplated Friedman's supervision of Peking CPAs and Beijing Baijielai personnel pursuant to AS 1201.

37. With respect to the Audits, Friedman failed to take adequate steps to plan or supervise the audits in a manner that would ensure that only firms registered with the PCAOB played a substantial role in the audits. Friedman knew from its agreements with Peking CPAs and Beijing Baijielai that the Unregistered Firms were contractually permitted to participate at a greater than 20% rate, and specifically contemplated greater than 20% fee participation (i.e., at the standard maximum 27% fee apportionment—or negotiated at a percentage higher than that, as reflected in the above chart). Neither of the agreements, nor the 12 engagement-specific agreements, identified the Unregistered Firms as PCAOB-registered. Moreover, invoices in 11 of the 12 Audits that the Unregistered Firms sent to Friedman for their audit work were more than 20% of the total audit fees. Despite this evidence, Friedman failed to take any steps to determine whether the Unregistered Firms were permitted to play a substantial role in the Audits.

G. Friedman Failed to Reasonably Supervise the Unregistered Firms and Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

38. During each of the Audits, the Unregistered Firms incurred more than 20% of the total engagement hours or total audit fees. Accordingly, Peking CPAs, in 11 of the Audits, and Beijing Baijielai, in the Jerash audit, played a substantial role without being registered with the Board, in violation of Section 102(a) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 2100.

39. Friedman failed to reasonably supervise the Unregistered Firms' participation in the Audits in a manner designed to avoid violations of Section 102(a) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 2100, and Friedman likewise failed to properly plan the audits.

i. Friedman Failed to Reasonably Supervise the Unregistered Firms

40. Section 105(c)(6) of the Act provides that the Board may impose sanctions on a registered public accounting firm if the Board finds that (1) the firm has failed reasonably to supervise an associated person, either as required by the rules of the Board relating to auditing or quality control standards, or otherwise, with a view to preventing violations of the Act or the rules of the Board; and (2) such associated person commits a violation of the Act or Board rules.

41. Under Section 2(a)(9) of the Act, the term "person associated with a registered public accounting firm" includes "any . . . entity that, in connection with the preparation or issuance of any audit report—(i) shares in the profits of, or receives compensation in any other form from, that firm; or (ii) participates as agent or otherwise on behalf of such accounting firm in any activity of that firm."

42. The Unregistered Firms invoiced Friedman for the services it provided in connection with the Audits. Thus, the Unregistered Firms "receive[d] compensation" from Friedman in connection with the preparation and issuance of Friedman's audit reports. In addition, because they performed audit work at the direction, and under the supervision, of Friedman, the Unregistered Firms each acted as an "entity that, in connection with the preparation or issuance of [Friedman] audit report[s,] . . . participate[d] as agent or otherwise on behalf of [Friedman]." Accordingly, each of the Unregistered Firms was an "associated person" of Friedman during the Audits.

43. Friedman had a responsibility to reasonably supervise its associated persons during its issuer audits. It failed to do so.

44. During the Audits, Friedman knew or should have known that PCAOB standards required substantial role participants to be PCAOB-registered, but failed to consider the relevant rules relating to playing a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an audit report when the change was made from using the Registrant to using the Unregistered Firms. Certain Friedman personnel were aware during the Audits that Peking CPAs was not a PCAOB registrant.

45. Friedman had quality control policies and procedures in place at the time of the Audits, but did not have policies specifically addressing PCAOB rules relating to substantial role participation by other accounting firms.

46. Friedman failed to take adequate steps to ensure that the Unregistered Firms it used to play a substantial role in the Audits were registered with the Board. As noted above, Friedman knew, or should have known, from its agreements with Peking CPAs and Beijing Baijielai, the Unregistered Firms' invoices, and other communications with the Unregistered Firms that each of the Unregistered Firms was under Friedman's supervision and subject to greater than 20% participation in the Audits. Friedman also knew or should have known from readily available public information, such as the PCAOB website, that each of the Unregistered Firms was not registered with the Board. However, Friedman failed to adequately consider that information to ensure compliance with applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the Firm's standards of quality.

47. Because the Unregistered Firms incurred more than 20% of the total audit hours or total audit fees in each of the Audits, they performed material services used by Friedman in issuing Friedman's audit reports. The Unregistered Firms therefore violated Section 102(a) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 2100 by playing a substantial role in the Audits without being registered with the Board.

48. As detailed above, Friedman failed to reasonably supervise the Unregistered Firms under Section 105(c)(6) of the Act with a view to preventing the Unregistered Firms' violations of PCAOB registration requirements.

ii. Friedman Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

49. In connection with the preparation or issuance of an audit report, PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's auditing and related professional practice standards.[12]

50. PCAOB standards provide that, as part of audit planning, the auditor should establish an overall audit strategy.[13] The auditor should take into account "[t]he factors that are significant in directing the activities of the engagement team" and "[t]he nature, timing, and extent of resources necessary to perform the engagement."[14] PCAOB standards also require that "[d]ue professional care . . . be exercised in the planning and performance of the audit and the preparation of the report."[15]

51. Friedman conducted all audit planning and designed all audit programs and audit procedures during the Audits.

52. In establishing the overall audit strategy for the Audits, Friedman failed to adequately take into account: (1) the fact that the Unregistered Firms were unregistered firms whose substantial role participation in the Audits would constitute a violation of PCAOB rules, as Friedman knew or should have known; and (2) the nature of the resources necessary to perform the audits, insofar as those resources included the involvement of unregistered firms.[16] As a result of these failures, Friedman did not adequately plan the audits to ensure that the Unregistered Firms would not violate PCAOB registration requirements.

53. Accordingly, in violation of PCAOB Rule 3100, Friedman violated AS 2101. Friedman also violated AS 1015 by failing to exercise due professional care in planning the Audits.

H. Friedman Violated PCAOB Quality Control Standards

54. PCAOB rules require that a registered firm comply with PCAOB quality control standards.[17] Those standards require a firm to "have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice."[18] As part of this requirement, "[p]olicies and procedures should be established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality."[19]

55. PCAOB quality control standards also recognize that monitoring procedures are necessary "to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the policies and procedures relating to each of the other elements of quality control are suitably designed and are being effectively applied."[20] Under PCAOB standards, monitoring involves an ongoing consideration and evaluation of, among other things, compliance with the firm's policies and procedures.[21]

56. Friedman failed to establish and implement adequate policies and procedures, including monitoring procedures, to provide the Firm with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel met applicable regulatory requirements related to using the work of other accounting firms.

57. Although Friedman had quality control policies and procedures, its policies and procedures did not adequately address substantial role participation by other accounting firms, and the Firm failed to implement such policies and monitor them in an adequate manner. As a result, Friedman repeatedly used the Unregistered Firms to play a substantial role in the Audits.

58. Accordingly, Friedman failed to comply with QC § 20 and QC § 30.

III.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 5300(a)(5), Friedman is censured;

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), the Board imposes a civil money penalty of $100,000 on Friedman. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of RT LLP,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2023-002

April 11, 2023

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring RT LLP ("RT," the "Firm," or "Respondent"), a registered public accounting firm;

(2) revoking the registration of RT;[1]

(3) imposing a $50,000 civil money penalty upon the Firm; and

(4) in the event RT submits any future registration application and as a condition to the Board granting such an application, requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial measures, including that it establish quality control policies and procedures to give the Firm reasonable assurance that: (1) issuer audits and reviews are conducted in accordance with applicable professional standards; and (2) the Firm complies with PCAOB reporting requirements.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on RT on the basis of its findings that Respondent violated: (1) PCAOB rules and AS 1215, Audit Documentation, in connection with the audit and reviews of Dunxin Financial Holdings Limited ("Dunxin") for the year ended December 31, 2017 (the "2017 Dunxin Audit"); (2) PCAOB Rule 3211, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants, by failing to timely file required Form APs; and (3) PCAOB rules and quality control standards by failing to design and implement quality control procedures to ensure that its personnel complied with PCAOB standards.

[1] RT may reapply for registration after two years from the date of this Order.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended ("Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1) against Respondent.

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement ("Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for purposes of these proceedings and any other proceedings brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[2]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[3]

A. Respondent

1. RT LLP is a firm headquartered in Singapore. The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

---

[2] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[3] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

B. Issuer

2. Dunxin Financial Holdings Limited was, at all relevant times, an entity organized under the laws of the Cayman Islands and headquartered in Wuhan City, Hubei Province, People's Republic of China. Dunxin's public filings disclose that it is a lending company primarily engaged in the business of providing loan facilities to enterprises and sole proprietorships in Hubei Province, People's Republic of China. The Firm issued an audit report on Dunxin's 2017 financial statements on April 30, 2018.[4]

3. At all relevant times, Dunxin was an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

4. This matter concerns Respondent's violation of PCAOB rules and AS 1215 in connection with the 2017 Dunxin Audit. As detailed below, Respondent failed to assemble for retention a complete and final set of audit documentation for the 2017 Dunxin Audit by the documentation completion date, as required by AS 1215.

5. The Firm also violated PCAOB Rule 3211 because it did not timely file required Form APs in connection with the 2017 Dunxin Audit and 2017 Restatement Audit.

6. Finally, the Firm violated PCAOB quality control standards because, during the time it was conducting the 2017 Dunxin Audit, the Firm did not have policies and procedures relating to performing audits under PCAOB standards. In addition, the Firm did not have sufficient policies and procedures related to the monitoring of its quality control system as required by PCAOB standards.

[4] Subsequent to the filing of Dunxin's 2017 Form 20-F, the Firm was appointed to express an opinion on Dunxin's restated 2017 financial statements, which were included in Dunxin's 2018 Form 20-F ("2017 Restatement Audit"). On May 15, 2019, the Firm issued an audit report that contained an unqualified opinion on the specified accounts identified in the report, which was included in Dunxin's 2018 Form 20-F filed that same day.

D. Respondent Violated AS 1215 by Failing to Assemble for Retention a Complete and Final Set of Audit Documentation for the 2017 Dunxin Audit

7. PCAOB rules require that registered public accounting firms and their associated persons comply with all applicable auditing and related professional practice standards.[5] AS 1215 provides, among other things, that the auditor must prepare audit documentation in connection with each engagement conducted pursuant to the standards of the PCAOB.[6] PCAOB standards further require that "a complete and final set of audit documentation should be assembled for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date (documentation completion date)."[7]

8. The Firm issued an audit report containing an unqualified audit opinion on Dunxin's 2017 financial statements on April 30, 2018. Thus, the Firm was required to assemble for retention (i.e., "archive") a final set of audit documentation for the 2017 Dunxin Audit by no later than June 14, 2018.

9. The Firm failed to archive a complete and final set of audit documentation by the documentation completion date for the 2017 Dunxin Audit. In fact, the engagement partner on the audit subsequently left the Firm and, as a result, the work papers for the 2017 Dunxin Audit were never archived. As a result, the Firm violated AS 1215.

E. Respondent Violated PCAOB Rule 3211 by Failing to Timely File Form APs

10. PCAOB Rule 3211, which initially took effect for issuer audit reports issued on or after January 31, 2017, provides that each registered public accounting firm must provide information about engagement partners and other accounting firms that participate in audits of issuers by filing a Form AP, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants, for each audit report issued by the firm for an issuer. Form APs generally must be filed by the 35th day after the date the audit report is first included in a document filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange

Commission (SEC),[8] subject to a shorter filing deadline that applies when the audit report is first included in a registration statement filed under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended.[9]

11. As stated above, the Firm audited Dunxin's financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2017 and issued an audit report on those financial statements dated April 30, 2018, which was included in Dunxin's Form 20-F filed with the SEC on that same day. However, the Firm failed to file the required Form AP for the 2017 Dunxin Audit by June 4, 2018, the 35th day after the date the audit report was included with the filing made with the SEC, in violation of PCAOB Rule 3211. The Firm belatedly filed the Form AP related to the 2017 Dunxin Audit on August 21, 2018.

12. In addition, the Firm issued an audit report on Dunxin's restated 2017 financial statements on May 15, 2019, which was included in Dunxin's Form 20-F filed with the SEC on that same day. However, the Firm failed to file the required Form AP for the 2017 Restatement Audit by June 19, 2019, in violation of PCAOB Rule 3211. The Firm belatedly filed the Form AP related to the 2017 Restatement Audit on February 16, 2023.

F. Respondent Violated PCAOB Quality Control Standards

13. PCAOB rules require that a registered public accounting firm and its associated persons comply with the Board's quality control standards.[10] These standards require that a registered firm have a system of quality control for its accounting and auditing practice.[11] "A system of quality control is broadly defined as a process to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its personnel comply with applicable professional standards and the firm's standards of quality."[12] The Firm violated PCAOB quality control standards in a number of ways.

14. First, PCAOB quality control standards require firms to establish policies and procedures sufficient to provide it with "reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and

8 See Rule 3211(b)(1).

9 In that instance, a firm is required to file the Form AP by the tenth day after the date the audit report is first included in a document filed with the SEC. See Rule 3211(b)(2).

10 See PCAOB Rule 3100; PCAOB Rule 3400T, Interim Quality Control Standards.

the Firm's standard of quality."[13] However, during the time period that it was conducting the 2017 Dunxin Audit, while the Firm had a system of quality control based on local and international standards, it failed to have any policies, procedures, or guidance materials related to performing audits under PCAOB standards. Likewise, while the Firm provided training to its staff related to local and international auditing standards, the Firm failed to provide any training to its staff, including the staff that worked on the 2017 Dunxin Audit, related to performing audits in accordance with PCAOB rules and standards. As a result, the Firm violated QC § 20.17.

15. Second, PCAOB quality control standards specifically require a firm to establish policies and procedures that provide it with reasonable assurance that engagement quality reviews would be performed on all audits in accordance with PCAOB standards.[14] However, during the time period that it was conducting the 2017 Dunxin audit, while, as stated, the Firm had a system of quality control based on local and international standards, the Firm failed to have any policies, procedures, or guidance materials related to performing engagement quality reviews in accordance with AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review. As a result, the Firm violated QC §§ 20.17-.18.

16. Third, PCAOB quality control standards specifically require a firm to establish policies and procedures that provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its engagement teams would comply with PCAOB audit documentation requirements.[15] However, during the time period that it was conducting the Dunxin audit, while, as stated, the Firm had a system of quality control based on local and international standards, the Firm failed to have any policies and procedures related to the retention of audit documentation under PCAOB standards. And, as explained above, the Firm failed to assemble for retention a complete and final set of audit documentation as of the documentation completion date for the 2017 Dunxin Audit in accordance with AS 1215. Therefore, the Firm violated QC §§ 20.17-.18 because it failed to establish policies and procedures that provided it with reasonable assurance that its engagement teams would comply with PCAOB audit documentation requirements.

17. Finally, registered public accounting firms are also required to maintain an effective monitoring component in their systems of quality control through the "establish[ment] [of] policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that the policies and procedures related to each of the other elements of quality control are suitably designed and are being effectively applied."[16] Monitoring involves an ongoing consideration and evaluation of the: (a) relevance and adequacy of the firm's policies and procedures; (b) appropriateness of the firm's guidance materials and any practice aids; (c) effectiveness of professional development activities; and (d) compliance with the firm's policies and procedures.[17] During the time period that it was conducting the 2017 Dunxin Audit, the Firm failed to conduct monitoring of its quality control system in accordance with the applicable standards, and, therefore, violated QC § 20 and QC § 30.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determined it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Respondent's Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that:

A. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(E) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(5), RT is censured.

B. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(A) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(1), the registration of RT is hereby revoked.

C. Pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2101, after two years from the date of this Order, RT may reapply for registration.

D. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(D) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(4), a civil money penalty in the amount of $50,000 is imposed upon RT.

   1. All funds collected by the Board as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act.

   2. RT shall pay this civil money penalty within ten (10) days of the issuance of this Order by: (1) wire transfer pursuant to instructions provided by Board staff; or (2) United States Postal Service money order, bank money order, certified check, or bank cashier's check (a) made payable to the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, (b) delivered to the Office of Finance, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W.,

Washington D.C. 20006, and (c) submitted under a cover letter, which identifies RT as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

3. RT understands that its failure to pay the civil money penalty imposed upon it may alone be grounds to deny any application, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 2106, for registration with the Board.

4. If timely payment is not made, interest shall accrue at the federal debt collection rate set for the current quarter pursuant to 31 U.S.C. § 3717. Payments shall be applied first to post-order interest.

5. With respect to any civil money penalty amounts that RT shall pay pursuant to this Order, RT shall not, directly or indirectly, (a) seek or accept reimbursement or indemnification from any source including, but not limited to, any current or former affiliated firm or professional or any payment made pursuant to any insurance policy; (b) claim, assert, or apply for a tax deduction or tax credit in connection with any federal, state, local, or foreign tax; nor (c) seek or benefit by any offset or reduction of any award of compensatory damages, by the amount of any part of RT's payment of the civil money penalty pursuant to this Order, in any private action brought against RT based on substantially the same facts as set out in the findings in this Order.

E. Pursuant to Section 105(c)(4)(G) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5300(a)(9), RT is required:

1. before filing with the Board any future registration application, to (a) establish policies and procedures for the purpose of providing RT with reasonable assurance of compliance with regulatory requirements applicable to audits and reviews of issuers, brokers, and dealers, including reporting requirements;[18] (b) establish a policy of ensuring training of personnel, whether internal or external, on an annual or more frequent regular basis, concerning requirements applicable to audits and reviews of issuers, brokers, and dealers, including reporting requirements; and (c) ensure training pursuant to that policy on at least one occasion prior to submission of the registration application; and

2. to provide with any future registration application a written certification of compliance with the above requirements, written evidence of compliance in the form of a narrative, exhibits sufficient to demonstrate compliance, and such additional evidence of and information concerning compliance as the Registration staff of the Division of Registration and Inspections may reasonably request.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Barzily & Co. Certified Public Accountants,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2023-004

June 5, 2023

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Barzily & Co. Certified Public Accountants ("Respondent," "Barzily & Co.," or "Firm");

(2) imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $50,000 on Respondent;

(3) requiring the Firm to undertake certain remedial actions as described in Section IV of this Order; and

(4) requiring the Firm to retain an independent consultant to review and make recommendations concerning the firm's system of quality control policies and procedures.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that: (a) Respondent violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards by failing to establish quality control policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by its associated persons complied with applicable PCAOB standards and regulatory requirements; and (b) Respondent violated PCAOB rules and standards in connection with audits for two issuers.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Respondent pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement (the "Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for the purpose of these proceedings and any other proceeding brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings contained herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of this proceeding, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds[2] that:

A. Respondent

1. Barzily & Co. is a partnership headquartered in Jerusalem, Israel. Barzily & Co. is a member of the MSI Global Alliance. The Firm is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the Board, and is a registered public accounting firm as that term is defined in Section 2(a)(12) of the Act and PCAOB rules.

B. Issuers

2. Creations, Inc. ("Creations") is a Delaware corporation. Barzily & Co. has served as Creations' auditor since 2019. Creations' Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended ("FYE") December 31, 2020, disclosed that it operates as a portfolio manager, licensed by the Israel Securities Authority, offering and managing ten mutual funds. Creations filed a Form S-1 registration statement with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("Commission") on July 29, 2020, which contained Barzily & Co.'s audit report on Creations' FYE 2018 and 2019 financial statements (dated May 4, 2020) and a consent from Barzily (dated July 29, 2020) for that audit report to be included in the Form S-1 registration statement. With Barzily & Co.'s

---

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

consent, Creations also included the audit report in an amended Form S-1 filed on August 17, 2020. From the time that it filed its Form S-1, and at all relevant times thereafter, Creations was an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

3. Metalink Ltd. ("Metalink") is an Israel corporation. Barzily & Co. has served as Metalink's auditor since 2017. Metalink's Form 20-F for FYE December 31, 2020, disclosed that it was a shell company. At all relevant times, Metalink's common shares were registered with the Commission pursuant to Section 12(g) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. At all relevant times, Metalink was an issuer as that term is defined by Section 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 1001(i)(iii).

C. Summary

4. This matter concerns the Firm's failure to comply with PCAOB rules and quality control standards. The Firm failed to establish quality control policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that the work performed by its associated persons would meet the applicable PCAOB standards and regulatory requirements.

5. As a result of the Firm's inadequate system of quality control, the Firm violated several PCAOB rules and standards in its audits of Creations and Metalink. For example, even though the Firm filed a Form AP[3] for Metalink in 2018, the Firm subsequently failed to file or timely file five Form APs between 2019 and 2021 because it failed to establish policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that it would continue to file Form APs in the future. Similarly, because the Firm failed to establish quality control policies and procedures to specifically address PCAOB requirements pertaining to audit committee pre-approval of tax services[4] and critical audit matters,[5] the Firm violated PCAOB Rule 3524 in three audits and AS 3101 in one audit. The Firm's audit documentation was also incomplete and/or lacked sufficient detail in two audits, in violation of various PCAOB rules and audit standards.

D. The Firm Violated PCAOB Rules and Standards

6. PCAOB rules and standards require that registered firms establish and maintain an adequate system of quality control.[6] "A firm's system of quality control encompasses the firm's organizational structure and the policies adopted and procedures established to provide the firm with reasonable assurance of complying with professional standards."[7]

7. A firm's system of quality control should, among other things, include policies and procedures for engagement performance.[8] A firm should establish policies and procedures to provide it with reasonable assurance that the work performed by engagement personnel meets applicable professional standards, regulatory requirements, and the firm's standards of quality.[9] A firm should also establish policies and procedures to provide the firm with reasonable assurance that its quality control policies and procedures are suitably designed and are being effectively applied.[10]

8. During the relevant period, Barzily & Co. developed a significant portion of the audit programs and other policies and procedures that it used to perform its audits, including audits that were subject to PCAOB standards. However, those audit programs and other policies and procedures failed to provide reasonable assurance that: (1) Firm personnel complied with PCAOB rules and standards, (2) the audit programs were timely updated for new requirements, and (3) that the firm's policies and procedures for complying with PCAOB requirements were suitably designed and being effectively applied. As a result, the Firm violated PCAOB quality control standards and, as illustrated below, also failed to comply with various PCAOB rules and standards in connection with its Metalink and Creations audits.

i. Respondent Failed to Timely File Form APs in Violation of PCAOB Rule 3211

9. PCAOB Rule 3211 provides that each registered public accounting firm must provide information about engagement partners and other accounting firms that participate in audits of issuers by filing a Form AP, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants, for each audit report issued by the firm for an issuer. Form APs must be filed by the 35th day after the date the audit report is first included in a document filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC),[11] subject to a shorter filing deadline that applies when the audit report is first included in a registration statement filed under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended.[12]

10. In 2018, Barzily & Co. filed a Form AP for its audit of Metalink's FYE 2017 financial statements, but failed to adopt quality control policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that the Firm would file Form APs as required in future audits. Subsequently, the Firm issued audit reports on Metalink's FYE 2018 and FYE 2019 financial statements, which Metalink included in Form 20-F filings with the Commission on April 30, 2019 and April 29, 2020, respectively. However, the Firm did not file a Form AP for either audit report. The Firm issued an audit report on Metalink's FYE 2020 financial statements, which Metalink included in a Form 20-F filing with the Commission on April 29, 2021. However, the Firm did not file a Form AP for that audit report until 118 days later, on August 25, 2021.

11. Barzily & Co. issued an audit report on Creations' FYE 2019 financial statements, which Creations included, with the consent of the Firm, in a Form S-1 filing and an amended Form S-1/A filing with the Commission on July 29, 2020 and August 17, 2020, respectively. However, the Firm did not file a Form AP for that audit report. The Firm issued an audit report on Creations' FYE 2020 financial statements, which Creations included in a Form 10-K filing with the Commission on March 30, 2021. However, the Firm did not file a Form AP for that audit report until 148 days later, on August 25, 2021.

12. As reflected above, after becoming aware of the Form AP requirement by no later than 2018, Barzily & Co. failed to file three required Forms AP—for the audit reports on Metalink's FYE 2018 and FYE 2019 financial statements and on Creations' FYE 2019 financial statements—in violation of PCAOB Rule 3211. The Firm belatedly filed these Form APs in April 2023, only after receiving notice of deficiencies from the Division of Enforcement and Investigations ("DEI").

13. When it filed Form APs for its audit reports on Metalink's FYE 2020 financial statements and Creations' FYE 2020 financial statements, those forms were 118 and 148 days late, respectively, which also violated PCAOB Rule 3211.

[11] See Rule 3211(b)(1).

[12] In that instance, a firm is required to file the Form AP by the tenth day after the date the audit report is first included in a document filed with the Commission. See Rule 3211(b)(2).

ii. Respondent Failed to Comply with Requirements in PCAOB Rule 3524 Relating to Pre-Approval of Tax Services

14. PCAOB Rule 3524 provides that, in connection with seeking audit committee pre-approval to perform for an issuer audit client any permissible tax service, a registered firm shall, among other things: (a) describe in writing to the audit committee the nature and scope of the service and the fee structure for the engagement, (b) discuss with the audit committee of the issuer the potential effects of the services on the independence of the firm, and (c) document the substance of its discussion with the audit committee of the issuer.[13]

15. Barzily & Co. failed to adopt quality control policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that the Firm complied with the foregoing requirements of PCAOB Rule 3524. In 2018, the Firm described in its engagement letter for the FYE 2017 audit that it would assist Metalink in filing its FYE 2017 tax return, as part of the overall fixed-fee engagement. For FYE 2018 and FYE 2019, Barzily & Co. again assisted Metalink with its tax return filings, but failed to describe the scope of those services in writing to the audit committee. At no point did Barzily & Co. discuss with the audit committee the potential effects of the FYE 2017 through FYE 2019 tax services on the Firm's independence.[14] As a result, the Firm violated PCAOB Rule 3524.

iii. Respondent Failed to Discuss the Absence of Critical Audit Matters for the FYE 2020 Metalink Audit in the Audit Report

16. For the audit of Metalink's FYE 2020 financial statements, PCAOB standards required the Firm to determine whether there were any critical audit matters in the audit of the current period's financial statements.[15] PCAOB standards also required the Firm to disclose any identified critical audit matters relating to the audit in the auditor's report or, if the Firm determined that there were no critical audit matters, to disclose in the audit report that there were none.[16]

17. For Metalink, the FYE 2020 audit was the first audit in which these requirements regarding critical audit matters applied. However, at the time of the audit, the Firm had not

[13] See Rule 3524.

[14] The Firm expected that the tax filings in each year would be a relatively minor service, given Metalink's status as a shell company, and believed that the tax service would not impair its independence. However, the Firm did not discuss that view with the issuer's audit committee.

[15] See AS 3101.11-.12.

[16] See AS 3101.13-.16.

adopted quality control policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that it would comply with the new requirements for critical audit matters in AS 3101. While Barzily & Co. determined that there were no critical audit matters for the FYE 2020 Metalink audit, the Firm failed to disclose the absence of critical audit matters in the audit report. As a result, the Firm violated AS 3101.16.

iv. Respondent Failed to Prepare Adequate Audit Documentation

18. PCAOB standards provide that a complete and final set of audit documentation should be assembled for retention as of a date not more than 45 days after the report release date (documentation completion date).[17] Communications with audit committees required by AS 1301, Communications with Audit Committees, are among the items that must be documented.[18] Audit documentation must also contain sufficient information to enable an experienced auditor, having no previous connection with the engagement, to understand the nature, timing, extent, and results of the procedures performed, evidence obtained, and conclusions reached.[19] Among other things, the audit documentation should also include documentation of the work performed by any auditor-employed specialists, so that it can be evaluated by the members of the engagement team who are supervising that specialist.[20]

19. Barzily & Co. failed to adopt quality control policies and procedures to provide reasonable assurance that it would comply with all PCAOB documentation requirements prior to completing the FYE 2020 Creations audit and FYE 2020 Metalink audit. As a result, the Firm violated QC § 20.

20. In both audits, Respondent failed to adequately document certain communications required under AS 1301 to the issuers' audit committees.[21] For the Metalink audit, the firm did not document that the management representation letter for the audit had been provided to the audit committee. For the Creations audit, the Firm failed to document in sufficient detail that it had communicated an overview of the audit strategy to the audit committee, or all of the required aspects of the Firm's evaluation of the quality of the issuers' financial reporting. In addition, for the FYE 2020 Creations audit, the Firm failed to include in its final set of audit documentation (a) adequate documentation of the journal entry testing that it performed, or (b) a report or equivalent documentation from a Firm-employed specialist that performed work related to the fair value of certain intangible assets. As a result, the Firm violated AS 1215 and AS 1301.

IV.

In view of the foregoing, and to protect the interests of investors and further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, the Board determines it appropriate to impose the sanctions agreed to in Barzily & Co. Certified Public Accountants' Offer. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED, effective immediately, that:

1. All funds collected by the PCAOB as a result of the assessment of this civil money penalty will be used in accordance with Section 109(c)(2) of the Act.

2. Certified Public Accountants as a respondent in these proceedings, sets forth the title and PCAOB release number of these proceedings, and states that payment is made pursuant to this Order, a copy of which cover letter and money order or check shall be sent to Office of the Secretary, Attention: Phoebe W. Brown, Secretary, Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, 1666 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

3. If timely payment is not made, additional interest shall accrue at the federal debt collection rate set for the current quarter pursuant to 31 U.S.C. § 3717. Payments shall be applied first to post-Order interest.

4. With respect to any civil money penalty amounts that Respondent shall pay pursuant to this Order, Respondent shall not, directly or indirectly, (a) seek or accept reimbursement or indemnification from any source including, but not limited to, any current or former affiliated firm or professional or any payment made pursuant to any insurance policy; (b) claim, assert, or apply for a tax deduction or tax credit in connection with any federal, state, local, or foreign tax; nor (c) seek or benefit by any offset or reduction of any award of compensatory damages, by the amount of any part of Respondent's payment of the civil money penalty pursuant to this Order, in any private action brought against Respondent based on substantially the same facts as set out in the findings in this Order.

5. Respondent understands that failure to pay the civil money penalty described above may result in summary suspension of Respondent's registration, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5304(a), following written notice to Respondent at the address on file with the PCAOB at the time of the issuance of this Order.

C. Pursuant to Sections 105(c)(4)(C) and (G) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 5300(a)(3), (8) and (9), the Board orders that:

1. Filing of Delinquent Forms AP. Within 30 days after the entry of this Order, Barzily & Co. will file with the PCAOB all past-due Form AP filings for the years 2018 to the present.

2. Training. Within 120 days after entry of this Order, Barzily & Co. shall ensure that training on the following topics is provided to each of its associated persons who participates in the planning or performing of any audit services (as defined in PCAOB Rule 1001(a)(vii)) that are required to be performed under PCAOB standards:

   a. the filing of Form AP, pursuant to PCAOB Rule 3211, Auditor Reporting of Certain Audit Participants;

   b. PCAOB audit documentation requirements, including AS 1215, Audit Documentation; and

c. Required procedures concerning critical audit matters under AS 3101, The Auditor's Report on an Audit of Financial Statements When the Auditor Expresses an Unqualified Opinion.

3. Independent Consultant.

a. Barzily & Co. shall retain and pay for an independent consultant not unacceptable to the DEI staff who has experience with, and is knowledgeable concerning, PCAOB auditing standards and quality control standards ("Independent Consultant"). Within 30 days after the entry of this Order, Barzily & Co. shall submit to the DEI staff a proposal setting forth the identity, qualifications, and proposed terms of retention of the Independent Consultant. Barzily & Co. may not retain as the Independent Consultant any individual or entity that has provided legal, auditing, or other services to, or has any affiliation with, Barzily & Co. during the prior year (except that, if acceptable to the Director of DEI, Barzily & Co. may retain an independent consultant that has provided services to Barzily & Co. during 2023, in anticipation of this Order, provided that consultant did not provide legal, auditing, or other services to, or have any affiliation with, Barzily & Co. during 2022).

b. To ensure the independence of the Independent Consultant, Barzily & Co.: (i) shall not have the authority to terminate the Independent Consultant or substitute another independent consultant for the initial Independent Consultant, without the prior written approval of the DEI staff; (ii) shall compensate the Independent Consultant and persons engaged to assist the Independent Consultant for services rendered pursuant to this Order at their reasonable and customary rates.

c. If Barzily & Co., despite its best, good faith efforts, is unable to identify an Independent Consultant candidate that meets all of the above-listed criteria, it may seek approval from the DEI staff of alternative candidates or alternative terms that Barzily & Co. believes to be otherwise suitable.

d. Barzily & Co. shall retain the Independent Consultant within 60 days after entry of this Order.

e. Barzily & Co. shall cooperate fully with the Independent Consultant and shall provide reasonable access to its personnel, information, and records as the Independent Consultant may reasonably request for the Independent Consultant's review, evaluation, and reports.

4. Areas Independent Consultant Is To Review. Within the periods specified in Paragraph IV.C.5 below, the Independent Consultant will review and evaluate the following:

   a. Barzily & Co.'s quality control policies and procedures as they relate to "Engagement Performance," as that term is described in QC Section 20.17;

   b. Barzily & Co.'s quality control policies and procedures as they relate to "Monitoring," as that term is described in QC Section 20.20 and as further discussed in QC Section 30; and

   c. Barzily & Co.'s quality control policies, procedures, and staff training as they relate to the performance of an "Engagement Quality Review" as that term is used in AS 1220, Engagement Quality Review.

5. Independent Consultant Report and Certifications

   a. Within five months of the Independent Consultant being retained, Barzily & Co. shall require the Independent Consultant to issue a written report ("IC Report") to Barzily & Co.: (i) summarizing the Independent Consultant's review and evaluation of the areas identified in Paragraph IV.C.4 above, and (ii) making recommendations, where appropriate, reasonably designed to ensure that Barzily & Co. maintains a system of quality control sufficient to give the Firm reasonable assurance that its engagement teams comply with applicable PCAOB auditing standards and regulatory requirements. Barzily & Co. shall require the Independent Consultant to provide a copy of the IC Report to the DEI staff when issued.

   b. Barzily & Co. will adopt, as soon as practicable, all recommendations of the Independent Consultant in the IC Report; provided, however, that within thirty days of the issuance of the IC Report, Barzily & Co. may advise the Independent Consultant and the DEI staff in writing of any recommendation that it considers to be unnecessary, unduly burdensome, or impractical. Barzily & Co. need not adopt any such recommendation at that time, but instead may propose in writing to the Independent Consultant and the DEI staff an alternative proposal designed to achieve the same objective or purpose. Barzily & Co. and the Independent Consultant will engage in good faith negotiations in an effort to reach agreement on any recommendations objected to by Barzily & Co.

c. In the event that the Independent Consultant and Barzily & Co. are unable to agree on an alternative proposal within forty-five days, Barzily & Co. either will abide by the determinations of the Independent Consultant or will seek approval from the DEI staff to engage, at Barzily & Co.'s expense, a qualified third party acceptable to the DEI staff to promptly resolve the issue(s).

d. Within seventy-five days of the issuance of the IC Report and the resolution of any issues that are the subject of disagreement between Barzily & Co. and the Independent Consultant, Barzily & Co. will certify to the DEI staff in writing that it has adopted and has implemented or will implement all recommendations of the Independent Consultant ("Certification"). Barzily & Co. will provide a copy of the Certification to the DEI staff.

e. Twelve months after the issuance of the IC Report, Barzily & Co. shall require the Independent Consultant to verify the implementation of the recommended changes to Barzily & Co.'s system of quality control and to assess their effectiveness. Within eighteen months of the issuance of the IC Report, Barzily & Co. shall require the Independent Consultant to issue a written report ("Supplemental Review Report") summarizing the results of the Independent Consultant's verification and assessment of Barzily & Co.'s changes to its system of quality control. Barzily & Co. shall require the Independent Consultant to provide a copy of the Supplemental Review Report to the DEI staff when issued.

6. For good cause shown, the PCAOB staff may extend any of the procedural dates relating to these undertakings. Deadlines for procedural dates shall be counted in calendar days, except that if the last day falls on a weekend or federal holiday, the next business day shall be considered the last day.

7. Barzily & Co. understands that the failure to satisfy these undertakings may constitute a violation of PCAOB Rule 5000 that could provide a basis for the imposition of additional sanctions in a subsequent disciplinary proceeding.

Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions

In the Matter of Marcum LLP,

Respondent.

PCAOB Release No. 105-2023-005

June 21, 2023

By this Order Instituting Disciplinary Proceedings, Making Findings, and Imposing Sanctions ("Order"), the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is:

(1) censuring Marcum LLP ("Marcum," "Firm," or "Respondent");

(2) imposing a civil money penalty in the amount of $3 million on the Firm;

(3) requiring Marcum to engage an independent consultant who will review and make recommendations concerning Marcum's quality control policies and procedures;

(4) requiring Marcum to implement all recommendations of the independent consultant;

(5) requiring Marcum to make functional changes to its supervisory structure related to the Firm's quality control policies and procedures; and

(6) requiring Marcum to conduct certain training for all audit staff.

The Board is imposing these sanctions on the basis of its findings that the Firm violated PCAOB rules and quality control standards by failing to take sufficient steps to ensure that its system of quality control provided reasonable assurance that: (1) the Firm would comply with the requirements regarding the acceptance of issuer clients and engagements, and (2) its personnel would comply with applicable professional standards and regulatory requirements.

I.

The Board deems it necessary and appropriate, for the protection of investors and to further the public interest in the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports, that disciplinary proceedings be, and hereby are, instituted against Respondent pursuant to Section 105(c) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, as amended (the "Act"), and PCAOB Rule 5200(a)(1).

II.

In anticipation of the institution of these proceedings, and pursuant to PCAOB Rule 5205, Respondent has submitted an Offer of Settlement (the "Offer") that the Board has determined to accept. Solely for the purpose of these proceedings and any other proceeding brought by or on behalf of the Board, or to which the Board is a party, and without admitting or denying the findings herein, except as to the Board's jurisdiction over Respondent and the subject matter of these proceedings, which is admitted, Respondent consents to the entry of this Order as set forth below.[1]

III.

On the basis of Respondent's Offer, the Board finds that:[2]

A. Respondent

1. Marcum LLP is a limited liability partnership headquartered in New York, New York. Marcum is licensed by the New York State Education Department (License No. 067839) and several other states. Marcum is, and at all relevant times was, registered with the PCAOB, pursuant to Section 102 of the Act and PCAOB rules.

---

[1] The findings herein are made pursuant to Respondent's Offer and are not binding on any other person or entity in this or any other proceeding.

[2] The Board finds that Respondent's conduct described in this Order meets the conditions set out in Section 105(c)(5) of the Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7215(c)(5), which provides that certain sanctions may be imposed in the event of: (1) intentional or knowing conduct, including reckless conduct, that results in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard; or (2) repeated instances of negligent conduct, each resulting in a violation of the applicable statutory, regulatory, or professional standard.

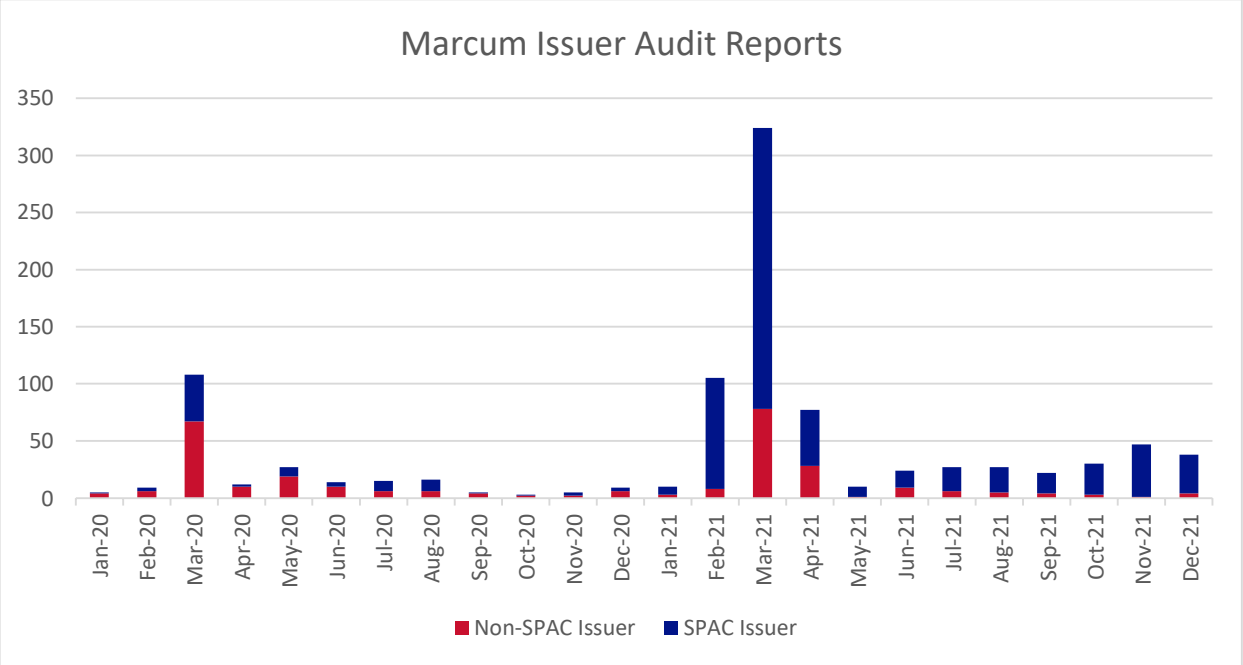
B. Summary

2. This matter concerns the Firm's failure to comply with PCAOB rules and quality control standards during the time period starting in January 2020 through December 2021. The Firm's system of quality control failed to provide reasonable assurance that the Firm would: (a) undertake only those issuer engagements that the Firm could reasonably expect to be completed with professional competence and appropriately consider the risks associated with providing professional services in the particular circumstances; (b) ensure that partner workloads were manageable to allow sufficient time for engagement partners and engagement quality review partners to discharge their responsibilities with professional competence and due care; (c) timely assemble complete and final sets of audit documentation; (d) timely and accurately file Form APs; (e) perform procedures to identify and assess the risks of material misstatement at the assertion level with respect to special purpose acquisition company ("SPAC") audits; (f) ensure that personnel were consulting with individuals within or outside the Firm, when appropriate, when dealing with complex issues; (g) perform sufficient procedures to determine whether certain matters were critical audit matters ("CAMs"); and (h) make all required communications to issuer audit committees.

C. Background

3. Between January 2020 through October 2021, Marcum accepted a substantial number of audit clients, including hundreds of audits of SPACs, resulting in a significant increase in its issuer audit practice. The Firm added 178 new SPAC audit clients in 2020, and another 617 new SPAC audit clients through October 2021.

4. During the period from January 2021 through April 2021, there was a corresponding spike in issuer audit reports Marcum issued in comparison with the prior year. From January 2020 through April 2020, the Firm issued 47 SPAC issuer audit reports and 87 non-SPAC issuer audit reports. In the corresponding period in 2021, those numbers increased to 399 SPAC issuer audit reports and 117 non-SPAC issuer audit reports—a 285% increase in issuer audit reports. Overall, in 2021, Marcum issued 741 issuer audit reports, an increase of 513 (or 225%) over the 228 audit reports issued in 2020, as shown in the below chart.



5. Despite the significant increase in issuer clients, in Marcum's New York City office, its largest office, overall partner headcount increased from 13 to 16, or only 23%, from January 2021 through June 2021. Although the Firm ultimately increased partner headcount more significantly beginning in July 2021, the relatively small increase in partner headcount from January 2021 through June 2021 resulted in large spikes in the number of hours worked by each partner during this period. Partner utilization[3] for the period from January 2021 through June 2021 for the New York City office increased by 27%, 36%, 41%, 49%, 39%, and 63% for each month respectively over the prior year. Partner utilization for the New York City office reached a high in March 2021 of 146%.

6. The considerable increase in issuer clients also led to a large number of issuer engagements being assigned to certain partners. During 2021, there were five engagement partners and eight engagement quality reviewers who were each responsible for 30 or more issuer clients. One engagement partner, Partner A, had 75 issuer clients, and one engagement quality review partner, Partner B, had 118 issuer clients. This led to significant workloads for these partners.

[3] Utilization rate measures workload and productivity, and the rate is calculated by dividing client billable hours worked in the period by the number of available work hours for the partners in the period based on a forty-hour work week.
